The same night Rube Wyatt's pool room was entered and the amount of $12.50 taken. Entrance was made through the front door. A part of the glass in the front door was punched out, so that one's hand could reach through and turn the night latch. Nothing was missed from the pool room except the money.

A fine cup of berries was left at the Banner office Saturday afternoon by Mr. Ernest Barrett of Sunshine community. They were well matured berries and just ripe enough to ship. It was the first quart Mr. Barrett had picked, and he gathered them Friday.

Mr. Barrett, who has been raising berries for five years, says he has about four acres this year, and that prospects are good for a nice early crop this year. He expects to go to shipping berries about April 1st or 15th. He has always made good on his strawberries.

Clanton Motors Had Big Show

Clanton Motors, Inc., local Ford dealers, were sponsors of a big open-air show and display of features of Ford trucks and cars here Saturday and Monday. Everything was rained out Saturday and Saturday night, but Monday and Monday night proved most successful. The cut-away chassis of a truck and one of a car were set up in a tent across the highway from Clanton Motors. These machines, electrically driven, showed all of the moving parts of the V-8 motor, the transmission and differential. These displays were most interesting.

Then Monday night, a complete talking picture outfit was set up inside the Clanton Motors building, and some interesting pictures thrown on the screen. Fine scenes of Yellowstone National Park were shown, as well as a short comedy-story. The River Rouge plant of Ford Motor Company was shown in detail, which proved a most enlightening affair. One cannot realize the immensity of the Ford operations without seeing the work that goes on inside this great plant.

FIRST 1938 STRAWBERRIES WERE BROUGHT IN LAST FRIDAY

The first ripe strawberries from the 1938 crop brought to the Union-Banner office were brought in by Mr. Alfred Moatts of Clanton Route 5, last Friday at noon. This quart of berries were large, well-formed fellows, and looked as if they might make a fine pie, or go well with some sugar and cream.

Mr. Moatts lives on the old Moatts place, near the old Dake Mill, east of Clanton. He stated that he had about two acres of berries, and from the general papearance of the patch, he would be shipping regularly by the first of April. If we remember correctly, this is a little earlier than usual. Mr. Moatts also stated that he has prospects for a bumper crop.

WE'LL MIND OUR OWN BUSINESS

[AN EDITORIAL]

With a general European war imminent, it is encouraging to note that nobody in this country seems greatly excited about it. The American people, apparently, refuse to get all wrought up on the issue of whether the beautiful blue Danube is Austrian or Nazi, whether Czecho-Slovakia is to remain Slav or become German. These questions may be vital to Europe, but more and more the sober common sense of the American people decrees that it is really none of our business. The sorry ending of our first—and last—excursion into the local affairs of Europe, under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, left the people of this country with a bad taste in their mouths. Apparently, this one experience has cured us of any desire for more. Thus, the World War, with all its horrors and waste, can be said to have served one useful purpose. It is difficult to find another beneficial result from it.

This autumn will mark the 20th anniversary of the ending of the great crusade that was to "Make The World Safe For Democracy". Today, those words sound like a ghastly mockery. Except for France and England, and a few minor countries, Europe is ruled by dictators, and democracy has vanished from most of the continent. Germany has Hitler, Italy has Mussolini, Russia is ruled by Stalin, and most of the lesser nations have rulers whose slightest whim is law, whose power far exceeds any ever wielded by Czar or Kaiser. The racial hatreds that existed before the war have multiplied many fold; the problems in the way of permanent peace are further than ever from solution.

The simple fact is that Europe is a medley of countless different nationalities, bitterly hating one another, living so mixed up together that a satisfactory solution seems utterly impossible. Cession of territory that gratifies one race offends another; and so entangled are the racial strains that it seems impossible to give all what they consider "justice".

There are areas in Europe no bigger than Alabama, inhabited by several distinct and hostile races, speaking different languages, and with different ambitions. In every country there is a majority race, or "dominant" race, that runs things and whose business it is to keep the others down. Each of the "subject races" or "minorities" hates its rulers and yearns to be "liberated" by some outside nation that is closer kin to it than are its rulers. Such problems cannot be solved by splitting up the disputed areas, for the conflicting races are so mixed up, in respect to the territory they occupy, that it is impossible to put all of one race within the same boundary line.

Take, for example, Czecho-Slovakia, the little country that has been in the news a lot lately. A majority of its people, and the ruling element, are the Czechs and Slovaks—Slav folk of the same basic racial stock as the Russians. But there are also some three million Germans, who, naturally enough, had rather join with Germany than be bossed by foreigners. Hitler is eager to "liberate" these Germans; France and England and Russia object, because the more land and people Hitler acquires, the stronger he becomes, and the more of a menace to them. Czecho-Slovakia has other problems besides the Germans; it also has Polish and Hungarian "minorities" so that it is doubtful whether Poland and Hungary would join in opposing German expansion, or join with Germany in the hope of sharing in the loot.

The more we ponder on such muddles, the more we may thank God for George Washington, the Atlantic Ocean, and the senators who, nearly two decades ago, killed the project for American entry into the League of Nations. Some day, perhaps, God Almighty may vouchsafe a solution for the problems of Europe. After our sad experience in Mr. Wilson's "war to end war", the American people are pretty well convinced that He has not delegated the job to them.

WESTERN AUTO ASSOCIATE STORE NOT MOVED

An article in last week's Union-Banner relative to Clyde Mims opening up a grocery store said that he would open up in "the place just vacated by Western Auto Supply Company". Some people in reading the article confused that with Western Auto Associate Store, across the street from Exchange Hotel.

We will state in explanation of the above that the place which was vacated was Western Tire & Supply Co., run by Mr. J. J. Freeman, and located next door to Chilton County News. The Western Auto Associate Store, operated by C. C. Craig, has not moved.

OLD FOLKS DAY AT FRIENDSHIP FIFTH SUNDAY IN MAY

The regular annual old folks day at Friendship will be held the fifth Sunday in May. All are urged not to plan something else for that day, but try and arrange to attend these services at Friendship.

Local Dry Goods Store Is Now Almost Finished

Visitors and customers at The Leader, one of Clanton's big dry goods stores, during the past several days know something of the changes and general renovation that are going on inside that store. Attention has been called to it in the columns of The Union-Banner from time to time, as well as in advertising space.

At the time we go to press, the walls and ceiling are completed, including the painting and re-decorating. The floor also has been torn out and put in anew.

Mr. Lande reports that he is going to push the finishing work on the building just as fast as he can; and when that is finished, the new fixtures will be brought in, and the general arrangement of display tables, show-cases, counters, etc., arranged in the handiest and most accessible manner.

Maurice Lande's 18 years of merchandising in Clanton is not an empty jesture, but it has meant and still means a great deal to the trading public of Chilton county. He has promised the people one of the finest and most up-to-date stores in Central Alabama, and Mr. Lande always makes his promises good. We are glad to have in our midst a business man of his calibre and measure of commercial integrity. We like to see his business grow and prosper, because it means that our people generally are going to reap some of the profits of his labor and untiring efforts. Our business men make our city; Clanton helps to make Chilton county, and on down the line.

It will be some weeks yet before The Leader is finally completed, but during these weeks, Mr. Lande is going right on offering attractive prices on dry goods and outfittings for the family. You are invited to come into his store as often as you can, and keep track of the various improvements. You will always find a welcome at The Leader. Watch The Union-Banner's advertising columns for regular announcements of bargains.

Taylor Grocery & Market is now under the management of Rev. Wm. E. Robinson, experienced grocery clerk and salesman. Rev. Robinson succeeds Mr. Clyde Mims to this position in the store belonging to Mr. R. W. Taylor, or Clanton Wholesale Grocery Company.

Rev. Robinson has had a rather broad experience in this line of work, as well as other duties that permitted his acquaintance with lots of people all over Chilton County. He has made lots of friends in all of his operations, and he insists that they come to see him when they come near. Taylor Grocery and Market is located next door to Alabama Power Company.

SLIGHT STORM WEDNESDAY

Just as The Banner was going to press Wednesday at noon news came in that a slight storm had struck in spots near Clanton. The barn of Tom Littlejohn was blown down, and damage was done to Oliver Smith's home near the county farm. Meagre reports were that some damage was done at or near Thorsby, but no details could be ascertained.

ED EDWARDS HAS INVENTED A CONCRETE MINNOW BOX

Ed Edwards is a real mimic when it comes to doing things with cement. His latest invention is a minnow box—not a basket or trap, but a box. He has just finished one for Mr. J. E. Easterling, and the owner's name is imbedded in the top of the box. A sliding lid is fixed in the top and an iron staple fixed for a padlock. Mr. Edwards says the whole structure is reinforced; there is no danger of it breaking—and certainly it will not rot.

CANNED GOODS SPECIALS AT HILL'S

Mr. L. J. Stewart, at Hill Grocery Company, announces a special canned goods sale this week end—in fact, it is now going on. Special attention is called to the window display at this store. Canned goods of all kinds are there in abundance, and the prices are right.

BATTLE OF CIVIL WAR FOUGHT IN CHILTON CO.

Had you ever read in history of a battle being fought in the western part of Chilton County during the 1860's? Well, there was such a battle, and the maneuvers and general details of it are told in a long article published elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner. The article was sent in by Sergeant Maurice W. Woolley, Nashville, Tenn. Do not fail to read "The Battle Of Stanton."

MULLINS & SCOTT OFFERING SPECIALS FOR CASH

The well known business establishment of Mullins & Scott, formerly J. R. Mullins and Sons, is this week offering some special prices on various items for cash. A half page adv. is carried elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner, pointing out some of the attractive bargains offered for Friday and Saturday only. Especial attention is called to ladies' and men's shoes, new spring dresses, and hats and coats. Also, there are specials in groceries and Avery implements. Turn to the adv. and get the prices.

Strong Evidence Found Against Cattle Rustlers

A bit of very strong evidence was discovered by Sheriff Hardy and his force of deputies last week against the three boys who were thought to have stolen a calf the first of last week and tried to peddle it as beef. A hide was discovered about five miles out the Maplesville road, some 300 yards south of the highway.

The hide was brought in to Clanton, and was identified as being the hide from a calf belonging to Mr. Jasper Dennis of South Clanton. The hide was identified by Mr. Earl Martin, who cares for Mr. Dennis's cattle. The calf weighed about 185 pounds on foot.

The boys charged with the rustling are: Huey Willis, Grady Mauldin and J. W. Driver. All three are still in jail awaiting preliminary hearing. They were arrested early last week in Thorsby after they had tried to peddle the beef at Maplesville and Jemison.

Other arrests by the Sheriff and his deputies during the past week include: Three white men for violating the prohibition law; two white men for manufacturing whiskey and possessing still; two white men for driving while intoxicated; one white man for assault and battery.

There were no city cases this week.

PUBLIC LIBRARY PLAN IS DRAWN

Temporary Board Of Officials Elected At Meeting Held Thursday Afternoon

A number of interested citizens met at Prof. Luther E. Little's office last Thursday afernoon, and assisted in the organizing of a temporary association for a public library in Clanton. The following officers were elected: President, Luther E. Little; 1st vice president, Mrs. Joe Mullins; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Grady Heflin; secretary-treasurer, T. E. Wyatt. The Board of Directors consists of: O. M. Webb, Mrs. Sophia Mullins, Mrs. N. S. Johnson, Mrs. John Powers, Mrs. J. W. Fant, Mrs. Bill Inzer, Mrs. S. J. Ezell, Mrs. Madge Mullins, C. Fenn Jones, P. M. Pitts, Patterson Hicks, Mrs. H. K. Christiansen. Others will likely be filled in later.

The above officers are to function only until the fundamentals of the library are set up and the organization put in working order. Then it will be necessary to provide permanent officials.

Plans will be worked out at an early date, and arrangements made for the procuring of books and the systematic handling of the same. Temporary quarters for the library will be furnished by Mr. Little in a part of his office. For a while, the books will be cared for by Mrs. T. E. Jefferson, the lady in charge of the lower grade school books for the department of education.

Other and later developments of the organization and things of interest pertaining to the library will be released for publication from time to time.

GOP Candidates Had Fine Social Meeting Fri.

The Republican candidates of Chilton County met in a social and semi-business gathering at Thomason Hotel Friday night of last week. All of the candidates except three were present; one of these was inadvertently not notified, and the other two were hindered by other unavoidable causes.

A guest of the meeting was Prof. Fred Allen, of Calera, Republican candidate for the State Senate from the fifteenth district. Prof. Allen had not met any of the candidates before, and the meeting was especially interesting to him and to the other candidates on that account.

The meeting was most inspiring and encouraging. As stated above, it was mosily a social gathering, but some matters pertaining to the campaign were discussed.

WATER EXTENSION BEGUN THIS WEEK

Line To Reynolds Addition Is First To Be Laid; Fifty Men Now At Work

Actual work began Tuesday on the water works extension project of the city. The work began on the line running across Black Snake to Reynolds Addition. The remainder will be pushed as rapidly as possible. Fifty men are now at work, and that number will likely be enlarged later.

This entire project will entail a cost of $44,000, the amount of $29,000 being an outright grant from the federal government. The project will cost the city approximately $15,000. A total of about 150 homes will be served with both water and fire protection in the new area of the city, and the monthly cost for water will average around $2.00. From these figures one can arrive at the revenue the city will derive from the additional water service. About four months will be required to complete this extension project.

Mayor Jones announces that no definite arrangement has been made as to taking care of the city's part of the expense of this project; but it is possible that the citizens of Clanton will be asked to vote a bond issue to take care of this and other contemplated improvements of the city. Mr. Jones explains that it is his hope to continue to retire the high rate bonds which the city already owes, and to issue bonds for this money bearing cheaper rate of interest; thus, the difference in the interest will be saved.

In this connection it might be mentioned that Mayor Jones now has in his possession two city bonds of $1,000 each, bearing 6 per cent interest, which are to be paid April 1st. One of these bonds is due in 1940 and the other in 1943. These high-interest bonds will be retired as rapidly as possible, and where additional revenue has to be borrowed, 4 per cent bonds will be issued.

Sewerage Project Under Way

Application has been made by the city officials for WPA assistance in extending sewerage lines to the new area of the city; also for a sewage disposal plant, and supplements to the main sewers already in the city's old system. The sewage of the city has become so great that the old lines are scarcely sufficient to take care of all of the waste. The disposal plant will provide for the sewage to be disposed of in a manner other than dumping it into the creek below the city.

Mayor Jones also has made application to the WPA for rather extensive street paving for the city. It will likely be some time before these two projects are approved. If they are done, however, the time required for each project will be about one year, Mr. Jones says.

How City Will Pay Its Part

As stated above, these projects all cost money—there is cost besides what the government puts into them. It is Mayor Jones's intention to pay for the present water-works extension with short-time loans to the city, provided there is no approval by the federal authorities of the sewerage project and the paving project. If the latter two projects are approved, then the Mayor plans to submit the question of a bond issue to the citizens of the city to provide the city's part of the money not only for the sewerage and paving, but for the present water extension as well.

More Street Lights Installed

Alabama Power Company is this week working on installing street lights for the additional area of the city. They are now at work in Reynolds addition; street lights will be installed in South Clanton and in North Clanton within a short time.

From all of the above improvements, it may be gathered that Mayor Jones is remembering his promises to the citizens of the newly added territory to the city. He said that the officials would give them city conveniences, and it looks as though these things will soon be a reality. The newly added areas will not be step-children to Clanton, but full-fledged heirs to every convenience citizens in the center of the city enjoy. "Time marches on", and so does progress in the City of Clanton.

THREE NAMES OMITTED IN RALPH GRANT ENDORSEMENT

The Union-Banner wishes to acknowledge the omission of three names from the list of people at Enterprise endorsing Ralph D. Grant in last week's paper. Through error the names of J. L. Chandler, M. G. Burkhalter, and Cleve Hathcock were left off the printed list. The name of C. R. Pierce was printed "C. R. Price". This paper is sorry of the error, and we beg the pardon of all concerned.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Game & Fish News

Turkey Season Opens

On March 15 many Alabama nimrods took to the forests and swamps in search of wild turkeys as the last half of the open season began. It continues for 30 days, closing on April 15. The first half of the turkey season in this state was from November 20 to December 31. Pursuit of the great bronze game bird is a favorite sport in many counties of Alabama, as a restoration program started several years ago has returned the turkey to 65 out of 67 counties. Lowlands adjacent to the Alabama and Tombigbee Rivers, as well as the northern part of Baldwin County, afford excellent turkey hunting territory.

President's Proclamation

Few events in the history of the United Stated have been considerel of sufficient importance to merit a presidential proclamation, and the forces forking for the restoration of wildlife in the nation were encouraged in their fight when President Roosevelt last month signed a proclamation calling upon the entire nation to observe National Wildlife Restoration Week during March 20-26. "Only through the full cooperation of all can wildlife be restored for the present generation and perpetuated for posterity," said President Roosevelt. The occasion likewise was proclaimed officially in Alabama by Gov. Graves, with Biard Day being set for Tuesday, March 22. The Alabama Wildlife Federation is engaged in a campaign to raise funds for perpetuating the work in this state.

Quail Farm Busy

Three hundred pairs of Bob White quail have been placed in separate laying pens at the state quail farm in Autauga County, and the birds are making nests. The laying of eggs will start the latter part of April, Supt. Alex McPhail said, and he estimates the hens will produce about 1,000 eggs a week. The farm begins a new season with 300 laying pens as against 75 last year; 340 brooder hens compared to 75 last season; an da new concrete broider house with room for 140 of the brooder pens. Visiting hours are from 2 to 4 p.m. daily.

"LINDY LOU"

On Friday night, April 1, 1938, the Junior Class of Verbena High School will present "Lindy Lou" in the high school auditorium.

Your interest will be held during the entire play as you watch Lawrence Howard as Timothy Tweedsome. Having made his millions in the tobacco fields of the South, he decides to spend it on the shores of Long Island. Helen Patterson as Lindy Lou Evans, his lovely niece from the dear old Southland; Herman Connell as Wick Barry—all-American quarterback at Pennsylvania, but not backward in love, and other members of the class in this thrilling drama.

IN MEMORY

Last Monday evening, March 14, at about 7 o'clock the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Roebuck, of the Isabella community, and took from their midst their beloved son and stepson, John Henry Wilson. John Henry has never been physically well in his life, but it was only about two weeks ago that he took his death bed.

He was loved by everyone who knew him. He loved everybody, and he wanted them to love him. He appreciated every little thing anyone did for him, and especially did he appreciate what his grandmother, mother, stepfather, and Dr. Dubose did for him. He was very cheerful, even unto the end.

We know that we will never meet John Henry again in this dreadful world of sin and sorrow, but if we live right we will meet him again in a better world. It was hard to give him up, but we know that it was for the best that God took him. We don't feel that he is dead, but peacefully sleeping.

He leaves to mourn his going, a mother, stepfather, grandmother, two half brothers, two half sisters, and a host of friends.—A friend.

A school teacher wrote to the parents of a little boy:

"Your boy, Charles, shows signs of astigmatism. Will you please investigate and take steps to correctit?

The next morning she received a reply fro mthe boy's father, who wrote: "I don't exactly understand what Charlie has done, but I have walloped him tonight, and you can wallop him tomorrow. That ought to help some."

G-Man: "Got away, has he? Did you guard all the exits?"

Village Cop: "Yep, but we think he must have slipped through one of the entrances."

WANTS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR STATE SENATOR

The Union-Banner is in receipt of a letter from Mr. F. F. Huckabee, of Jemison Route 2, lending his endorsement to Mr. Fred Allen of Calera, the Republican candidate for State Senator. Mr. Huckabee says: "Mr. Fred Allen is a fine man, good, friendly, and always glad to meet people. He was raised on a farm, and has always been a hard worker. He has taught school for many years, and is thoroughly capable of filling the office of State Senator. We need a man for that office who knows the need of the farming class of people. Fred Allen knows our problems.

"I have sent children to school to him, lived by him, and have known him all of his life. He served in the World War in France. So, let's do all we can for Mr. Allen. He was born and reared in Shelby County. You will not make a mistake in remembering him on election day.—F. F. Huckabee."

Maynard's Chapel

Sunday was our regular singing day at this place, with a large crowd attending. The opening song was led by S. J. Williams, with prayer by Martin Pruitt. We were indeed glad to have with us Mr. Northcutt and family from Oak Grove; they did some fine singing, which everyone enjoyed.

We also had with us from Enterprise community Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williams and daughter, Lura Mae; they did some fine singing, joining in with their son and brother, S. J. Williams, our choir leader, to give us a family quartet which was much enjoyed.

Leaders for the afternoon were: S. J. Williams, Sam Collins, Mrs. Northcutt, Miss Mildred Little of Oak Grove, Mr. J. M. Williams from Enterprise, P. H. Headley, Vaughn Martin, and Jim Robinson. The Glasscock brothers of Jemison each led a song, then they gave a duet, a very beautiful number. Steve Hughes sang a solo, entitled "Life's Railway To Heaven." Miss Northcutt and Miss Mildred Little of Oak Grove rendered a beautiful duet. We had visitors from Thorsby, including Mr. Emmett Billingsley and others whose names we did not get.

Mr. Benson, from Oak Grove, was one of the pianists for the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barrett had as their Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williams and daughter, Lura Mae, and Mr. Philip Headley, all of Enterprise.

Mr. Eugene Cleckler of Birmingham is spending a few days with Mr. Winford Littlefield.

Mr. W. G. Maynard is at home sick.

We are looking for a large crowd at Sunday school next Sunday, as it is the last day of our contest—with the Blues leading. Everybody is welcome.

Rev. E. W. Butler Writes

March 18, 1938.

Dear Mr. Wyatt:

I believe you asked me to write you a letter—here it is.

March came in like a lion all right. It is lamb-like enough now, but the friends assure us we may have big storms yet. Mark Twain is credited with the remark: "Folks talk about the weather a lot, but they don't do anything about it". That isn't true here. When the snow begins to fly the men get very busy. They get out their big snow plows and they make the snow fly for sure. The highways must be kept open. About 15 busses a day pass through our city each way. New York City, Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, and Buffalo are among the cities reached from here directly. The last three cities named have over a million people, and they are in our neighborhood. We haven't tried the busses yet, but we may when spring really arrives. We certainly must see Niagara Falls before next winter.

We are enjoying our new home very much. Canandaigua is a town over 150 years old. It is at the north end of a lake of the same name, a lake 17 miles long, one of the "finger lakes," so called because on the map of western New York they look like a hand full of fingers pointing to Lake Ontario, into which their waters all find their way. Lake Ontario is about 25 miles away.

Our town has about 8,000 residents. It has one main street running north from the foot of the lake in front of our home, which is two miles from the lake. Main Street is 135 feet wide, of which 45 feet is a paved highway, and on each side of the pavement is a parkway of 45 feet. These parkways are beautiful, with their large trees and fine sod. They are not disfigured with advertisements. They may have traffic directions and signboards; also they may have markers of historical interest. In front of our home and park is this permanent marker, steel, raised letters: "Granger Homestead, Home of Gideon Granger, Postmaster General in Cabinets of Jefferson and Madison, Resident Here 1814-1822." Mr. Granger was Postmaster General for 13 years. It is said that President Jefferson brought from Paris to his friend, Granger, the plans for the mansion he built here in 1814. When Mr. Granger's great-granddaughter, Miss Antoinette Granger, a woman of advanced years, with no near relations, died here about eight years ago, it was found that she had left her beautiful home to our Congregational Board to be a home for retired ministers, their wives and widows. She left also a large additional legacy for the care of the home. She left also a dear friend, a woman much younger than herself, who had often assisted Miss Granger in the gracious acts of hospitality which she so much enjoyed to extend. It was Miss Granger's desire that this dear friend should become the hostess of the new home to be established. The friend accepted the responsibility.

We are the last people so fortunate as to be accepted guests in this unique home. Like all the other guests, it has taken us only a very little time to fall in love with our most gracious hostess. I imagine it takes an unusual amount of graciousness to be hostess to a bunch of permanent guests—all of them well along in years. But our hostess does it, and we are happy.

My one criticism of our home is of a condition which is in the nature of things unavoidable. We are missing the young life which has in the years past meant so much more to us than we realized. So my last word at this time would be to my friends, especially our young friends: Come and see us. This is a beautiful country. Come and see it, and stop at Granger Homestead, Canandaigua, N. Y., and ask for Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler.

A small boy went on strike at the church door because they promised him a train to carry up the aisle, and when he got there, it was only a part of a lady's dress.

"What did you think of the big fight last night, Bill?" asked the retired boxer of his pal.

"Fight?" rttorted Bill scornfully. "If the missus and me had put up a show like that on Saturday night, the kids would have booed us."

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

COTTON LOAN MUST BE PAID IF SOLD PRIOR TO JULY, 1938

Auburn, Mar. 21. — If a farmer has cotton under a 1937 Commodity Credit Corporation loan and he wishes to sell the cotton, the loan must be paid in full before he sells the cotton, according to Walter L. Randolph, AAA administrative officer for Alabama.

However, a producer does not have to sell his cotton to qualify for a cotton price adjustment payment. Cotton not sold before July 1, 1938, will be considered to have been sold on June 30, 1938, whether it was a loan or not.

Numerous reports have been received that farmers with cotton under the loans have been selling their "equities" in the loan cotton and receiving sale certificates in reutrn, Randolph said. Payments cannot be made to producers on the basis of much so-called sales, and persons buying "equities" on loan cotton cannot obtain payments when they resell the cotton.

Randolph explained that under the law cotton price adjustment payments will be made on a part of the 1937 crop, the rate of paymnt in each case to be the amount by which the average price of cotton in the 10 spot markets on the date of sale is below 12 cents, but in no case more than 3 cents per pound. When a producer sells his cotton prior to July 1, 1938, if the sale is a bona fide sale with title passing from producer to buyer, he may receive a cotton price adjustment payment on that cotton, at the rate applicable on the dtte of sale.

If a producer does not sell his cotton prior to July 1, 1938, he may receive a cotton price adjustment payment at the rate applicable on June 30, 1938, regarlless of whether or not the cotton was under a loan.

Nothing takes the place of a good side dressing with Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda—"Natchel Sody", as Uncle Natchel calls it.

Like children, crops need lots of food when they really start to grow. That's why it is so important to side dress your crop with Natural Chilean Soda—to supply quick acting nitrogen just when it is needed.

Chilean Nitrate is valuable not only as a source of nitrogen, but also to furnish or build up a reserve of small amounts of other plant food elements naturally blended with it.

FARMERS HAVE MANY WAYS TO QUALIFY FOR PAYMENTS

Auburn, Mar. 21. — There are many ways Alabama farmers can qualify for benefit payments unler the new 1938 AAA program, reports P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, in urging all extension workers to cooperate fully with farmers in carrying out these practices.

Some of the soil-building practices farmers may use are: fertilizing legumes, grasses and permanent pastures with phosphate, applying ground limestone, planting legumes and pasture mixtures, reseeding depleted pastures, terracing land, contour ridging of non-crop open pasture land, constructing reservoirs and dams, planting, cultivating, protecting, and maintaining forest trees, and various ooher ways.

Mr. Davis not only wants to see farmers qualify for payments under the program, but he is anxious for them to take advantage of the opportunity to adjust their farms and farming operations.

"Other farm products must be combined with cotton before our farmers can have a decent income distributed throughout the ytar," he says in a lettr to all extension workers. "Obviously, this can't be done without a substantial increase in the production of livestock and poultry."

Mr. Davis advises farmers that they may obtain full information on how to qualify for payments and diversify under the new program from their county or assistant county farm agents.

LOWNDES COUNTY FARMERS TURN FOR FISH PRODUCTION

Hayneville, Mar. 21. — Lowndes County, once a leading cotton producing county, is fast becoming a leading fish producing area.

During the past 18 months farmers of the county have constructed 22 fish ponds covering about 200 acres, and plans are under way for the construction of a dozen more ponds, reports J. W. Mathews, county agent. The ponds are being built by the terracing machinery of the owndes County Terracing Association with J. P. Robinson, assistant county agent, taking the lead in promoting the work.

The fish ponds not only are being used for fish production but for conserving water for livestock, recreation, and for landscape purposes.

Harry Brown, assistant secretary of agriculture, Washington; P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service; and O. C. Medlock, state coordinator, Soil Conservation Service, praised the work during a recent visit to the county.

The new AAA program encourages this type of work by providing benefit payments for the construction of reservoirs and dams.

Reports from Auburn show that the Alabama Experiment Station has found that farmers can produce a large tonnage of fish per acre by fertilizing the fonds with a complete fertilizer.

ALABAMA HAS 132 COTTON IMPROVEMENT CENTERS

Auburn, Mar. 21. — Alabama's cotton growers are marching forward with a cotton improvement program, says J. C. Lowery, agronomist, Alabama Extension Service, in reporting that a total of 669,979 bushels of improved planting seeds were saved in 1937.

"If properly distributed there is sufficient seed of better staple varieties to eliminate the short staple problem in Alabama in 1938," he says.

Summarizing the cotton improvement work in Alabama, Mr. Lowery reports that 132 cotton improvement associations have been organized in 36 Alabama counties, and that associations in 30 counties saved 476,094 bushels of planting seed last year.

In addition," he adds, "considerable cotton improvement work was done in a general way and not directly through improvement associations". Records reveal that 193,885 bushels of seed were saved through gin days and otherwise for planting purposes.

Farmers cooperating in the improvement work in 1937 produced 242,203 bales of better staple cotton. Indications are that a larger number of bales will be produced this year, he concludes.

Most farmers in the one-variety communities receive a premium price for their cotton, he says, in commending the cotton buyers, ginners, and manufacturers for their cooperation in the improvement program.

USE MORE POTASH FOR BETTER COTTON PRODUCTION

It is advised of those who have made thorough studies of the cotton situation from a world-wide standpoint that South Carolina growers devote their efforts to the production of superior staple and quality; while it is well known that there has been an over-production of cotton, it is not generally known that there has been an increasing demand for the better grades of cotton at substantial premiums. The production of such cotton, therefore, appears to be the solution of the problem facing the growers of the South. This can best be accomplished by following the recommendations of the Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations.

It is of greatest importance to plant varieties of cotton which are known to produce cotton of superior staple length. There are many good varieties of such cotton now being marketed by seed breeders throughtout the South. After selecting a suitable variety of cotton, it is essential that proper attention be given to the matter of fertilization an cultural methods in order to produce the greatest possible yields.

Recent publications by the Experiment Station of South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia show that a high ratio of potash in the fertilizer applied to cotton is of prime importance in the production of high yields of the quality of cotton now in demand. In addition, it is significant that those growers who are consistent winners in the state-wide 5-acre cotton contest make a practice of applying plenty of potash to their crops. Many of these high producers are finding it profitable to use a high ratio of potash in the fertilizer mixture applied before planting, and to supplement this with additional potash as a side-dressing at chopping time. Second applications are especially important on soils where cotton is inclined to rust.

When an ample amount of potash is applied, large, well-developed bolls are produced, the staple is better and more uniform, rust is prevented or controlled and picking is made easier.

Potash is recognized as one of the cheapest fertilizer materials available. As a consequence fertilizer mixtures containing from 6 to 10 per cent potash are rapidly growing in popularity and the cost is only a few cents per acre more than is paid for mixtures containing 3 and 4 per cent of potash.

IN MEMORY

On Tuesday morning, March 8th, 1938, the sweet soul of our dear grand mother, Mrs. W. W. Williams, took its heavenly flight to join her loved ones there.

She leaves to mourn her departure seven children, namely: Mrs. O. Y. Sims, Mrs. W. B. Deason, Mrs. Dock Culver, Mrs. C. D. Owen, Eugene Morris and J. D. Williams; 24 grand children, two great grand children, three brothers, one sister and a great host of other relatives and friends.

Tommy, aged 14, set out to get a job. He asked a foreman of an engineering works for one.

"What can you do, sonny?" asked the foreman.

"Anything," replied Tommy.

"Can you file smoke?" asked the foreman.

"Yes, sir," replied Tommy, with a grin, "if you'll screw it in the vice for me."

He got the job!

University News

Prospects are bright for a title winning baseball team at the University of Alabama this spring, with experienced men on hand for every position on the Tide nine.

Shifting of Perron Shoemaker to the outfield and the elevation of Al Grefe to the catchng post has put the 'Bama diamond team in order, with the exception of the third base position, being competed for by Alex Hayes, Gus Sofritti and Sam Scalzi.

Joe Kilgrow is expected to take over the first sack duties, while Blackie Zesiger, second base, and Heinie Lauric shortstop, for the second year will work the keystone territory.

Veterans Vic Bradford and Johnny Roberts have taken over regular berths in the outfield.

Alabama's mound staff should be one of the strongest in the conference this year. Hugh Kirkland, Buddy Teague, Hugh Bedient, and "Slim" Davis are returning for service this season, and the corps will be strengthened by the addition to it of three reliable freshman recruits, Simmy Nix, "Red" Lee, and "Gordo" Davis.

The 1938 schedule includes 20 games and for the second successive year the Tiders will meet Northwestern of the Big Ten Conference in a 2-game series. Last year the Wildcats and the Capstoners split their series at Tuscaloosa.

Although it required a great deal of head scratching and a great amount of pencil lead, a University of Alabama geology student who became interested in Epsilon Aurigae, the largest known star, dug in and produced these results:

The star has a diameter of 2,600,000,000 miles. To cover this distance, one would have to make 1,511,628 round trips from Birmingham to Washington, D. C. With two days for each round trip, this traveling would take 3,023,256 days.

All of this works out to 8,554 years of train riding. But the tourist would have had to have been born in 6,616 B. C.—in pre-train, Neolithic times—and must continue traveling until late this year.

Retail sales by 233 independent stores in Alabama were 14.2 per cent lower in January, 1938, than they were in January, 1937.

These figures, furnished by the Market Data Service, Marketing Research Division, U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, are printed in the current issue of Business News, monthly publication of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Alabama.

Dealers furnishing figures for the reports are located in all sections of Alabama, in both urban and rural areas. Four cities—Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery, and Tuscaloosa—were listed individually.

Women students at the University of Alabama are strutting about the campus these days with an air of superiority and confidence.

Publication last week of the women's general scholastic average for the first semester of the current school ear showed that their rating was .24 higher than that of the men.

The women's average was 1.3872, or .38 higher than all C's. The men's was 1.1420, while the entire student body averaged 1.2045.

More than 20 girls, representing dormitories and sorority houses, are candidates for the position of sponsor for the University of Alabama's "Million Dollar Band" for 1938.

Miss Molly Mercer, Evanston, Ill., has been sponsor for the past two years.

The University of Alabama debating team has this year won two important regional debating tournaments in competition with some of the outstanding teams of the country.

The tourneys in which the Alabamians participated and won first place wert those of the Western Association of Teachers of Speech in Denver, Col., and the Midwestern Debate Association in Iowa City, Iowa.

Members of the team are: Prime Francis Osborn III, Greensboro; Geo. Murray, Bessefer; Thomas Adair, Tuscaloosa; and Lecil Gray, Jasper.

"Shine, please, boy," said the 6-foot soldier to the shoeblack.

The boy looked down at the vast expanse of boot before him. Then:

Jane: "I want some insect powder."

Clerk: "Do you want to take it with you?"

Jane: "Of course not. I'll send the bugs to you and you can give it to them."

The examining lawyer was cross-questioning an Irish woman in court with regard to the stairs in her house.

"Now, my good woman, please tell the court how the stairs run in your house."

Chauncey Sparks

His brothers at one time called him "Jake", later "Chan" (with a short "a" as in c-a-t), then made it "Chancey" (still with the short "a") but today it's mostly "Judge."

A dynamic forceful figure 5 feet, 9 inches, and weighing right at 160 pounds, who has made a success of his law practice and the operation of a small East Alabama bank, who uses no desk but sits at a long table in his high-ceilinged office — that is Chauncey Sparks, anti-Graves candidate for the office of Governor of Alabama.

A bachelor, 53 years old, he has practiced law in Eufaula, Ala., near where he was born, since 1910. He was appointed judge of the inferior court of Eufaula in 1911 to serve an unexpired term, and sat on the bench until 1916. He was elected to the Legislature in 1918 on a prohibition ticket, was a member of the Legislature in ex-Governor B. M. Miller's administration, and was re-elected without opposition in 1934.

He led the house economy bloc in efforts to halt the wasteful extravagance of the present administration in the regular session in 1935, and in the two special legislative sessions that followed.

He announced for Governor in a whole-hearted effort to see that wasteful extravagance curbed and the political affairs of Alabama placed once again on an efficient, business-like, honest basis.

NATIONAL WILDLIFE RESTORATION WEEK

The little "orphan" of civilization, wildlife, gets a break during the week of March 20-26. Folks who never gave a thought to this little stepchild will pay homage to her as the greatest benefactor of all mankind, whether she be considered from the aesthetic or economic angle. Shorn of her rags, dolled up like a Main Street debutante, she steps forth this week as the angel of national wildlife restoration.

Hunter, fisherman, naturalist, songbird lover, scientist, sentimentalist, all will espouse her cause those seven days. During that week the Cinderella of nature will be in her glory, for folks will sing her praise.

And then, on the eighth day, if we revert to form, she will again don her rags, resume her pitiful existence, and pray for the break that she has never really gotten. The only difference will be, that never before has she ever been shown any attention.

But that eighth day must come. If a sorrowful ending to all our hunting and fishing pleasures is to be averted, the homage paying of March 20-26 must be followed by thoughtful action instead of thoughtless destruction. National Wildlife Restoration Week must serve that purpose, to awaken us to the fact that if we can all find time to hunt or fish during the proper time, we must also find time between the ending of one and the beginning of another season to replace indifference with interested endeavor.

LUMP SUM CLAIMS FOR FEDERAL OLD AGE INSURANCE RISE TO $34.69 AVERAGE

Payment of claims for lump sums under the Federal Old Age Insurance Plan of the Social Security Act in Alabama reached an average of $26.17 in February, while the national average rose to $34.69, Martin C. Folmar, manager of the board's Birmingham office, announced last Saturday.

During the month, 16,294 claims were certified for payment, bringing the total number of claims certified to 93,069, Mr. Folmar said. Of this number, 256 were from Alabama, amounting to $6,700.64 last month, or a total of 1,042 claims to the end of February, amounting to $20,818.14. The national total amount is $2,588,366.57, of which $565,159 was certified in February.

"Lump sum payments amount to 3½ per cent of the total wages from covered employment that have been paid to workers from January 1, 1937, on to the day they reached the age of 65, or until the date of their death," Mr. Folmar explained. "Payments of death claims are made to the estates of the wage earners."

Soil Conservation Service workers in Alabama had the lowest accident rate of the seven states in the southeastern region during 1937. Workers in Alabama had only seven accidents per million man hours worked, compared with 17 accidents per million man hours in the southeast.

Turkey growers probably will grow more turkeys this year than they did last year, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

CITIZENS CONTRIBUTE $34,000,000 FOR STATE GOVERNMENT

Montgomery, Mar. 18. — The Public Relations Committee of the Alabama Education Association announces that the citizens of Alabama contributed last year $34,585,073 for the support of the state government.

The state treasury received $8,339,669 from the federal government and from non-revenue cources.

The revenue collected by the state for county and city governments and for payment into the Unemployment Trust Fund is shown to be $15,349,416.

The total net receipts of the state government for the year ending September 30, 1937, amounted to $58,274,158. This is the sum of the three items listed above.

Refunds and transfers reported last year by the comptroller, in accounting for the 65 active funds of the state, totaled $13,273,887. These refunds and transfers are counter-balancing transactions, which in no way furnish the state with additional revenue. They are included, however, in reporting state receipts.

Thus, net receipts of $58,274,158, with the addition of $13,273,887 in bookkeeping transactions, become total gross receipts for the state in the amount of $71,548,045.

Ralph D. Grant Writes To Voters

To the Voters of Chilton County:

No doubt most of you have noticed the announcement of my candidacy for the office of Superintendent of Education, and in this regard I wish to address these remarks to you through the paper since I shall not be able to see all of you and talk with you personally. I should like very much to call on every one of you at your homes and talk the proposition over, and that I would do except for lack of time. However, I am spending every moment I possibly can in selling you people in my behalf, and in the interest of better schools. I believe the citizens of the county have a right to know and to determine who shall serve in the various offices of the county, and should acquaint themselves with these fellows and what they stand for so that when the elections are made you will have chosen those best fitted in every way to serve you.

I believe that any elective or appointive official is elected or appointed to abide by and help to carry out the wishes of the majority of the people he is representing. This is an undebatable question among all true believers in our democratic form of government; any plan or procedure other than abiding by the wishes of the majority is not in accord with the fundamental principles of our form of goverment. As I see it, it is not even a question of whether the majority is right or whether the majority is wrong. If it is a question that is the people's business, and the schools are the people's business, let the wishes of the people decide it. And when the majority has spoken let all cooperate, and at least a measure of success will be the reward. Or if the decision of the majority proves erroneous, then they will have profited by their mistake and will correct same.

If I should be chosen to serve you as your Superintendent, I shall at all times, to the utmost of my authority and ability, serve you in the interest of all concerned and according to the wishes of the majority.

Along with your consideration of the one who is to serve as your superintenaent, I wish to call your attention to the importance of the duties of the members of the County Board of Education. The superintendent is the executive secretary of the county board and has to abide by the decision of that board. Therefore, in filling the two vacancies on the board this time, please give serious consideration to the applicants for these offices, and elect men who in your judgment will best serve the educational interests and needs of our schools and county.

I am offering myself as a candidate for the office of superintendent because of my desire to be of the greatest possible service to the people of my home county, and because of the many solicitations of the citizens of this county who are directly or indirectly interested in its schools. I feel that because of my sudy and preparation for this work and with ten years teaching experience in the public schools I am fairly well qualified to perform the duties incumbent upon this office—with your hearty cooperation.

Permit me, in closing, to thank you for your most serious and thoughtful consideration. And after this careful consideration, if you feel that I am the man to serve you for the next four years, I shall greatly appreciate you casting your ballot in my favor on May 3rd, and whatever influence for good you feel justified in using in my behalf. Thanking you again and trusting that your nominees in the coming primaries shall be able to carry the banner of the Republican party and democracy successfully through the November election, and shall for the next four years render unto you the services that a reasonable people may rightfully expect, I am,

Very Truly Yours,
RALPH D. GRANT.

PILOTS HOLD CONVENTION

Miss Gertie Fiquette, president of Clanton Pilot Club, Willie Maude Kelley, and Bertha Dennis attended the annual spring convention of Pilot International in Mobile Saturday and Sunday, March 19 and 20. They report a nice trip, including a view of the azalea gardens.

On Sunday morning the visiting Pilots from Montgomery, Clanton, Selma, Biloxi, Pensacola and Meridian were driven over the city of Mobile on a two-hour motorcade, viewing the schools, churches, and many historical points of Mobile, and out on Mobile Bay. At the noon hour they went down ot Dog River to the place of Mr. Albert P. Bush, Mobile capitalist, and had lunch. Mr. and Mrs. Bush have some of the oldest azalea gardens in the United States. They also furnished some photographs for the covers of the program, which are actual photographs of their azaleas.

The Clanton Pilots went down to Mobile on one of the Greyhound Cruisers. All reported a splendid convention.

The next convention, which will be the International convention, will be held in Biloxi, Miss., in June, 1938.

Gov. Graves Is Supporting Dixon

Montgomery, Mar. 21. — Capital city politilal observers were wondering this week how long Major Frank Dixon will be able to maintain his attacks on the Graves administration in face of the fact that most of the Graves appointed office holders are supporting Dixon in his gubernatorial campaign.

The Birmingham Post recently charged that Pitt Tyson Maner, secretary to the governor, is supporting Dixon. This charge, published several weeks ago, has been denied neither by Maner nor Dixon. John Kohn, one of the administration "Crown Princes", and who has several members of his family upon the state's pay roll, is also an active behind-the-scenes Dixon worker.

Also actively supporting the Dixon candidacy is Hamp Draper, member of the State Board of Administration. Draper's political activities while a state official have frequently drawn fire. L. L. Herzberg, member of the state highway commission, is the leader of the Dixon supporters in that organization. He is a former power company lawyer.

The Gunter machine in Montgomery, which backed the present governor in his last campaign, and has been closely aligned with the state administration, is in charge of the Dixon campaign in South Alabama. The Montgomery political organization was fully represented in Greenville last week when Dixon opened his campaign. Among the machine members present for the speech were: Mayor William A. Gunter, City Commissioner W. P. Screws, Joe Dickerson, the mayor's secretary, Tom Martin, a Gunter political handy man, and many others including several members of the Montgomery police force.

Mr. Dixon was introduced by his Montgomery County campaign manager, Hon. Files Crenshaw, Sr., a well known corporation lawyer and cog in the Gunter machine. In speaking of the "pie eaters" Mr. Dixon omitted the fact that Mr. Crenshaw also has several members of his family upon the state's pay roll, including his two sons, also lawyers.

Mr. Wade Harris of Stanton was in Clanton Tuesday, and called upon The Union-Banner while in our city.

CCC BIRTHDAY

Five birthday candles will gleam at SCS Camp Ala-7 on Friday, April 1st, when the camp will pause in its program of demonstrating soil conservation methods to observe the 5th anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Plans for an "open house" to which everyone is invited include a tour of representative farms in the area.

Erosion control work on cooperating farms in the camp area has now reached a stage where the co-ordinated program in readily apparent, Superintendent Wood said. The work shows up particularly well at this season of the year, he pointed out.

Visitors during the anniversary observance will have an opportunity to see such farming practices as strip cropping, terracing, pasture improvement work, reforestation, woodland and wildlife management, and other methods of erosion control which have been established on cooperating farms in the area.

The importance of conserving human resources through employment of enrollees in healthful, outdoor work, should not be overlooked as an important phase of the CCC program, Superintendent Wood commented.

Enrollees are not only doing valuable work in demonstrating Soil Conservation methods, but they are also preparing themselves through job training courses for work when their enrollment period is over, he pointed out. They are acquiring the viewpoint of conservationists which will stay with them throughout life, he added.

Lesson for March 27

CORRECTING WRONG IDEAS OF RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Mark 7:6.
PRIMARY TOPIC—At Dinner-Time.
JUNIOR TOPIC—What Is Real Religion?
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Counts with God?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sidestepping Responsibilities.

The never-ending struggle of Christianity is to keep the simple gospel of the grace of God in Christ Jesus free to operate in all its glory and power, unencumbered by the traditions and formulas of men. It has been my privilege to read a recent book by a brilliant young man who, while serving as a professor of philosophy in a large university, is also versed in the related fields of theology, psychology, psychiatry, and psychotherapy. He has had first-hand experience in dealing with the problems of men and women. With this background of both study and experience he gives it as his absolute conviction that we must get "back to the original simplicity of the Christian gospel." He suggests that we need to "dust off the additions and superstructures" that have been added since Christ came to seek and to save the lost.

Our lesson for today finds Jesus meeting that very issue with the traditionalists of His day.

I. Washed Hands and Unwashed Hearts (vv. 1-6).

In the process of interpreting the law of Moses and applying it to the affairs of daily life the religious authorities of Israel had developed a mass of intricate and onerous rules which had literally buried the law itself and had substituted ritualistic formalism for spiritual life. So fond had the scribes and the Pharisees become of these traditions that they became bold enough to declare that they were far superior to the law itself.

Their attack on Jesus because His disciples ate with unwashed hands did not refer to the proper cleansing of one's hands before eating, but to the ceremonial washings which were said to be necessary if one had accidentally touched a Gentile, or something that a Gentile had touched in the market place.

Jesus skillfully and finally disposes of that question by reminding the objectors that they were serving God with their lips only, but their hearts were far from Him. Washed hands are not a thing to be condemned, and Jesus says nothing about that point. When the washing of hands becomes of more importance than the cleansing of the heart, however, the soul is in real danger.

II. Traditions of Man Versus the Commandment of God (vv. 7-13).

Here is the heart of the entire matter, for while we may not always be aware of it the fact is that our anxiety to maintain human tradition which is contrary to the law and Spirit of God is fundamentally for the purpose of evading our full and true responsibility.

The Jew who was so avaricious that he did not wish to support his aged and needy parents could entirely evade that God-given responsibility by declaring that his property was "Corban," dedicated to God. Thereafter no matter how great was the need of his parents they could receive nothing. The execution of this oath was carried out to such a fine point that a son who had declared his property to be "Corban" could visit a sick father or mother for only a brief period lest he might stay long enough to perform some duties of a nurse and so contribute to his parents by saving them some expense.

Thus do men even in our day make "the word of God of none effect" (v. 13), through their traditions. No right minded person objects to the worthy traditions of worship and service which are such a precious heritage of the Christian church. Rightfully apprehended and properly used they are both desirable and helpful. But we must never permit the grace and power of God in Jesus Christ "to be brought under the trammels of human teachers or the arrangements of human office-bearers. The first movement toward the mastery of the soul by tradition is the movement of that soul away from immediate, direct, first-hand fellowship with God" (Morgan).

The crying need of our day, as it was of the time when Jesus was on earth, is that we should clear away hindering encumbrances.

The general goodness which is nourished in noble hearts, makes every one think that strength of virtue to be in another whereof they find assured foundation in themselves.—Sir P. Sidney.

Rascoe Maddox Writes To Voters

To The Voters of Chilton County:

In offering myself to you as a candidate for county superintendent of education, I wish to run on my merits. Given all the facts, I believe the people of this county are able to make an intelligent choice of their officials. An intelligent choice is especially necessary in selecting a man to administer the educational system of a community.

I feel that by education and experience I am qualified for the position I seek. My education and experience have come by the way of hard work. Born on a farm, I have known and enjoyed the work that accompanies farm life. Lack of money made it necessary for me to work my way through college by washing dishes, sweeping floors, working on the college farm, and sawmilling; yet I was able to graduate with highest honors. After graduation from college, I spent seven summers in further study at Peabody College for Teachers, and the University of North Carolina. My experience consists of 15 years of teaching and administration in the schools of the county, 14 of these in Thorsby Institute.

I regret that my late entry in the race and my present duties will prevent my covering the county in a thorough manner. That is a handicap which is my misfortune. However, there are several men prominent in the affairs of the Republican party who have long been acquainted with me; young people who have studied under me are to be found all over the county; their parents include many prominent business and professional men of Thorsby, Jemison and Clanton. I shall deeply appreciate your asking these people of my character and qualifications.

I stand for careful selection of teachers on the basis of character, training, and teaching ability; friendly cooperation with teachers, trustees and patrons of the school; honest, efficient administration of the county's school affairs; responsibility to the people of the county for all my acts as superintendent. — RASCOE MADDOX.

SARDIS CLUB

The Sardis Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. H. L. Ratliff Thursday, March 17, at 2 o'clock with 13 members and two visitors present. Mrs. H. L. Ratliff, the president, called the meeting to order. The club sang two songs; the roll was called, and minutes read by the secretary.

Miss Grace made a few remarks on the Kitchen Improvement Contest, and almost every member plans to enter the contest. Miss Grace also explained to the club about different varieties of food and how to prepare them. The club is expecting to get their flavoring to sell right away, so as to raise money for their treasury. At our next meeting the members are to demonstrate how to make cheese biscuits and waffles. We had one new member to join our club. We are indeed glad to have new members to join our club, as it is encouraging. New members always make a club feel that it has progressed in the past, and are more anxious to do more in the future.

A program was given out for our next meeting. The members were served with refreshments, which were muffnsi and orange drinks. The meeting adjourned, by singing, and repeating the club pledge.—Mrs. C. E. Sansom, reporter.

ATTENTION CLUB MEMBERS AND FARMERS

The Alabama Ton Litter Show and Sale will be held in Montgomery on September 15 and 16.

If you are producing hogs to sell, it will pay you to feed them out on home grown feed instead of selling them at 8 weeks old. Litters that sold at this show last year averaged 11.5c per pound. Cost of feed production averaged 6.5c per pound. This was a net profit of 5c per pound above feed cost.

If you are interested, see B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent, before your pigs are three weeks old, so that your applications may be gotten in on time.

Many of the New Deal leaders seem to take pleasure in damning business. But worse than that, many people believe the New Deal is damming business.

MR. ICKES TALKS ABROAD

"Probably very many of you know little about America". So spoke Secretary Ickes by broadcast to Britain and its dominions, the tone being that of the schoolmaster addressing old Giles, the village lackwit. Fortunately for Mr. Ickes there could be no heckling, not even a polite inquiry at the close of his description of what the New Deal was aiming at, as to what it had accomplished in five years and at the cost of over 10 billion dollars.

In one particular respect Mr. Ickes was conservative. He took pains to explain that he spoke neither for the American government nor for President Roosevelt. This was fortunate, for he was lambasting dictators on the very day when the British parliament, by a vote of two to one, clasped hands with a couple of them.—New York Sun.

UNMASKING THE TVA

Announcement by the TVA that it is ready to buy out public utilities and sell its power to all and sundry pretty well explodes the myth that this Roosevelt "baby" is a flood control project and only incidentally interested in the manufacture of electricity. Taken in connection with the current row within the TVA itself, it shows up the New Deal statements for the pious pretensions they are and always have been.

It is clear that a complete investigation of the whole program is long overdue. Let us find out first the exact purposes for which several hundred million dollars of the taxpayers' money are being spent, and, second, what basis there is for the charges of collusion, trickery and general maladministration which the chairman of the board has laid against his two associates. There is so much at stake and the questions of public morality are so serious that nothing less than a bipartisan and realistic inquiry will suffice. The Norris theory that the Federal Trade Commission, a presidentially appointed body, can do the job is too fantastic even to be considered. I is a task for congress and for men in congress who are not afraid of Roosevelt reprisals and whose only aim will be to unearth the facts.

The accusations made by Chairman Morgan involve something more than honest differences of opinion over policy. They touch matters closely related to decency in government and integrity in office. For the two other directors to suggest, by way of answer, that the chairman should abide by the will of the majority or resign is an absurd and unworthy proposal and rightly rejected by Mr. Morgan. The way to root out chicanery, if chicanery there be, is to stay and fight it. To surrender to it is to be unfaithful to a public trust. —Boston Transcript.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

BY FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Political analysts in Washington are beginning to talk about the change which has come in the political atmosphere. What it will finally mean, they are unwilling to venture, but they call attention to the difference between conditions now and 12 or 14 months ago. Following the 1936 election we seemed to have entered an era of good feeling which would rival that of the good old days of President Monroe. Now things have changed considerably. The Supreme Court "packing" fight was the entering wedge which seems to have disrupted New Deal plans. But things have gone steadily from bad to worse. Trouble cropped out in the TVA with a serious division among the three high commissioners. The Guffey Coal Commission went into a tailspin which compelled it to junk the results of several months of hard work. Trouble arose over the tax bill, and the unwillingness of the overwhelmingly Democratic congress to go along with all the president's recommendations was regarded as a significant political omen.

On the strictly political side, he Gallup poll showing, according to its figures, that an election now would mean a big Republican gain in congress, did not add greatly to the comfort of the New Deal political ledaers. Another political blow, and a really annoying one, was the result of the city election in Seattle. For many years the bustling north Pacific coast metropolis has been known as an outstanding center of radical and near-radical activity. Its labor fights and its socialistic experiments have frequently made the first page in the metropolitan newspapers of the country. In a city election held early in March, Arthur B. Langlie, conservative candidate for mayor, won an overwhelming victory over Victor A. Myers, the radical candidate, who was actively supported by the CIO. Myers had campaigned on the slogan of "the New Deal for Seattle", and asserted that his defeat would mean a set-back for New Deal policies there. Not alone was Myers defeated. The entire left wing of Seattle politics bit the dust. All three conservative candidates for the city council won by one-sided majorities. Conservatives won the office of Port Commissioner, and elected two members of the school board—a clean sweep. Proposals to establish a municipal seaplane base, to increase firemen from two to three shifts and to expand the city pension system, with an increased tax levy o take care of the expense, were voted down.

Anti-Ne wDeal leaders are naturally heartened by the Seattle result, and many of the New Deal politicians are donwcast. "If we can't win in Seattle, where everything is supposed to be in our favor, what will the result be in other parts of the country", many of them privately ask one another. Of course they have by no means given up. The optimistic ones point to periods during the past five years when they seemed to be slipping, but came out on top. They rely on Roosevelt luck too for a change, and hope there will be a substantial business upturn before the fall elections. Many believe also that there will be an expenditure of relief checks and farm bounty money, timed to have a beneficial political effect before November.

Yet the facts are that just now things don't look so good for those who have desired to put reform ahead of recovery, and still want to do so. The opposition is certainly encouraged, and one evidence is the stiffening of congress against many of the plans of the New Deal. Despite the fact that congress is functioning more slowly than was expected, it is predicted that it will adjourn early in the summer even if some New Deal plans have to be delayed in execution. The primaries in the congressional elections are coming on. And some New Deal statesmen, like Sen. Barkley, have enough troubles at home without adding any more Washington burden than are necessary.

SOMETIMES THEY TELL YOU

It has been a slogan of some advertisers that "your best friend won't tell you what is the matter with you". While this may be more or less true when it comes to unpleasant physical ailments, such is not always the case in politics, although it often takes a high sort of courage to break the rule.

There is the case, for example, of Barney Baruch, Democrat and American business man, friend and co-worker with Woodrow Wilson, and personal friend and admirer of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Mr. Baruch the other day testified before a senate committee in Washington on the general economic situation. He stated that the government is more responsible for the general unemployment than any other factor. Speaking of the administration's policy, Mr. Baruch said:

If it remains what it recently appeared to be, there is no hope for reemployment and substantial recovery. If it could be changed along the lines I have tried to indicate I believe that we would have a rapid and immediate rise in all economic indexes.

"I say it with regret, but I would be less than candid if I failed to express my opinion that unemployment is now traceable more directly to government policy than to anything that business could or should do, and that if these policies are not changed, neither business nor government can ever solve this most terrible of our problems."

Mr. Baruch added that Uncle Sam must choose between the system of profits to private industry and "the new European idea of state regulation, and the fear of punishment", and he expressed the belief that "if it became clear tomorrow that America has definitely chosen her traditional profits system, forces would be released that would rapidly hasten recovery and re-employment."

Who says that even your best friends won't tell you?

The new farm regimentation scheme invites the coming of the day when for the first time in our national history there will not be enough food in the United States to go around. When that time comes the rascals who perpetrated the scheme will be cursed for the crime they have committed, but they may be out of reach.—Chicago Tribune.

We grow old. We can remember when a bumper crop meant prosperity. Now it means poverty.—Montgomery Advertiser.

President Roosevelt is planning to lower the prices that are too high and raise prices that are too low. The world has been waiting a long time for a man who could do that.—Jewell County (Kan.) Republican.

HOMER MARTIN KNOWS HOW

Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, has at last discovered what should have been fairly obvious at the beginning. Now he knows, any says, that communists with their tactics are bad for his union. The discovery had been made before, notably by the unions of Great Britain, but Mr. Martin did not notice that until after experience had led him to find it out for himself.

The fact is that the communists have no genuine interest in the objects of a union, namely, to improve wages and conditions for its members. They wish only to use unionists for their own special objects, which are quite different from those of a union. As a matter of fact, far from wishing to see workers' conditions improve they would rather see it worse, the better, therefore, to promote the revolution they hope for.

Their tactics are inevitably in conflict with the objects of any genuine union, hence are bound to be disruptive. Mr. Martin may not have realized this in the beginning when he enthusiastically welcomed anything that came in the guise of aid for his movement. Now he has seen through the disguise and is frank to say so.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It must be a trifle embarrassing to the Hollywood stars to note that the picture drama which is getting the biggest crowds is played by characters drawn by the author of Mickey Mouse.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

As a rule very intellectual preachers are not great soul winners. This is no reflection upon intellectuality. Nor does it mean that the Gospel does not appeal to strong minds. Intellectual ministers naturally are inclined to analyze the Gospel and all spiritual truths. "The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth". It is heralding the Gospel, not analyzing the Gospel, that saves people. It is not philosophizing about the Gospel, but it is proclaiming the Gospel, that does the business. It is hard for us to keep in our minds that what a lost world needs is not our comments on the Gospel, but the Gospel itself. "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel". That is the divine command. Tell the story. Keep on telling it. God is back of that message. Infinite resources are at our command when we give the Gospel message. Our comments might be wrong. The Gospel is always right. Paul did not seek to give the Gospel story in excellency of speech. He did not want the faith of men to rest in man's wisdom. A preacher may tie men to himself by the power of a logical mind or by the gift of oratory. He may sway an audience by his dramatic skill. But the preacher's business is not to "sell" himself. He is on business for the King. It is the Gospel that ties men to Jesus Christ, who "is able to save unto the uttermost all who come to God by Him."

Every Christian manages to work out a system of theology. "I was blind and I now see". That is what a man, to whom Jesus had given sight, said. The man must have concluded that Jesus was more than a mere man. He must have thought in his heart: "The one who opened my eyes and gave me sight must be God. A man could not have done this miracle". "Must a man believe in the deity of Christ to be saved?" a person asked the writer. "A man will believe in the deity of Christ," I answered. I cannot conceive of any man trusting Christ as a Savior unless the man believed that Christ was God. Even unconverted men have a feeling in their hearts that it takes God to save sinners. No wonder that fanatics have a tendency to deify certain types of religious leaders. Man must have a god of some kind. If he turns away from the true God he worships a false god. Sometimes men worship themselves. God, who made man and knows man, would not send a mere man to die on the cross to save sinners. Sinners who want to be saved look for a God Who can do the business. If a man wants a job done, he wants someone who is capable of doing it. Angels can minister to us. Friends can comfort us. The church can furnish us fellowship and a place to worship. But it takes God to save. The church cannot save. If the church is ever saved, God will have to save it. Jesus Christ out Lord "is able to save to the uttermost all who come to God by Him". If a man wonders if food will satisfy hunger, let him eat! If he wonders if water will quench his thirst, let him drink! If he wonders if Jesus can save, there is a way to find out. Let him turn himself over to Him. Let him commit his soul to the Lord Jesus Christ. There are multiplied thousands in the world who say Jesus can save. If you have not tested Him, suppose you just say, with all sincerity: "Jesus, I here and now commit myself to you. I cannot save myself. I trust you to save me. I turn the case over to you." Any man who honestly and sincerely does that will have no doubts about the deity of Jesus Christ.

JOSEPH WELCH DIED

Joseph Welch, a son of Elmer and Cola Welch, was born in Clanton in 1922, moved to Atlanta, Ga., about 1933. On March 16, the death angel visited this beautiful world of ours, and claimed for its victim, Joseph.

He was one of the kindest, most lovable little characters we have ever known. Joseph died in a hospital in Atlanta of pneumonia. He endured his sufferings without a murmur, and carried that sweet smile through all his illness.

He leaves to mourn his going a father, mother, four brothers and four sisters, besides legions of friends and neighbors who are grieved by his passing.

He was laid to rest at Crestland cemetery, Atlanta, to await the morning of the resurrection. Dillion Bros. were in charge of the funeral.

Sunday was preaching day at both churches in this community, and a large crowd attended both services.

A mayor of one of the large cities received a letter from a man in a nearby town, which read:

"Dear Sir: I got paper which says that Mrs. Ruby Gofrey is going tew git a devorse. She is my wife. Leave her have it, I don't want her no more.

(Signed) Jim Gofrey.

P. S.: You can have the one I got now tew if you want her."

"Yes, I know fish is brain food, but I don't care so much for fish. Isn't there some other brain food?"

"Well, there's noodle soup."

STATE INCOME TAX DEPARTMENT

The income tax division of the State Tax Department is directly under the chairman of the State Tax Commission and is charged with the duties of rectiving, sorting, listing, entering assessments, making audit through field agents, investigating and verifying refunds, and all the routine duties connected with the administration of the income tax law.

The income tax is collected by making legal assessments of payments made by taxpayers upon submission of annual returns, usually on a calen- year basis due on or before March 15, following the close of the calendar year. The assessments are made to correspond with the tax liability shown on the return filed by the taxpayer after preliminary audit has been made to ascertain the mathematical correctness of the computation. If the taxpayer elects to pay in four quarterly installments, as provided by law, notices are issued showing the due dates of the installments—June 15, September 15, and December 15, following the assessment made on the original return March 15. Deficiency collections are made upon recommendation of field agents after thorough investigation, by legal notice issued by the commission.

POPLAR SPRINGS

The series of services last week which were held at this place with different preachers preaching each night were a real inspiration for the large number who attended each service. We had two fine days at our Saturday and Sunday services. The Sunday school and B. T. U. are growing.

If you live in the Poplar Springs community and are not attending Sunday school or B. T. U., come to see us, you will be welcomed.

The young people had a very fine program Sunday night. The new church has been finished, and we are going forward with the painting. We hope to fiish the job by Easter when we have our annual singing. If you wish to have a part, see the finance committee.

Don't forget your church and all of it's organizations, because it needs you and you need it.

FRIENDSHIP

The church, with all of it's organizations, is doing fine at this place. We had a fine Sunday school Sunday, one of the best singings Sunday afternoon that we have ever had. We especially thank the visitors for their help in making the singing a success. We give them a special invitation to come again at any time.

We also had a good B. T. U. Sunday night. The W. M. S. had a spend-the-day meeting with the pastor's wife, Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Tuesday. A good program was rendered and some quilts were quilted, and all had an enjoyable time. The W. M. S. is doing a fine piece of work, for which the church is indeed greateful.

Our regular services will be held Sunday, with the Lord willing, with Sunday school at 10 o'clock, preaching at 11, B. T. U. at 7 and preaching again at 8 Sunday night. Everybody is invited to come.

IN MEMORY

On Tuesday, March 7, the death angel visited the Baptist hospital in Selma and took from Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore their little son, Victor Iven, better known to those who knew him as Buddy.

Buddy only lived with us 13 months, but we did love him so. His place is vacant in our hearts—no other can fill it. We will miss him very much, but we feel that our loss is heaven's gain. God needed another little bud in heaven, so He gently wafted the spirit of little Buddy to realms of rest.

The large crowd at the funeral with sad faces and expressions of sorrow were sufficient evidence of the love we had for this dear little one.

He leaves to mourn his loss: his parents—Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore; two brothers—Denny and Johnnie; and a host of other relatives and friends, in whose hearts his place can never be filled by another.—An Aunt who loved him.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and every one for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our dear little son and brother, Victor Iven Moore. Especially do we thank those for the beautiful floral offerings. May God's blessing rest on every one of you, is our earnest prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Moore, Denny and Johnnie.

Alabama was among 43 states in which programs to remove surpluses from overburdened agricultural markets were conducted in 1937. During the year the corporation purchased 1,586,580 pounds of Irish potatoes and 7,442 gallons of cane syrup in Alabama. In addition, the corporation supervised the manufacture of surplus raw cotton into 120,359 yards of cotton fabric in this state.

NATIONAL AIR MAIL WEEK

Birmingham, Mar. 20. — The "big push" to make National Air Mail Week, May 15 to 21, an outstanding event of 1938 for the United States began today when Paul R. Younts, Charlotte, N. C., postmaster, and national chairman, announced appointments of the state chairmen.

Men widely known will direct the tasks of forming state and district air mail week organizations in each state. Named for Alabama is W. Cooper Green, of Birmingham.

Set-ups, including state, district and local units in a closely knit machine, will be functioning soon in each of the states and territories. The announcement by the national chairman said each state committee will form a district committee in each congressional district, and through each district committee the more than 46,000 prospective local committees will coordinate their various activities with the state and national committees.

The purpose of national air mail week is to intensify the American people's consciousness of aviation and air mail, but the more immediate objectives of this fra-flung and vigorous movement, which has the full support of the post office department, are at once patriotic and practical.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Robinson and Mrs. Ludie Lenoir visited in Montgomery last Sunday afternoon.

"THE BATTLE OF STANTON"

Thrilling Story Of Civil War Engagement In The Western Part Of Chilton County, In Which Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest Took Part. Contributor Suggests Naming Highway For This Great Soldier.

The following is a copy of a letter received a few days ago by The Union-Banner, which is self-explanatory, and also explains the very interesting article which follows it:

337 Custom House,
Nashville, Tenn.,
March 15, 1938.

Editor Union-Banner:

There is enclosed herewith a story that doubtless will be of much interest to those of your readers residing in the western portion of Chilton County, and especially to those residing in the vicinity of Stanton. This story was taken from the book, "The Life Of Nathan Bedford Forrest," by John A. Wyeth, which was published in 1899 by Harper & Brothers, New York.

The inclosure is purportedly an authentic and accurate description of the actions between the contending forces that took place during the Civil War while the Confederates, under Gen. Forrest, and the Federals, under Gen. Wilson, were engaged in that historical "race" to Selma.

Having been raised more or less in the vicinity of Stanton, and having heard on numerous occasions as a youngster my grandfather recount his experiences as a Confederate soldier while serving under Gen. Longstreet at Chickamauga, The Wilderness, Seven Pines, and Gettysburg, quite naturally data pertaining to the Civil War has always been of much interest to me. The old Ebenezer church building at Stanton, destroyed by fire several years ago, bore mute evidence of that great struggle in the form of numerous bullet holes.

I never knew, until reading the book referred to above, just whose troops were involved during the engagements in the vicinity of Stanton. Now, since it is known that Gen. Forrest was the Confederate leader, I am very proud of the fact that such a great soldier as he led his troops in battle in my "home town". Many historians claim Gen. Forrest to have been the greatest military strategist and tactician America has ever produced. To this date his military tactics are taught at our Cavalry School at Fort Riley, Kan.

In commemoration of the gallant services rendered to our section of Alabama by Gen. Forrest, and to manifest our appreciation therefor, I propose that necessary action be taken by civic minded leaders in Chilton County to have the new highway from Maplesville to Selma officially designated as "The Nathan Bedford Forrest Highway", and that suitable markers showing such designation be erected thereon.

With best wishes, I am

Yours sincerely,
MAURICE W. WOOLLEY,
Staff Sergeant, U. S. Army.

MANEUVERS IN CHILTON COUNTY

On March 31, 1865, at 6 p.m., from the vicinity of Randolph, Forrest sent a courier to Chalmers (Confederate) urging him to push forward across the Cahaba with all possible celerity to Ebenezer church, and place his men in position, where he would join him in front of the advancing Federal column. Nothing more brilliant could have been conceived than the plan mapped out by Forrest in this crisis for the destruction of Wilson (Federal). Forrest, at the head of Crossland's brigade, Roddey's division, a detail of 200 men from Armstrong's brigade, and the state troops under Dan Adams in front of Wilson's advance, would offer resistance at every available position from Randolph on towards Selma. Jackson (Confederate), unknown to Wilson, was to follow with his strong division immediately in the rear of the Federal column. Chalmers was coming, with plenty of time at his disposal, to join his division to the troops that Forrest had immediately under him at that date, and thus reinforced he would be able to check the Federal advance. While thus engaged, Jackson would attack from the rear and Flank as Forrest and Chalmers would assail from the front. Had this plan come to its fulfilment, one of the greatest cavalry battles of the war would have been fought upon this ground, the vicinity of Ebenezer church.

On the afternoon of March 31, while Crossland, Dan Adams and Roddey, (all Confederates), were being driven southward before the division of Upton (Federal), Forrest had arrived on the ground, and was moving from Centreville towards Montevallo with his staff, the escort company of 75 men of Armstrong's command. The route along which they were traveling came into the road over which the Confederates had just retreated, and along which the pursuing Federals were then moving. Having approached to within less than 100 yards of the Federals, who were in considerable disorder, having lost their formation of the flying Confederates, and seeing that his presnce had not been observed, Forrest, boldly at the head of his staff and escort, ordered his men to draw their six-shooters, and in columns of fours they charged directly into the road, riding along with the Federal cavalry. This sudden and unexpected attack, its boldness, together with the severe work of the repeating pistols in the hands of these picked men, threw the Federal cavalry at this point into great confusion, and drove them in a stampede from the scene. Having captured a number of prisoners, Gen. Forrest learned that Wilson's command had passed down the road and was between him and Selma. With this information, he left the main road and after a swift detour of eight or nine miles passed around the Federal column, and reached his command late that afternoon in the vicinity of Randolph and in the path of the enemy.

As the divisions of Upton and Long (Federals) advanced towards Selma early on the morning of April 1, they encountered small detachments and drove them back with slight effort until they reached a point several miles north of Plantersville known as Ebenezer church. Here Gen. Forrest was greatly chagrined to receive a message from Chalmers informing him that he could not reach Plantersville in time to unite with him on that day. Forrest was furious with rage upon receipt of this dispatch. He sent an urgent dispatch to Chalmers that Wilson was pressing down upon him with great vigor and overwhelming force, and that he would admit of no excuse in not uniting with him at Plantersville, or between that place and Selma, before he should be driven into the works of that city. Forrest insisted that Gen. Chalmers had not moved his division with the alacrity and swiftness which the emergency demanded, and which characterized him (Chalmers) on other occasions. Chalmers, with Starke's brigade, was marching eastward by one route, while Armstrong, who commanded the other brigade of his division, was some five miles farther northward, traveling by a parallel road. A messenger from Forrest to Chalmers passed through Armstrong's command, and this officer read the dispatch and forwarded it immediately to Gen. Chalmers. He informed Chalmers that under the circumstances he would not wait to receive orders from his immediate superior, but would march to Forrest on his own responsibility, and urged his division commander also to press on towards Plantersville to the rescue of their chief (Forrest). He added that he could then hear firing in that direction, and would march rapidly towards it. Armstrong, who had the soldierly habit of always arriving in time, swept forward with great rapidity and reached Forrest just at dark on the night of April 1.

Realizing the desperate situation of his command at this juncture, and the necessity for holding the advance of the Federals in check until Chalmers could reach Plantersville and be in supporting distance, Forrest had selected a naturally strong position at the crossing of Bogler's Creek, approximately one mile south of Ebenezer church, had thrown up layouts of rails and logs, and placed the small force of the artillery at his command in the best possible position for defense. Here Roddy's division, Crossland's brigade, and several hundred militia under Gen. Dan Adams were thrown into line of battle. Forrest, with his escort and the 200 men of Armstrong's brigade, took position immediately with the artillery commanding the road appraoching from the north. To his left Crossland's 300 Kentuckians were posted, while on the extreme right a detachment of state troops under Adams were placed. The entire Confederate force on the field did not number 2,000 men. To assail this force Gen. Wilson had on the ground and in action, Upton's division, 3,900 strong, Long's division of 5,127, and two full batteries of artillery. It is claimed by some that Forrest had a much larger force than this present, but after a most careful inquiry it has been concluded that he did not have a larger number on the field than that stated above. The Federal commander claimed that Armstrong with his brigade took part in this engagement, but Gen. Armstrong informed the writer personally that he did not effect a junction with Forrest until the latter arrived that night at Plantersville. He says that Gen. Wilson got the idea that he was present from the fact that there was with Forrest in the engagement at Bogler's Creek a detail of 200 men from his brigade. This brigade was made from the various regiments of his command on account of their having the most serviceable horses, and it accompanied Forrest as a reinforcement to his escort.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, April 1, 1865, the Federals appeared, with Long's division in front. As soon as the skirmishers opened fire, Long reinforced his advance guard, which was composed of a battalion of the 72nd Indiana, by the remainder of that regiment, which was dismounted and formed on the left of the road going south. Pushing these forward, Wilson and Long ordered a rash sabre charge by four companies fo the 17th Indiana. As soon as Forrest saw these gallant troopers riding down upon him with sabres in air, he placed himself in line with his escort and Crossland's Kentuckians. He ordered his men to reserve the fire of their rifles until the enemy had arrived within 100 yards of their position. They were then to draw their revolvers, and with one in each hand to ride in among and along with their assailants and use their weapons at close quarters. As the Federals came near, the horse of one of the front platoon became unmanageable, ran away ahead of the line, bolted through the Confederates and struck the wheel of one of the guns with such velocity that it knocked the wheel from the spindle, dismounting the gun, killed the horse, and threw his rider to the ground, where he was immediately killed by being knocked in the head with a gun-stick by one of the artillerists. As the main body of the charging column swept into the Confederate line, Forrest and his escort, and two companies of Crossland's Kentuckians, under Capt. H. A. Tyler, rode in among them, and the desperate character of the encounter which occurred may well be imagined. It was one of the most terrific hand-to-hand conflicts which occurred between cavalry soldiers during the war. It was a test between the sabre in the hands of as brave a lot of men as ever rode sorses, and the six-shooter in the hands of experts that were just as desperately brave. Forrest was most viciously assailed. His conspicuous presence made him the object of direct attack by a brave young officer, Capt. Taylor, of the 17th Indiana, who, with five or six others of the Union troopers, were killed in this attempt to slay the Confederate general. In this fierce onslaught the Federals lost 12 killed and 40 wounded.

From an officer of the escort, who took part in the thrilling encounter at Bogler's Creek and witnessed Gen. Forrest's struggle with Capt. Taylor and his men, the following description is taken:

Lieut. George L. Cowan says:

"As the Federals dashed forward in their charge upon our line, they evidently recognized Gen. Forrest's headquarters flag, near which he, himself, was, with his escort gathered about him. He told us to draw our six-shooters and stand our ground, no matter how many rode into us. As they came on, we fired with our rifles one volley, and then drew both of our pistols and rode forward to meet them. One of the Federals was so far ahead of the advance platoon that we saw that his horse was running away with him. He went wildly through our line, dashed against the wheel of one of the pieces of artillery just in our rear with such force that the wheel was knocked off, and the rider and horse hurled to the ground, from which neither arose. One of the gunners knocked him in the head with a ram-rod. Fortunately for the escort the Federals were using the sabre, while we had our six-shooters, and this accounts for the difference in the losses on both sides. I saw Gen. Forrest surrounded by six Federals at one time, and they were all slashing at him. One of them struck one of his pistols and knocked it from his hand. Private Phil Dodd was fortunately near and spurred his horse to the general's rescue, and shot the Federal soldier who was so close upon him, thus enabling Gen. Forrest to draw his other pistol, with which he killed another of the group, who was still persistent in his attack upon our commander. Gen. Forrest and Capt. Boone, of the escort, were both wounded. Although the Federals rode through and over us, those who survived were beaten back, and we did not leave the field until we saw their main column advancing later."

Just as the fight at Bogler's Creek was commencing, Upton's division, with Alexander's brigade in the lead, advanced upon the flank and practically in the rear of the Confederates. Striking the militia, these, without offering any resistance, ran from the field in great disorder, compelling the entire Confederate line to retreat precipitately, losing three guns and 200 prisoners. A desperate running fight was continued to Plantersville, 19 miles from Selma. After crossing Bogler's Creek, Lieut. Cowan, of the escort, was placed in command of the rear guard, and was desperately engaged in a running fight until near sundown.

The rear guard of the Confederates camped at Plantersville on the night of April 1, while the Federal advance under Winslow bivouacked in front of the place, 19 miles from Selma. The fighting throughout the day had been almost constant. The Confederates had been driven 24 miles since morning.

PLEASANT HILL

We enjoyed two wonderful sermons Sunday and Sunday night by our pastor, Rev. J. R. Cost. There was a good crowd out for Sunday school and both preaching services. On account of the rain Saturday night, there was no preaching service that night.

There will be a union meeting at Pleasant Hill church Thursday night, March 24.

A coffee salesman was traveling through the South, and as he waited for a train in a little town he chatted with a lazy looking colored man idling on a bench at the station.

"Ever drink coffee?" he inquired, with an eye to stirring up interest in his line.

The colored man allowed as how he did. He drank a lot of coffee. Fifty cups a day, he answered.

"Fifty cups a day! Doesn't it keep you awake?" inquired the astonished coffee salesman.

"Well, it helps," answered the colored man.

ITS ROSES AND AZALEAS FOR BILL MULLINS IN MOBILE, ALA.

Recently a picture and nice write-up of William K. (Bill) Mullins, former Clanton citizen, appeared in The Cotton Trade Journal, published at Mobile. Under the caption, "With The Warehousemen", the following is said of Mr. Mullins: "W. K. Mullins, president of the Alabama Bonded Warehousemen's Association, and director of the National Cotton Compress and Cotton Warehouse Association, is one of the most popular men in the industr and is recognized as an authority on compress and warehouse matters. He had an active part in the organization of the Alabama association in 1925 and of the national association in 1937.

"Mr. Mullins was born in Chilton County, Ala., and is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma; was a cotton buyer until 1928, since which time he has been in the warehouse and compress business with Warrant Compress & Warehouse Company and its predecessors. Mr. Mullins is at present vice president and general manager of the Warrant Co., in Mobile. He is an enthusiastic grower of roses and azaleas."

SANITARY SURVEY OF THORSBY COMPLETED

Completion of a sanitary survey of the city of Thorsby by Mr. Fred H. Buckelew, new sanitation officer of the county health unit, was reported today from the local health office. A total of 172 homes were included in this investigation which was conducted to determine the sanitary status of toilet facilities and water supplies in each home.

"Mr. Buckelew's findings showed," stated Dr. S. D. Sturkie, county health officer, "that there were approximately 106 dwelling and business houses with satisfactory types of toilets. Among the 66 with unsatisfactory methods of excreta disposal there were 36 pit toilets in need of repair, 8 surface privies, 2 box and can privies, 6 with no toilet facilities and 14 with septic tanks emptying into open ditches. A number of business houses were found to have the latter very unsanitary method of disposal. With reference to the water supply, there were 97 houses available to the city water but only 48 actually connected. A total of 96 open wells were found."

"This survey shows," he continued, "that as far as toilet facilities are concerned Thorsby's sanitation is fair, there being, nevertheless, 40 per cent of the houses without toilets which are safe from a health standpoint. Particularly undesirable is the emptying of raw sewerage from septic tanks into open ditches such as is being done by several business houses. In the matter of individual water supplies a majority of Thorsby's homes are without safe drinking water, this applying to those with open wells which are as a whole entirely unsafe unless protected with a pump and a water tight cover and casing."

A more detailed report with recommendations as to the best plan for correcting the unsanitary conditions existing will be made to the city council, it was declared by the health officer. "It will be suggested that the city itself plan a definite program which will take into consideration both the economic and public health aspects of the situation in each home," he added. A similar survey is being planned for Clanton.

"HERE SHE COMES" TO COOPER SCHOOL

On Wednesday evening, March 30, at 7:30 the girls' occupations classes of Cooper Junior High School will present the comedy, "Here She Comes". This play is well cast, and promises to be a huge success.

Miss Lola Grant plays the dual role of Maritza Lopez, a temperamental movie star, and her double, Nickie Brooks, a co-ed, who is working her way through college. Miss Lopez arrives at a summer hotel where Nickie Brooks, posing as the screen star, is being initiated into the Footlights Club. A hilarious mix-up follows. Thirteen girls are in the cast, with eight more taking part in the chorus.

A small admission will be charged.

LAWRENCE L. STANLEY ACCEPTS CALL TO CHURCH AT LANETT

A communication from Rev. Lawrence L. Stanley last Saturday notified the Lanett Christian church (Congregational) that he had accepted its unanimous call to its pastorate to become effective April 18.

For four years in Thorsby, Mr. Stanley has done a splendid piece of work as pastor of the Congregational Christian church. While serving the church he organized the scout troop, of which the town is proud. He has also acted as scoutmaster, served as a trustee of the Thorsby Institute, and has taken the lead in providing a playground for the children of his town.

Both the Lanett church and Mr. Stanley are to be complimented on their agreement to serve God togteher. Rev. George W. Penn, who is leaving the Lanett Christian church, rejoices over the fact that the Lanett church has called a splendid pastor and that he has accepted an excellent church.

The community will also be enriched by the presence of Mrs. Stanley and their young son, Sherwood, who is 9, and their little daughter, Jane, who is 6. Mrs. Stanley has attended the School of Religion at Boston University. She is a fine co-worker with her husband.—Chambers County News.

NEGRO MINSTREL AT THORSBY JUNIOR HIGH, SATURDAY, MAR. 26

Due to inclement weather, the negro minstrel which was scheduled for last Saturday night was postponed one week. This program will be given next Saturday night, March 26, at 7:30 in the auditorium of the Thorsby Junior High School building.

The public is cordially invited to attend this entertainment. The sponsors recommend it as one of the most laughable comedy programs possible to assemble. Prof. Squeel's radio school is a genuine laugh provoker. Then Judge Hoptoad's court is one grand riot of fun and laughter. These two comedy features are just a small part of the program. Several other attractions are booked to win your hearty applause.

This program demands a large quantity of material and equipment; hence, it can be given only once. Don't miss it. Admission — 10c for all school children, 20c for adults.

STATE CANDIDATE VISITED IN CLANTON THURSDAY

Everett S. Haynes, candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries, on the Democratic ticket, of course, was a visitor in Clanton last Thursday, being piloted about the city by Mr. J. H. Jackson, who is quite interested, apparently, in Mr. Haynes' candidacy.

Haynes stated that he was born and raised on a farm in Cullman County, was a farmer and teacher for several years, and for the past 12 years has been connected with industrial work in the Birmingham district.

While The Union-Banner is not given to pushing apple carts for Democrats, yet Mr. Haynes did leave the impression that he was capable of caring for the job he seeks.

MARBURY MAN RUNS AMUCK

Farmer Kills Daughter, Injures Wife At Their Home Last Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. William Herbert, age about 55, of Marbury, was brought to Central Alabama Hospital here last Thursday, suffering with a gun-shot wound and bruises about the head. At this writing Mrs. Herbert is reported doing nicely. She was shot in the arm, but the arm was not amputated, as was previously reported.

William Herbert, 70, was reported to be in a Prattville hospital, with his throat cut from ear to ear, charged with the killing of his daughter, Bertie, 21, with a hammer, and shooting his wife, at their home Thursday afternoon.

According to A. E. Stewart, sheriff of Autauga County, who investigated and placed the man under arrest, Herbert came into the house about 4 p.m. Going to where his daughter was sitting at work, he struck her in the back of the head with a hammer, killing her instantly.

Mrs. Herbert, hearing the noise, rushed into the room, the sheriff said, and her husband shot her through the side and arm with a single barrel shotgun. She was removed to Central Alabama Hospital here, where hospital attaches said her condition was good.

As their mother fell wounded, two other children in the house fled for aid. Returning with help for the wounded mother, they found their father on the floor, his throat cut with a razor, the sheriff said. Herbert lost a lot of blood, but reports said his chances to recover were good.

Under guard in the Prattville hospital, Herbert told the sheriff a domestic rift was responsible for the trouble. Sheriff Stewart said neighbors told him they had never heard of any trouble at the Herbert place.

Sheriff Stewart said Herbert, at the Prattville hospital, talked freely about the affair, telling him he intended killing them all. "He was pretty calm about it", Stewart said.

SEVERAL CASES OF MEASLES REPORTED IN CHILTON CO.

Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 28.—Twenty cases of meales were reported from Chilton County to the Bureau of Preventable Diseases of the State Department of Health during February, according to the records of the Bureau, which show that 2,827 meales cases were reported during the month from the State as a whole.

"It is unwise for parents to take the attitude that meales is not a dangerous disease, as so many do," nr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, warned today. "Instead of being so trivial an illness that one need not take the trouble to escape it, this is one of the most dangerous of illnesses to which children are susceptible.

The records of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health show that considerably more than half of the 1936 measles deaths in this State were among those less than two years of age.

Prominent Men Inspect Airport

On last Saturday three prominent national and state airport executives visited Clanton and inspected Gragg Field and the hangar. The men were: J. H. Digby, airport engineer, of Washington, D. C.; Charles Wilsky, of the Bureau of Air Commerce, Washington; and Mr. Hester M. Smith, state airport engineer, at Montgomery. These executives made a most favorable report on the airport here, as well as the hangar. Much encouragement was given by them as to future assistance from national and state sources.

These gentlemen were enterfained at luncheon by Dr. V. J. Gragg, Messrs. J. Mell Martin, and Leo Thompson.

BILLINGSLEY SERVICE STORE HAD SUCCESSFUL OPENING

The Billingsley Service Store, next to Exchange Hotel, had its formal opening last week end, and the personnel of that new store say they are greatly pleased over the outcome of the opening. Many hundreds of people called to see them and to look over the wares that are offered in this new store. Scores of people took advantage of the free demonstrations of the electric ranges, refrigerators and water heaters put on by an expert from the Kelvinator company.

Messrs. Curtis Billingsley, W. J. Billingsley, Rufus Gann, J. R. Tucker and Fred Thompson, all join in thanking one and all for their visit to the new store and for the courtesies extended them on their opening. These gentlemen just hope that you will continue to come to see them when you are in Clanton and when you are in need of any of the things they sell.

GROCERY TO HAVE FORMAL OPENING

New Store To Give Away Several Baskets Of Groceries Free This Week End

Saturday of this week, April 2nd, has been announced as the formal opening date for Clanton's newest grocery store, known as Clyde Mims Grocery & Market. For this event, Mr. Mims is offering a number of specials in groceries and fresh meats, flour, etc. There will be demonstrations of one kind and another Saturday, all of which will be free.

A very special attraction for the opening day is the giving away of a number of baskets of groceries. Read the adv. on another page of this paper and learn the particulars about these free baskets of groceries.

This is really a pretty and neatly arranged grocery and market. Everything is brand new, and as clean as a pin. The refrigeration is the very latest, being the J. H. Hill equipment throughout.

As the name of the place would indicate, Mr. Clyde Mims is the owner and manager of the business. The market is in the charge of his brother, Mr. Willie L. Mims, who is an experienced meat cutter. The delivery truck is run by Tommie Mims, son of Isaiah Mims and about a fifth cousin of Clyde and Willie.

These boys are prepared to give you the very best of service in groceries and meats. They are fine, deserving young men, and deserve a part of the grocery trade in Clanton and Chilton County. They invite you to come to see them, assuring you that a litle money spent with them will be grealy appreciated. The location is next door to Chilton County News.

POSSESSION OF LIQUORS IN DRY COUNTIES HELD ILLEGAL AGAIN

Montgomery, Mar. 24. — The Alabama Supreme Court refused today to interfere with a Court of Appeals decision holding that possession of alcoholic beverages of all kinds is unlawful in dry counties.

The court wrote no opinion in the case, but Chief Justice John C. Anderson announced from the bench the decision, in effect, held that alcoholic beverages could not be possessed legally in a dry county, even if bought from a state store or licensed dealer.

Mrs. W. M. Wyatt, of Montevallo, was in Clanton a while late Tuesday afternoon.

MAJOR DIXON TO SPEAK HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Union-Banner is asked to carry the announcement that Major Frank Dixon will speak at the courthouse in Clanton on Wednesday night of next week, April 6th, at 7:30 o'clock. Everyone is invited to hear Major Dixon, in the interest of his candidacy for Governor of Alabama.

Are We Acting The Part Of Wisdom?

[AN EDITORIAL]

The Union-Banner has no scolding for the farmers of Chilton County or any other county because they voted for the farm bill, just as it has no criticism to make of Mayor C. Fenn Jones for getting all the federal money for Clanton that he can. We did not say aught against the plan while it was being so ardently advocated by the powers that be in Washington and by the thousands of subordinates between here and the National Capital. We have not opposed any of the projects applied for by Clanton's officials, neither did we oppose any of the work of Judge L. H. Reynolds in getting all the government assistance for Chilton County that he could while he was Probate Judge. In fact, we have supported most of these ideas and applications; we are not sorry of it yet.

The trouble is not down on this end of the line. The bung hole has been open in Washington for the past five and a half years, and it is up to the individuals and different communities to get what they can from the overflow. That is why we do not blame the farmers and others for taking the view that they do.

But we fear that the trend is toward something unwholesome and undesirable. We doubt that more than a very small percentage of the farmers knew what they were voting for, not because they are ignorant, but because the whole scheme is so complicated that nobody can understand it. The bill contains about 100,000 words, and even the big secretaries and assistants in Washington are still finding out things about it they did not know before. Lawyers and legislators do not understand it, so how can the average farmer?

Our farmers voted for the plan because they figured they had nothing much to lose any way; they are just living in hopes that some turn of mercy will save them from starvation and annihilation. They are willing to try almost anything.

It is a mistaken idea to consider the government as some alienated something, operated by perpetual motion, and which will go on handing out forever without exacting anything in return. If the American people—you and I—feel no responsibility to the government of our country, then who does? Who is going to look after its interests if we American do not—you and I are a part of the great American citizenship—as much a part of it as anybody else, and as much responsible for how the whole scheme works out as any other one individual.

We have heard and still hear much of "the baundant life". Our officials claim they are working to give everybody higher wages, better prices for their crops, and general prosperity for everybody, including those at the foot of the ladder. Mr. Roosevelt enunciated these very ideas in a speech in Georgia just last week.

But we doubt that our high officials really want all classes of people to have plenty and be perfectly contented. When our farmers have cribs full of corn, smoke-houses full of meat, contented cattle grazing in the pastures, plenty to wear, and conveniences to travel here and there when they wish, they have a tendency to think independently, to act independently, and to vote independently. On the other hand, it is hard to think straight on an empty stomach; it is hard to use the best of judgment when one is in need and this or that inducement is being offered. Humanity is weak and may be easily swayed when deprivation is on every side.

There is a possibility that our high officials have us right where the wool is short and intend to keep us there, so that we will be afraid not to do their biddings and dance to their tune. True, under this law, the farmers will be given more money, but is it for our crops or for us to follow instructions from Washington? Over a billion dollars will be spent under the plan, but for what purpose? Is it because Roosevelt and Wallace want to help suffering humanity, or because they want to control votes?

What has become of the old time American spirit? Where is that proper appreciation for that freedom which we once enjoyed in this country, but which is now definitely slipping away from us? So long as we lend encouragement and succor to those who are mad for power and more power, where do we expect it ever to end? A bloody revolution was the source of our liberty, but we have come to consider that liberty a matter of course. It can become extinct here in America. It is extinct in Germany, Italy, Russia and Spain. Communism is rampant in this country, and you need not pass it off lightly. These various pagan isms thrive on a discontented and poverty-stricken people. Their slogan is: "Keep the subjects ignorant and poor, and we can always control them". Will America ever permit such ideas to dominate us and bring our country down to destruction? Think it over, voters!

Some will try to console themselves by saying that The Union-Banner is Republican and is just disturbed because the Democratic forces are being augmented by all of these "favors" extended the citizens here and there. Well, The Union-Banner is Republican, and we plead guilty to being disturbed; but we refuse to concur in the last deduction. The things that are happening nowadays are no nearer Democratic than they are Republican. In fact, these alien tendencies—or tentacles—that are gradually but surely tightening their deadly grip upon us are Communism, atheism, Nazilism, and Fascism, pure and simple; and they are the arch enemies of both the Democratic and Republican parties, just as they are deadly enemies to the American system which has made the American nation. Again, voters, we urge you to think it over.

YOU ARE INVITED PARTICIPATE IN PAINT-UP WEEK

At this season of the year—when buds are bursting and birds are mating, thoughts naturally turn to that place of all places we call home. The human instinct is to make that spot just as attractive as we are able to afford, and naturally at the least expense consistent with good material and workmanship.

It is along this line, and with this idea paramount that some of the stores in Clanton are calling attention of our readers to this season and the appropriateness of painting up and generally renovating our houses. Read the advs. in this week's Banner, and see where you can best be served for the materials for these jobs. It will be to your interest in the long run.

The Union-Banner dislikes for these good people to depart from our midst, but we can console ourselves with the fact that they have meant a blessing to our couny by their having spent these four or five years here.

We bespeak for them the most success possible in their new field, and we say to Lanett and its people that they have made a wise selection in choosing Rev. Stanley as the pastor of their Congregational church.

BAPTIST CHURCH PASTOR RESIGNS

Dr. S. J. Ezell To Take Up Post Of State Superintendent Of Evangelism

After serving as pastor of Clanton Baptist church for the past sixteen and a half years, Dr. S. J. Ezell read his resignation to the congregation last Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock preaching hour. In making a few remarks Dr. Ezell stated that his only purpose in resigning was that after prayerfully considering the matter had reached the conclusion that his services would be more beneficial to the cause of Christ if devoted to the work of Superintendent of Evangelism for Alabama Baptist churches. The resignation came as much of a shock to the congregation, and was a most trying hour to Dr. and Mrs. Ezell.

A brief conference was held at the close of preaching, and the church voted to accept Dr. Ezell's resignation. The Board of Deacons were to hold a meeting Tuesday night to select a pulpit committee; this committee will recommend to the church someone for the new pastor. Dr. Ezell will preach his final sermon here as pastor of the church on Sunday, April 10th.

His new duties will keep him on the road practically all of the time. The family will make their home in Birmingham after June 1st.

Clanton loses a good and useful man when she loses Dr. Ezell, but the Alabama Baptist Board will be greatly enriched by its acquisition of this Christian man and faithful, persistant worker. He will do a great work in his new field of endeavor. The Clanton Baptist church with greatest reluctances gives up Dr. and Mrs. Ezell, but they at the same time are proud to make such a valuable contribution to Alabama Baptist evangelism.

YOUR NEXT REPRESENTATIVE FROM CHILTON COUNTY

Candidate For Legislative Post Gives Views On Duties Of Next Representative; Explains Platform In Detail

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I sincerely believe that your next Representative from Chilton County to the legislature of Alabama will finally prove to be one of the most important officers you will elect. Upon his shoulders will rest more importance than has been the case at any time in the past. It will be his duty to secure for you political and legislative enactments which vitally concern every one of you. There have been times when what we most wanted was to be "left alone"—our county government was running smoothly, the great majority of our people were satisfied, our county's affairs were being properly administered, and over all peace reigned within the confines of Chilton County.

Such is not the case now. Until several vital changes are made in the county and state government, each and every one of us is, more or less, a peon, laboring under a politically dictated machine of greed and arrogance; we are forced to submit to laws and injustices in the enactment of which our people have had no voice; our elected officials here in our county cannot fulfill the duties to which they were elected, by reason of the fact that their hands are securely tied by regulatory measures and political impositions which makes impotent their every attempt to carry out the wishes of the people who elected them. Such has brought about a stalemate condition—"a house divided against itself".

It is the profound duty of your next Representative to understand all these conditions fully, and to be able to carry to Montgomery with him a program of deliverance of our people from the bonds in which we find ourselves entangled. He must be able to know the needs and desires of all classes of our people—farmers, industrial workers, business men, professional workers—and he should carry with him a clear idea of a method to remove such bonds and fetters, and place our people and our county's affairs back on the high plane of efficiency and parity among all of us which is our just due and which has been our lot in the past.

Your next Representative should carry with him to his office a profound determination to carry out the needs and desires of the people of our county, and he should surely concern himself with finding out for himself, and for them, just what those needs and desires are. He cannot intelligently draft legislation in their behalf and for their best interest and to secure for them the laws they want or the removal of restrictions they detest without knowing just what those desires are. Your Representative should be able to meet a farmer on an equal footing, discuss with him his problems with experience as to his needs; he should also be able to meet the merchant, salesman. or industrial worker on a like common ground. In short, he should know our people and their needs and desires, and, most important of all, bear a mind to help these people and to obtain for them the things they most desire, so far as lies within his power.

In bringing to you my candidacy for election to the post of Representative of Chilton County, I do so, I believe, with a full understanding of those needs and desires of our whole people. This understanding has been gained partly from the restraint under which I have personally found myself as a citizen of Chilton County, partly through heart-to-heart talks with hundreds of our people in all walks of life and of all political beliefs and affiliations, and partly through an alert observation of affairs as they have progressed, observing each change and its effect upon our people and our county and state governments.

Bringing into service this understanding, I have drawn up a list of the things which I believe our people need and desire. Part of them deal only with our county; part of them are of state-wide scope. I made public this "platform" in my address to you at the time of my announcement, but, inasmuch as there have been some who expressed inability to fully understand just what is meant by every phase of it, I take this means to explain in detail.

I ADVOCATE:

1. Immeditae repeal of the recent local act relative to the county road system; submission of the question as to whether the people favor a road supervisor (under direction of the Commissioners Court) in a referendum; further action on the subject to be guided by that vote.

This, I believe, is easily understood. I mean, first, to repeal the local act setting up the office of road supervisor, with all its provisions and ramifications, in its entirety—to remove it just as if it had never existed. Then, in view of the fact that there are a great number of our people who believe that expert road supervision is advisable, if a good portion think best, I favor the holding of a referendum on the subject of hiring a supervisor (under direction of the Commissioners Court, and at a salary commensurate with his ability and worth to the road system); if a majority favor, to obtain such local change; if not, then our road system to revert to the manner in which it was conducted before the enactment of the present road law.

2. Immediate repeal of the local act which increased salaries of local farm office officials.

In this, I of course find no personal fault with Mr. Fant, Miss Grace, or any of the employes whose salaries or expense accounts were increased by the local act in question. They, very likely, are as good officials of the kind as can be found anywhere. I maintain merely, that their salaries are too high, no matter who might hold the office, and that they cannot possibly be worth their pay to the farmers of Chilton County. Besides that, they accepted the jobs at the former salaries—if they thought the pay was not enough at that time, they should have refused the jobs. Further, these jobs pay salaries and allowances all out of proportion to the income of the farmers whom they "supervise"; these very low-paid people must pay these high salaries out of their low income; this is a condition which I believe ought not to be. I do not doubt that we need people in their positions to carry out the provisions of the various national government farm programs, and they, no doubt, are as well fitted as anyone for the places. I maintain, however, that their pay and allowances are too great and should be reduced, that the majority of the people are of the same opinion, and if I am nominated and elected to represent you in the next legislature, I intend to see what can be done about a reduction of these high salaries and expense accounts.

3. Extension of State Homestead Tax Exemption Act to include county taxes as well as state taxes.

This act, as it now stands, exempts homesteads up to $2,000 valuation from state taxes, but not from county taxes. I favor revision of this act to extend this exemption through county taxes also. I believe the county government is as well able to bear its part of this tax loss as is the state to bear its part. By such revision, all homesteads up to $2,000 valuation, where the owner lived thereon, would be entirely free of taxation. I believe there are plenty of lands and other property which would not fall in this class to take care of needed funds to carry on the county governments, and that small farmers would thus be the principal beneficiaries from such enactment.

4. Immediate repeal of the luxury sales tax act.

So far as the "fairness" of the sales tax is concerned, I believe it is the fairest tax that could be placed. But, in the first place, it is not alone a tax on luxuries, as its caption would lead one to believe, but even the bare necessities of life are taxed as well. In addition, I submit, and honestly believe, that our state government, if conducted economically, does not need this tax, therefore I favor its removal at the earliest moment. I have been asked how I expect the state and county governments to operate if we remove these several taxes, as I desire to see done. Only one simple thing would have to be done—install an economical system of government, buy what we need and hire the employes we need and no more, pay them what they are worth and no more, without hand-outs, without "pie counters" without "special service" payments, without payment of political debts with public money—this would be simple, and effective. When politicians are forced to stop lining their pockets with green-backs, then our taxes can be lessened; when our people have conjured up courage to throw a distinct and resounding "No!" in the faces of these political parasites who bleed the last possible cent of tax from our people and squander it for their own personal and political gain, then we can elect men with honest motives and intentions to carry on the business of our state and counties, and not before. The blame should not all be placed on these officers, however. Rather, it should be shared with the weak-kneed element of our voters who are so easily cowed or bought into electing such crooks to office. God speed the day when we can have enough people with enough courage and principle to vote their true convictions and elect worthwhile officers, rather than wink at inefficiency, just because there is a promise of a job "if I vote right". I have no patience with such a system!

5. Repeal or revision of the alcoholic beverage control act.

Personally, I am in favor of prohibition, and would be willing to see every drop of intoxicating beverages vanish overnight, if that could be possible. However, I have tried to take a sensible view of this whole affair, and I am convinced that this is a stark impossibility. Yet I believe the word "control" could well have been left out of the caption of the above act. It does everything except control liquor. This is a problem with which people have wrestled since the beginning of time, and I see no immediate satisfactory solution of it in sight now. However, I am willing and anxious to study any suggestions that might be offered, looking toward a better solution of the problem, and better "control" of it, if we must be plagued with it forever.

6. Repeal or revision of the state absentee ballot law; a thorough investigation and revision of the state's voting laws in general.

I thoroughly detest the absentee ballot law, because of the chance of corruption by the crooked politician. The law, itself, is all right, if carried out as it was meant to be, but it can be manipulated in such a manner as to be a stinch in the nostrils and an abomination to every honest and right thinking citizen. I favor its removal from the statute books, contending that any voter who has not the interest to come to the county to vote has no right to vote in the management of a county and state government under which he does not live.

Further, Alabama's voting laws in general are a sieve of chances for crooked work. If a person is crooked enough, he may vote in every booth in the county, even though he has never even registered nor paid a single poll tax, merely by signing a challenge oath. True, he would be subject to prosecution if it were ever brought to light in the courts, but this could be done only through a contest carried to the limit. And how many contests are ever carried out completely?

7. Parity for the educational department in appropriation of state funds.

I believe the education of our young people is the hope of the future, and should therefore be looked upon as our first consideration. Therefore, I am in favor of education being considered as a strict and binding essential function of our state government, to receive its proper share of funds, to provide school terms commensurate with recognized needs, to give Alabama's youth the chance for an education, which is their rightful heritage. I had much rather see an educated man or woman walking over a rocky road, if need be, than to see an illiterate speeding over a smooth highway, and I shall certainly vote accordingly if elected as your Representative.

8. Provision for a set percentage of state income to be set aside as a sinking fund to pay off outstanding state obligations as they fall due.

Alabama owes several millions of dollars. Yearly income is just about all spent under the present system, in carrying on the several functions of the state. Hence, we must thus be a long time freeing our state of debt, if ever we do. I advocate setting aside, by law, a certain percentage of state income each year to go into a sinking fund; then when any of these state bonds fall due there will be money with which to pay them. and stop the enormous interest our state now pays. If ever the bonds are completely paid, and our state removed from debt, the per cent of income could still be set aside as a surplus, to be used in the future in any project, rather than be forced to float another bond issue, if such project should be considered needful. The only way to pay off a debt is with money, and the only way to have the money ready is to save it against the day the debt falls due.

9. Adoption of a state budget, to fall within state income, and strict compliance therewith.

Treasury officials of the state know just about what the state's income will be in any given year. I favor appropriation of funds to all state functions which are needed to carry them on, economically, being careful to keep the total of these appropriations within state income. By this kind of budget system only can Alabama ever hope to operate within income and pay off its outstanding obligations.

10. More strict supervision of the penal system, relative to corrupt abuse of the parole privilege.

Under the present system, crooked lawyers and legislators have been known to make a racket of securing pardons and paroles for convicts—for a consideration. I favor legislation which would regulate granting of pardons and paroles only on proof of error in trial, or admitting conditions which would rightfully consider humane claims for such pardons or paroles. Money makes too much difference in the lengths of penal terms under our present system.

11. Support of any so-called "economy measures" which will not interfere with or curtail proper management and operation of the several state departments.

I am in favor of the state spending all it can for the betterment of general conditions among our people. I favor each department getting its fair share of what the state is able to spend. But I shall certainly favor any moves toward economy, where such are consistent with good government.

12. Regulation requiring applicant for driving license to pass actual driving test, to insure safety on the highways.

As now conducted, the driving license law is nothing more than another money gathering scheme — a license charge for the privilege of operating a motor vehicle, no matter whether the applicant is competent or not. I favor enactment of a measure which would require such applicant to first be examined by a competent traffic official, to be sure that such applicant is familiar with traffic laws and competent to operate a motor vehicle. If he passes such test, allow a license; if he fails to pass such test, to bar that incompetent or careless driver from the wheel of a motor vehicle. Competent drivers cause few wrecks, while incompetent and reckless drivers are a menace to general highway safety. A careful weeding out of these incompetent and careless drivers will go far toward lowering our accident and death rate.

13. Lower scale for auto license plates.

The rate of charge for auto license plates in Alabama is yet too high—far more than the national average. I favor lowering these rates to a reasonable scale, at least on a par with the national average.

14. Automatic group auto accident insurance, with state government supervision.

This type of insurance is now carried by several states, and has proved highly successful. Under it, the state secures group insurance on every motor vehicle for which it issues a license plate. Upon proof of unavoidable accident, where damage reaches a certain figure, all repairs are cared for by this insurance. There is a nominal charge for this, paid when the license is issued. There is no personal injury clause, and proof must be made that the damage was unintentional.

15. General removal of "pie counter" conditions in Alabama.

"Pie counter" scandals have become common in Alabama, and are in great measure responsible for the sorry financial plight we find our state in. I favor each state employee having his job to do, at a fair wage, with no loopholes in the way of "special services" being allowed. Enormous sums have been paid recently for these "special services", from which the state has received no benefit. I favor removal of such conditions.

16. Election by popular vote of all county officers who draw their pay from the county treasury.

I believe any official who draws money from the public treasury should be selected by the people, and not appointed by the governor, nor any other officer. Under this head, our county solicitor would be elected by the people he serves, and not appointed by the governor, as is the case now. I favor such change.

In Conclusion

In advocating the above, I believe no one could promise the enactment of any program as a certainty, no matter how commendable it might be. I do not promise that I will be able to effect all of the above needed changes, but I do pledge myself that if I am nominated and elected I will do all in my power to help such measures when they come up for consideration.

"Rome was not built in a day", and all of the ills of our county and state cannot be corrected in a short time, but you may rest assured that if I represent Chilton County in the legislature during the next term, I will have a ready ear to listen to your suggestions, and may at all times be found trying for the things that you want done.

With this sincere pledge in mind, I respectfully solicit your vote and influence in the coming election.—PAUL C. MIMS.

VEAL FEEDING PLAN WILL NOT DEVELOP PROFITABLE HEIFERS

Dry Feed Builds Big Frames and Strong Bones for Milkers.

"Three days is not a very long time. Yet it is on the third day after a heifer calf is dropped that the dairyman must decide whether she is to be vealed or grown out as a milker," says W. R. Arends, head of the Calf Department of Purina Mills. "The reason dairymen must make such a quick decision is that the feeding plan for growing out a fine veal is not satisfactory for growing out a high producing heifer.

"In growing out veal calves the object of feeding is to make the animal retain its baby fat and add to it all the milk fat possible," Arends says. "Fleshy quick growth and fat are wanted in veals. Beef tendencies are encouraged. In raising veals milk or rich fattening feeds are best. Little emphasis need be put on bone, muscle, and frame development."

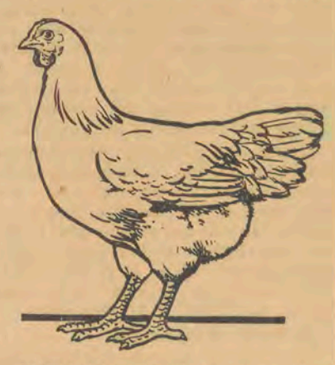
Heifers Need Special Feed

But when heifer calves are to be grown out as milkers and entirely different system of feeding must be followed. Growth, not fat, is the primary objective. Beef tendencies must be eliminated. Big husky frames with lots of capacity are most important. At every stage of growth the calf should resemble a miniature cow. The only time any fattiness should appear is 90 days before freshening. Extra flesh is needed then to prevent a sharp loss in weight after calving.

"Calves intended for milkers should be taken off milk as soon as possible and given dry feed that contains all the essential ingredients for building husky frames and strong bodies," Arends recommends. "A plan to entirely eliminate milk from the ration of heifer calves after the first thirty days has been worked out at the Purina Experimental Farm, where hundreds of calves have been grown out to become part of the Purina milking herd.

TEST SHOWS VALUE OF COMPLETE FEED FOR GROWING BIRDS

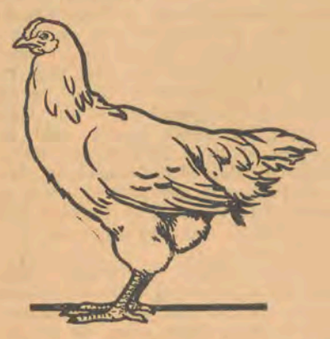
Well-Developed Pullets Turn in $68 More Profit.



Gray Summit, Mo.—An old proverb laments that "one half of the world never knows how the other half lives." This is particularly true of growing pullets as demonstrated in a test here at the Purina Experimental Farm last year.

Two hundred sturdy, well-developed six weeks old pullets were selected for the experiment. All birds were from the same hatch and for the first six weeks were fed on Purina Startena. At six weeks the two hundred pullets were as nearly alike as heredity, management, and good feeding could make them.

At six weeks the chicks were divided, One hundred birds were put into a pen and fed all the gain they could eat, along with grasshoppers and bugs they picked up on alfalfa range. The other hundred were given all the grain they wanted nights and mornings, but in addition were given all the Purina growing mash they could eat. It was kept before them in open hoppers. These birds were also allowed alfalfa range. Management and housing conditions were the same for both flocks, and each flock was given the best sanitation.



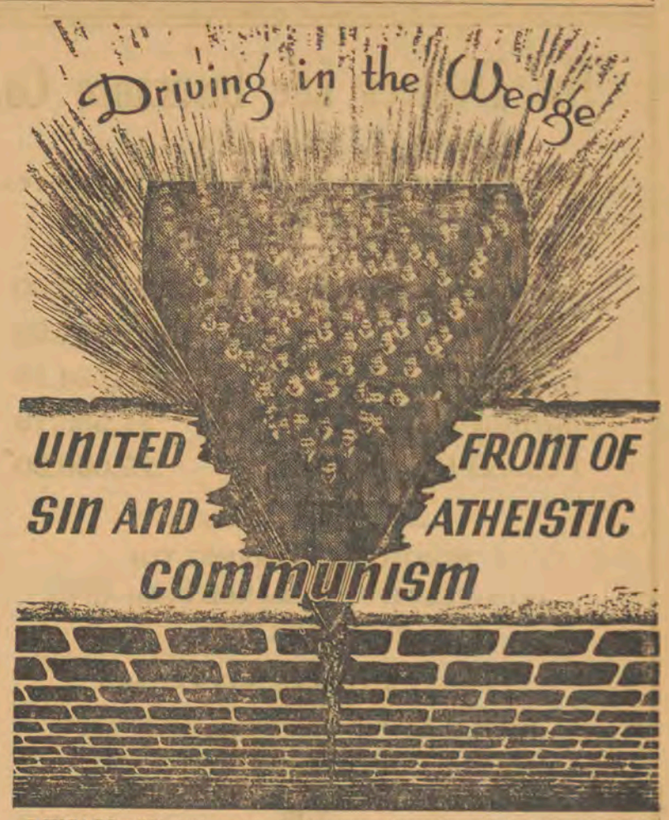
Differences Show Early

"Almost immediately a slight difference in the development between the two flocks began to show," C. S. Johnson, manager of the Purina Poultry Department says, "but at 5 months the most amazing differences were apparent. Birds fed on grain and Purina growing mash were mature, strong, and sturdy with well-developed egg-making organs and big-frames. They were ready to go into the laying house and start turning out profitable, high-priced fall eggs."

Well-developed pullet from the flock fed on complete growing mash.

The hundred birds fed on grain and allowed alfalfa range were under-sized and immature, knotty and scrawny. Even though they had received the same starting mash as the hundred well-developed pullets; although management and housing had been the same, the ration the fully fed pullets received during the growing period had given them an advantage that could not be overcome.

Unprofitable, undersized bird fed on grain and range.



At five months both the growing-mash fed pullets and the grain-fed pullets were put on the same laying ration. The pullets fed on growing mash responded immediately but the grain fed pullets did not. The "roughing" they had received from the sixth to the twentieth week held them back. Consequently the hundred scrawny pullets did not come into production until they were 7½ months old, and by the time they were eight months old had laid only $6.50 worth of eggs.

Good Birds Turn in $74

The well-developed pullets grown out on a complete growing feed started laying at five months. Proper feeding during the growing period had given them big frames, strong muscles, and well-developed egg-making organs so that they were in peak condition to start laying. During the fall and early winter months when egg prices were high these birds were in good production and at the end of 8 months had turned in a record of $74.75 worth of eggs, or $68.25 more than the under-developed pullets. The hundred immature, knotty little pullets were an additional expense in that they used their laying ration as a growing feed after they were in the laying house.

"Any poultryman who feels he can 'rough' his pullets through the summer is sure to find that they 'rough' him back in the fall when egg prices are high," Johnson says. "Grain and cheap mash, or grain alone, can't do a money-making job of growing and developing pullets into profitable layers. A half-way job of growing birds results in a half-way job of laying when they are put into the laying house."

Mrs. T. E. Wyatt and Mrs. Paul Bishop returned home from Chattanooga last Friday night.

CHICAGO—"Christian people today constitute the greatest bulwark against communism," declared Dr. Will H. Houghton, President of the Moody Bible Institute, before a recent gathering of 4,000 in this city, "because communism is helpless against the teachings of Jesus Christ. Schools such as the Moody Bible Institute are obstacles through which communism cannot penetrate. More than 900 young men and women are now enrolled in the Day School. Each is studying to fit himself or herself for active Christian service and will enter fields of service on completion of their period of training prepared to effectively use the one antidote to communism—the Bible."

The wedge pictured above is a recently graduated class of the Moody Bible Institute. They are set for the defense of the Gospel. "God will bless and use this company," continued Dr. Houghton, "in this confused and baffled world. There have been other days in which forces of evil have combined to oppose the on-march of God's truth, but God has given victory, and again and again the wall of opposition has been broken down."

For the benefit of pastors, missionaries, evangelists, Christian workers and teachers of secular schools the Institute will conduct a Summer School from June 21 to July 22. Regular Institute subjects will be taught, and attractive electives in Sunday School Work, Young People's Problems and Gospel Music will be available. Tuition is free.

The Summer School Faculty will be made up of the regular Institute teachers, supplemented by special lecturers. Full information will be sent upon request of the Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

Lesson for April 3

SERVING OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:24-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Good Will to Other Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending his mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader in the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still further. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened . . . and he spake plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Temper

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-and-twenty hours after it has happened.

Forgive Your Enemies

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

IN MEMORY

On Thursday morning, March 10th, a few minutes after six o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Stanley Cooper and bore his spirit to the great Beyond.

He leaves to mourn his departure: his wife, two children, one grandchild, his father, mother and a great host of other relatives and friends.

Stanley always seemed happy. He met everyone with a smile, hello or hand-wave. He numbered his friends by all who knew him. By his going, his family has lost a good loving husband and father. His parents have lost their only child, and the community has lost a good citizen. Dear relatives, you have our heartfelt sympathy. Don't forget to take your troubles to the Lord and leave them there. Jesus is the only sure foundation to build on. We know His word is true, and some day He will call for you and me. So, let us live right in the sight of God, ond when He calls for us we can say, "I am ready."

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Saturday afternoon, March 26, 1938, Master Floyd Gray celebrated his 9th birthday with a party at the home of Mr. R. C. Hand, about 2:00 o'clock. The guests began to arrive bringing Floyd many useful presents, after which games were played on the lawn. The guests gathered in the dining room where refreshments were served to the following children:

Louise Hand, Johnnie McKinnon, Evelyn Wilson, Lorene Huett, Louise Easterling, Betty Jo Easterling, Audrey Maude Popwell, Myrtle McKinnon, Bobbie Gray, Onzell Popwell, William Popwell, Billy Cobern, Mary Sam Vinson, Bobbie Vinson, Ferrell Foshee and J. C. Foshee.

At a late hour the guests departed wishing Floyd many more happy birthdays.

Among the University of Alabama freshmen recently initiated in Phi Eta Sigma, national freshman honorary society, were: Charlie Mack Smith, Garland; William Stewart, Prattville; Jack Walker, Dadeville; Jesse Richard Cheatham, Greenville; George Pierce Howard, Wetumpka; Henry Thomas Nichols.

Tyrone Power, movie actor, has accepted the invitation of Billy Roberts, Anniston, editor of the Corolla, University of Alabama student yearbook, to select the pictures which will go in the beauty section of the 1938 edition of the book.

A delegation of 31 University of Alabama students will compete in forensic activities at the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech convention which will be held in Atlanta March 29-April 2.

Seniors in the College of Engineering at the University of Alabama got an idea last week of what their post graduation work will be like, as they spent four days — March 22-25 — inspecting engineering projects and industrial plants in Alabama, Tennessee and Florida.

Only one girl has been found who slept through the multitude of noises accompanying a fire drill held last week in Tutwiler Hall, women's dormitory at the University of Alabama. She was Bettie Uber, of New Castle, Pa., room-mate of Co-ed Fire Chief Edna Mae Gale, Fairfield.

As the saying goes, this is "well put".

William Ray, speech instructor of the University of Alabama, recently advised prospective lawyers in his class in Argumentation:

"It is very important that you learn good speech delivery. Unless you can speak effectively when you become a practicing lawyer, your court cases will figure about 5 per cent elocution and 95 per cent electrocution."

Three University of Alabama educators are slated to give papers at the 40th annual meeting of the General Session on Ceramic Resources of the Southern States, set for New Orleans, March 28-April 2.

Violator Sentenced

A federal game law violation case, involving people from California to New York City, and taking more than a year to complete, has been closed with a penitentiary sentence of two years for Jack Horner, proprietor of a night club near Ft. Worth, Tex., according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Horner catered to a wealthy clientele, serving wild duck, quail, plover, dove, and other wild birds, both in and out of season. Texas authorities, under direction of W. J. Tucker, secretary of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster Commission, cooperated with federal agents in working up the evidence which resulted in the conviction of Horner. The csae attracted national attention, with many groups and sportsmen's clubs urging vigorous prosecution.

Southerners Organize

Formation of the Southern Association of Conservation officials was effected at Jacksonville, Fla., this month with Commissioner I. T. Quinn, of Alabama, being elected president. There are 16 states and the District of Columbia in the new association, whose purpose is to correlate activities of the federal government and state conservation units, as well as promote cooperation between the states, themselves. J. D. Chalk, of North Carolina, and Alf Richardson, of South Carolina, were elected vice presidents, and I. N. Kennedy, of Florida, was named secretary-treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Powell, their youngest son and little daughter were in Clanton this week end visiting friends and relatives. The Banner was glad to have them visit us. Mr. Powell is a former Banner employee; he has been in Decatur for several years.

ISABELLA CLUB MEETS

The Isabella Home Demonstration Club met Friday, March 18, at 3 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, and everyone sang "America, the Beautiful". The devotional was then conducted by Mrs. E. S. Jones. The roll was called and the minutes read by the secretary, Mrs. Odis Cooper. Hazel Jones then gave a poem, "An Ideal", after which "America" was sung.

The club then discussed at length the question: "What does my community need to make it a better community in which to grow American citizens?" Mrs. J. H. Wells told about the American nation, as told by Theodore Roosevelt, after which another song was sung. Miss Callan then read the poem "If", by Rudyard Kipling.

Following, a short business session was held, and then the meeting was turned over to Miss Grace, who spoke on "Spring Gardens", and urged each club member to make an effort to plant two new vegetables in her garden this year. It is hoped that each member will try to do this, and thereby have a wider variety of vegetables for her table this spring.

We hope that we will have a large number at our next meeting, April 15. —Reporter.

THE STATE LAND COMMISSIONER

The office of State Land Commissioner was created as of October 1, 1935. The chief clerk of this department has control of all properties sold to the state for taxes. He approves all partial and installment applications for redemptions submitted by the several Judges of Probate if found to be correct. When the period of redemption has expired, namely, three years from date of tax sale, the State Land Commissioner is outhorized to dispose of the state's tax title by deed issued by him and approved by the governor.

He is also authorized to assign certificates of purchase of property sold the state for taxes. All sales and assignments are based upon the accrued taxes, with interest thereon at 6 per cent. Receipts from sales and assignments are distributed as follows: the state, 6½ mills, plus advertising cost, the remainder, including officers's fees, goes to the county in which the property is situated. All funds received are certified into the state treasury.

ARGENTINE BEETLE TO BE DISCUSSED AT SCIENCE MEET

Troy, Ala., Mar. 28. — A talk on the Argentine Beetle (White Fringed Beetle- will be one of the highlights of the two-day convention of the Alabama Academy of Science at Troy State Teachers College on April 8 and 9.

The talk, to be given by J. M. Robinson, Department of Zoology-Entomology at Auburn, probably will cover what recent discoveries have been made to deal with the pest which caused such a stir in South Alabama last year.

Another interesting feature will be a visit to the lignite deposits near Troy. This section of the state abounds in this low grade coal which, through recent developments, now can be processed for efficient and inexpensive heat. Its commercial possibilities are most interesting and promising.

Outstanding speakers and conference leaders on the program will include: Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lambdin, W. A. Harrell, C. Aubrey Hearn, Dr. Clay I. Hudson, Dr. Frank H. Leavell, Dr. John L. Hill, B. B. McKinney, all of the Baptist Sunday School Board of Nashville, Tenn., E. E. F. Leek, pastor Highland Avenue Baptist Church, Montgomery; Dr. F. M. Barnes, executive secretary of the Alabama Convention, Montgomery; Mrs. J. O. Williams of Nashville, Tenn.; Chester L. Quarles and Miss Martha Sconyers, Training Union secretary and associate of the state, Montomery.

The Training Union associational officers from each association, which includes the director, associate director, secretary-treasurer, chorister, pianist, pastor-adviser, Story Hour, Junior, Intermediate, Senior, and Adult leaders and group directors should attend this meeting. In order to reach these workers the Baptist Sunday School Board is financing the transportation of one, two, or three automobiles from each association to bring these workers. Entertainment will be provided by the host church at Mobile.

There will be a morning session at ten o'clock, an afternoon and an evening session on Tuesday with the adjournment at noon on Wednesday.

A fight is being waged by state and federal employes to prevent the sweet potato weevil from spreading from Baldwin, Mobile, and Conecuh Counties in Alabama, and from parts of Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Texas, and Louisiana.

Seasonal changes in hog prices during the spring and summer of this year are expected to be more nearly normal than they were in the same period last year.

The Alabama Mills band will lead the parade, and furnish music through the day. A lovely float is being planned, carrying out the 4-H colors, green and white, on which the club officers will ride.

Miss Elizabeth S. Deloney, state 4-H Club leader, Auburn, and Mr. Homer S. Fisher, specialist in lanscape gardening, Auburn, will be the principal speakers of the day.

Certificates and medals for those who completed their 1936-1937 projects will be awarded.

Don't forget the date, boys and girls, and be ready for a lot of fun.—B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that will hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.

Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

HEALTH OFFICIALS ATTEND CONFERENCE

Chilton County was represented on Monday at a conference of county health officers and rabies inspectors in Montgomery by Dr. S. D. Sturkie and Dr. W. L. Parrish of Clanton, it was learned here today from a health department report. Called into session by the State Health Department, the health officials heard brief talks by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, Dr. I. S. McAdory, State Veterinarian and Dr. Leach of the Rockefeller Foundation. A general round table discussion of the Alabama rabies control program followed. A proposal by Dr. Parrish to extend the date, after which penalties would be imposed on dog owners failing to have their dogs inoculated from June 1st to late in the summer was met, after some discussion, with unanimous approval.

Announcement was made also by Dr. Sturkie today of plans for observance of National Negro Health Week in Clanton, April 3-10. A local program has been arranged by M. E. Fews, principal of Clanton Grammar colored school, with the assistance of other colored teachers, he stated. Included in the program are a lecture and showing of films by the health department at the Union Baptist church on April 4h at 8 p. m., the holding of a wasserman clinic offering free blood tests to the colored pupils at the Clanton grammar school, April 9th, at 2:30 p. m., and a field day featuring health games at the school on April 8h. National Negro Health Week originated by the late Booker T. Washington "in 1914 and being observed for the first time in Chilton County," asserted Dr. Sturkie, "will, I hope, grow in local importance in the future. Aiming at the conservation of negro health it is arousing white and colored to the realization of existing negro health problems and methods to solve them can exert a far reaching beneficient influence on all of us."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Among his companions in barnstorming, Glenn L. Martin was known as "The Dude," although his carefully tailored flying suits were always black, including their elaborate braid trimmings. His somewhat mortuary get-up and behavior gave an impression of great conservatism, and it is not surprising that he got backing from the bankers when other aviators failed.

Martin Had Get-Up of Mortician

A few months ago, he said his Glenn L. Martin company, of Baltimore, making planes, had a backlog of $15,500,000.

He told the house naval affairs committee there should be a 100 per cent increase in air armaments, that foreign nations are spending ten times as much as the United States. He would build a 250,000-pound bomber, carrying 30 men and a 4,000-pound bomb load 11,000 miles.

In 1912, this writer saw him put an inflated inner tube around his neck, strap a compass on his leg and take off to sea, at Avalon bay, Los Angeles, in a flying laundry wagon on which he had rigged a single wooden pontoon. He was bound for Catalina island, 20 miles away. It looked like suicide.

He not only made it, but picked up again at Catalina and finished the round trip, blanking Bleriot, whose flight over the British channel was a one-way excursion. He had made the plane in an abandoned church.

Round Trip Sea Flight Is Success

The flight got him world attention. Then he staged a plane coyote hunt, dropped a ball into a catcher's mitt and a bouquet into the arms of a beauty contest queen.

This air extravaganza did not last long. In 1913, he built and sold two model TT war planes to the army, and has been building fighting craft ever since, with the exception of trans-Pacific Clippers.

He grew up in Mackburg, Iowa, built a pusher plane in his backyard and flew it in 1908. He is fifty-two.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, in his seersucker suit and his rumpled hat, frequently looked as if he had been sleeping under a bridge, especially in the midst of a hard campaign. His son, William Jennings Bryan, Jr., is fussy about his dress, severely and fastidiously groomed, with a jaunty little moustache and a nice collection of malacca sticks, sports clothes, and varied haberdashery.

Bryan, Jr., Fastidious About Dress

He is in the news now as he becomes collector of customs at the port of Los Angeles, his first recognition by the California Democracy, in whose vineyard he has labored for years.

When his father laid down his staff and scrip at Dayton, Tenn., he picked from the legacy only two things—free silver and anti-evolution. He is quite unmoved by oratory, speaking with calm, legalistic precision, with no gift for the resounding or oracular.

He has made spirited forays against this or that, notably Upton Sinclair's "Epic" heresy of 1934, but with no such impassioned fervor as that which inspired his father. But, when occasion offers, he puts in a word for silver, or against evolution.

Will Speak Good Word for Silver

After the Dayton trial and his father's death, he made a knightly vow that his lance always should be leveled against this ignoble theory of man's origin. But nobody seems to be bringing that up now. The argument is shifting to where man is going.

He attended the University of Nebraska three years, studied law at Georgetown university, went to Arizona on account of his wife's health, and practiced law, first in Arizona and then in Los Angeles. He is fifty years old.

Origin of Word Assassin

The word assassin originated in Persia in the Eleventh century. It derives from hashish, the intoxicating Indian drug which at that time was used by notorious murderers under one Hasan-i-Sabbah to work themselves into the high state of ruthlessness required for their crimes. As a tactic in attacking vested authority assassination is as old as man. It is notably the most ubiquitous and immediate of dangers to autocratic government, as has been proved by the violent deaths of a high percentage of dictators from Julius Caesar to those of modern times.

Good Start Helps Chicks Grow into Profitable Pullets

The big thing in brooding chicks is not how many chicks are started nor even the percentage of chicks kept alive, but how many pullets are ready for laying when egg prices advance in the fall.

If a portable brooder house is used it should be moved to fresh ground and left to sun and air before chicks are put in. If the brooder house cannot be moved to new ground, a wire bottom sun porch or gravel apron three inches deep, 15 feet each way from the house, should be provided.

No matter what type brooder stove is used, it should be run at least three full days before chicks arrive. Temperatures should be watched closely and accurate temperature control maintained. The tendency for chicks to pile and crowd when 3 or 4 weeks old is usually due either to too high temperatures or too much variation in temperature. For the first two days the temperature should be kept about 90 degrees or higher, and gradually reduced to 80 or 85 degrees by the end of the second week.

Chicks need plenty of fresh clean water. To aid in preventing spread of disease one-quarter level teaspoon of Purina Chlorena Powder should be added to each gallon of drinking water.

The best starting feed is built to satisfy every need of young chicks for the first six weeks. In it should be blended all the vitamins, proteins, carbohydrates and minerals that chicks need for vigorous growth. Every ingredient should be included in proper proportion to do the best job possible in growing sturdy chicks. It should be fortified with Puratene, a rich Vitamin A concentrate that builds up resistance to disease and puts extra vigor and vitality in chicks.

One of the best ways to avoid crowding and piling is to have low, slated roosts in the brooder house early and to begin using them before the chicks are three weeks old. The roost can be made to fold back against the wall when not needed or when the house is to be cleaned, and dropped into place when the chicks are a little over a week old.

When chicks are three or four weeks old they outgrow chick-size feed hoppers. These should be replaced with larger hoppers and more of them. A four-weeks old chick is more than twice as broad as a baby chick and therefore needs more than twice as much room. They also need extra watering space at this age.

Litter should be lifted lightly with a fork at intervals during the brooding period so that droppings will sift to the bottom. Old litter should always be removed and the brooder house cleaned and disinfected before brooding a second lot of chicks in the same quarters.

NEW BOOK SHOWS HOW TO SELL EGGS FOR MORE MONEY

Unusual opportunities to make money at home await several far-sighted, promotional-minded poultry raisers in every community. Through building a popular demand for high quality eggs with "controlled interiors", a four to eight cents per dozen premium for eggs is obtainable. Eggs that break out firm yolks of the same color; eggs with thick whites and strong shells; and eggs that have a fresh, wholesome taste, are the kind of eggs that must be produced to secure premiums.

How to produce such eggs is described in a new book, "Forty-Nine Ways to Sell Eggs for More Money". This book contains important information on ways of opening special markets, methods of selling, and controlled methods of feeding to keep quality always at its best. An easy way to sell quality eggs through demonstration is described. The book may be secured by writing the Poultry Department of Purina Mills, St. Louis, Missouri, and enclosing twenty-five cents.

Wall street doubters are wailing: "If there is no hell, where has business gone to?"—New York Sun.

No hale and hearty man living in a land that will produce sweet potatoes is an underprivileged American. — Charleston News and Courier.

An exchange asks: "Now that big and little business have given their ideas to the government wouldn't it be all right if those of us with no business were called into conference?" But most of us who have no business are already on the inside helping the administration to run the country.

Long distance telephoning has arrived so near perfection that it is now easier to get a party in London or Paris than it is to talk to the box office of the Palace theatre.

Our pressman says he had enough troubles without celebrating Second Hand Car Week.

There is no question but the New Dealers do things in a big way. Just look at the national debt for instance.

Sir Anthony Eden says he will go along with his party but we don't know whether he really means it or whether he has his fingers crossed in the American political fashion.

TOO MANY SAVERS

Of course no one will let anyone starve—not even a bureaucrat. But right now it is growing more and more difficult to get the citizen excited. The cry of "Wolf! Wolf!" has been overworked, and the hand of the princes of patronage is seen too often at the commissary for the relief of the needy. The work ing man is asking questions and beginning to wonder who these folks are who are going to save him—and what they did for a living before there were so many people to save.—Cass Lake (Minn.) Times.

AS AN ENGLISH EDITOR SEES US

It might be interesting for the American politicians who would substitute political management of industry for individual initiative and supervision, to read the views of an English journalist. In a recent issue of the London (England) Sphere, the editor had the following to say about American prosperity and the "foolisnness" of our "pompous statesmen.'

"The United States contains 6 per cent of the world's area, and 7 per cent of its population. It normally consumes 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 per cent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper, and 69 per cent of its crude petroleum.

"The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities, owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. It produces 70 per cent of the oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pig iron, and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

"The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of the 500,000,000 people in Europe, and much more than that of the more than a billion Asiatics.

"Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, solemnly declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

"There is only one way to characterize that proposal—it is just damn folishness."—Manufacturers' Journal.

Another thing to be said for the good old times is that in the prohibition days mother always knew where to find father at night—down in the cellar conducting chemical experiments.

It is said that Sir Austin Chamberlain has lost confidence in the League of Nations. So, apparently, have China, Ethiouia, and Spain.

The wooden Indian in front of the cigar store seems hopelessly out of date. But he may be able to stage a comeback. Just look at Charlie McCarthy.

Many papers are criticising Secretary Ickes because he lectured Great Britain and gave her advice how to act, in his radio address. But a lot of British lecturers have been doing the same thing to us—only they come over here in person and charge us a dollar apiece to get lectured.

Gourmet society meeting in New York is told that the way to punish one socially is to invite him to dinner and serve him stringy beef and noisy celery in an atmosphere of boiling cabbage wafted from the kitchen. How about a little limburger for dessert.

Political and economic forecasters tell us that the administration is now giving business another breathing spell. This will also afford opportunity for the New Dealers to draw up blue prints for the next strangling.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

BY FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Frequently writers on national affairs have called attention to the political changes that have come over the United States during the past few months. They recall the "era of good feeling" which swept over the country after the Roosevelt landslide of 1936, and they point how a change came with the president's unfortunate (for him) suggestion that the membership of the Supreme Court be increased, and follow with a description of the change which has come in congressional psychology, to the point where one of Mr. Roosevelt's pet provisions of our national tax laws was rejected by what was chosen as a strong New Deal congress. The observers declare rightly that much of this chonge has resulted from the economic depression which has come upon us. When we seemed to have arrived at the threshold of prosperity again, and fat dividends were being declared, fortune smiled on the New Deal. Now that we are once more enduring hard times, political fortune seems to have hidden its face against the disciples of a new economic order.

Sudden and surprising as this change may be, it has not been confined to politics. It can be found in the realms of business, and even in labor. A short year ago the new Committee for Industrial Organization was riding high. The sit-down strikes, introduced from Europe, was having a tremendous effect, and more or less timorous public officials kidn't know what to do about it. Automobile and steel employers were confronted with an ultimatum, and many of them submitted to the terms of the new labor organization. Now, with the return of hard times, the CIO is striking another note. Thousands of the newly organized motor and steel workers are out of jobs. And in regions like Pennsylvania, where CIO leaders seemed able to dictate to the New Deal politicians, there has been a renewed resistance on the part of many of the Democratic leaders.

Illustrative of this change is an address made recently by John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, and transmitted to Great Britain. Mr. Lewis declared we were menaced not by an outside enemy, but by the more fearful danger of "domestic strife and tragedy". After summarizing the alleged achievements of the CIO in raising wages, he declared that thirteen million Americans are now unemployed, that the number is steadily increasing, and the nation drifting "with terrifying and deadly sureness to the never-never realm of financial bankruptcy, economic collapse, and human tragedy". Continuing, he said: "This is appallingly true, despite the fact that government has dipped into the public purse to make possible the granting of huge subsidies to industry, agriculture, banking and finance. Since 1933 these grants, directly and indirectly, have amounted to an enormous total." Mr. Lewis added: "Our national internal economy has attained the amazing condition where it appears that practically all of our major enterprises are unable to exist or function on their own resources."

In a pessimistic tone Mr. Lewis said that our country is "moving in economic reverse", that "cavilling and confusion prevail, and our statesmen and those carrying the responsibility of the nation's manifold enterprises are reviling each other with anger and bitterness that defiles, sears and destroys." Congress has no plan, and it is time for a change, the CIO leader asserted. He suggested more rational policies and cooperation.

What Mr. Lewis fails to mention, of course, is his glorification in the New Deal in 1936 and the sizeable contribution made by his own organization to the Democratic campaign chest. Nor does he apparently remember that cooperation was not in the CIO dictionary a year ago when threats and sit-down strikes prefaced the economic recession, and increasing unemployment.

We can well admit that more rational policies and real cooperation are necessary. One of the first requisites for cooperation would be fewer threats and less attempt on the part of the federal government to regiment business. Perhaps a little old fashioned horse-and-buggy treatment would be a pretty good thing at Washington now.

LABOR NOT HOODWINKED

On the heels of his suggestion that the workers of other nations be propagandized to the point where they will help Soviet Russia in case of war between that country and another power, all in the "interest of democracy" of course, Stalin and the reds of Moscow have launched another crusade against Russian leaders who, they think, may differ from them in some of their policies. Twenty-one bolsheviks, most of them once prominent in the government, are said to be facing trial, most of them on such fantastic charges that these might well be taken from a chapter of some lurid international mystery story.

Fortunately it did not take this latest outburst of communist ruthlessness to convince American labor that this plea by Stalin for support of "democratic" Russia was an insult to their intelligence. Everybody knows that Russia is no more a democracy than was Turkey in the palmiest days of the autocratic sultans.

Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, called the turn the other day when in rejecting the idea of war help for Stalin, he said: "The Soviet regime deserves no more support from organized labor in democratic countries than do the governments of Hitler and Mussolini.

"Speaking for the nearly 4,000,000 American workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, I am authorized to say that American workers will not permit themselves to become embroiled in war to help save Stalin's dictatorship."

Here is the true answer to the red international plea, and it is one, fortunately, that will be given by that overwhelming section of American labor which understands the world situation.

We could never see any sound statesmanship in giving a red radical a government job where he could use the salary to carry on propaganda to upset the government which is giving him a living.

It isn't regarded so reckless to follow the race horses as it was a few days ago. Now if you lose all your money on the ponies the government will take care of you when you are old.

Liberals see only two classes—those who need managing because they fail, and those who need managing because they succeed too well.—Dayton Journal.

When the ill-fated German republic was torn by enemies within and oppressed by enemies without, Austria, as an abandoned waif of the war, sought permission to save itself in union with its big German neighbor. France would not tolerate it, and Great Britain backed its ally. The allies killed the German republic. They killed democracy. They prevented the settlement of affairs in central Europe in terms which would have been a guaranty of their own country. They killed liberalism, culture, intelligence, good will, and liberty. In the place of a friendly society they raised up dictatorship, brutality, ignorance, serfdom, nad military power.—Chicago Tribune.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

During a recent evangelistic campaign in the city o fSan Francisco, the writer spent most of the day in woods looking at the large trees. Near the roadside was a block from a tree which lived over a thousand years. There is one tree in the West which is said to be over 5,000 years old. They say it is the oldest living thing. Since it began to grow, empires have been built and overthrown. The tree was old when the angel choir sang at the birth of our Lord. It is easy to tell the age of a tree. Every year leaves its mark. It is possible to know from a tree the years when it rained and the years when there was a drought. One man discovered that in the 13th century there was a drought which lasted for 10 or 12 years. When I heard this it occurred to me that we might have another drought in America. To my mind it is a most wicked thing for a government to presume that God, Who sends the sunshine and rain, and Who gives us our harvest, will protect us from another drought. Instead of destroying cotton and wheat and killing hogs to increase prices, man should find a way to store the over-supply, if there is such a thing as an over-supply, and have it ready to feed the hungry millions if the day of famine should come. God has been good to our land. He has given us a vast expanse of fertile soil. He has been most kind in preserving our nation from famine. America has wandered away from Him. "Their sorrows shall be multiplied that hasten after other gods". That is not only true of individuals; it is true of nations. America, beware!

If God can write with the finger of nature the record of the years in trees which He planted, if He can record in the trees the story of the years when there was a drought, and make a record of the years when He sent rain to the just and the unjust, it seems reasonable to suppose that He can and will keep a record of the deeds of men, whom He created in His own image. Trees may live for milleniums, but eventually they all die and decay. Man will live forever. He does not stay on this earth for long, but he lives somewhere forever and ever. There is a God. He never forgets to keep His records. A bird does not die without His knowledge. "He marks the sparrow's fall". The very hairs of our head are numbered. He hears the cry of every baby. His ears catch the sigh that comes from every broken heart. His recording machine makes an eternal record of every thought. God sees. He knows. Woe be unto the sinner who falls into the hands of an angry God. It is wonderful to be saved. God, infinite as He is, cannot see our sins through the blood of His Son. He sees every Christian as if the Christian never sinned. He has taken us up in His Son. He sees us in Christ. We have all sinned, but if we are saved, He remembers our sins against us no more forever. As these lines have been written, there has been a whispered prayer in the heart of the writer for all who may read the article. May you so trust Christ and so write your life record that you will be able to meet God unafraid. Remember, if you are a sinner, Christ bore your sin in His body on a cross. Trust Him. If you are a Christian, Christ is your advocate. He is the attorney Who pleads your case. Thank God for such a wonderful lawyer.

MARS HILL

Saturday night and Sunday were our regular preaching dates, and with a good attendance, we enjoyed two excellent sermons, delivered by Bro. Green.

We are proud to say that our Sunday school is still coming along pretty good, but there are lots of people we would enjoy having with us, and lots we can do to improve our work for our Lord and Master. Let's keep working and praying that we may succeed. The time for all day singings is here, but we can go right on with our Sunday school work and attend the singings too, and in that way accomplish lots of good with both.

We are proud to have Mr. and Mrs. Clark, from Birmingham, to move into our community; also, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Burnett, from Jemison. They are interested in helping us with our church work, for which we are proud, also. We welcome everyone who will come and be with us.

We regret to know of the illness of Mrs. T. C. Smith, and hope for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Montgomery of Birmingham were visitors to our community Saturday and Sunday.—Mrs. Sudie Smith, reporter.

IT MEMORY OF R. F. SIMS

On Friday night, March 18, the death angel called and carried to heaven Mr. Robert Fleming Sims. He was well known in Chilton County as a land surveyor.

He was loved and respected by all as a true citizen and Christian man. He was a member of Mulberry church for 37 years; later he moved to Wylam and was a member of Wylam church for 23 years. He worked in a store at Wylam for several years, and made many friends there.

Mr. Sims was 77 years old. He married Miss Ada Smith, daughter of Joe Smith, in 1902.

He was buried at Mulberry church; Rev. Tully, pastor of Wylam Baptist church, conducted the funeral services.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife and a host of friends.—His loving wife, Ada Sims.

GREATEST DISTRIBUTOR WEALTH

It isn't widely known—but one American industry "primed the national pump" to the tune of $3,000,000,000 last year. And it didn't do it by going into debt, or exploiting the taxpayer.

That industry was legal reserve life insurance. And of that $3,000,000,000, 60 per cent was paid to living policyholders, and only 40 per cent to beneficiaries. Since 1930, the companies have paid out the staggering total of $21,000,000,000.

"The greaest distributor of wealth the world has ever known"—that's life insurance. And it didn't take a cent from the taxpayers to do it. Insead, it paid millions in taxes.

ELECTION DAY SALE OF LIQUOR BANNED

Montgomery, Mar. 28. — The Alabama Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today gave final warning to licensed clubs, hotels, restaurants, nad other establishments that sale of beer, wine or whiskey during election hoors on election days would result in fines ranging from $50 to $100 and subject violators to possible loss of license.

Administrator David E. Dunn issued the ultimatum after a check-up by field agents showed 12 licensees violated the law during the special election in the Second Congressional District March 22, which resulted in the nomination of George Grant of Troy to congress.

Alabama farmers voted 23 to 1 for marketing quotas for 1938. The vote was 213,525 for quotas, and 9,329 against. By casting only 4 votes against it, Lowndes County farmers had the least votes against quotas, while DeKalb County cast the largest numbe rof votes against it. The negative vote in DeKalb was 933.

The United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics looks for no marked change in the general level of prices received by farmers during the next few months.

REFUGE

A good many were out for Sunday school last Sunday, although there were some asent whom we would have enjoye dhaving with us. May God help us to come to church and bring our children with us.

Rev. Lockhart filled his regular appointment at New Cedron last Sunday and Sunday night. He will be at Liberty Hill next Sunday at 11 o'clock, and back at Refuge Sunday night. There will also be prayer meeting here Sunday night.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend Sunday school, prayer service, and preaching here next Sunday.—Reporter.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each any every one for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our sad bereavement. May God's blessings rest on everyone of you, is our earnest prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. Jim Roberts.

JUST FROM SHOULTS

Here I come with but little news, but if you want to you can have this little bit free. No doubt you have heard about "Daddy taking the horns off cattle." I do believe if the people would take the horns off their cars there would be less wrecks in old Alabama. It seems that the young people depend on their car horns. Don't you think so? Mrs. Elsie May Glenn Jones, who has been sick for the past three weeks, is improving slowly. We hope for her a speedy recovery

Our Sunday school here at Maple Springs was good Sunday, and we are expecting everybody back next Sunday.

Mr. W. F. Glenn visited his brother at Coopers last Sunday who has been ill for some time. He has not improved much at the time of this writing.

Mrs. Brack and Miss Macy Adams of Birmingham were visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Glenn of Cooper Saturday and Sunday.

There will be a singing at this place next 2nd Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Every one is invited to attend. We are expecting some good quartets to be with us on that afternoon.

There will be an old time singing at Archer's Chapel, northeast of Jemison, on Sunday, April 10. All are invited; we expect to have a really good time, and we want you to share in the festivities. Bring your old books. —J. W. (Stumps Hills Johnnie) Hayes.

W. L. Sanders Writes To Voters

In publishing my platform as candidate for the office of representative in the Legislaure of Alabama, I was forced to summarize my views on many important questions. In this article, I wish to refer to my official record, also, discuss some of our local problems. I have always been interested in preserving the rights of the people, and my ambition forced me in the race for member of the County Board of Education eight years ago. At that time, I felt that the control of the schools were getting out of the hands of the people, and as soon as I was elected and began to exercise my duties, I realized this fact more than ever.

The law provided that the patrons of each school district elect six men, send their names to the county board, and that board elect three out of the six to serve as trustees. This was a privilege that I did not enjoy because I felt that the patrons knew who was best qualified to serve them as trustees.

In order to comply with the wishes of the majority of the patrons, I tried to find out the names of the three receiving the highest votes

After I had served two years on the board, I was called on to help appoint a county superintendent. This was another privilege I thought belonged to the people. Realizing the superintendent must have the cooperation of the people, I insisted that the board find out who the people wanted before the appointment was made; this did not meet the approval of the majority of the board and the appointment was made.

It was my obligation to take a definite stand in what I believed to be the rights of the people, and I proceeded with a bill to make the superintendent elective by popular vote. The bill met with success in both the Senate and the House and since that time the people have enjoyed the privilege of electing county superintendents by popular vote. I do not claim all the credit for the enactment of this law, because there are many people who believe in a republican form of government which calls for the election of all officials by the people.

It seems that we are headed for a centralized government, a government for the people and not by the people. Most of our officials are seeking more power, they care nothing for the wishes or the welfare of the people.

Some of our local problems and the solution of the same lies in the will of the people to eliminate all officials who exercise that selfish and dominating spirit.

The establishment of a road supervisor was concieved in selfishness and born with power to RULE or RUIN, and the latter has been the case. If elected to the legislature, I feel sure that I can get this law repealed and place the roads back in the hands of the Commissioners who are elected by and directly responsible to the people.

There are other questions being discussed that are of vital importance, not only to the people of Chilton county, but to the people of the State of Alabama. In the School Journel we find the agitation to make all county superintendents of education appointive and not elective. If elected to the Legislature, I shall make the same fight to retain the right to elect as I did to regain it.

The question of abolishing all school trustees has been raised by one of our school officials. I cannot make any construction of that purpose other than to take more of the people's privileges. This official proposed to have the bill drawn, as I was told, and that he together with a group of teachers, would present the bill to the next Legislature for action. If elected to the Legislature Alabama, I shall exert every effort to retain the people's right to elect trustees to look after the interest of the schools and their children.

I wish to say to every voter that time will not permit me to talk to each of you personally, but that I have an interest in your vote and influence just the same. If you can see your way clear to vote for me I can assure you that I will vote for you, if elected to the Legislature.—Yours for Equity and Justice,

W. L. SANDERS.

Read This To Your Southern Democrats

If there's anything we like better than anything we like, it is to lend a helping hand.

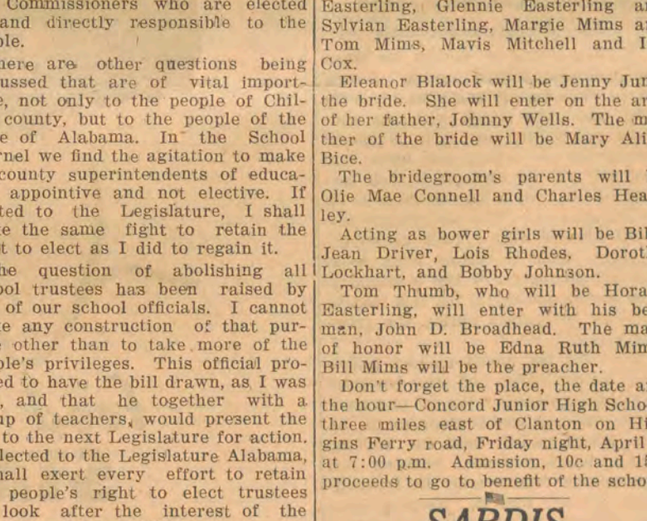
So, just to give our friends and fellow citizens a sweet morsel to peruse in the presence of their ululating New Deal Democratic friends, we pass along the following Washington gem of news.

It seems that, after all, Teddy Roosevelt is not to go down in our political history as the only Roosevelt to invite a negro to break biscuits around the festive board with his family.

The fact that Teddy was at lunch when Booker T. Washington called, and that the visit was purely in the interest of Booker T.'s Alabama school, with no politics involved, made no difference, whatsoever. The lily white Southern Demmies had it on the GOP's for their president's "eating with a negro"—and that's that.

Well, here comes the news from Washington that Sister Eleanor Roosevelt, winsome wife of FDR, sent a cordial invitation to one Walter White, dark complexioned negro head of the American Association for the Advancement of Colored People, while White was in the senate galleries lobbying for the anti-lynching bill, and Mrs. Eleanor said, in her nice invite, that Mr. White just must come over to the White House "and have Sunday afternoon tea in the White House". Of course, the big colored boy was only too happy to accept.

And we certainly cannot conceive of so cavalier a courtier as Franklin D. Roosevelt walking right off the premises and leaving his fair wife to bust biscuits and tipple tea all alone with a husky copper colored coon in the White House. Of course, FDR joined in the festivities.



Just in case, gentle reader, you hear some Southern Democratic New Dealer insinuating and intimating—read the above news to him.

And then watch him turn pale behind the gills.—Yellow Jacket.

Sunday was the last day of our contest in the Sunday school; we had 104 present, with the Red side losing to the Blues by a margin of 481 points. Marie Barrett was leader of the Blues, and Martin Pruitt leader of the Reds. Now the Reds must entertain the Blues with a supper in the near future.

We had two sermons Sunday, Bro. Steve Hughes preaching at the morning service, and Bro. Martin Pruitt at the evening service. There was good attendance at both services.

Mrs. Steve Pate has been very ill since last Wednesday, but is improved now.

Miss Ruby Maynard was in Birmingham last Friday.

Marie Barrett spent several days last week with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Headley, near Clanton.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Barrett had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Headley.

New officers were elected Sunday night for our B. Y. P. U.: Miss Marie Barrett, director; Mrs. W. G. Maynard, senior president; Mrs. Ruby Maynard, general secretary.

Our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. is growing right along, and we invite everyone who doesn't attend any other church to come and worship with us. —Mrs. W. G. Maynard.

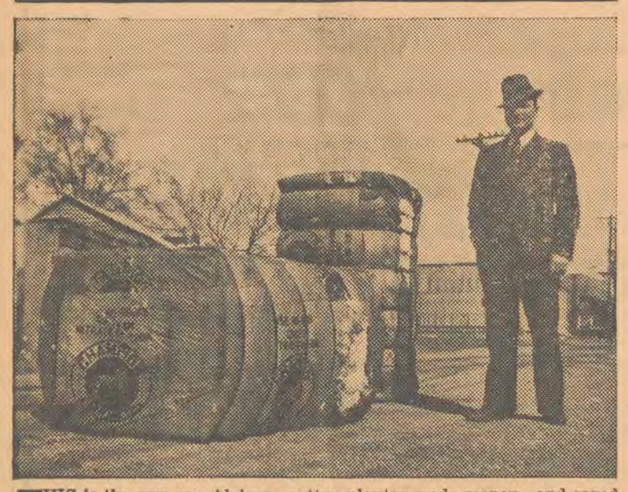
Consumer's Dollar Deflated by Taxes

Nationwide Survey Shows That Duplicating Levies Cut Purchasing Power

Darkened portion, showing 33.4 cents taxes paid by consumers, reveals how gasoline dollar is deflated in Alabama, with purchasing power reduced to 66.6 cents by 50 per cent sales tax.



Deflation, resulting in curtailment of consumer buying-power, already is being felt in Alabama through taxes which prevent purchasers from getting full value for their gasoline dollar, according to the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee.

The Committee has reported to its members that a nationwide survey of retail gasoline prices and taxes, made by the American Association of State Highway Officials, shows that a substantial proportion of every dollar spent for gasoline at service stations goes for duplicating federal and state taxes. The effect, the Committee said, is to deflate the gasoline dollar by reducing its purchasing power.

"You will be as surprised as your customers to learn that dollar deflation through taxation largely has offset the benefits your customers would have derived from gasoline price economies achieved by you and your industry," the Committee's report said. "Your customers now pay one of the heaviest retail sales taxes imposed upon any generally-used commodity, and the purchasing power of their gasoline dollar thereby is greatly reduced."

"...Two Birds With One Stone"

THIS is the way one Alabama cotton planter made money—and saved money too. He used natural fertilizer to grow his cotton and then baled it in the strong waterproof bags the nitrate came in.

"ROUGHING" GROWING PULLETS CUTS DOWN FALL EGG PROFITS

"There's a lot of truth in the old saying that a poultryman makes or breaks himself by the way he manages and feeds his pullets from the sixth to the twentieth week," says J. H. Burrell, poultry specialist at Purina Mills. "But most poultrymen don't discover their loss until late fall when egg prices shoot upward and they find their pullets not ready for laying."

Most poultrymen give their chicks proper care the first six weeks. But unfortunately many poultrymen feel that after the first six weeks a chick should be able to take care of itself. The lot of the six weeks' old chick is too often cast in poor range, straight grain feeding, and among the bugs it can pick up. "A let-up in chick care and feeding at this time is costly," Burrell comments, "since the let-up retards growth, impairs development, and frequently lowers resistance to a point where pullets are subject to costly diseases. Pullets drag on into the fall—not laying—not paying."

Fall Egg Prices High

Any poultryman who "roughs" his birds during the growing period must expect them to "rough" him in return when time comes for pullets to go into the laying house. Every egg produced in September, October, November, December, or January is worth two eggs produced in any of the other seven months—but it takes well grown out, strong pullets to keep up production and pay back feed costs when egg prices are high.

At the Purina Experimental Farm where thousands of birds are raised each year three definite periods in the pullet cycle are recognized. The first is the pullet development period from March through August. The second period is the high price egg season from September through January, and the third period is the February through July season of declining egg prices.

50% Production Profitable

"In the second period lies the secret of profitable poultry raising" Burrell says. "The poultry raiser who hits the high egg price period with big well-developed pullets, turning in 50 percent production or better, has birds that not only pay for the cost of their care and feed but pay a big margin of profit above all costs. The poultryman who finds himself with a flock of knotty, scrawny, under-developed birds in 30 percent production or less is bound to lose money and regret the fact that he roughed his pullets during the growing period."

To build big money-making pullets with strong bodies and well-developed egg-making organs is the job of a complete, well-balanced growing mash. All the things pullets need for building bones, blood, muscles, feathers, and egg-making organs must be scientifically blended into it. Keeping birds off unclean or contaminated range; providing airy roosts; shade during the day; ample, clean housing; an abundance of clean drinking water; and plenty of nutritious growing feed are prime requisites for growing money-making pullets.

Complete Feed Needed

A complete, balanced growing feed that provides growing pullets with all the ingredients they need for a quick sturdy growth in just the proportion pullets require, is one of the many developments at the Purina Experimental Farm. "Big sturdy pullets at 20 weeks don't 'just happen,'" Burrell points out. "By starting with well-bred chicks, feeding them well during the first six weeks, and then giving them the best care and feeding during the growing period, the poultryman gets the best insurance he can buy for having money-making pullets when it comes time to fill his laying house in the fall. Pullets grown out properly always stand up better under the strain of production, maintain a higher rate of production, and are better able to withstand seasonal let-downs."

Ohio Experiment Station figures on chicks hatched April 7 and grown out properly from the sixth to the twentieth week show a flock average of 160 eggs per bird. Late maturing pullets laid only 113 eggs during the same period.

Gray Summit, Mo.—Cows at the Purina Experimental Farm are doing a job for the Nation's dairymen that dairymen can ill afford to do for themselves. It is their job to tell through the milk pail how checkerboard dairy feed formulas may be improved to give the dairymen a greater milking profit. By telling the same story lactation period after lactation period they finally make themselves heard. Only then do Purina Research men recommend a change.

Tradition Against Dixon

Montgomery, Mar. 31. — If Alabama's political history repeats itself, Frank Dixon has little chance to be the state's next governor, according to political observers.

These observers point out that in almost every case the candidate who enters the campaign the acknowledged favorite has gone to defeat, sometimes before a relatively unknown opponent. This was the case with Charles McDowell in 1926. McDowell began the contest with a clear lead over the three opposition candidates. By centering their fire on him his opponents were able to so reduce his support that he ran last in the field of four.

Again in 1930 the "crown prince" was W. C. Davis. At the outset of his campaign there were few in the state who did not believe he would be governor, but he was roundly beaten by B. M. Miller, who at the time was comparatively obscure.

With three opponents who have been considerably more prominent in public affairs than Dixon has ever been, it is believed that the present campaign will be especially similar to that of 1926. These opponents, Robert J. Goode, Chauncey Sparks, and Hardy Riddle, will direct much of their fire against Dixon. Since they began the campaign with little preliminary work, they are bound to gain strength. To Dixon will go the much harder job of attempting to keep his votes in line under the onslaught.

feed STARTENA and see the Difference!

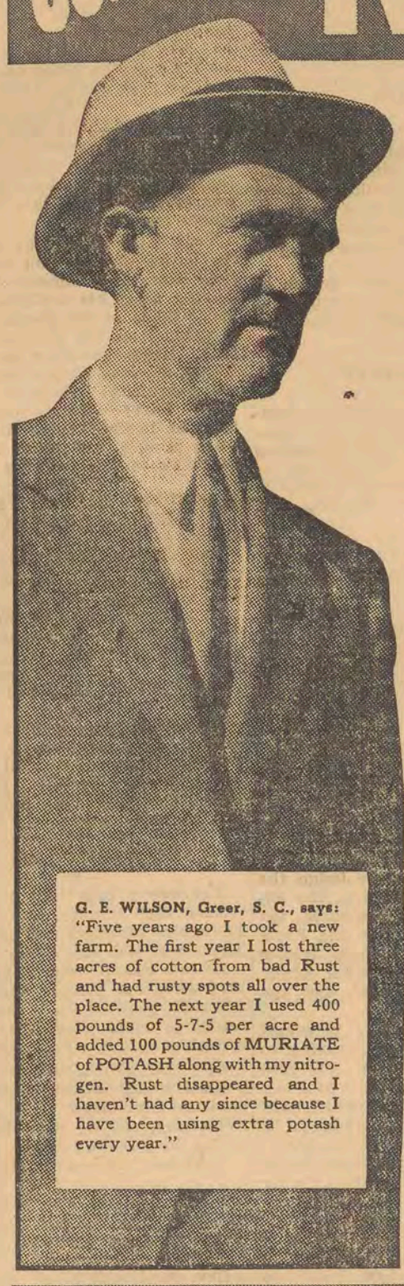
DID YOU EVER wonder why Purina Chick Startena makes such a big difference?

There's a reason. Several reasons, in fact.

When you get your chicks this spring, feed them Startena and watch what happens. They'll grow faster . . . more of them will live . . . they'll grow bigger bones . . . in fact, they'll step out in front with such a head start that ordinary chicks simply can't catch up.



You'll see the difference, all right. That's why Purina Startena has become the leading chick starter on the market.

Come around and see us about Purina Chick Startena, the next time you're in town. We've got a new Purina Poultry Book you'll be interested in, too. It's free. Stop by and get your copy.

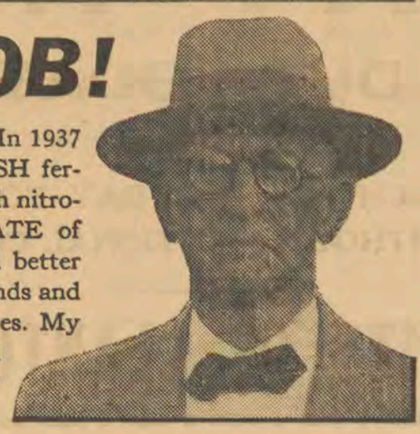
More NV POTASH IN YOUR FERTILIZER IN YOUR TOP-DRESSER



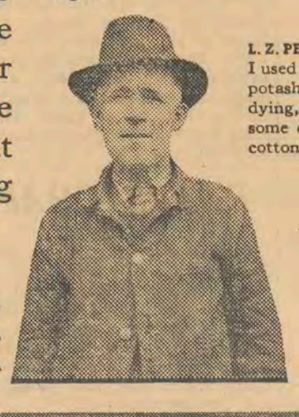
KEEPS COTTON ON THE JOB!

COTTON NEVER RUSTS when well-fed with NV POTASH—it's too busy producing a healthy, high-yielding, high-quality crop—it's too busy producing heavier bolls, heavier seed, more lint per seed, better grade, longer staple and stronger fibers.

Throughout this section, farmers are finding out that NV POTASH PAYS IN MANY WAYS! But you must use plenty of it. Some farmers use cotton fertilizer containing 8 to 10% POTASH at planting—others top-dress with 100 pounds of NV MURIATE per acre—others prefer top-dressing with 200 pounds of NV KAINIT per acre—while still others use a nitrogen-potash mixed-goods top-dresser, made with genuine NV POTASH.

Different farmers apply extra NV POTASH in different ways, but all agree that extra NV POTASH pays. Choose your own method of application, but make sure you use more NV POTASH if you want your cotton to stay on the job producing bigger yields of a better quality crop.

G. E. WILSON, Greer, S. C., says: "Five years ago I took a new farm. The first year I lost three acres of cotton from bad Rust and had rusty spots all over the place. The next year I used 400 pounds of 5-7-5 per acre and added 100 pounds of MURIATE of POTASH along with my nitrogen. Rust disappeared and I haven't had any since because I have been using extra potash every year."



JIM KELLY, Tennille, Ga., says: "In 1937 I used 400 pounds of 6% POTASH fertilizer per acre and top-dressed with nitrogen and 100 pounds of MURIATE of POTASH. On 202 acres I ginned better than 240 bales, averaging 500 pounds and on one 14-acre plot I ginned 22 bales. My gin turnout and staple were good and my crop was free from Rust."

R. L. JENNINGS, Samson, Ala., says: "I operate six plows and on one place where I used extra NV POTASH on seven acres I made 1200 pounds of seed cotton per acre against 700 pounds per acre without the extra potash on the rest of the place. Anybody could walk down that field and tell the potash cotton to the row. When I pooled my cotton I got credit for full staple on the potash cotton, but not on any of the rest. On lots of places where I didn't use extra NV POTASH the cotton rusted badly and some of it died in July."

C. P. JOHNSTON, Sasser, Ga., says: "Folks told me that part of my land was 'cotton-sick' because cotton grown there rusted so badly. In 1937 I listed on 200 pounds of KAINIT per acre before planting, used 400 pounds of 4-8-6 at planting and later top-dressed with 150 pounds of 13-0-12. The cotton did not rust. I averaged a bale per acre, the staple was very good, and the gin turnout was excellent. A tenant said: 'Boss, where you used extra potash we got a good first picking, a good second picking, and a good third picking, but where you didn't use the extra potash we didn't get but one picking and that one wasn't so good.' "

L. Z. PEPPERS, Albertville, Ala., says: "In 1937 I produced 22 bales on 13 acres. I used 400 pounds of 4-8-5 fertilizer per acre at planting and later a nitrogen-potash top-dresser. For 8 or 10 years I had been troubled with cotton dying, but the extra potash helped to correct this condition. My son had some cotton fertilized just like mine, but without the extra potash. His cotton rusted but mine did not and my cotton was much easier to pick."

W. W. KELLETT, of J. P. Kellett & Son, Fountain Inn, S. C., says: "For three years we have used 3-8-10 cotton fertilizer where we used to use 3-8-3. Although our section suffers from Rust the extra potash in the 3-8-10 has prevented Rust and given larger yields. The extra potash also produced larger bolls, which were easier to pick, and an improved staple. We averaged a bale of cotton per acre for the last three years."

All fertilizer analyses mentioned above are expressed as NPK (nitrogen-phosphoric acid-potash).

Extra POTASH PAYS Extra Cash

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

ALABAMA COTTON GROWERS OFFERED $20,000,000 IN CASH

Auburn, Mar. 28. — Alabama farmers can qualify for about $20,000,000 in benefit and parity payments this year, announces P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, in calling attention to conservation features of the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Act.

About $10,000,000 if this amount is available in benefit payments for carrying out soil-building practices, such as terracing, planting legumes, seeding and fertilizing pastures, planting and protecting forest trees, constructing reservoirs and dams, and contour ridging of open pasture land.

The other $10,000,000 will go to farmers in the form of cotton adjustment paymnets in an effort to give farmers their fair share of the national income.

To be eligible for these payments, it is necessary for farmers to cooperate under the new farm program.

In an effort to get cotton acreage allotments to each Alabama farmer before planting time, county and state AAA employes are working days and nights, Sundays included, rushing the work just as much as possible. Allotments have been made to about one-half of the counties in the state, and good progress is being made in establishing individual allotments in the remaining counties.

Mr. Davis is advocating that farmers use their extra land this year in growing more food and feed crops, pastures and forest trees. The importance of farmers doing this, and of increasing their livestock and poultry production, is emphasized by the fact that last year Alabama imported some $40,000,000 worth of farm products from other states.

FARMERS ADVISED TO RID THEIR CATTLE OF LICE

Auburn, Mar. 28. — It will pay Alabama farmers to examine their cattle for lice and to treat them if lice are found, advises Dr. R. S. Sugg, livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Service, in reporting heavy infestation of lice in many areas of the state.

"The majority of cattle, especially those in large herds, become infested with lice during the winter months", he says.

Lice are usually located around the sides of the neck, brisket, root of the tail, and along the back and between the thighs, but when numerous may cover the entire animal. The same treatment is effective for all three types of lice.

Dipping in arsenical dip is the most effective method of treating large herds. Concentrated arsenical dip can be purchased from wholesale druggists. Full directions are given on the container. From 7 to 10 gallons of the concentrated solution is usually necessary for an ordinary 150-gallon vat.

If a dipping vat is not available the cattle can be crowded into pens or stalls and sprayed with the material by use of an ordinary orchard bucket spray. Where only two or three cows are to be treated, hand applications of a mixture of one part of kerosene and two parts of lard or oil can be applied; however, not more than one-third of the body should be greased at one time. Dipping or treatment should be repeated in 14 to 16 days.

An effective dusting powder can be made by mixing 20 pounds Derris root powder, 10 pounds pyretheum, 8 pounds naphthaline, and 62 pounds of kaolin. This powder can be dusted on with a dust gun, or applied by hand.

ALABAMIANS ADVISED CONSUME MORE MILK

Auburn, Mar. 28. — "Alabama should consume more milk," says F. W. Burns, livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Service, in calling attention to the fact that "over 11 per cent of Alabama farm families do not have a milk cow, nad the average consumption of milk in the state is less than ½-pint per capita.

"By increasing your milk consumption you are not only increasing the health of your family, but you are building a more permanent and prosperous agriculture in Alabama," he states.

"If Alabama children could all receive one quart of milk per day, and all adults would consume at least one pint, it would be necessary for us to double our present dairy cow population to supply the demands," he points out. "This would furnish a home market for thousands of acres of improved pasture and hay crops, and also thousands of tons of corn, velvet beans, oats, and cotton seed meal, which can be grown on the acres released from cotton production under the new farm program. It also would provide work for many additional farm people, as it has been estimated that it takes approximately 150 man-hours of labor per year to look after a milk cow."

In addition to containing protein, carbohydrates, fats, and calcium for the body, milk is rich in vitamins A, G, and B, all essential to body development.

CARING FOR GROWING PULLETS

The following article is written by E. S. McConnell, poultry specialist, of Cosby-Hodges Milling Co., Birmingham.

By now most poultrymen have growing chicks in the brooder houses. Here we offer some suggestions which we hope will help you to grow them out successfully into sturdy, well-developed pullets.

Provide Proper Housing

The brooder houses should be well lighted, and with plenty of ventilation. Be careful not to overheat the chicks on warm days. Crowding is one of the most common mistakes. Allow at least one square foot of floor space for each two baby chicks, and give more as they grow.

If the house is permanent, cover the ground within 25 feet of the house with coarse gravel. Inexpensive, portable range shelters may be constructed to accommodate the pullets after ten weeks.

Give Pullets Free Range

The pullets should have access to a clean range that hasn't had chickens on it for at least a year, preferably two. Trees are the best shade obtainable, but if these are not available, plant tall growing crops, such as corn or sunflowers. An abundance of fresh water should be given. Like cattle pastures, a small stream through the poultry range is ideal if the banks are not too wet.

Feed To Develop Pullets Slowly

In the past, many poultrymen have made the mistake of rushing the pullet into production. White Leghorn pullets should begin laying at 5½ to 6 months of age. The method of feeding is one of the determining factors in age of maturing.

Feed a well balanced growing mash that provides sufficient quantities of the necessary proteins, minerals and vitamins. The pullets should be switched from starting to such a mash at about six weeks of age, the cockerels having been separated sooner and pushed for the market.

If the chicks were given baby chick grain while in the brooding stage, they will readily eat the larger size grain, whish should be kept before the birds at all times. Some poultrymen only feed the growing mash in the afternoon, thereby encouraging the pullets to consume more grain and to range more in the mornings.

Sheltered feed hoppers should be placed out on the range with the pullets. All watering devices should be shaded.

Protect Against Pox

Vaccinating for Chicken Pox (Sorehead) when the stick is 10 to 12 weeks of age protects them against this widespread disease for life. Don't fail and let this pass, as the cost is small and the saving may be great.

Communicate with the writer at Box 911, Birmingham, regarding a supply of this vaccine, or if you desire further information.

Republicans Plan Comeback Effort

Attempts Are Concentrated On 113 Districts In Coming Elections

Washington, D. C., Mar. 26. — Directors of Republican efforts to wrest a sizable bloc of House seats from Democrats in the November election said today they were concentrating on 113 congressional districts, principally in Northern and Eastern states.

Lawrence Sullivan, secretary of the Republican congressional campaign committee, said that in 52 of these districts Republicans got within 5 per cent of enough votes to win in 1936. In 61 districts, he said, they polled within 10 per cent of the winner's total.

Republicans now have 90 House seats, the smallest number in recent years. The Democrats have 327.

Victor Harding, secretary of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, said the Democratic strategy was to offer a "good offense as the best defense."

"In many districts where Democrats won in 1936 by small margins they have made the best records," said Harding, scoffing at Republican claims.

Sullivan declared, on the other hand, that key men in the Republican organization foresaw a possibility of picking up four seats in New Jersey, three in Iowa, Four or five in New England, one in Delaware, one in New York, one in Nebraska, two or three in California, four or five in Indiana, eight in Pennsylvania, and seven in Ohio.

The first primary will be April 12 in Illinois; 18 of the 21 Democratic reprepsentavives and all 6 of the Republicans are asking renomination.

Of the 3 Democrats not seeking another House term, Rep. Lucas is in the Senate primary race, Rep. O'Brien is running for sheriff of Cook County, and Rep. Champion is retiring.

Sen. Dieterich (D., Ill.) is not asking reelection. Lucas has the backing of the down-state forces of Gov. Horner. The Nash-Kelly organization in Chicago is supporting Michael L. Igoe, federal district attorney.

William J. Baker of Chicago, Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville, and Clarence P. Parker of Behmiller Farm are after the Republican senatorial nomination.

TWO CHILTON MEN JAILED AT B'HAM

R. J. Brown and Clarence Seals Confessed To Stealing Cattle Last Week

Two Chilton County men, identified by officers as R. J. Brown, 25, and Clarence Seals, 24, were in the Birmingham city jail Saturday on grand larceny charges in what police said was the rustling of cattle in Chilton County.

City detectives Moser and Granger said the two men were arrested Saturday morning at the stock yards in North Birmingham with three stolen cows in their possession in a truck.

The officers said the pair admitted stealing the cattle, and that they were also investigating their connection with the theft of other cattle in Chilton County, and that the two men would be turned over to the sheriff of Chilton County for prosecution.

Sheriff Hardy made investigation of the matter Monday, and found that three head of cattle had been stolen from Mr. John W. Hawkins, who lives in the northern part of Chilton County, near Minooka, on Friday, April 1. Clarence Seals had been living with the Hawkins family; it was not learned where Brown came from, but it is thought that he lived somewhere in that vicinity—probably over the line in Shelby County.

The cattle were in a stock yard in Birmingham at the time of this writing, but Mr. Hawkins was making preparations to drive his truck up there and bring them back home.

Deputy Sheriff Ira Crowe went to Birmingham Tuesday morning and brought the two men to Clanton; they are held in jail here at this writing.

Singing Convention Here Next Sunday

Spring Session of Singers Will Convene At Courthouse For Big Event

Saturday night and Sunday, April 9th and 10th, are the dates for the Chilton county singing convention to meet at the courthouse in Clanton. A number of fine quartets will be present, as well as some prominent composers and directors. Everybody is invited to attend both night and day sessions. Bring your dinner Sunday and enjoy the day; or you can eat at one of Clanton's cafes if you want to.

AGAINST LAW TO ASK ANY CANDIDATE FOR DONATION

It has recently been pointed out that it is grossly against the law for a person to ask a candidate to contribute money or help to a person or cause, no matter how needy such person or cause may be. For instance, if you volunteer to do such noble work as to carry around a petition for an unfortunate friend, you should not present such petition to a candidate for a public office. That is very much against the law.

Wisconsin Man Died Near Verbena Sunday

On last Sunday night about 7 o'clock Mr. Raymond Underwood of Spigener's Funeral Home answered a call ten miles below Verbena for a man traveling on the highway. When the ambulance arrived on the scene the man had already died of heart trouble. He was Mr. Will Kibbe, age about 65, of Broadhead, Wisconsin. His wife was with him, and they had been spending some time in Florida; they were returning home.

Mr. Underwood brought the body to Clanton and prepared it; it was carried to Montgomery and placed on the Florida Arrow Monday morning, consigned to Broadhead, Wisconsin.

Well Known Citizen Passed Away Tuesday

Wm. B. Corley, Once Prominent Newspaper Man of Clanton, Died At Age Of 76

Brief funeral services for Wm. B. Corley, age 76, were held from the home in West End, Clanton, Wednesday afternoon at 1:00 o'clock, conducted by Dr. S. J. Ezell. Burial was in Clanton cemetery, Martin & Sons directing.

Mr. Corley died at his home Tuesday night about 8:30 o'clock, following an extended illness. Surviving are the wife; three sons—Harry, of Selma, W. B., of Montgomery, and William Ewart, of Cullman; there is one daughter, Mrs. Walter Kelly Gillespie, of Clanton.

Wm. B. Corley, a native of Georgia, came to Chilton County some thirty-five years ago, and made his home at Mt. Creek. He removed to Clanton some twenty years ago, and for several years was engaged in editing and managing The Clanton Press, a Democratic newspaper. He also operated The Chilton County News for a few years, when that paper was young. Mr. Corley once worked as a reporter for The Atlanta Constitution under that noble Southern statesman, Henry W. Grady.

RASCOE MADDOX IS QUALIFIED

In fairness to all, and for the information of those interested, The Union-Banner wishes to state again that Prof. Rascoe Maddox has met all of the qualifications of the Alabama election laws and those of the State Department of Education required of candidates for County Superintendent of Education. If the voters should wish to nominate and elect Prof. Maddox as their County Superintendent, he will not be knocked out for any disqualifications.

Your attention is directed to a large adv. by Bean & Taylor elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner. Mr. G. C. Armstrong, the manager of this busy grocery and market, is letting you in on some red-hot grocery specials for this week end. It will pay you to read every word of their adv.

Fatal Disease Broken Out Among Cattle

Attention is called to a new disease that has broken out among the cattle in Chilton county. It is called Black Leg, and it causes an acute lameness and swelling, causing death in a short time—three to 24 hours.

Cattle authorities issue warning to cattle owners, adding that it is important that all carcases be burned or else buried very deep.

It is important that cattle owners take notice of this announcement, and watch their cattle carefully. If any symptoms appear, those affected cattle should be isolated completely from all other cattle.

2 ARRESTED FOR CHICKEN STEALING

Try to Sell Fowls to Hill Store; Officers Simpson and Nivens Called

Two young white men were arrested in Clanton Friday just before noon, and charges placed against them for stealing chickens. The men were: Lon Baker, age about 21, of Mullins quarters, Clanton, and Roy Wilkerson, age about 25, of the cotton mill.

The men were trying to sell some chickens to Hill Grocery Company when suspicion was aroused. Chief of Police, H. M. Simpson, was summoned as well as Deputy Nivens. The men fled when they learned that officers were after them, but their identity was known and they were arrested later. Some of the chickens were stolen from Mrs. W. W. Bishop, which were identified. There were some more chickens in their possession, the owners of which have not been determined as yet.

Republican Absentee Ballots Now Ready

Judge J. Lee Smith announces that the absentee ballots for the primary elections to be held on May 3rd are now in his office and available to those who are entitled to vote an absentee ballot in this coming primary election. In applying for an absentee ballot, voters should be sure that they specify which party ballot they want to vote—Republican or Democratic.

CLANTON PILOT CLUB WILL ATTEND MEETING AT B'HAM

Misses Gertie Fiquette, Willie Maude Kelley and Lona Thompson, three of Clanton's most enthusiastic pilots have accepted the Birmingham club's invitation to attend District 4's bi-annual convention to be held with Birmingham club as hostess, Saturday night and Sunday, April 9th and 10th.

District Conventions of Pilot International have reached such a scope until much greater good and enjoyment are realized by attending them. With international headquarters located in Alabama this year, international officers have been able to attend many of the district conventions in the state, thus making them more educational to those attending.

Birmingham cordially invites any of Clanton's pilots to attend this convention.

The Atlanta club has also invited the Clanton Pilot Club to attend their District Convention, April 23 and 24 It is hoped that Clanton will have representatives at this convention also.

DR. AND MRS. EZELL

Clanton is about to lose two citizens that it can ill afford to give up, they being our beloved Baptist pastor and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Ezell. While we regret exceedingly their leaving Clanton, yet we as residents of Clanton and Chilton County are proud that we can boast of making such a fine contribution to the Alabama Baptist convention, for which body Dr. Ezell will become Superintendent of Evangelism on the 11th of this month.

No one can begin to summarize the work that has been done in our city and county by these people since they came here over fifteen years ago; the least we can say is that they will be sorely missed by all people here of all classes and walks of life. Dr. Ezell has the rare achievement—or gift—of being able to place himself on a level with the most humble as well as with the cultured and elite; and he did place himself on these levels every day. He worked with and for all—that is the reason we will all miss him and his comforting presence.

Dr. Ezell has a very fine education, but he has something more than that, else he could not have stayed in Clanton all these years and come as near giving complete satisfaction to all of his congregation and associates. He was called from on High to this work, and he has been doing what he was called to do; that is why he has been able to succeed in Clanton.

Words completely fail us when we attempt to express our feelings about their leaving us; but suffice it to say that Clanton and Chilton County have been blessed without stint or measure by their having spent these years with us, and their memories will be an inspiration to us to lend all the encouragement and succor to their successors that we can, no matter who they may be. And we can pray that much success may await the Ezells in their new field and in their unexplored undertakings.

REV. BUFORD TRUETT IS ON SOUTHERN DEBATING TEAM

Rev. Buford Truett, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Truett, and senior at Birmingham-Southern College, is one of four young men sent out by the college on the debate squad. Two of the other young men are from Birmingham, and one is from Sylacauga. These young men will be away from school a week, with all of their expenses paid by the college.

The schedule of debates carries these boys into some of the leading colleges of Mississippi, Louisiana, and Tennessee.

About two weeks ago young Truett was sent by the Y. M. C. A. to Decatur on a speaking tour. Here he made two speeches. His subjects were: "Why I Am A Christian", and "How To Choose A Profession".

Saturday night, April 16—Mt. Nebo church. The admission at Mt. Nebo will be 10c and 15c; presumably it will be about the same at Thomas Junior.

As announced last week, this quartet will put on a concert at the courthouse on Monday night, April 11th—following the big county convention the second Sunday.

The Showalter quartet is composed of Messrs. W. M. Devaughn, W. Lee Higgins, Floyd Gant and Floy Devaughn; Miss Martha McCoy at the piano. These are all outstanding singers, and the people of the county will want to hear them in concerts. Remember the dates and places.

Barn And Mules Burned Friday Night

During the terrific lightning and thunder storm last Friday night, the barn of Mr. George Foshee in Liberty Hill community was stricken by lightning and destroyed by fire about midnight. Two mules belonging to Mr. Foshee were burned in the conflagration; it is thought they were killed by the shock from the lightning. Nothing else of value much was destroyed except a quantity of hay.

Friends of Mr. Foshee and family contributed quite a bit of money and other things toward helping them out in their loss. The family as well as neighbors wish to acknowledge with sincere thanks everything that was donated Mr. Foshee. Mr. J. V. Best, a close neighbor, especially wishes to thank those people in Clanton and elsewhere who contributed.

CLANTON P.-T. A.

The members of he P.-T. A. of the Clanton Grammar School are urged to attend the state district meeting of P.-T. A. to be held in Clanton April 8 and 9.

The regular monthly meeting of the Clanton Grammar School P.-T. A. will be held on Thursday afternoon, April 14. At this time, delegates to the convention will report on it, and new officers will be installed. This is the last meeting of the year, and a very important one. All members please attend.

CHEST CLINIC TO BE HELD

Dr. S. D. Sturkie, county health officer, announces that 64 persons have been scheduled for a chest X-ray at the office of the county health department. The traveling chest clinic of the State Health Department was expected in Clanton on April 5 and 6, he stated.

"This clinic", added the local health official, "is sent to the county at the invitation of the local county medical society. Free chest X-rays are provided to needy persons who are financially unable to pay the cost of such an examination. All cases admitted are referred by their family physicians. Being purely a diagnostic clinic for tuberculosis, reports are made only of the presence or absence of tuberculosis. This affords a very valuable service to persons suspected of having tuberculosis, in that diagnosis can often be made early at a stage when the chances for attaining a cure are greatest."

One case of smallpox in a negro man living near Maplesville was reported recently to the county health officer. In addition, seven new cases of measles occurred in the county last week.

Insanity Plea Entered In Marbury Slaying

Prattville, April 4. — William H. Herbert, 75, Autauga County farmer, charged with murder, today pleaded "not guilty by reason of insanity" when arraigned before Circuit Judge Arthur Glover.

Judge Glover set date for trial on April 20.

Herbert is charged in the hammer slaying of his daughter, Bertie, and the shooting of his wife, Idella, at their farm home near Marbury. Mrs. Herbert, after two weeks treatment at Central Alabama Hospital at Clanton, is recovering at her home, said Sheriff Allen Stewart, of Autauga County.

Says Not All Of Mims Family Will Vote Democratic

Mr. Edgar Mims, of Beat 9, Collins Chapel community, son of Mr. Elijah Mims, and grandson of the late Commissioner Jim Mims, asks The Union-Banner to publish a short letter for him. The young man's letter follows:

"It has been reported that several members of our family were going to vote the Democratic ticket this year. I wish it thoroughly understood that I am one member of this family who will continue to vote the Republican ticket as heretofore; and I am sure there are other members of our family who will do the same thing this year and for years to come.

"I do not wish to offend anyone, but I merely wish to make this statement in fairness to myself and to the other members of my family who will continue to vote the straight Republican ticket.—Edgar Mims."

EZELL WILL BEGIN NEW DUTIES SOON

Hailed As Well Fitted To Guide State Baptist Evangelism Work; Begins 11th

Dr. S. J. Ezell, who was recently elected superintendent of evangelism for the Baptist State Convention, will begin his new duties on April 11, it was announced Saturday by Dr. F. M. Barnes, secretary-treasurer of the executive board. For the past 15 years and seven months Dr. Ezell has been pastor of the Baptist church at Clanton.

The selection was made by the executive committee after the new evangelistic program was endorsed both by the state convention and the executive borad. Dr. Ezell is a native of South Carolina, the son of an eminent Baptist preacher. He is a garduate of Clemson College, and obtained his Th. D. degree from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky. Before coming to this state, Dr. Ezell served churches at Morianna, Ark., and Eatonton, Ga. During the World War he was a director of religious work of the Y. M. C. A., and was stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

"Ezell has served in a great way on practically all of the boards, committees and commissions of the Alabama Baptist State Convention, and it is the opinion of the executive committee that he is eminently fitted in every way to direct this new work in Alabama," said Dr. Barnes. "He can fill the largest pulpit in the state in a most acceptable manner. At the same time, he can go into the remote church, far back in the rural sections, and be perfectly at home with whatever needs confront that church.

"He will give his entire time to organizing and directing cities, towns, and associations in evangelistic campaigns, religious census, and every effort to win the largest possible number of unsaved to the Lord. Certainly the host of Alabama Baptists will rejoice in knowing that one of our finest men, who is well acquainted with our state, will give his entire time to directing evangelistic work, and hold many meetings himself."

LEAGUE BASEBALL GAME SAT'Y P. M.

Montgomery "Bombers" And Birmingham "Barons" Play At 2:30

Local baseball fans will have a chance to get some early season dope on the Birmingham Barons and the Montgomery Bombers Saturday afternoon at 2:30, when these two teams meet at the Chilton County High baseball park.

There are many people in and near Clanton who follow these two teams closely during the regular season each year, attending games from time to time in both cities. There are several new faces on each of the teams this year, and local fans will want to look them over before the regular season begins.

The Barons have a new manager, with several new players from over the country. Manager Thompson has not pruned his team down to league season limit, and several of the fellows you will see trying out Saturday will really be putting everything they can into the show, for they will be in there trying to show the club boss that they "have the goods" to make the regular team for the season.

The same is true of the Montgomery Bombers. This team will be trying the following: pitchers, Brunson, Cross, and Cannon; catchers, Knapp and Kelly; 1st base, Miller; 2nd base, Delmont and Werderitch; 3rd base, Cruthers and Borem; shortstop, Fineberg; left field, Pitko; center field, Carroll; right field, Walker, and perhaps others.

Fineberg, Pitko, Carroll and Miller are optioned to the Montgomery club by the Phillies. Walker is a brother of the famous "Dixie" Walker, with the Detroit Tigers, and a native of Alabama. The other boys on the roster of the Bombers will be trying to cinch their places for the summer, and should turn in a good game.

All in all, this should be a good game, somewhat different from the usual exhibition game, in that, as stated above, none of these fellows on either team have their jobs cinched, and will be doing their bit in this game to show their respective managers that they are needed on the teams.

If you like baseball—good baseball—see this game. Remember, its the Barons and the Bombers, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 sharp, at the high school park in Clanton.

Clyde Mims Had Grand Opening Last Saturday

Last Saturday was the formal opening day for Clyde Mims Grocery and Market, and Messrs. Clyde and Willie Mims announce that the affair was a tremendous success from every point of view. They enjoyed a very nice business and were very well pleased all the way through.

The personnel of the new store want their friends to know they appreciate their coming in and seeing the place on opening day and taking part in the demonstrations and other festivities. A general invitation is extended you to continue coming to see them.

On another page of this paper appears a small adv. of Mims Grocery this week. In this space are offered some red-hot specials in groceries. You will save money by looking for this adv. and reading it. Mr. Mims would like to have you ask him about his extra special prices on lard for Saturday only. He says that he will amaze you on this one item,—even more than the adv. implies. Ask him!

SHERIFF'S OFFICE ARRESTS TWELVE OFFENDERS

During the past week Sheriff Hardy and his deputies have made a total of twelve arrests. Two white men and one negro appeared before Mayor C. Fenn Jones, charged with public drunkenness; The fine and costs in each case was placed at $8.25.

A new store will be open for business in Clanton Saturday of this week. It is the Parisian Store, and the location is Mazer's old stand. STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

Montgomery, Ala., April 4.—The people of Alabama were urged today by Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, to take part in the 24th annual observance of National Negro Health Week, beginning Sunday, April 3 and continuing through Sunday, April 10, and thus acquaint themselves as fully as possible with the health problems of the States' colored population.

"Although much progress has been made during the past two or three decades in combatting those diseases which are particularly fatal to Negroes, the colored death rate in this State is still approximately 54 per cent higher than the white death rate," he said. "For certain diseases, such as tuberculosis, typhoid fever, syphilis, etc., the colored death rates are twice or three times as high as the white rates. It is hoped that, as the general public becomes acquainted with the problems of Negro health, which is the main purpose of the annual observance of National Negro Health Week, this disparity between the death rates of the two races will be greatly reduced."

Dr. Baker pointed out that National Negro Health Week was inaugurated by an Alabamian, the late Dr. Booker T. Washington, then president of Tuskegee Institute.

Alabama has an average of 3,757 patients in the Bryce Hospital for the Insane at Tuscaloosa, 1,640 in the Mt. Vernon Hospital for insane negro patients, and 641 in the Partlow Institute for the Feeble Minded. The total number in the three institutions is 6,038, which is almost the exact number of convicts in our penal institutions.

ARGENTINE BEETLE TO BE DISCUSSED AT SCIENCE MEET

Troy, Ala., Mar. 28. — A talk on the Argentine Beetle (White Fringed Beetle- will be one of the highlights of the two-day convention of the Alabama Academy of Science at Troy State Teachers College on April 8 and 9.

The talk, to be given by J. M. Robinson, Department of Zoology-Entomology at Auburn, probably will cover what recent discoveries have been made to deal with the pest which caused such a stir in South Alabama last year.

Another interesting feature will be a visit to the lignite deposits near Troy. This section of the state abounds in this low grade coal which, through recent developments, now can be processed for efficient and inexpensive heat. Its commercial possibilities are most interesting and promising.

University News

A faculty of 122—the largest in the history of the University of Alabama summer school—will teach during the 1938 session, Dr. John R. McLure, director of the summer school, has announced.

The first term of the school will open June 6 and close July 15; the second will begin on July 16 and end on August 20. Courses will be offered by all regular colleges and schools of the University except the School of Medicine.

The School of Law will not follow the schedule planned for all other schools, but will offer an 8-week session, opening on Thursday, May 26.

Majors in physical education, five University of Alabama women students have obtained positions as swimming directors in summer camps for girls, Miss Frances Greenwood, instructor in physical education, has announced.

The program of the 15th annual meeting of the Alabama Academy of Sciences—to be held at State Teachers College, Troy, April 8-9—has been announced by Dr. Septima Smith, associate Professor of Biology at the University of Alabama, and secretary of the academy.

Steady pitching featured the opening games of the University of Alabama baseball team, as the Tiders swept the opening game series against Louisiana Tech by scores of 3 to 0 and 4 to 3. Hugh Kirkland, on the mound for 'Bama in the opener, allowed the invaders but four hits, while Hugh Bedient, handling the pitching duties in the second game, gave up only 5 safeties.

Appropriately named are University of Alabama students John Cannon of Athens and Paul Schultz (pronounced "Shoots") of Foley.

Both are second lieutenants in the University of Alabama R. O. T. C., coast artillery unit.

Judging by the results of a recent questionnaire submitted to 486 University of Alabama women students, marriage, by a narrow margin, still remains the favorite "career" for the modern miss.

Of the 486 girls who turned in the questionnaires this week by Mortar Board, senior women's honor society at the University, 50 listed marriage as their desired careers.

A spring meeting of University of Alabama alumnae was held on the Capstone campus last Saturday (April 2) with the purpose of the gathering being to familiarize the alumnae and other guests with the work being done by the University women today.

Members of the Wesley Foundation, Methodist student organization at the University of Alabama, held their second annual banquet Friday night in the recreation room of the First Methodist church in Tuscaloosa.

Recent actions of a certain University of Alabama class indicate that college students possess their share of superstition.

For about 10 days members of the class have had to pass under a ladder reaching from the floor to a skylight in order to get into the room.

In passing under the bad luck jinx, they have consistently made striking motions and speeches to bring them good fortune after strolling under the proverbial bad luck ladder.

Women's intramural sports went into an extensive program at the University of Alabama this week when the tennis singles, baseball and volley ball tournaments began.

CHEVROLET PERFORMANCE

A record of a year's performance by a 1936 Chevrolet sport sedan over a rough, arduous route connecting 15 Civilian Conservation Corps camps in the Lewiston, Idaho, district has just been released by Hoyt E. Henriques, district chaplain.

The year ran from October 5, 1936, to October 5, 1937, and the car covered 20,001 miles of rough travel, the chaplain reported. Much of the mileage was accumulated over roads that were deep in backwoods mud, and others that rose sharply over 3,000-foot hills.

Seven of the camps were in forest areas, some of them as far as 60 miles off a main highway and accessible only by dirt roads under construction. Only 3 of the 13 hills in the district boasted paved roads.

PLEASANT HILL

Our Sunday school needs lots of help. We hope all members who have been being absent will return.

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Martin and children have moved to Birmingham.

Next Sunday is our regular singing afternoon, but we will have no singing on account of an all day singing close by, and the county singing will be held on that day also.—Reporter.

FINDING OURSELVES IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-38.
GOLDEN TEXT—"What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"—Mark 8:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Peter Found Out.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Life Count Through Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding the Richest Life Through Service.

"Finding ourselves" seems like a singular, almost self-contradictory, expression, but it refers to a sound principle recognized by psychologists as well as spiritual leaders. As a matter of fact, modern psychology has begun to recognize and use spiritual laws and principles which alone bring about human happiness and efficiency.

A word of warning—let no one who studies this lesson fall into the serious error of thinking that some formal religious service will bring redemption and favor with God. We are saved by grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—"not of works, lest any man should boast." It is then by the new birth that we are "created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:8-10).

It is the Christian who needs to "find himself in service." Only as he thus yields to Christ does he really find the life worth living. The words of Jesus in verse 35 are solemnly and gloriously true.

I. Clear Confession (vv. 27-30).

Even those who deny to our Christ the recognition of His deity, and the devotion of life which is His just due, must, if they are at all intelligent, admit that no man ever lived who has made such an impact on human history. Even in the days of his life on earth those who did not accept Him as Christ regarded Him as the resurrected form of one of the nation's greatest leaders. Now unbelieving men speak of Him as the great founder of Christianity, a mighty leader, a wonderful example, or an unequalled teacher.

It is not enough that we stand with the mass of humanity who may thus admire Him, but who do not count Him as Saviour and Lord. The question comes to us as it did to the disciples, "Whom say ye that I am?" "Thou art the Christ"—this alone suffices as the foundation for Christian testimony and conduct.

II. Corrected Error (vv. 31-33).

Although Jesus was not yet ready to have His Messiahship proclaimed to the public, He was prepared to teach His disciples concerning not only that important truth, but of His rejection and death. "He began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer . . . be rejected . . . killed and . . . rise again."

Note the divine "must." While it is true that wicked men showed their hostility toward our God and His Christ by hanging Him on Calvary's cross, yet it was to die for our sins that He came into the world. The cross has rightly come to represent God's love to the world rather than man's hostility to God.

Error now asserts itself, and strangely enough it is the very one who had the clearest grasp of the truth regarding the Messiahship of Christ and boldly expressed it who now objects to the revelation of the coming death and resurrection of Christ, and lends his voice to rebuke the Master for speaking of it.

Satan hates the cross and the open grave. Jesus won the victory over him there. He did not want to hear of it before it took place and used impulsive Peter for a mouthpiece to object. He doesn't want to hear about it now and uses many a skillful and gifted preacher to speak against it. "The offense of the cross" (Gal. 5:11) has never ceased.

III. Consecrated Life and Service (vv. 34-38).

"Let him deny himself" (v. 34). That command we have construed to mean that we should perform little acts of self-denial, foregoing some comfort or pleasure, possibly for a few weeks. It does not mean that at all—but does mean the renouncing of self and self-will, and a complete yielding to God's will. Likewise, to take up one's cross does not mean to bear some of life's little disagreeable experiences; it means again to die to self and to live for Christ.

Careful attention should be given to the solemn questions asked and statements made in verses 35-37. These are not the reasonings of a man—they fall from the lips of the Son of God. What, He asks, will you give in exchange for your soul?

Payment

How little we pay our way in life! Although we have our purses continually in our hand, the better part of service goes still unrewarded.

Discussion

The more discussion the better, if passion and personalities be eschewed.

Pain

Pain is in itself a sharp discipline and hard to bear.

That's how much coal the L & N hauled in 1937 . . . over 600,000 carloads.

Think of the far-reaching importance of coal in our daily living . . . in producing power . . . in generating light . . . in heating our homes . . . in giving employment to thousands of people.

Indeed, carrying coal . . . or any other commodity . . . helps to develop the community where it is produced and adds to the comfort and welfare of the section where it is consumed. That's why the L & N for over 87 years has played such an integral part in the development and growth of the Central South. FAVORS RASCOE MADDOX

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to recommend Rascoe Maddox as candidate for Superintendent of Education. I have known him since he was a boy and have found him absolutely straight and honest. Although he is rather quiet, the words he says and the promises he makes can be relied on. As a teacher and citizen of Thorsby he has quietly and conscientiously performed his duties. His reputation gained through the years is that of an able, well educated man, devoted to the best interest of the community. I feel that he is well qualied for the office he seeks, and entirely worthy of it. If the people of the county elevate him to the office of Superintendent, I am sure they will have a man who will devote his full time to their best interests,—J. G. Billingsley.

PLANS FOR 4-H RALLY APRIL 9

Plans are developing for one of the biggest and best 4-H rallies Chilton County has ever had for April 9.

The Alabama Mills band will lead the parade, and furnish music through the day. A lovely float is being planned, carrying out the 4-H colors, green and white, on which the club officers will ride.

Miss Elizabeth S. Deloney, state 4-H Club leader, Auburn, and Mr. Homer S. Fisher, specialist in lanscape gardening, Auburn, will be the principal speakers of the day.

Certificates and medals for those who completed their 1936-1937 projects will be awarded.

Don't forget the date, boys and girls, and be ready for a lot of fun.—B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent.

If prosperity is to be judged by income tax collections, Alabama is the most prosperous state in the Union. The increase for the nation for the past year was 18 per cent. For Alabama it was 100 per cent over last year. The federal government collected twice as much income tax from Alabamians last year as it did the preceding year.

"At the same time farmers are cooperating by cleaning up infested properties, by growing less acreage to crops on which the bug thrives, and by using trap crops to which poison is applied."

There will be two ball games in the morning, the first being between the second boys' team and the elderly men of the community, scheduled for 9 o'clock. A girls' game with Autaugaville will follow. Speakings, consisting of both State and County candidates at 11 o'clock. Any candidate from Chilton County wishing to have a place on the program is asked to get in touch with Mr. J. N. Story, principal of the school, at as early a date as possible.

The first team will meet the Autaugaville boys for the first game of the afternoon and an independent game, which has not been selected yet, will follow them. There will probably be some afternoon speaking too.

CHILTON STUDENTS REGISTER AT LIVINGSTON TEACHERS COLLEGE

Livingston, Ala., Apr. 4.—The spring quarter at Livingston State Teachers College opened March 14, according to Dr. N. F. Greenhill, president.

Two students from Chilton County are among those registering for work during this quarter, these being Mildred Durbin and Mrs. Martha Simpson.

CLANTON METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday school last Sunday was good. We have a mighty good average attendance, but we hope each and every member is interested in making it reach our highest wishes and hopes. We should like to have twice as many people attending as we have and if we could get everyone Sunday school conscious, we could have that many. Let's boost.

All who heard the Sunday school day program at the 11 o'clock hour last Sunday must surely have experienced an heart warming. There will be a program Easter Sunday night.

Remember the church services at 11 a.m. next Sunday and try to give our preacher the crowd he deserves. We will meet with the Baptist congregation in a joint service Sunday night.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—Many a good news yarn has been spoiled by the necessity of "getting the story in the lead," as they say in the newspaper shops. This reporter asks indulgence for saving the kick in this one for the end, noting merely that it is a happy ending. In recent years, there have been so many unhappy fade-outs, from Sam Langford to the League of Nations, that anything in the line of an unexpected Garrison finish rates a bit of suspense before the news pay-off.

Story That Has Kick at the End

In Maxwell street, Chicago, long before the fragrance of Bubbly creek ebbed and sank and saddened, there was a book-stall which was the Jewish Algonquin of those parts. The place was overrun with philosophers, some white-bearded and highly venerated, some young and contentious, all stirred by a feverish intellectual zeal. They wolfed new books and started clamorous arguments about them, the way the crowds at the big pool hall down the street grabbed the box scores in the late sporting extras. Sweatshop workers used to throng in after a hard day's work and get in on the seminar.

Wrinkled, merry, mischievous little Abraham Bisno from Russia was the Erasmus of the sweatshop philosophers.

He used to circulate a lot around this and other Maxwell street bookshops, and many times the state of Illinois was saved the expense of calling out the militia because Bisno happened along to referee an argument.

Erasmus of Sweatshops Makes Peace

He was a sweatshop worker, a man of amazing erudition, but of salty, colloquial speech, never enmeshed in the tangle of print language around him. He used to tease his friend, Jane Addams, of nearby Hull house, by calling her settlement workers "the paid neighbors of the poor." He liked to deflate the Utopians, boiling things down to Gresham's law of money, the law of diminishing returns, weighted averages or something like that. He was the first of a multitude of sweatshop economists who spread light and learning through Chicago's Ghetto.

Bisno had a bright-eyed, clever little daughter named Beatrice, one of several children. Old sages, up and down Maxwell street, used to say the world would hear from Beatrice some day. But the world went to war, regardless of Sir Norman Angell and all the other philosophers, and the Bisnos passed beyond the ken of this writer.

The Bisnos Pass Beyond Our Ken

About twelve years ago, I had a visit from Francis Oppenheimer, a New York journalist. Beatrice Bisno was his wife. She was going to write a book, and did I know of a quiet hide-out where she could write it? I sent them to the old Hotel Helvetia, No. 23 Rue de Tournon, in Paris. She sat in the nearby Luxembourgh garden and wrote her book.

They came home and the book made endless round trips to publishers' offices. The smash of 1929 took the last of their savings. Today I had a letter from Francis Oppenheimer.

"We finally threw the book in an old clothes basket," he said. "Then, acting on impulse, we used our dinner money to give it one more ride. Weeks passed. Beatrice fell ill. There came a letter from Liveright, the publisher. I knew it was another rejection and didn't want to show it to Beatrice. But I tore open the envelope and handed it to her. Her eyes were glazed. She could not read the letter. It slipped from her fingers and fell to the floor."

And in the same mail today, there came to this desk a copy of the new book, "Tomorrow's Bread," by Beatrice Bisno, winning the $2,500 prize award, the judges being Dorothy Canfield Fisher and Fannie Hurst. That was the news that Mr. Oppenheimer picked up from the floor when his wife was too ill to read it.

Girl Wins Big Prize With Novel

Dorothy Canfield Fisher says of the book: "A searchingly realistic portrait of an idealist. What an idealist does to the world and what the world does to an idealist is here set down with power and sincerity."

Winsome little Bisno is gone. One wishes he could be carrying the news down to the old Maxwell street book stall, if it's still there.

Where Yale Is Buried

All round the Welsh village of Bryn-Eglwys, writes H. V. Morton in "In Search of Wales," lies property which once belonged to the Yale family, one of whom, Elihu, did so much toward founding Yale university. Elihu lies buried, however, not in the Yale chapel attached to the church of Bryn-Eglwys, but at Wrexham, 10 miles away.

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of Mr. E. B. Owens of Route 3, Clanton, Tuesday morning, March 29, and bore away the loving spirit of his wife, Mrs. Mary Susan Owens. She was born October 29, 1862, and was 75 years old.

She leaves to mourn her loss: her husband; four daughters — Mrs. Alice Mims, Miss Belle Owens of Clanton, Mrs. Ida Hughey of Haynes, Mrs. Lou Deason of Wetumpka; six sons—H. B., G. M., J. H., J. T., J. H. of Clanton, W. A. of Verbena; 35 grandchildren; 4 great-grandchildren; one brother—J. W. Smith, of Tennessee; one half-brother, Dosh Wilson, of Maplesville; and a host of other relatives and friends.

She was laid to rest at Shiloh church of which she had been a member for 55 years.

Pallbearers were her grandsons—Curtis, Carlos and Julius Deason, and John Will, Shelton, and Charles Owens. The Rev. Hughes conducted funeral services.

She had lived a Christian life, and God saw fit to call her home. Her vacancy can never be filled, but we can meet her some glad day, if we will follow in her footsteps.—A granddaughter who loved her, Mitcheline Mims.

HOGS OF TODAY LEARN TO TAKE THEIR MEDICINE

Gray Summit, Mo.—For many years doctors have advised patients to swallow pills with a glass of water. But it was not until recently that anyone figured out that it would be easier for a hog to take a pill the same way. The ease and naturalness with which the new type of jaw spreader and water gun developed here at the Purina Experimental Farm, works, cuts down the amount of labor and time needed for worming hogs, and does a far more effective job than the old method of forcing the medicine into the animal.

The cost of treating hogs for roundworm by this new method is less than one pound of pork per hog. Unthifty growth and death losses are cut down, and the feed, instead of going into the nourishment of worms, goes into the building of pork. Pigs can be wormed any time after they have been weaned, although it is NOT advisable to worm diseased hogs or animals that have been vaccinated for cholera within the past three weeks. The sooner pigs are wormed the faster they grow and the better use they make of feed.

Used With Pigsules

The patented jaw spreader and water gun available at all feed stores selling Purina poultry and livestock feeds is made for use with a special type of pigsule containing the ingredients recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture for the removal of roundworms in swine.

On the Purina Experimental Farm this method of worming has been successfully used for several years. Only two men are needed. One person straddles the hog and holds it in a semi-erect position by the front legs. This prevents any chance of the man administering the pigsules getting his wrists cut by the hogs' front hoofs. With the hog held in a fairly erect position, the jaw spreader, which is made of a U-shaped prong with two horizontal cross bars about an inch and a quarter apart, is slipped into the hog's jaw and pried down, forcing the animal's mouth open with no danger to the handler of being scratched or bitten.

Pill Is Washed Down

The water gun, with the Pigsule inserted in the end, is put into the mouth of the hog, and as soon as the pig stops squealing, the bulb containing the water is squeezed. The force of the water washes the pigsule down the hog's throat and gives him a good drink of water at the same time, so that almost before the hog knows what has happened, he has been treated. By this method the hog is dosed naturally and easily, with a minimum of time and trouble. Usually one worming by this method is enough, but if a few pigs in the lot continue to look rough, a second treatment should be administered.

THESE ARE LIFESAVERS

THAT'S what Consumers Information calls these workers in a Pittsburgh glass plant, who are testing and finishing non-shatterable glass for use in automobiles. It is explained that one of the greatest hazards in auto accidents used to be flying glass, which was the most common cause of injury. A TEST OF THE NEW DEAL

The more one reflects on the charges brought by Chairman Arthur E. Morgan against the policy and conduct of his hostile colleagues in the TVA the more one realizes the importance of their thorough investigation. For TVA is Exhibit A among the administration's excursions into collectivism. It has been from the beginning the pet experiment of the president, the model by which he has expected to demonstrate how much more beneficial and competent is government than private operation of large scale enterprise in a basic industry. On its success he has predicated a whole series of TVA's gridironing the country and incidentally transforming a federation of states into one of power authorities ruled from Washington. So if and when we know what has gone on within the administration of TVA we shall know just how sensible and workable is the whole New Deal philosophy.—New York Herald-Tribune.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

On January 4, 1935, President Roosevelt stood in the House of Representatives and declared:

"The federal government must and shall quit this relief business."

And then he asked congressional authority for a $4,000,000,000 spending program.

On January 18, 1936, President Roosevelt declared:

"If we can 'boondoggle' ourselves out of this depression, the word 'boondoggle' is going to be enshrined in the hearts of the American people for many years to come."

Another year has passed.

The federal government has not quit "this relief business."

And President Roosevelt appeals to congress for more hundreds of millions of dollars to meet a new rise in unemployment. What's the answer?—Detroit Free Press.

FAITH MUST BE RESTORED

The current recession stems from loss of faith among business men in the security of free enterprise. This recession is the natural reaction of a democratic system of competitive capitalism to persistent attempts to strengthen the government's grip and increase the weight of its hand upon private initiative and creative energy. Business men are afraid that the government has little respect for the American system of free enterprise.

They cannot understand how a commander-in-chief can hope to win a war against depression by attacking his generals, stirring up strife among the officers, creating divisions in the ranks, and destroying the morale of the whole army. They can't see why Mr. Roosevelt persists in cutting off a leg to get rid of a corn and performing delicate operations with a butcher's cleaver.—Springfield Union.

INTERNATIONAL POKER GAME

The united States may have many of the attributes of a good poker player— an ample stake, plenty of hard nerve, courage enough to back a good hand for all it is worth, sense enough to lay in a beaten hand without paying foolishly for unneeded proof. But in thieves' instincts and pickpocket nimbleness of finger of the products of ten generations of training in Europe's short card diplomacy, she is, thank God, utterly outclassed.

We had one kibitzer watching the same kind of a game in World War days and the first thing we knew we were sitting in. We now have another Col. House over there. One of the safest and finest things Mr. Roosevelt could do would be to call home our wandering ambassador, Norman Davis, before we find that he has had a chair turned up for the United States in that callously conscienceless and utterly desperate gamble.—Manchester Herald.

We spend a million for a book on how to influence people, and 70 millions for a battleship to make sure.—Chicago Daily News.

Of course it may help the railroads to get an increase in freight rates, but what they need is some freight to carry.

The way those TVA heads are scrapping would seem to indicate that TVA stands for Taint Very Agreeable.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

BY FRANK P. LITSCHERT

All sorts of reasons are advanced for the present recession in business, increasing unemployment to the 1933 mark, and causing a wave of pessimism to steal over the country that is remindfhl of the dark days of the depression a few years ago. By many students of our national economy it is ventured that one of the principal causes of this phase of the depression is the lack of confidence in the New Deal on the part of business. They point to the plight of the railroads and utilities, and declare that if these important arms of our industry had some assurance that they would receive real encouragement to go ahead, there would be a quick and remarkable change in business psychology throughout the nation. But, these analysts declare, so long as the public is confused as to what the administration is going to recommend next, and just as long as there is a belief that it is in a punitive frame of mind so far as business is concerned, there will be a doubt and hesitation which will only deepen the recession.

It is of course true that more than one element enters into the recession. Back in 1936 and 1937 people got the idea that prices were going up indefinitely. Business men bought their raw materials in advance, and produced a surplus of goods. Labor went on sit-down strike for higher wages and the right to form new organizations. The government enacted the excess profits tax. New proposals for the regulating of business and for getting the government further into the field of competitive private enterprise were brought forward. Reckless spending continued. The national debt steadily increased. There was the inevitable reaction.

Now that the recession is here, and is apparently getting no better, there is no time of course for mutual recrimination. What we want is immediate steps to cure the trouble. Fortunately congress seems to be coming to a realization of necessity for the repeal of the burdensome excess profits tax. Labor is in a much more amiable frame of mind. John L. Lewis, leader of the CIO, is calling for a cooperation between employer and employee, and business men say they are willing to cooperate in every way possible for the good of the economic order.

What seems to be needed first of all is a return of confidence. This could be stimulated by some declaration on the part of the New Deal leaders that it is time for policy changes which will give business a little more confidence for the future. The fact that we are $20,000,000,000 more in debt and still in the midst of hard times ought to be abundant proof that the regimentation and socialization of the New Deal have failed of their purpose.

Yet President Roosevelt in his speech at Gainesville, Ga., the other day declared that our trouble was due to the selfishness of a few. There was no indication of a change of policy toward business. A few months ago when things were apparently booming the president told us that he and his advisors had planned it that way. Now that recession has come he blames it on a "selfish few". Evidently there was something wrong with the New Deal strategy. It is doubtful whether big business or little business would deliberately sacrifice its profits and kill its own progress just to be "selfishly" against the New Deal. There must be something else the matter. Perhaps a real spirit of cooperation between the administration and business might help. At any rate. it is worth trying. The other system hasn't worked out at all. But the president's Georgia speech is none too encouraging on that score.

TWELVE DOLLARS FOR ONE

In the name of social security, the government this year will take $1,200,000,000 out of the pockets of 37,000,000 Americans. In the name of the same social security, the government will give back to these Americans the sum of $100,000,000. Expressed in smaller units, this transaction involves the expenditure of only $1 for every $12 received.

Better than anything else, these figures bolster the contention of Sen. Vandenberg and others that the law establishing old age pensions, etc., needs prompt revision. It is granted that the time will come when the treasury will be called upon to make disbursements vastly in excess of those of the present year, and that some kind of reserve must be created. To remove more than $1,000,000,000 annually from circulation is, however, the grossest folly in a day when it is essential to keep the purchasing power of the people at the highest possible point. The present tax on payrolls to build up a future surplus is nothing short of a tax on prosperity.

With reference to social security the president has said publicly that we have much to learn, and that, when we do learn, we will amend the program. He can make good his promise by urging congress to come closer to a pay-as-you-go policy and thus lift at least part of the burden now imposed on employers and workers alike and operating to put a brake on the processes of American business. —Boston Transcript.

Joe Kennedy, our new ambassador to Great Britain, told the Pilgrim Club in London that in future international difficulties the United States will look after its own interests. This must have been quite a shock to those Europeans who have always felt that we are ever willing to go to war to make the world safe for democracy.

It is said that the United Mine Workers in Pennsylvania are seeking repayment of a $40,000 loan to the Democrats up there. Perhaps the CIO boys didn't get their money's worth.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

It is generally known that the Bob Jones College, in Cleveland, Tenn., of which institution the writer happens to be the founder, stands without apology for the "old time religion" and for the absolute authority of the Bible. The institution believes in old time decency and the old time Christian philosophy of self-denial and self-control. The question in the minds of many educational leaders who have repudiated to a great extent the "old time religion" is this: How does the old time philosophy work out in modern life? My faith in "the old things" for which our fathers stood has been confirmed by a recent survey which I have had the privilege to make. The Bob Jones College is in its 11th year. Its graduates are scattered throughout America. Every student who has been graduated from the Bob Jones College has a position, and the overwhelming majority of them are outstanding, successful leaders in their chosen professions and fields of service. So far as we are able to find, no graduate of our school has dishonored his name or disgraced his testimony. The writer is in position to announce to the modernistic philosophers and to the educators who have repudiated the old beliefs that the old time Christian philosophy still works in the lives of young men and young women. It produces real results. Blot out God, blot out heaven, blot out hell, and let this world be all, and it still pays to live a life of self-control, of self-restraint, of self-discipline. After more than 10 years of service, the Bob Jones College has no apologies to make to modernistic leaders who have rejected the philosophy which guided the early school teachers of America when these teachers taught their students that self-denial, self-control, and not just self-expression, were necessary to the building of character. Many of the modernistic educational theories of "self-expression" and "do as you please" and "live your own life" are being exploded on life's firing line of our modern world.

"Blessed are the peacemakers," said Jesus. Peace has to be made. There is no peace in the world. We have strife everywhere. Nation is rising up against nation. Governments are ravishing other governments. Armies are ready to march. Dictators are lifting swords stained with blood. Efforts are being made to keep the peace. Nations may temporarily be kept from meeting on battlefields, but that does not mean that these nations are at peace. If two men would fight if they could get together, they are at enmity and not at peace. Peace is in the heart. If neighbors are really at peace they can mount machine guns on their front porches and have no temptation to shoot each other. If they are not at peace, they do not need machine guns to fight. Clubs will do. Some men have done a pretty good job of fighting each other with their bare hands. Women have been known to enter hair-pulling contests. The trouble with the world is not with its military machinery, large or small. The trouble is in the hearts of men. They are wicked. The wicked have no peace. They are at war with God. They are in rebellion against His authority and His laws. Sinners do not want to be restrained. They want to live their own lives in their own way. God is not angry with sinners. His law has been satisfied. The debt was paid by His Son on the cross. God wants men to accept His Son and be at peace. The peacemaker is the man who, having the peace of God in his own heart, is bringing other men to God and is also contributing toward the harmony of the family of God. Trying in human strength to get men of the world to live on friendly terms is good work, but doing that does not make an unconverted man God's child. The peacemakers are called God's children because they are not like the men of the world. They have upon them the imprint of Him Whom they trust as a personal Savior and the One Who is called the Prince of Peace.

C. H. GILES WRITES TO VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to express my ideas in regard to the Republican party and it's candidates. I feel like we should go over by a big majority this time, I feel like we have a real set of gentlemen out for office in this election. I think we are going to be hard to beat, but we Republicans need to get busy and show where we stand.

I want to call the attention of the voters to Clifford Manning for Tax Assessor. I believe I am safe in saying that he is capable of handling the office, and that I have known Clifford Manning for 15 years or more and believe him to be honest and truthful. So, I believe if we give him a chance that he will make a succes in handling the office of Tax Assessor.

I have heard it being talked that this young man was too young to make a success as Tax Assessor. I wish to state to our voters that I think probably you have a mistaken idea in regard to his age, for I happen to know that he will soon be 24 years old. So I don't think his age should be any drawback in the way of his campaign.—Yours for better government in our County and State, C. H. Giles.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—In 1929, at the age of seventy-one, Frederick H. Prince, the Boston banker, was still playing polo. He has great faith in the durability of men, institutions and governments, as long as they behave themselves.

Time Better Than Reform for Business

He left for Europe to forget about business for a while and intimates that it would be a good thing if the government would be similarly neglectful. "Washington should stop trying to reform business and leave the situation to time," he says.

Time has treated him nicely and he may well give it a testimonial. At seventy-nine, he is the grand seigneur of American business. Only four years ago, he engaged in a hard-hitting slugfest over the control of Armour & Co.

He got what he was after—the chairmanship of the board. He has many such trophies, having controlled 46 railroads, and, in general, one of the biggest cuts in the American dream of any man of his day.

His (mainly liquid) fortune is estimated at around $250,000,000. But, for many years, he says, he has made it a point to be about $20,000,000 in debt. That is revealing in connection with his ideas about money and success. He emphasizes the dynamics of money. It isn't money unless it is working. Stagnant money just dries up and blows away. Hence you draw cards even if you do have to drag a few chips for markers.

Makes Point of Being in Debt Always

He's a little too heavy for polo, with a massive gray head, deep sunken, pondering eyes, and heavy, gray moustache; a bit grim, perhaps, but not formidable. When, early in October, 1929, a small black cloud appeared on the horizon, he viewed it with a telescopic eye, saw it for what it was, and got out of the market.

The cyclone never touched him. Until a few years ago, he was still riding to the hounds at Pau, in southern France, master of the hunt. He has marble palaces here and there, one of them the former mansion of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, at Newport. Remarking that he has been in business 55 years, he says this little squall will blow over in two or three months.

* * *

THE reason isn't quite clear, but, these days, the colleges compete for tuba players as well as athletes.

Tuba Aces Prized Same as Athletes

Dr. Walter Albert Jessup deplores this and other phases of the scramble for students in the annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, of which he is president. The fight seems to be entirely in the field of extra-curricular activities. No mere scholar gets competing bids from rival faculties.

Since he became head of the Carnegie foundation, in 1933, Dr. Jessup has been a consistent deflationist, so far as education is concerned. He wants fewer and better students in the colleges. He assails the colleges which would "teach anybody anything." He is against educational trimmings, excrescences and gadgets, as the little Scotch ironmaster doubtless would be if he were looking over the current scene.

Other leading educators join him in this, but the big mill has to have plenty of raw material, to keep on grinding, or else become just a crossroad plant. So they go after even the tuba players. At any rate, each can blow its own horn.

Brain Mill Needs Raw Material

Dr. Jessup was president of the University of Iowa from 1916 to 1933. A native of Richmond, Ind., he was educated at Earlham college and Columbia and gathered several honorary degrees in later years. He was superintendent of schools in Indiana and dean of the college of education of Indiana university. He has won high distinction in the educational field and is the author of a book on arithmetic.

One gathers that he would not recommend Benny Goodman for a college faculty and that quite probably the next Carnegie report may find adversely on the shag, the eeper and the susy-q. He is for low kicking and high thinking, as against the prevailing reversal of this formula.

Giants Short Lived

The circus giant, the man with abnormally long legs or other abnormalities of frame, is a short-lived human. Tall men fall into two classes, those who attain their extraordinary growth because of inherited tendencies and those who become freaks because of some upset in the glandular functions. The man who "comes by his height naturally" usually lives a normal life span, but the freak seldom attains middle age. An insurance company, given to research in such matters, found that a number of men ranging from 7 feet 6 inches tall to 8 feet 7 inches had an average life of thirty-four years. The oldest died at forty-five, the youngest at twenty-seven.

Gives Views On Candidates

To The Voters of Chilton County:

The time will soon be here when we will have an opportunity to go to the polls and cast our vote for those who we think will best serve the people. I feel that we have a group of good men from which to select our officials, and that the people are going to use their best judgment in making that selection. I do not question the qualifications of any candidate to fill the position for which he is asking, but I do contend that some are better qualified than others. To determine a man's qualification for any position, there are several things to take under consideration. We all realize the qualification of one official service varies from that of another. Most official services are "Administrative," while others are "Legislative."

The qualifications of Tax Collector, Tax Collector, County Treasurer, and others are the ability to administer the law as it is written. Other qualifications are that they should be sober, of good moral character, always courteous and ready to render efficient service. The qualifications of all officials whose duties are "Legislative", especially that of Representative, is of a wider scope than that of other officials. They should be men with experience in various walks of life. Knowing the problems of the various classes, they should be of a sacrificial spirit, filled with determination and courage to do the greatest good to the greatset number.

As I stated, in an article some time ago, that I was more interested in the office of representative than any other office in the County because of their power to help decrease or increase our burdens.

In the political columns, on both tickets, I find six men seeking the office of Representative to the next Legislature of Alabama. Of the six men, I find vocations—two are lawyers, one dentist, one contractor, one newspaper man and one who is a farmer and laborer. Of the five occupations, which man represents the largest number of people? The lawyers know the problems of the lawyers, the dentist knows the problems of the dentists, the contractor knows the problems of the contractor, the newpaper man knows the problems of the newspaper men and the one who is a farmer and laborer knows the problems of the farmers and laborers. The last census show that Chilton County has a population of 24,000, and I presume 90 per cent are farmers. If this be true, then, why not this large majority have some representation in the next Legislature. W. L. Sanders is the man whom I would like to see serve in the next Legislature; he is experienced on the farm, in the factory and in many kinds of construction work. He knows what it is to earn an honest dollar and believes in making it go as far as possible. I have known Mr. Sanders for many years and have found him ready to make a sacrifice for everything that was for the upbuilding of his community and County. He is a self-made man, full of ambition to do something for the benefit of the general public. I observed his service while he was a member of the Board of Education and found him to be impartial, he had no friends to lift up or enemies to put down, he had nothing to cover up from the public.

Of the six men making the race for representative, Mr. Sanders, as far as knowing the needs and burdens of the common people, is best qualified for the office.

Let me urge every voter to give Mr. Sanders serious consideration and if you can give him your support, and he is elected, I feel sure that you will never regret it.—Yours for a representative from among the common people,

D. S. SMITH.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The absence of salon diplomacy or petticoat politics in the European struggle for a new power balance would be an oversight by the muse of history, readying the drama of the century, and at last it seems to have been attended to.

Lady Pulls Strings in Duce Deal

Enter Lady Chamberlain, the cleverest woman politician in England, widow of Sir Austen, obscurely noted in the news as mysteriously busy for the last few months in the British-Italian rapprochement.

Several weeks ago, a sagacious traveler of this writer's acquaintance, back from Rome, reported Lady Chamberlain as adroitly fostering an understanding with Britain which would bring recognition of Ethiopia and a two-way split on Spain and the Mediterranean. She has been in Rome since November, in intimate social intercourse with the more important Fascist moguls.

For many years, she has been known as the "most perfect political hostess" in London and has been subtly influential in many big deals in continental diplomacy. It was she who cooked up the Locarno conference, at Lake Maggiore, in Switzerland, in 1925.

When the delegates were haggling, she packed some hampers and invited Sir Austen, Briand and Streseman to the most important picnic in all history. In her handsome little yacht, they disappeared around a bend in the lake, landed in a secluded spot, and, with the aid of three jurists, re-rigged Europe.

How Picnic at Locarno Made Peace

Whatever came out of the conference, for good or ill, is traced to that picnic. When she returned to England, she was made Dame of the Grand Cross of the British Empire.

She is a comely matron of sixty-two, married to Sir Austen in 1906. He was fourteen years older. She was Ivy Dundas of one of the leading political families of England.

In the earlier years of their marriage, she was credited with having coached her husband in the ultra-English mannerisms which all of the great Birmingham family found it expedient to master when they moved to London. She is said to have been his political as well as his social mentor, and frequently electioneered in his campaigns.

Lady Chamberlain is an extreme conservative and is believed to have nurtured plans for a British alliance with the Absolutist powers. She has an extraordinary flair for dramatic political stage-settings and delicate sensitivity to political currents. Italy conferred on her the Gold Medal of Merit.

THE New York spy round-up by the federal bureau of investigation marks the first front-page workout of the G-men as an ally of the secret service.

G-Men On Front Page in Spy Hunt

An attache of the latter told me in Washington last summer that J. Edgar Hoover's organization, developed in post-war years, would be an invaluable aid to this country's defenses against foreign espionage, and that, in the event of trouble, actual or impending, no foreign country could hope to duplicate Germany's exploit in sabotage, propaganda and spying before our entry into the World war.

Reed Vetterli, in short pants when the World war started, heads the New York office of the F. B. I. and deploys his 75 agents in a red-hot spy scenario, in which they score as usual, with indications today that this is just the overture.

Six feet tall, blond, reticent, Mr. Vetterli is a veteran of the F. B. I. war against thugs and kidnapers, in the bureau since 1926, in charge of 18 offices in his 11 years of service.

He was born in Salt Lake City in 1903, and took his law degree at the University of Washington in 1925. In 1933, he was wounded in the Kansas City massacre, trading shots with Pretty Boy Floyd's gangsters.

He has participated in most of the bureau's famous kidnaping, vice and bank robbery cases. He succeeded Rhea Whitley as head of the New York office on September 11, 1937. He has a reputation in the bureau for always having an airtight case against anyone he arrests.

OPEN THE DOOR FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

CRIPPLED CHILDREN'S SOCIETY OF CHILTON COUNTY

OPEN THE DOOR FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Open the door and make way for a little fellow who can spend his play hours on crutches and still smile.

This lad, one of thousands in the country who haven't received quite an even break physically, is coming in from a rather restrained romp to spend a little time with his books at a school for crippled children. It's time for geography and arithmetic.

You don't get that confident smile he is displaying from spending months in bed and looking forward to many more months on crutches. You don't get it from knowing the other kids are out playing baseball.

You get it from such simple things as the sun above and the flowers blooming outside the door and from the knowledge that someone cares and is doing something to help you along.

Thousands of younsters, starting out with crippled bodies, can tell you of the multitude of things which are being done to give them a better life. Thousands more are yet to be reached.

First there must be adequate facilities for treating the children and adults to give them the maximum use of their crippled muscles. There must be education — impossible through normal channels. Adults require the aid of professional workers who can help in rehabilitation and vocational programs. Children need special education and helping hands to adjust them socially.

This is the season when the brightly colored Seals of the International Society for Crippled Children and its State and local affiliates go on sale.

The Seals carry the message to all parts of the country. They provide money for carrying on this vital work, for interesting others in its accomplishment. The 1938 Seals, bearing the slogan, "A Better Life for Crippled Children," went on sale, April 1st.

HARRISON ASKS TO RETAIN POST

W. Clint Harrison, member of the Alabama Public Service Commission, qualified with the office of the Secretary of State last Friday as a candidate for seat No. 2. He has held the position since his appointment on July 1, 1936, to fill the unexpired term of Frank P. Morgan, resigned.

A native of Faunsdale, in Marengo County, Harrison was a member of the State House of Representatives from that county throughout the Miller administration and during the present administration up until the time of his appointment to the Commission. He was floor leader of the House during both terms, and sponsored much progressive legislation, particularly for the common schools of the state, attempting in 1932 to have funds for these schools made preferred claims. He introduced legislation to pave the way for rural electrification in Alabama.—Montgomery Journal.

HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUBS

The next leadership school comes April 14. "Entertaining In The Home" is the subject; "Buffet Spreads" and "Afternoon Teas" will be given. This is a most essential climax to our year's work, and can and will be used all the coming summer.

Be sure to be present at 9:45 o'clock and let's have a worthwhile meeting. All leaders especially are urged to come.

Meeting of Women's Federated Clubs will be held in Auburn April 19-21. Any of the Home Demonstration Club women are invited to attend these meetings in behalf of the County Council. The Council will also send an official delegate at this time to represent us in the making of future laws, and election of our officers.

Thanks for the flowers for the outdoor living room. The garden is slowly but surely growing.

Miss Ruth Dobyne, district supervisor of Home Demonstration Work spent last Thursday night in Clanton for a meeting and conference.

Miss Elizabeth S. Deloney, state Girls 4-H Club leader, will visit Clanton March 30 for a conference with the home agent, Miss Meta Grace.

Several Southern agricultural and business leaders have joined in a movement advocating that farmers and consumers demand their flour, feed, seeds, fertilizer, and everything else they buy in bags, to come to them in cotton bags. This is being done to help use surplus cotton now on hand.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

ALABAMA IS GOOD BEEF CATTLE PRODUCING STATE

Auburn, Apr. 4. — Beef cattle production should receive serious consideration by Alabama farmers interested in supplementing their cotton cash income, believes Dr. R. S. Sugg. livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Service.

"Our long growing season, well distributed rainfall, and cheap land are factors that favor a beef cattle industry in Alabama", he says. "We have much land that is unsuitable for crop production that could be made to grow grass, which if marketed through beef cattle, would add a considerable amount to the owner's income.

"The by-products of our two main crops—cotton and peanuts—in the form of cotton seed meal, cotton seed hulls, and peanut meal, make excellent feeds for wintering beef cattle.

"In addition, permanent hay crops, such as kudzu, alfalfa, and Johnson grass can be successfully grown in most sections of the state. By growing sorghum silage, and using a trench silo we can have a supply of cheap roughage which is essential to the economical production of beef cattle."

Dr. Sugg advises that the successful beef cattle producer is the man who plans his operations for a long period of years, improves his pastures, produces cheap roughage, conserves the manure. constantly improves the quality of the herd by using a carefully selected pure bred herd bull, and has the product ready for the market at the season when there is the greatest demand.

Farmers planning to grow beef cattle should make plans to remain in the business for several years. The "in and out-er" usually loses money, he concludes.

SUMMER SPRAYS HELP PEACHES AND PLUMS

Auburn, Apr. 4. — Controlling diseases and insects with summer sprays will greatly improve the quality of peaches and plums harvested by Alabama farmers this summer and fall, advises Prof. L. M. Ware, head of the horticulture and forestry department, Alabama Polytechnic institute.

"Effective control of diseases and insects requires that the proper materials be used at the proper time and that the spraying be done thoroughly," he says.

"The peach and plum are subject to rot, scab, and worms. Plums and early maturing varieties of peaches usually require three applications of spray; late maturing peach varieties require four applications.

"The first spray, applied when three-fourths of the flower petals have fallen, and the second spray, applied when three-fourths of the 'shuck' has fallen from fruit, should contain 1 pound of arsenate of lead and 4 pounds of hydrated lime for each 50 gallons of spray. The first two sprays are given to prevent 'worminess' of fruit. The third summer spray, applied two weeks after the second spray, should contain 4 to 6 pounds of wettable sulphur per 50 gallons of spray, or the standard self-boiled lime sulphur mixture. Several commercial brands of wettable sulphur are now sold. They require no preparation, and are easily mixed. The fourth summer spray, applied 1 month before the fruit ripens, should contain, in 50 gallons of spray, 1 pound of arsenate of lead, 4 pounds of hydrated lime, and 4 to 6 pounds of wettable sulphur.

"For peaches ripening before the Carmen, and for plums, the third spray should be omitted and the fourth substituted."

RURAL PEOPLE ADVISED TO EAT MORE HEN EGGS

Auburn, Apr. 4. — Alabama farm people can improve their health by using more eggs in their diet.

In addition, eggs add richness, flavor and delicacy, and improve the texture of almost any kind of dish.

Authority for these facts is Helen Kennedy, extension nutritionist, who reports that "eggs contain some of the most important sources of body building material.

"Eggs, rich in high quality protein, minerals and vitamins, may be used in the diet in some form each day", she says. "Since they may be prepared in many ways and combined with almost all other foods, they are suitable for any meal during the day."

Combinations of eggs and meat, or eggs and vegetables are appropriate for dinner and supper, she advises. Egg desserts also are suitable for either of these meals. Plain egg dishes are more commonly used for breakfast, while egg sandwiches are extensively used in school lunches.

Eggs are much better for the human body when properly prepared. They should be cooked slowly at a moderate, even heat. They are more easily digested if cooked at a temperature below the boiling point, as boiling toughens the albumen, or white. If cooked at a temperature below the boiling point, the white is soft and jelly-like.

Farm women interested in learning of more and better ways of utilizing eggs may obtain a copy of Circular 74 entitled "Recipes" from their home agents, or by writing the Alabama Extension Service, Auburn.

ALABAMA FARMERS LED TERRACING LAND IN 1937

Auburn, Apr. 4. — By terracing 300,000 acres in 1937, Alabama farmers led the nation in the number of acres of land terraced, reports J. B. Wilson, agricultural engineer, Alabama Extension Service.

"From 1925 through 1937 Alabama farmers terraced 2,196,936 acres," he says in reporting that "at the rate we are now going it will take 45 to 50 years to terrace all the Alabama farm land needing to be terraced."

Mr. Wilson emphasizes the importance of farmers terracing their lands by pointing out that there is only six acres of land to each person in Alabama, and that this must be maintained and improved to continue feeding and clothing the population of the state.

"We cannot afford to miss the benefit payments of the AAA program," he says, in further emphasizing the importance of terracing land. "Every benefit from this program should be applied judiciously to the land on Alabama farms.

"When terracing is well done, we have made only the first move toward erosion control," he continues. "Erosion between terraces must be controlled by contour tillage — running the rows with terraces. In addition, cover crops must be kept on the land as much as possible. The old idea of leaving the land clean must be abandoned."

Southern Fiddlers To Meet In Birmingham

Attention, you old time fiddlers — here's the big chance you've been waiting for.

All fiddlers in and around Clanton are invited to participate in the Southern Fiddlers Convention to be held at the municipal auditorium in Birmingham Sunday afternoon and evening, May 29.

Every fiddler in Alabama is urged to participate in this convention, announces Happy Hal Byrnes, famous motion picture and radio star, and the South's leading master of ceremonies, who will direct the convention.

In conjunction with the fiddlers contest, for which prizes amounting to $250 will be offered, Director Byrnes announces he will stage a 1938 Radio Stars Jamboree, with some of the South's leading radio talent being heard and seen in person.

Matinee and evening performances will be held in the mammoth Birmingham Municipal Auditorium, which seats 6,000 persons, and all local music lovers, both old time and modern, are invited to attend. In addition to the fiddlers contest, the radio show and band contests, the fans will hear folk songs, carols, hymns, and quartet numbers.

This will be the greatest gathering of musical talent ever assembled on one program in the South, and Happy Hal Byrnes himself will act as master of ceremonies.

Byrnes has sent out invitations to such radio and screen stars as Gene Autry, the screen's outstanding cowboy singer, Uncle Dave Macon and his all-star company from Radio Station WSM, Nashville, Sarie and Sally, and the Golden West Cowboys also are being invited to show at the convention.

Matinee and evening performances will be given, and this show is modeled after one held in St. Louis recently when 7,500 people attended a single performonce in the St. Louis Municipal Auditorium.

All fiddlers in Alabama who desire to enter the fiddlers contest and compete for the $250 in prizes are asked to write to Happy Hal Byrnes at 729 Third Avenue, West, Birmingham, Ala. The contest is open for all fiddlers.

Mr. Sam Pate of Thorsby was a visitor to Clanton Tuesday of this week.

METHODIST MISSIONARY CIRCLE

The monthly business meeting of the Methodist Missionary Circle was held at the parsonage Monday afternoon.

The 24 members present were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Truett's report of the meeting of the Alabama Conference Women's Missionary Society, M. E. churrch at DeFuniak Springs, Fla. It is a difficult task to review a conference which lasts several days, but Mrs. Truett did it in such an enthusiastic manner that we could feel the warm Florida sun, could glimpse the gay flowers and actually shared in their gracious hospitality. We sensed the spiritual strength gained at the guests hour held each morning. We were encouraged by the spirit of earnestness and enthusiasm.

At this time when the spirit of nationalism is so strong it is comforting to hear that in our own State so much love and brotherly help is being shown to other races by this large group of women of which we are a part.

The circle appreciates Mrs. Truett's attempt to share the joys of the meeting with us.—Mrs. John Powers, Jr., Publicity Chairman.

C. Reese Mullins Favors Sparks For Governor

Candidate Will Speak Here In Clanton On Friday, April 15

Editor Union-Banner:

It is now only a few days until May 3rd, and on this date we are to take one of the most important steps that we shall have the privilege of taking again in the next four years, voting for a man to guide and direct the affairs of this great State of ours, a governor. I want to express to you and to every voter in Chilton County my wholehearted endorsement of the candidacy of Judge Chauncey Sparks of Eufaula. I will appreciate the favor very much if you and everyone who may read this letter will support Judge Sparks, and line up all your friends in his behalf.

His record in the Legislature shows that he is a sound man and stands solidly for sound goverment. He is a man of conviction and has the courage of his convictions, and is of the highest character. We have some other good men in the race, but I know Chauncey Sparks, personally, and I feel sure that he is head and shoulders above the rest. He is no visualist, but is a practical man and believes in economical goverment, and in goverment confining itself to governing. I know Judge Sparks is just such a man as we all would take great pride in as our governor. I am trying to contact every voter in this county personally in behalf of Judge Sparks, but you know that is impossible, so, I ask you all to accept this letter as a personal appeal in his favor. We will have this distinguished statesman to address the voters of Chilton county at our courthouse here in Clanton on Friday morning, April 15th, at 11 o'clock. You are all urged to come hear him and meet him.

I want to say to the school teachers of this County and State that, in my opinion, there is not a man in the race for governor that has the interest of them and education more at heart than Judge Sparks. Why do I say this? He was reared on a small farm in a rural section of Barbour county. He was an orphan when quite a lad, and had to work his way through school and college. Why then, knowing him to be a big hearted and broad minded man, should he not be in favor of giving the school teachers and the children of this State first consideration? He is, and we know it, that Judge Sparks is the only candidate out for governor who comes out flat-footed against the sales tax, and this is what we all want.

If the people of this State are not alarmed at the deplorable state of affairs that exist today at our state Capitol, I don't know what it would take to alarm them. Judge Sparks, if elected, will correct all this. We do not need so much tax—what we need is efficient and honest government. I am helping to manage Judge Sparks's campaign in this county. I am meeting with wonderful support of him in every nook and corner of the County. I am also getting reports from all over the state that he is gaining ground every day. I figure he will carry this County by a considerable majority.

In conclusion, I wish to appeal to you again to fall in line and help light the road to honest, official and economical government with Judge Chauncey Sparks. — Yours, most sincerely,

C. REESE MULLINS.

PUBLIC UTILITY AND ESTATE TAX DEPARTMENT

The personnel of these two departments consists of two clerk stenographers, one clerk, and a chief clerk. The statutes require that all the property of public utilities with the exception of motor vehicles, be assessed by the State Tax Commission, the assessed values to be allocated to the counties, municipalities, and special school districts. Each public utility is furnished with forms for making returns each year, and it is the duty of the public utility department to send out these forms, and when returns are made, to analyze each one and work up in tentative form what each utility should be assessed, and place such tentative figures before the Commission for its action. When the Commission reaches a tentative assessment the department issues notice to the taxpayer, and when the assessment becomes final it is the department's duty to copy the assessment, allocating the assessed value to the counties, school districts and municipalities, and furnishing the assessing officials of each taxing subdivision with detailed statement of the property allocated in each subdivision with the assessed value therein.

There are 190 public utilities in Alabama. In addition to these 190 public utilities of all sizes, there are 154 freight line equipment companies.

WRITES IN FAVOR OF C. L. WILKINS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space to say a few words in regard to C. L. Wilkins for member of the County Board of Education. He has served the past four years and I think he did what he thought was best so far as he could. I don't suppose he has pleased everyone, for that is impossible, but there has been lots of improvements added to the school buildings since he has been in office.

Mr. Wilkins is a good Christian man, a church and Sunday school worker. He is always ready to lend a helping hand in educational work. He has children of his own, and should be interested in school affairs. We think it best to keep someone who has children in school. I think they would be more interested in the work than those who have no children in school.

We would be glad that all the voters of the county will help re-elect Mr. Wilkins for member of the board.—S. B. Williams.

Aren't We All?

In reply to a notice sent to one of The Union-Banner's subscribers that his subscription had expired, and a solicitation of his renewal, we have received the following note. It is from Mr. Kelly Gentry. We wonder if his trials and tribulations are not typical of those of all of us. Here is the letter:

"In reply to your request to send a check, I wish to inform you that the present condition of my bank account makes it almost impossible. My shattered financial condition is due to federal laws, state laws, county laws, city laws, corporation laws, liquor laws, mother-in-laws, brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, and outlaws.

"Through these laws I am compelled to pay a business tax, amusement tax, head tax, school tax, gas tax, light tax, water tax, sales tax, liquor tax, carpet tax, income tax, furniture tax, and excise tax. Even my brains are taxed. I am required to get a business license, car license, truck license, liquor license, not to mention a marriage license and dog license.

"I am also required to contribute to every society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life. To women's relief, the unemployed relief, the gold diggers' relief, and also to every hospital and charitable institution in the city, including the Red Cross, the Black Cross, the Purple Cross, and the double cross.

"For my own safety I am required to carry life insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, burglar insurance, accident insurance, business insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, unemployment insurance, old age insurance, and fire insurance.

"My business is so governed that it is no easy matter for me to find out who owns it. I am expected, inspected, suspected, disrespected, rejected, dejected, examined, re-examined, informed, required, summoned, fined, commanded, and compelled until I provide an inhaustible supply of money for every known need, desire or hope of the human race.

"Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other I am boycotted taked about, lied about, held up, held down, and robbed until I am almost ruined. I can tell you honestly that except for the miracle that happened I could not enclose this check. The wolf that comes to my door nowadays just brought pups in my kitchen. I have sold the pups, and here is the money."

NEWTON BROTHERS HAS JAM-UP LITTLE CIRCUS

Clanton and Chilton County people had the privilege of attending Newton Brothers Three-Ring Circus Monday and Monday night of this week, and we are pleased to report that this little circus is no humbug—and it is not so little, either. The things that are presented in these rings are just as good as you see in Ringling's circus—only there is just not as much of it.

Special mention should be made of the trained dogs. One often sees dog shows, but it is rare that you see dogs that are so completely under the control of the trainer and that can do the tricks that these dogs can do. They simply act with human intelligence and do tricks that must require years and years of training to accomplish.

They have elephants and other trained animals that are masters at their professions; their entire menagerie is most entertaining. Their group of savages from the jungles of Africa are everything they are advertised to be. Many clowns furnish funny antics for the kids, and the trapeze artists are there with all of their glory.

Newton Brothers claim one hundred thrilling features, and they have every one of them.

I would especially like to see those farmers and farm women who are keeping 100 or more hens and every other person who is interested in poultry production at this meeting.

CHICK FACTS

Brooder houses don't grow. Chicks do. Many poultrymen try to start too many chicks for the size of their house and consequently lose many chicks at seven or eight weeks due to crowding and smothering. A chick doubles its size in four weeks which means that day-old chicks should have twice as much room as they need in order for them to have normal space as they grow. A ten-by-twelve brooder house will accommodate 250 to 300 day-old chicks.

Chicks at four weeks develop enormous appetites, which is perfectly normal. Good chicks weighing 10 ounces at 4 weeks should weigh 20 ounces at 6 weeks. Where management conditions are of the best, and where chicks have good feed and sufficient room and water, they will double their weight between the fourth and sixth week. Purina Startena, fortified with Puratene, provides chicks with an abundance of Vitamin A to make this jump. Startena is completely balanced and blended so that chicks get every ingredient they need in the exact amount they need to make rapid, healthy growth.

A one-gallon drinking fountain and two feet of hopper space should be provided for every 50 chicks. Contagious diseases and infection are spread through drinking water. To guard against this chance of infection one-quarter teaspoon of Purina Chlorena Powder should be added to each gallon of drinking water. Drinking fountains and feeding hoppers should be washed daily in a disinfectant solution made of two teaspoons of Chlorena powder in three gallons of water.

Chick weight standards show the average chick to weigh 11 or 12 ounces at six weeks. Actual records from the Purina Experimental Farm where thousands of chicks are raised each year show that chicks fed on a complete balanced starting feed fortified with additional Vitamin A in the form of Puratene weigh 16 to 20 ounces at six weeks

Brooder Pneumonia kills hundreds of chicks each spring. This disease occurs most frequently among chicks ten days to three weeks old. General listlessness and difficult breathing are symptoms. The best treatment is to remove all moldy litter and wet, moldy feed, since those are the causes of pneumonia, and disinfect the house thoroughly with a solution of Purina Cresofec. Infected birds should be flushed with Epsom Salts—one pound of Salts to every 400 pounds of chicks. Salts may be mixed with crumbly mash or given in drinking water. Best cure for the disease is prevention. Keep feed fresh and house and equipment clean. Frequent disinfecting with Cresofec solutions keeps down infection.

Unless chicks are in direct sunshine from which they absorb Vitamin D they need additional amounts of Vitamin D supplied through feed. This vitamin is absolutly essential to health and growth, and can easily be made available to chicks through cod liver oil in the starting feed. Purina scientists test the cod liver oil put into Startena by feeding it to live animals and chicks in the laboratories to determine its potency.

The cause of infectious bronchitis among poultry is unknown at present, but effective methods of treatment are now available. Chicks that reach forward gasping for air, with mouth wide open, show definite symptoms of bronchitis. A lump of mucous in the end of the windpipe may shut off breathing entirely and cause a strangling convulsion. Early detection of infectious bronchitis is the surest way of saving birds. If allowed to run, twenty to fifty percent of the flock may die in a short while. When infectious bronchitis is present birds should be dry-sprayed with Purena Chlorena Powder each evening after they go to roost. The dry-spray method is a newly discovered treatment that has proved very satisfactory.

Birds should be taught to roost as early as possible. Mite infested poles cause discomfort to birds and may result in fatality if not arrested. Purina Roost Paint should be spread on the poles about 15 minutes before the birds go to roost. It comes with a handy brush for applying attached to the can top.

Standard weights show that the average 6 weeks' old chick weighs around 11 or 12 ounces. Actual records from thousands of chicks grown on Purina Startena show that well fed chicks weigh up to a pound and a quarter at 6 weeks. Extra weight at this time gives chicks an advantage in growing into profitable layers.

CHILTON SUFFERED HEAVY FLOOD LOSS

Estimate Of Damage Runs Into The Thousands Of Dollars; Most Of County's Bridges Are Gone

Citizens and officials of Chilton County were busy last Friday estimating damage done Thursday and Thursday night to farms, roads and bridges, by what is said to be the heaviest deluge of rain that ever fell here within the short length of time.

The heavy rains were county-wide, as was the general destruction, according to reports as they trickled in all during Friday. No part of the county seemed to have escaped heavy damage. Farmers from all over the county told of deep ravines and broken terraces on their freshly plowed farms, with damage of this kind running high. Hailstorms in some sections beat strawberry fields to pieces, although the hail was not general.

At Coopers, water rose to a depth of two feet in the store building of H. J. Taylor, as the Chestnut Creek went on a wild rampage; he estimated the damage to goods at above $500; Mr. Taylor could place no figure on the amount of damage done to cotton stored in his two warehouses, but said that at least 450 bales would be damaged to some extent. Several families in the Coopers area had to be moved to higher ground, as the rushing watters took foundations from under homes. Trains were held at Coopers for several hours, until the waters receded, so that officials could be sure that the tressle at that point had not been washed away; this tressle remained, but much damage was done to roadbeds.

Record high water marks were reported at power plants on the Coosa River, with all gates open, and with danger warnings out for Wetumpka and Montgomery.

County officials and state highway engineers said the cost of replacing bridges and repairing road beds would run high. County men estimated that at least 65 per cent of the county's bridges and water boxes were gone, including some of the biggest units, serving the heaviest traffic lanes. T. J. Arledge, road supervisor, set the actual number of bridges which must have extensive repairs or be replaced entirely at 134, so far as he has been able to ascertain.

Reports were that not a single bridge remained on either Walnut, Hog, Cargyle, or Yellow Leaf Creeks, except the one just east of Clanton, on the Higgins Ferry road.

Large bridges near Thompson's Mill, on the Mineral Springs road, both steel bridges on the Lay Dam road, one at Plier's Mill, one at the old Faulkner mill, near the Hugh Mullins place in Beat 1, and one on the Maplesville road over Little Mulberry were reported out or damaged so badly that traffic was stopped over them.

In addition, the bridge on the state paved highway north of Clanton was out completely, as was the steel and concrete span on the old highway near Dennis's gin in Clanton. One large new bridge in Beat 16, over Cargyle Creek, had not even been found, being completely torn to pieces and carried away by the raging torrent. Countless other small bridges over the county were out, with no trace left of many of them. Fills and roadbeds suffered great damage also.

All traffic had to be routed over the old highway by the cotton mill north of Clanton. Highway patrolmen held up all heavy traffic, but allowed light traffic and perishable shipments to pass. School busses were hampered, with very few of them able to deliver their passengers to schools at all. Rural mail service, especially in the Clanton district, was almost paralyzed. Several carriers reported almost doubling the mileage of their routes in order to serve as many patrons as possible; hundreds, however, were left without service, after all was done that could be done to get to them.

No casualties were reported, although it was said one car went into the opening on Mulberry Creek.

Saturday, estimates were being made of cost, and preparations completed to begin the gigantic task of rebuilding these bridges and water boxes and putting roadbeds back in shape. Many cave-ins were reported. Officials asked that the people bear with them until they can have time to repair the damage, and that such repair will be made as early as possible, consistent with worth-while construction.

City employees reported much damage to bridges and boxes within the city limits, as well as much damage to graveled sections of streets.

The torrential rains began early Thursday morning, continued through the day, and increased in intensity as night drew near. Heavy rains fell all through the night, with the cloudburst and deluge coming around midnight. The wash-out on the paved highway was discovered about 1:30 Friday morning, and warnings placed.

This is said to be the heaviest rainfall for the length of time within the memory of the oldest citizens, even surpassing the 1916 flood.

THE NEW TWENTY-THIRD PSALM

Mr. Roosevelt is my shepherd;
I live in want.
He maketh me to lie down on park benches;
He leadeth me beside the still factories;
He disturbeth my soul.
He leadeth me in the paths of destruction, for his party's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of depression,
I anticipate no recovery, for he is with me.
He prepareth a reduction of my salary in the presence of mine enemies.
He anointeth my small income with taxes; my expense runneth over.
Surely unemployment and poverty shall follow me all the days of my life,
And I shall live in a house that is mortgaged forever.

Alabama Baptist Gives History of Dr. S. J. Ezell

Who has accepted the position of Director of Evangelism of the Alabama Baptist State Convention

The committee appointed by the Executive Board was fortunate in persuading Dr. S. J. Ezell to accept the position as director of evangelism for the State. Every effort was made by his church and the city of Clanton to keep him. There was talk of calling a county-wide mass meeting to prevent his leaving the community but Dr. Ezell felt the call to the larger work. He said he had faced the cost and the cross and was willing to bear it. This purpose and spirit of obedience assures his success. We bespeak for him the sympathetic cooperation of our pastors and people.

Here follows a sketch of his life and work: He was born and reared on a farm near Chesnee, S. C.—the son of Rev. and Mrs. W. G. P. Ezell. He completed the rural schools of that day and entered Clemson College September, 1904, and graduated June, 1908. He taught Agriculture and Science in Parker-Brewton Baptist Junior College 1908-9 session, and resigned to enter the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., September 1909, and completed the Master's degree May, 1913. After graduation he was called as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Mariana, Ark., and stayed there until September 1, 1915, and resigned to re-enter the Louisville Seminary in September to pursue studies leading to the degree of Th.D., and graduated with the highest honors in that degree May, 1917. During the six years spent in the Louisville seminary he was pastor of rural and village churches at Concord, Franklinton, Port Royal, Pleasureville and Bagdad in Kentucky. He entered the army in October, 1917, as Religious Work Director for the Y. M. C. A. at Oglethorpe, Ga., and served until the close of the war. He was called to the First Baptist church, Eatonton, Ga., September 1, 1919, and resigned there to accept the call to the First Baptist Church, Clanton, Ala., September 1st, 1922, and has served here until his resignation March 27th—a total of 15 years and seven months. During this pastorate there were received into the fellowship of the church 917 members. For many years he served as a member of the Alabama Baptist State Executive Board, being Secretary of the Board, Vice-President of the Board and Secretary for the Executive Committee of the Board. He is now the Alabama member of the Relief and Annuity Board of the Southern Baptist Convention. He has held many successful revival meetings in every section of the State.—Alabama Baptist.

TEMPORARY BRIDGES BUILT IN CITY LIMITS

City workmen got busy Monday morning building a temporary bridge across Goose Pond Creek, known as Gore bridge, on the Lay Dam road. The steel bridge was washed completely out in Thursday night's young flood. A boat was used there Saturday and Sunday to transport passeners, Etc. The temporary bridge will be usable by the last of this week.

State highway men have also improvised a temporary wooden structure at the washed out bridge just north of Ellis Tourist Camp. Work will begin in the near future putting back the cement bridge at this point.

No work is being done yet on the old bridge between Clanton and South Clanton. It is hoped that hte cement floor of this bridge can be raised and blocked up without being completely torn apart.

Hundreds of extra workmen are employed by the county putting the more than a hundred bridges and water boxes back in passable shape.

Monday afternoon, April 11, they went to West Blocton, taking the high school team there in tow, as Baggett got a 5-hit game out of his system, though Chilton got only five off Moore, Crocker and Grady. Williamson led the Tigers with a pair of hits, with Carroll leading West Blocton with a pair.

Coach Varnell has a scrappy little baseball team at Chilton High this year. The boys are up and going, and give promise of a great year.

ALABAMA BONDED DEBT IS $71,020,000

Annual Interest Outlay Is $2,947,638.75 With Road Obligations At Top

The total bonded debt of the State of Alabama at the close of the last fiscal year was $71,020,000, which is approximately the same amount as the total gross receipts of the state for the year, according to the annual report of State Auditor C. E. McCall just released.

On this debt the state auditor's report shows an annual interest requirement of $2,947,638.75.

Maturity dates on some of the bonded debts run as far ahead as 1977, the longest being the harbor improvement bonds.

The bonded obligations include $8,557,000 of what is known as the "old bonded debt". These bonds represent a refunding of an issue of 1876 to cover bonds then outstanding which represented the ordinary debt of the state, the refunding of an issue of 1876 covering a scale-down of endorsed bonds of the Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad Company from $5,300,000 to $966,000, and a refunding of 4 per cent bonds originally issued for the purpose of redeeming state certificates.

The larger part of the bonded debt is accounted for by public road, highway and bridge obligations in two issues. On the first issue, as approved by an act October 19, 1921, the outstanding debt is $16,683,000, and on the second, as approved by an act of January 4, 1937, the obligation is $20,190,000.

Harbor improvement bonds account for $9,575,000 of the total, while refunding bonds cover the other $16,015,000.

It is for paying the interest and retiring the first issue of public road, highway and bridge bonds that the motor vehicle license revenue is being used, the law providing that "in cases of insufficiency of these revenues, the bonds are direct obligations against the general funds of the state treasury".

The second issue of highway bonds is taken care of by the gasoline taxes of the state.

Coincidentally, the amount of revenue being produced by the sales tax is just about the amount of money required to pay the interest each year on the bonded indebtedness of the state.

RECREATION FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

School's out — it's time to play.

And the urge to play is no less compelling to boys who must spend their waking hours on crutches and keep ever in mind their incapacity for too active sport.

Crippled children, having discarded crutches, the eager faces, and the almost normal activity, is the type that leaders in the campaign to help crippled children like to see. It demonstrates that the helping hand has not been in vain.

It shows that children who started life with the enormous handicaps of crippled limbs can gradually be absorbed in the normal pursuits around them. It shows that these children can become happy and contented.

But such a picture as this can not be made simply by building a volley ball court. Only years of research, months of skillful manipulation and treatment of crippled limbs and a determined effort to make the public conscious of the problems of the crippled child can do that.

The Crippled Children's Society of Chilton County was formed for the sole purpose of focusing public attention on this problem, long neglected or ignored, and urging the public through its local organizations to help solve the problem.

The annual seal campaign of the Society and its affiliates helps to provide some of the money for this undertaking. The Society is offering for sale at a penny each its Easter seals to help finance this necessary work.

The seals, yellow, blue and white, show a girl with a crutch under her arm, watering a lily plant. They will be on sale here from April 1 to 17. The slogan is: "A better life for crippled children."

MR. TIFFIN RETURNED HOME

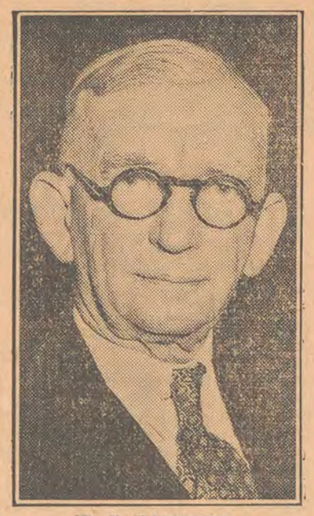
REFUGE



Sunday school was well attended Sunday, something for which we are proud.

Bro. McMinn delivered a good message at 11 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. Lockhart, also delivered an inspiring message Sunday night, with the house almost filled to capacity. Now, let's look forward to next Sunday, it being Easter Sunday. There will be a nice, clean egg hunt at 9 o'clock. All who wish to, come and bring your eggs and be present by 8:45. This will be carried out clean and wholesome. There are committees appointed to hide the eggs, and the rest can hunt for them. There will be Sunday school at 10, with preaching by the pastor at 11. Prayer service and preaching Sunday night.

On last Friday night the pastor, Rev. Lockhart, was surprised when quite a large crowd gathered at his home in honor of his 35th birthday. There was a good singing, and several nice cakes were enjoyed at the end of the singing. We wish for him many years of health and happiness, that he may carry the gospel to the end.—Mrs. J. S. Easterling, reporter.

SPARKS ROASTS DIXON

Mobile, April 11.—Chauncey Sparks, anti-Graves candidate for governor, roasted Frank Dixon of Birmingham with fiery oratory last week as his campaign assumed aspects of a triumphal march through his native wiregrass.

While reports of individual supporters and county organizations showed a growing swing to Sparks, the exponent of clean government in the state spoke to hundreds of cheering citizens at each of his meetings in the southeastern part of the state, except where heavy rains fell.

The week marked a change in Sparks' form of campaign from a calm, forceful presentation of his platform, the things he stands for, and his record, to a two-fisted, bristling series of speeches in which he told the voters they must determine "who is supporting who".

"Birds of a feather flock together, and a man must be judged by the company he keeps," Sparks thundered. "In 1934, one candidate declared political ringmasters did not tell the truth and never would tell the truth. Today where there is a ringmaster or political machine, some of that group will be found supporting him.

"My friends, if you want to perpetuate the form of pie-counter government you now have in Montgomery, cast your vote for some other candidate in this race than Chauncey Sparks. Major Frank Dixon has more support and more help from the Graves machine," he declared, "than any other candidate in the race."

Mr. Frank Stamps, of Birmingham, was in attendance at the singing convention here last Sunday.

CHILD BURIED AT TEMPLE

Little Kenneth Allen Easterling, age 2 years, 11 months and 8 days, son of Leonard P. Easterling, died at the home of his grandfather, George P. Thompson, Sunday night at 10:25 o'clock. Burial was at Temple cemetery Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, services conducted by Rev. A. T. Hickman, Martin directing.

Surviving are the father, two brothers and four sisters. The mother died about a year ago.

Mr. Doyle Marcus, of Kennedy, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. Posey G. Marcus, of Clanton, was operated on for appendicitis at Tuscaloosa hospital last Friday. He is reported to be improving nicely at this writing.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

ALABAMA IS INCREASING FOOD AND FEED CROPS

Auburn, Apr. 11. — A prospective increase of 7 per cent in Alabama's corn acreage is reported by the Alabama Crop Reporting Service. Increased Alabama acreages are also indicated for soybeans, oats, sweet potatoes, and tame hay, with no change for cowpeas, and a decrease from last year in Irish potatoes.

Public hearings were held in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida, and Texas during the past week to determine whether or not Irish potato producers desire a marketing agreement and order regulating the handling of Irish potatoes. The information gathered at the hearings has been sent to Secretary Wallace for consideration.

The most effective way to control the tent caterpillar is to apply an arsenical spray to the foliage when it unfolds in the spring and the young caterpillars begin to feed.

APRIL 30 LAST DAY TO FILL OUT WORK SHEETS

Auburn, April 11. — Saturday, April 30, has been set as the closing date for county AAA offices to accept work sheets to make farms eligible to be covered by application for payment under 1938 program, announces Walter L. Randolph, administrative officer in charge of the AAA program in Alabama.

"Operators of farms covered by unsigned work sheets should sign work sheets before closing date to make farm eligible to be covered by application for payments under the 1938 program", he advises.

"Producers who participated in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program have, of course, already signed 1937 work sheets and many of the producers who did not participate in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program have signed 1937 non-applicant work sheets in connection with the work of making 1938 farm cotton acreage allotments. Other producers have not, of course, signed 1937 work sheets, but must do so before midnight, April 30, 1938, in order to be eligible to receive payments under the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program."

GROW FEED, FOOD AND SEED ON RETIRED ACRES

Auburn, Apr. 11. — A good way for Alabama farmers to utilize some of the land retired from cotton production under the new farm program is to grow feeds, seeds, and soil building crops.

"Most farms need more feed for livestock, more seed for planting purposes and more crops for soil building and erosion control," report agronomists of the Alabama Extension Service.

"Practically every farm could well afford to have an area for seed production planted to such crops as lespedeza, crolataria, lespedeza sericea, cowpeas, soybeans, and other crops," they advise.

"Many of these crops can be used for several purposes. Annual lespedeza is good for seed production, hay, pasture, and soil building, while lespedeza sericea is good for hay, erosion control, and seed production.

"Soybeans and cowpeas are good for hay, seed production, human food, and soil building, while crotalaria is good for soil building and erosion control. Velvet beans also are good for grazing, soil building, and seed production. Peanuts can be grown for home consumption.

"Every farm should give consideration to planting alfalfa, lespedeza sericea, or kudzu for hay production. These are perennial plants and do not have to be planted every year. One of the best ways to enrich the land for these crops is to grow a crop or two of legumes, such as cowpeas and vetch."

An essential to the success of legumes and pasture plants is a liberal application of phosphate and lime. The 1938 farm program offers considerable encouragement for the use of these materials on legumes and pastures.

For information on growing these crops and qualifying for payments under the 1938 AAA program, farmers are being advised to see their county agents.

23 BOYS AND GIRLS WIN COTTON CONTEST

Auburn, Apr. 11. — A total of 22 Alabama boys and one girl have been named as winners in the Better Staple Cotton Contest sponsored by the Alabama Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

All the winners produced cotton of one inch and longer in staple length by using improved varieties such as Stoneville, DPL, and Clevewilt. About 800 boys and girls entered the contest.

As reported by J. C. Lowery, agronomist, Alabama Extension Service, the winners are: Wiley Dean, Coffee County; Warren Glasscock, Elmore; Jack Moore, Coffee; Fred Moore, Coffee; Clarence Hatchett, Talladega; Leonard Wyatt, Shelby; James Limbough, Talladega; Fred Canada, Talladega; Robert Morris, Talladega; R. J. Ray, Shelby; Gladys Woodruff, Tallapoosa; John Will Cotney, Chambers; Wallace Lindsey, Cleburne; Glenn Handley, Tallapoosa; Lathum Norton, Calhoun; Harlan Bryant, Calhoun; Charlie Hudgins, Calhoun; Grady Loden, Marion; Clarence Davis, Marion; Alvin Robinson, Limestone; Foster Gamble Owen, Tuscaloosa; Loyd Masingale, Hale; Joe Delma Hicks, Conecuh.

The contest was one part of a statewide cotton improvement program conducted in Alabama last year by the Alabama Extension Service cooperating with cotton farmers, ginners, manufacturers and others interested in improving the cotton productd in the state.

A recent court order requiring the destruction of oats shipped into Alabama by the Sun-Field Seed Service, makes a total of 15 such actions taken against shipments of this firm in recent years, reports the Division of Seed Investigations of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

CORN PRODUCTION IN SOUTH SHOWS FIVE-YEAR DECREASE

Auburn, Apr. 11. — Corn production in the cotton South has been smaller in 3 out of the last 5 years than the average for the 5-year period 1928-1932 according to figures supplied by P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

There was a net decrease from the 1928-1932 average in the number of bushels of corn produced during the 5 years, 1933 through 1937, in the 12 Southern states — Alabama, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, and Oklahoma.

Although the number of bushels of corn produced in these states during the 5 years of the AAA programs has been smaller, there has been a small increase over the previous 5 years in corn acreage. The 1928-1932 average of corn acreage in these states was 28,807,000 acres. The 1933-1937 average was 30,247,000 acres. The acreage in 1937, however, was 28,730,000, or slightly less than the 1928-1932 average.

The average yield of corn in these states is 15.3 bushels per acre, compared with an average yield of 25.4 bushels per acre for all farms in the United States, and an average yield of 38.3 bushels per acre in Iowa. These 12 Southern states have about 2½ times as much corn acreage as Iowa, yet Iowa produces as many bushels of corn as all 12 of these states.

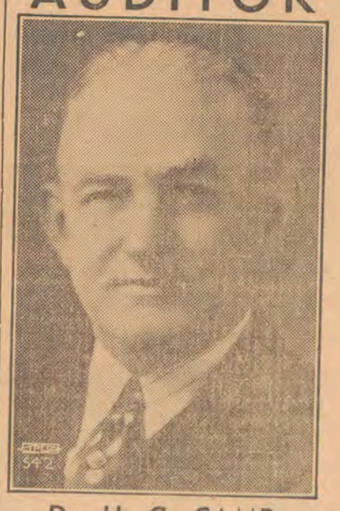
The Southern farmer has been able to increase his home food and feed supply by using much of his acreage taken out of cotton for legumes, Sudan grass, and pastures. In some cases, land taken out of cotton has been held out of production in order that it might be terraced as a permanent conservation measure.

SIDE DRESSING COTTON

Farmers have learned from years of experence that a side dressing of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda after chopping cotton or when when corn is about knee high pays real dividends. The side dressing comes at a time when the plants can take up the nitrogen quickly. It feeds the crop — not the grass.

4-H MEMBERS OFFERED AWARDS TO REPORT ON RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

Information is being sought from 4-H Clubsters of the state this summer through the National 4-H Rural Electrification Prgoram which is designed to advance the use of electricity on farms along the most efficient and economical lines. Approval and supervision of the contest by the State Extension Service makes all club boys and girls eligible for participation.



Gains last year in farms being served by high lines throughout the nation were roundly 200,000, which brings the total to 1,241,505, according to best figures. It is estimated that 250,000 additional farms are served by other sources.

Clubsters are asked to report on the use of electricity in their poultry, canning, and other projects, or how it might be used; to give practical and economical reasons for the use of various electrical appliances; describe any activity like discussions or demonstrations on the farm use of electricity; submit a record of general 4-H activities; and describe electrical projects or activities on wiring and installation and care of appliances.

Awards are provided, viz: gold medal for the best county report, all expense trip to National 4-H Club Congress for best state report, and college scholarships of $400, $300, $200 and $100 for the highest rating winners by extension divisions, the donor being the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. No fee or obligation of any kind is required of contestants.

Do you want to SAVE MONEY?

The Standard Coupe

The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horsepower engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money.

300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why?

Because it is priced low—includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in—as well as easy to buy and run. There's a Ford dealer near you.

MINERAL SPRINGS CLUB

The Mineral Springs Home Demonstration Club met March 30 at the home of Mrs. M. Gore with 14 members present. We enrolled two new members, Mrs. J. B. Sammons and Mrs. Ruby Kimbrel.

Mrs. Welch and Mr. Ivey met with the club and both gave interesting taks on kitchen improvement and what the husbands could do to help in this contest. Several educational games were played while the demonstration was being prepared. Our leaders, Miss Gertrude Gore and Miss Maude Retherford, gave a very interesting demonstration on "Pies and Pastries".

We elected a committee on the kitchen improvement contest to score the kitchens of the club members who are entering the contest. This committeed is composed of Miss Gladys Dobbs, chairman, and Miss Berty Lou Gore and Miss Maude Retherford. Delicious lemon chiffon pie and hot chocolate were served at the end of the meeting with the leaders explaining how the demonstration was conducted. The meeting adjourned until next month, and the place of meeting will be announced later.

The roll call showed the attendance of eight members, two new members, and one visitor. There were no minutes to be read, as there was no meeting in March. Miss Grace gave a very interesting discussion on the kitchen improvement contest, and the kitchen committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. J. B. Parrish, chairman, Mrs. Fannie Collins, Mrs. Amos Smith.

The club decided to make a quilt to be sold to make money for the treasury. The committee to select the pattern for the quilt was appointed as follows: Mrs. W. H. Kennedy, chairman, Mrs. H. P. McKay, and Mrs. Foster Sewell.

After the demonstration on "Quick Breads and Pastries", we were served with cheese biscuits, cherry pie, and coffee.

The place for the next meeting will be announced later by card.—Martha Kennedy, reporter.

Reorganization Bill Gets Death Blow In The House

Representatives Whip Roosevelt For Third Time In Recent Months; Leadership At Stake

Washington, Apr. 8. — The administration took a terrific beating when the House of Representatives rose up against the government reorganization bill Friday night and sent it back to a special reorganization committee.

Democratic leaders had admitted before the vote that such action would kill the bill. They said it would be interpreted as meaning that the House had voted a lack of confidence in the president.

It was the third major setback the House had handed the administration since December. The first was when it re-committed the wage-hour bill, the second when it revolted against placing a special surtax on family-owned and closely-held corporations.

Friday night's vote was announced by Speaker Bankhead as 204 to 196. He and Majority Leader Rayburn, just before the roll was called, had marched dramatically down into the well of the chamber to assert with all the fervency at their command that Democrats, by their vote, should not send over the nation a message that the president was no longer the leader of his party.

Narrow as was the opposition's margin of victory, Bankhead himself said it was not so close as to warrant a re-tabulation.

Chairman O'Connor (D., N. Y.), of the rules committee, ordinarily one of the triumvirate of the leadership, clinched the bill's defeat by getting the legislators to table a motion to reconsider the recommittal vote.

Few denied that one of the major factors in scuttling the measure was the enormous outpouring of messages from constituents back home. All House members are coming up for re-election in November, and the first primary in Illinois is only a few days off.

The voting took place in almost dead silence, broken only by the staccato "ayes" and "noes". But once it was over and the result announced, a roar rolled through the chamber. Members rushed to O'Connor to congratulate him. Speaker Bankhead was unable for many minutes to obtain sufficient order to wind up the session.

Bankhead had said a motion to re-commit would be a "lethal blow", and admonished the legislators that blazing headlines would proclaim: "House of Representatives, by Democratic votes, has repudiated the President of the United States".

The embattled O'Connor, speaging against the bill, declared:

"This measure is an attempt to compel congress to surrender its rights," referring to the proposed grant of power to the president to revamp government bureaus.

"Now, do not say that anybody on this side is playing with the Republicans," he continued. "The Republicans can be right. They can be right on a great fundamental government issue.

"I submit to you that some of the outstanding and the older members of this House are against the bill. They are friendly, they love the great president of this country, but they love their party, and I have never in my life seen anything that has tended more to destroy our party than this issue, and destroy the individual members of this House, whom we want to see elected on the Democratic side.

"I am appealing for the interests of my party and my Democratic colleagues, that if this bill is not re-committed for further study, it will be disastrous to our party and to our country, which I love above my party."

Alabama representatives voting to sidetrack the measure were Jarman, Patrick, Sparkman, and Starnes, while Hobbs voted for the measure.

VERBENA HOME DEMONSTRATION

The Verbena Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. Joe Gaines Thursday, April 7, with 11 members present in spite of the heavy downpour of rain.

The meeting was given a peppy air and beginning by singing "Dixie" and "Church In The Wildwood". A report was given by the home agent on the last council meeting, and this was followed by a discussion of the public speaking contest the clubs are discussing entering. Several members of the Verbena club decided to enter and have a community speaking occasion. The best speaker will be chosen to compete with other club winners.

A report was given on disposal of the club quilt, and amount collected for it. Following this, the club members voted to pay their dollar to the council as agreed upon last fall, for the scholarship fund, which is now sending Martha Kennedy to business school.

A program on citizenship followed, directed by our chairman, Mrs. Oscar Howard. Her interesting talk was based on the 9th chapter of Judges, and was followed by all members repeating in unison the citizenship creed. Mrs. H. T. Williams, Jr., read "The American Nation", and the club joined in discussion of "What my community needs to make it a better place in which to grow our American citizens". Mrs. W. B. Strock read "This Is The Life That Counts", and the program was ended by singing "America, The Beautiful", and prayer. The hostess served delicious cake and punch.

The club will meet with Mrs. H. T. Williams on May 5.

WORMS IN POULTRY EASILY DETECTED IN POST MORTEM TESTS

Immediate Treatment Gives Best Results

Gray Summit, Mo.—Some poultry yards contain more roundworms and tapeworms than chickens. Thousands of dollars are lost ach year by infestations of these worms, and unfortunately, the trouble seems to be on the increase. Ten years ago tapeworms, particularly, were not nearly so prevelant as they are today in the United States and Canada.

Worms are truly the greatest profit absorber of the poultry yard. Good feed, good management, and raising birds from good stock count as nothing against the ravages o. worms. They get the feed intended for the bird and cause severe losses in body weight while tearing down resistance. Worms may also blind birds and cause them to become lame or paralyzed. They lower vitality, and cut down egg production because wormy birds are robbed of the feed that should go into egg making.

Irritate Intestines

Tapeworms irritate the lining of the intestines and cause the formation of pus pockets, making the bird an easy prey for severe enteritis, coccidiosis, and other diseases.

Symptoms of worms are a danger signal to the poultryman who knows that only a worm-free flock can give him the kind of production he wants, and turn in a real profit for him. Some of the indications of worms are failure of growing stock to continue growing properly, unusually rough feathers on birds, paleness around the head, listlessness or lameness, and any unexplained drop in egg production among mature birds.

"Posting" Is Sure Test

The surest and most definite way of finding out whether birds are wormy is to "post" an average bird from the flock, according to poultry specialists here at the Purina Experimental Farm. Post mortem examinations are easy to make and always give accurate information.

To kill a bird for post mortem examination, the legs and tip of the wing feathers should be grasped in one hand to prevent the bird from flopping after being killed. Then, with the head of the bird between the thumb and first finger, and the little finger under the bird's beak a slight tug will stretch the neck until the head can be bent back sharply, dislocating the neck at the base of the skull.

Don't Skimp ...But Save!

Sometimes we confuse skimping with saving. We measure our purchasing by someone else's price rule.

Saving means getting full value for every penny while paying less than we would have to pay elsewhere.

Skimping means doing without what we need because the price includes something we are not getting.

BUDGETING TIME

It is budgeting time that eliminates less important duties and helps one to accomplish things that are more vital. Sufficient rest and sleep each night is essential. The diet is also important, especially when one is very busy and perhaps tired. The pleasant spring week ends are best to enjoy fresh air, sunshine and outdoor exercises. It is economy of time, effort and materials, as well as furnishings, that are the important factors in raising our living standards. Too many possessions require excessive time and effort for their care, subjecting the home makers to a perpetual slavery that keeps them from enjoying many of the social and cultural opportunities of life.

The Age of "Less"

This is a topsy-turvy world, what with fireless cookers, wireless telegrams, horseless carriages, seedless grapes and spineless cactus.

There is more of "less" everyday. Today it is smokeless powder; tomorrow it may be headless cabbage or costless merchandise.

And speaking of merchandise . . . remember that the goods you buy from advertisements in this newspaper actually cost less for the same high quality. That's one reason why people read our ads so carefully, why they do their family shopping through the family newspaper. Also, that's why this isn't an adless paper! Aditorial by Andy

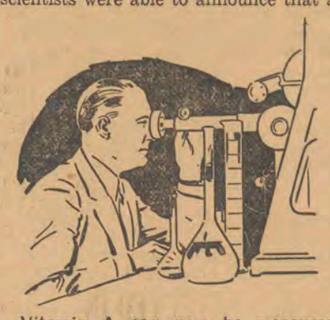
Scientists Measure And Control Vitamins For Modern Chickens

Gray Summit, Mo.—Few things are conspicuous by their absence. But vitamins are among the few that are, since a great deal of vitamin knowledge has been brought about by showing what happens when vitamins are not present. Here at the Purina Experimental Farm thousands of tests have been run on poultry of all ages. Sometimes an abundance of vitamins have been included. Other times feeds lacking in vitamins have been fed. These experiments have disclosed some interesting nutritional facts. Weak legs, poor feathering, retarded growth, bronchial troubles, poor pigmentation, lowered production, disease and infection have all been accounted for by lack of the proper vitamins in poultry feed.



Poultry Need Vitamins

The most important vitamins in poultry feeding are Vitamins A, D, and G. They are most important because they are most likely not to be present in sufficient amounts to promote growth and health.

The process of counting or measuring vitamins is a tedious and expensive one, and only feed manufacturers equipped with complete biological laboratories, trained scientists, and plenty of animals to experiment with can make commercial use of the present-day knowledge of vitamins.

Vitamin Control New

Vitamin control in poultry feeds is relatively new. Vitamins were discovered about 22 years ago, but most of the usable knowledge about them has come to the front since 1920. In 1935 Purina scientists were able to announce that a new Vitamin A concentrate had been discovered and could be efficiently and economically added to poultry feeds to improve livability, growth, pigmentation, and laying. Purina laying mashes were stepped up 2½ times in Vitamin A content by the addition of Puratene, which contains Carotene, the vegetable form of Vitamin A.

Vitamin A can now be measured through a machine called the "spectrophotometer."

Vitamin A Essential

Vitamin A is needed by baby chicks, growing pullets, and layers. Especially do laying hens need plenty of Vitamin A to keep up production through winter months. Abundance of Vitamin A in the laying mash prevents breakdown among birds and cuts mortality among the flock. Pullets that have been grown out on a feed containing sufficient amounts of Vitamin A go into the laying house with strong, well-developed bodies and are able to keep up heavy production without breakdown and turn into extra profits for their owner.

Vitamin D the sunshine vitamin, is absolutely necessary if hens are kept indoors. For baby chicks as much as 30 units of Vitamin D per every 100 grams of feed must be given for proper bone development and growth. The best known source of Vitamin D for poultry feeds is cod liver oil, the same source recommended for humans. The finest grade of cod liver oil the world produces is used in Purina poultry mashes. Each shipment is tested through assay tests on both white rats and chicks before it is put into feeds going into the checkerboard bag.

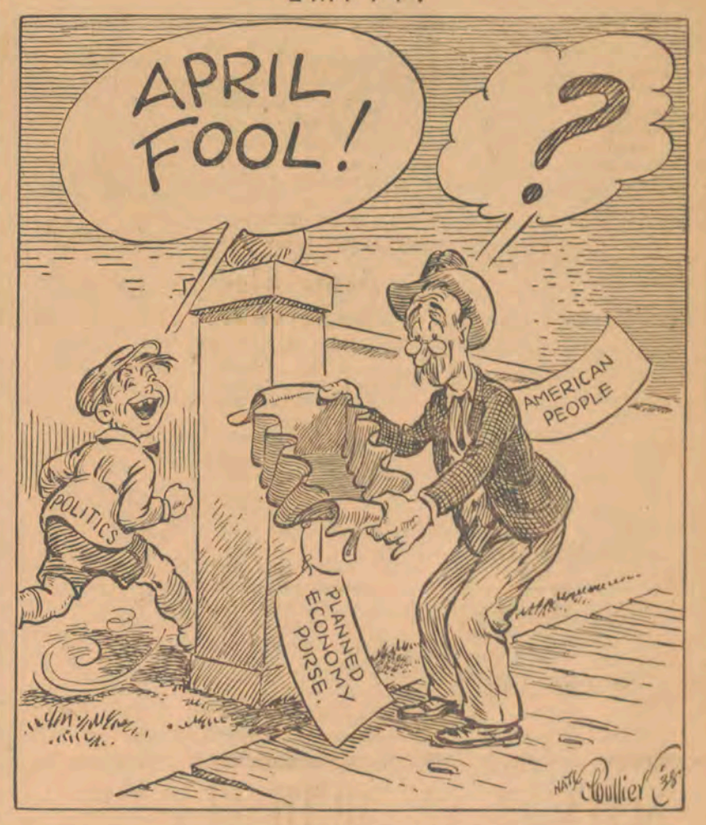
Vitamin G Now Added



Most recent of the vitamin discoveries is Vitamin G, which plays an important part in hatchability. Purina laying and breeding mashes contain a sufficient amount of Vitamin G to cut down losses from eggs that don't hatch. Vitamin G is measured in the Purina Laboratories by use of a new instrument, the Flavometer. This instrument was developed by two Purina scientists and is used to determine the Vitamin G content in feed.

Gray Summit Mo.—Five years ago Purina Research men began a series of tests to learn how a cow should be conditioned during the dry period for easier calving. In working on this problem related discoveries of even greater importance were made. It was found that cows conditioned for easier calving through experimental management and feeding methods increased their milk flow from 10 to 25 percent the following lactation period. The result is today's dry cow program recommended by all Purina feed merchants.

CCC AS TRAINING GROUND

It is the opinion of army officers that a young man who has been trained in the Civilian Conservation Corps could be made a pretty good soldier in a month. Pronounced pacifists may not welcome this bit of news. Their idea of the way to keep out of war is to remain unprepared for it. They cling to the idea once held by William Jennings Bryan that, should war be forced upon the country, a million men would spring to arms over night, prepared to smite the enemy hip and thigh. It is a beautiful theory which ignores the fact that a million men unprepared would be a mighty crop of cannon fodder.

The common sense view is that the greater number of the prepared, the safer the country will be, and the less its losses should war come. The CCC is not a military school. It does not teach soldiering. But it gives its members the discipline combined with self-reliance that goes to the making of a good soldier. It inculcates habits which tend to health and hardihood. They are qualities, however acquired or developed, that make men better fitted for the struggles of life in peace or in war.

The CCC is not a part of the country's military establishment. It may, however, as incidental to its main purpose, serve as a valuable ally. That is a condition to be welcomed. If a graduate of the CCC may be made a good soldier in a month, so much the better.—Boston Transcript.

SUICIDE BY TAXATION

"The biggest problem facing the nation today," says Roger Babson, "is not the recession, not the jobless, not the railroads; it is our taxation system." Unsound, excessive, and inequitable taxation, coupled with unprecedented government extravagance is slowly driving the nation to commit suicide by taxation. Reform in government spending and taxation is the crying need of the moment. As Mr. Babson declared, the only basic policy in our present system is an almost fanatical desire to conceal taxes from the ultimate payer—the consumer. Taxation has been instrumental in bringing private enterprise and industrial progress to the present point of stagnation.

Mr. Babson points to 10 different steps that should be taken immediately:

1. Broaden the income tax base.
2. Pare down excessively high income taxes.
3. Reduce capital gains assessments.
4. Eliminate tax-exempt securities.
5. Tax government employees.
6. Remove the undistributed profits tax.
7. Stop the present policy of virtual "embezzlement" of social security funds.
8. Clamp down on special local taxes.
9. Lower real estate taxes.
10. Cut public spending.

These are concrete suggestions for a practical program of solvency and business encouragement which, if enacted, would stimulate the private citizen to forge ahead. Private enterprise would take a new lease on life. Employment and wages would resume their upward march in step with the constantly rising standard of living that has characterized American progress for the last 150 years.—Ansonia (Conn.) Sentinel.

People who otherwise always mind their own business, can't resist the temptation to tell those who have colds how to cure them.—Leavenworth Times.

The president in his Georgia speech made some reference to the "feudal" system. But the 11,000,000 out of jobs, and the $20,000,000,000 debt might indicate that the New Deal is somewhat a "futile" system.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

BY FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One product of which there is never a shortage in the United States is propaganda. The American people are deluged with it. It comes to us from abroad and at home. The "news" which we get from Europe—much of it filtered through foreign censorship—is surcharged with it. All in all, there is fascist propaganda, nazi propaganda, red propaganda, and political propaganda. Ask any newspaper editor who has the task of going through the editorial mail personally, and he will tell you disposing of propaganda is one of the chief tasks of his editorial day. Much of the daily dose of propaganda is, of course, ineffective, but a great deal of it, unfortunately, carries some weight with the public conscience.

With all of this in mind, the annual report of Will H. Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, setting forth that the moving pictures of America controlled by his organization have been able to avoid the color of propaganda and will continue to do so, makes very pleasant reading. Touching on the subject of propaganda in his report, Mr. Hays says:

"In a period in which propaganda has largely reduced the artistic and entertainment validity of the screen in many other countries, it is pleasant to report that American motion pictures continue to be free from any but the highest possible entertainment purpose.

"The industry has resisted and must continue to resist the lure of propaganda in a sinister sense persistently urged upon it by extremist groups. The function of the entertainment art is to entertain, by whatever wholesome theme or treatment writers, artists and dramatists can create. There is no other criterion. Only those who have a selfish purpose to serve can cry out against such a policy.

"Entertainment is the commodity for which the public pays at the box office. Propaganda disguised as entertainment would be neither honest salesmanship nor honest showmanship."

Heads of the motion picture industry are undoubtedly wise from more than one standpoint in avoiding the evils of propaganda for their product. The motion picture is amusement of the great American family. The theatres where it is shown are patronized by young and old alike. The message it carries creates many times the vivid impression of the printed word, because it is visualized and produces a concrete impression in the mind of the audience. It is therefore supremely important from the standpoint of sound American citizenship that the motion picture be kept free from subversive propaganda of every sort. Just as the edifor of your newspaper carefully sifts the wheat from the chaff and tosses the obviously worded propaganda into the waste basket, so it is the duty of the motion picture producer to see to it that his handiwork is not contaminated with any selfishness or subversive poison.

There is a sound commercial reason, too, why motion picture entertainment should be propaganda free. The people go to the motion picture theatre to be entertained and not to be lectured. Nothing would irk the average motion picture patron more than paying out his good money for entertainment, then being compelled either to listen to a thinly disguised propaganda story or to walk out of the place. There have been some much advertised propaganda theatrical productions in the past and they have generally been unsuccessful.

If Mr. Hayes will therefore see to it that the American motion picture is kept free from selfish and subversive propaganda, he will be performing a service comparing in importance with the task of keeping the motion picture entertainment morally clean. In this double barreled task he has the best wishes of the American public, regardless of race, creed, or political affiliation.

WHO OWNS THE UTILITIES?

Utility companies are not self-owned. They are owned by their shareholders, who are persons in all walks of life. Some of them are widows, some of them are orphans, some of them are invalids. When government "cracks down" mercilessly on utilities it is "cracking down" on innocents who must suffer because of activities by politicians who know nothing about managing properties. An illiterate can frame a regulatory law, but does that qualify him as a manager?

It is time for the voices of the widows and orphans who hold shares in utilities should be heard and heeded. When government causes companies to lose, government punishes helpless investors. This paper holds no brief for utility companies—it never has—but if the regulatory boards are performing their duties these companies cannot be as wicked as spending politicians claim they are. —Charleston News and Courier.

An Indiana congressman who was held up and robbed of $16 in addition to two watches and checks which apparently could not be cashed, has excitedly urged that such offenses in the District of Columbia be met with life imprisonment or capital punishment. MEDICINE MEN RULE

If popular government fails, it will be because the populace did not know how to use its power. It will fail for the reason that the divine right of kings failed—for the lack of a bridle to direct strength and authority into the proper channels. We have evolved from a charter which declared that every man is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness and that governments exist to enforce these rights, to a philosophy which makes government a sort of All-Father, a sort of golden calf moulded from gifts of the people, which in turn is supposed to be able to supply the good things of life to everyone who bows down before the priests of Apis. Wise as we pretend to be, we are still under the dominion of the political medicine man who by some sort of hokus pokus promises to keep the lightning of mathematics from striking.—Cass Lake (Minn.) BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Ten good men would have saved Sodom. Wealth has its proper place in our modern world, but wealth, when over-emphasized, becomes a curse instead of a blessing. Military machinery is needful under present world conditions. However, the mad rush of nations to arm means that sooner or later the house of civilization will fall under the weight of its armies and navies. What the world needs is good men. If the chamber of commerce in Sodom had invited a man like Abraram to move in and become city manager, and had listened to his wisdom and followed his example, they would have saved their property and would have escaped the catastrophe which overtook them in their wickedness. Communities do not realize how much they are indebted to the men and women of God who live in their midst. The writer conducted an evangelistic campaign a number of years ago in a certain town of the South. There lived in that town a frail old minister of the Gospel. This old saint got up every morning hours before day to pray. We may learn at the Judgment Seat of Christ that a tornado one time started toward that town and God, in order to avoid disturbing the prayer of His servant, ordered the tornado to change its course. We may learn that a dreadful epidemic started that way on wings of destruction, and God sent it in another direction because He wanted the old saint to keep on praying. Few people realize how great is their obligation to God's people who live in their communities.

"Sam Jones had great success in his evangelistic work in all sections of America except in California". That is what a minister said to the writer years ago. Somehow that statement has lingered in my mind through all of these years. I remember the first evangelistic campaign I conducted in California I undertook the meeting with a feeling that I was facing a difficult situation. I found the state just a little different from some of our other states, but in all of the campaigns I have had in the state, I have had the joy of seeing people saved. I have also had fellowship with some of the liveliest Christians I have ever known. But now to the story I started to tell. Recently, during a two weeks' evangelistic mission in San Francisco, I heard a most remarkable story about Sam Jones and a meeting which he conducted years ago in a California city. Sam preached one day on the subject of "consecration". A wealthy and prominent young matron was in the audience. The message went home to her heart. At the close of the service she went to the front and gave her hand to the evangelist, pledging her life in full surrender to God. The woman was Mrs. Lizzie H. Glide, who established the Glide Foundation. She has given away multiplied thousands of dollars for a definite evangelistic orthodox Christian program. The building in San Francisco in which the writer spoke for 15 days was built by Mrs. Glide. The money for the radio program which I had the joy of speaking on each day was provided by the Glide Foundation. Mrs. Glide is an old woman. I did not have the pleasure of seeing her. Sam Jones is dead and gone. If Sam does not know now, he will know some day that his California ministry was a great success. It probably was the most successful venture he ever had in evangelistic work. When I get to heaven, I shall say: "Congratulations, Brother Sam, on the great work you did in California. I had the joy of reaping where you had sown". We Christians will have many surprises in heaven. Some things that looked big here will have "shrunk". Some things that looked small down here will loom large over there. Our business is to be faithful in the place where He puts us.

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK. — Leslie Hore-Belisha, British secretary of war, made himself somewhat of a national hero several months ago when he shook up the army command, upped the youngsters and sent the oldsters back to their club chairs. The report of his ultimatum demanding a change of foreign policy is a standout in the current news.

Britain in Race to Get Army Ready

There was something like consternation among British conservatives early in 1937, when Prime Minister Chamberlain named the incidentally Jewish Mr. Hore-Belisha for the war post. There was no hint of anti-Semitism in their attitude, but just then certain optimists among them were trying to tool Britain into the German orbit, and there were alarmed predictions that Hitler would be enraged and seek quick vengeance.

That didn't come off, and the new war secretary started a whirlwind army clean-up and all-around reconditioning campaign, to the satisfaction of all hands. Seventy-nine-year-old Sir Ian Hamilton, who had been in command at the Dardanelles, said, "Thank God we are under a proper soldier and will not be shot sitting down."

He has spent a lot of time badgering his elders, and still has many of them to work on, as he is only forty-three. When, a brash young Oxonian, he ran for parliament, his opponent tagged him as "the nonentity of the college bench." He nailed this on his mast-head, spoofed the opposition cleverly, and romped in.

Clever at Badgering His Elders

He was a dispatch carrier in the war, then a major, a reporter on a London newspaper, with convenient underground pipelines to the front page and the headlines.

He became financial secretary of the treasury in 1932 and later minister of transportation. He is a demon for detail and has swarmed all over England, inspecting equipment, barracks and army kitchens.

He is of medium stature, round-headed, with roached, graying hair, unmarried and given to night forays, checking this or that detail of the military establishment.

AT LEAST six times in the past 150 years, the Rothschilds have been counted out, and they have always come back—like John Barleycorn and Old King Cotton. Now the arrest of Baron Louis von Rothschild is reported from Vienna. The era which founded their dynasty was disquietingly like this one. The Romanoffs, and the Hapsburgs, Matternich and Disraeli and all the other kings, conquerors and statesmen came to terms with them.

Conquerors Old Stuff to Bank Family

Baron Louis is the head of the house. The catastrophic fall of the Creditanstalt bank of Vienna in 1931 was supposed to have wrecked them.

A few weeks later, they were shoveling money into American securities, and, it was reported, snagging a stray million here and there by a fast overseas play on francs, an old family custom.

Louis and his brother, Alphonse, were living in regal splendor when the Creditanstalt failed. They had great estates and maginificent art gallaries, shooting lodges, a huge Franz Lehar chorus of retainers, deer parks and a brace of medieval castles. Much of these holdings slipped away, as Louis, with somewhat less than the usual family zest and acumen in financial affairs, turned to a study of philosophy and the arts.

Deer Parks and Castles Faded Away

It is 132 years since Napoleon, after Austerlitz, made mince-meat of the Holy Roman empire and even more ruthlessly dismembered Austria. Nathan, James and Solomon von Rothschild, sons of Mayer Anselm, founder of the line, not only saved their holdings, but extended their dominions to the remotest corner of Europe.

These vast ramifications of their fortune, one of the largest in the history of the world, were in land, steel, coal, manufactories and munitions, and, in later decades, in oil and hydroelectric power.

Libraries have been written about them, one notable record being Zola's "L'Argent." Their continental money matrix has been a stabilizer at times. It is possible that the Vienna jail door clangs the end of a dynasty and an epoch—but not quite certain. History will tell.

AN INVITATION BY THE ALABAMA POWER CO.

Around the hundreds of square miles of lakes created by our power dams on the Coosa and Tallapoosa Rivers, the wild azalea, dogwood, mountain laurel, and other wild flowers are or will be in bloom. In the lakes, bass, crappie, pike, bream, drum and catfish are biting. If beautiful scenery—the match of any in the South—or fishing, appeals to you, you will want to visit them. Although we are inviting you to visit these beauty and recreation spots, no invitation is necessary, because they are on public streams.

Most of the land around the reservoirs is the property of Alabama Power Company on which it has paid taxes for many years. If you go upon that land for fishing, picnics, or other recreation, our only request is that you be careful not to set fire to the woods by the careless tossing of a match or lighted cigarette, or by leaving your camp fire unextinguished, and that you do not cut or break down the wild azaleas, rhododendron, mountain laurel, dogwood, or other flowering shrubs, and so destroy their beauty. Leave them, so that those visitors who come after you may also enjoy them. For your own safety, do not venture into dangerous waters, especially immediately above or below the dams.

Camping and boating facilities on the lakes are provided by individual camp operators not associated with Alabama Power Company. Those conveniences have been provided for you by their owners without expense to the government or to us, and the owners pay taxes on them.

While on your recreation trip, perhaps you'll want to visit one or more of the power plants which create the lakes. You will not find any showy architectural effects, but a simple beauty in keeping with their purpose of producing power for you at reasonable cost. They were built with vast sums of money, supplied in large part by people of Alabama and other states. Not one dollar of their cost has come from the public treasury! In fact, through heavy taxation, they contribute to the public treasury. They are operated for the public good.

Come and see one or more of these plants. Like thousands of others who have done so, you will marvel at them. Your welcome is assured. Employees at each of the plants will be glad to show you through and explain their operation.

If you travel the Birmingham-Montgomery highway, near Verbena you will pass Alabama Power Company's tree nursery, with an annual capacity of a million tree seedlings, used in reforestation and to prevent soil erosion around the lakes. Jordan, Mitchell and Lay Dams are each only about an hour's drive from the nursery. If you travel on the Florida Short Route, or in the area near our developments on the Tallapoosa River, you can easily reach Martin, Thurlow and Upper Tallassee dams.

You can drive right to the power plants on good, all weather roads, so please do not attempt to see the power plants from a boat. To do so is hazardous. Tie your boat at a safe distance and come into the plant and see it at close range.

We hope you'll visit them soon!—Thomas W. Martin, president, Alabama Power Company.

VERBENA ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

A closing school play, "The Rejuvenation of Uncle Hi," will be presented by the graduating class of Verbena Grammar school, Tuesday night, April 19th, 1938. In addition to the main play there will be between acts, "The Kiddie Band," "Folk Dances," ect. There will be a small admission of 5c to pay the expenses of the play. Well worth your money. Come.

The cast of characters are as follows: Uncle Hi, Edward Plott; Aunt Hetty Pierson, Mildred Boyd; Floyd Moore, Guy Caffey; Bert Miles, Eugene Rutland; Benny Landers, Cecil Patton; Arthur Gore, Pauline Plott; Alex Price, Wilburn Howard; Anna Beers, Evis Bullard; Hilda Miner, Margaret McGalliard; Mabel Crane, Levis Bullard; Fanny Spencer, Margaret Plott; Reta Talbot, Helen Jenkins; Lucindy Jackson, Katherine Pratt; Rastus White, Henry Boyd.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—One of this department's favorite monarchs has long been Jeff Davis, king of the hoboes of America, who now leads his following of nearly 1,000,000 in a plan to erect a national memorial to John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home."

Hoboes Will Pay Honor to Bard of Home

There is perhaps a bit of personal pride involved, as your correspondent helped establish the dynasty. That was many years ago, when a series of hobo stories in the Chicago Tribune elevated Dr. Ben Reitman to the kingship. Dr. Reitman, however, was a backslider, turning at first furtively and then brazenly to regular work, went into politics in Chicago and became a cautious and solvent citizen, too fat to ride the rods.

I saw him last at the house of the late Jack London, in Sonoma county, Calif., and, if I remember correctly, Mr. London reproached him as one recreant to his ideals and in danger of succumbing to industry and ambition.

Until a few years ago, I used to get letters from the hoboes of America, on letter-heads like those of any national bank, carrying the names of the "jungle judges," "shacks" (organizers) and "track walkers" and "supreme knights of the road."

King Jeff Is Elected to Job for Life

They had to do with some misunderstanding in the organization over the lingering sovereignty of Dr. Reitman, but that is all cleared up now. Mr. Davis' rule is undisputed and his name appears on the letter-head as "Jungle Judge, King of the Hoboes, elected for Life."

Mr. Davis, now fifty-three years old, has covered his first 1,000,000 miles on the road, and plans to start his second million on an organizing trip in Europe early this year. His father, James Davis, who died in Cincinnati a year ago at the age of ninety, had been vaguely identified as a newspaper man, working on several Cincinnati newspapers, but with no news as to what department.

Young Jeff, born in Cincinnati, started rambling when he was thirteen and now fetches up with a round forty years on the road. Bald and genial, working harder at the hobo trade than do most men on their regular jobs, he campaigns for better migrating and loafing conditions for his subjects.

He wants the railroads to establish a one-cent-a-mile rate for box car passengers. He says the plan has worked fine in France. He moves about the country, fighting the bum blockades set up by various states. He denounces the "fuzzy-tails" in his following—hoboes who talk a lot but never toss anything into the jungle stew.

CORRESPONDENTS on the British-Italian radio war front in Arabia report a victory in the first engagement for Abdul Wahab, the desert Rudy Vallee, crooning for Italy. The sheiks, according to news accounts, tuned out Britain's broadcast, which included news of a death sentence for an Arab found in possession of arms, and tuned in Italy's cheerful crooner.

Italy Wins Radio Duel in Desert

The Italians also were one-up on the Britons, due to the fact that the former had supplied many of the radio sets and taken precautions to rig them against Britain's thirty-one-meter wavelength.

Sir John C. W. Reith, grim, purposeful and, incidentally, Scottish, director general of the British Broadcasting corporation, led off for England, paced by Big Ben and "God Save the King." Abdul countered with "Just a Little Oasis for Two," and "Aldebaran and You," in Arabic. It was no contest after that, say the news reports.

Sir John's last appearance was at Edward's solemn valedictory. The tall, bald, frosty mogul of British Broadcasting, lord of the empire air waves, takes the microphone only when imperial interests demand it. Recently he said: "To set out to give the public what it wants, as the saying is, is a dangerous and fallacious policy."

Lord of Air Keeps B.B.C. Out in Front

Those who know him say he will go on giving the Arabs what he thinks they ought to want, and probably get away with it. He has been lambasted as a dictator all over the empire, but has ridden through labor and conservative administrations and keeps the B. B. C. steadily advancing.

He is the most inaccessible man in England, forty-seven years old, the son of an old-line Scotch clergyman, trained in engineering at the Royal College of Glasgow, successful as an engineer in London, before becoming general manager of the B. B. C. in 1922. His salary is $35,000 a year.

ALABAMA POWER CO.'s TAXES

Birmingham, April 7. — The annual report to the stockholders of Alabama Power Company, just published, submitted by its directors through Thomas W. Martin, president, reveals that the company remains the largest taxpayer in the State of Alabama, with a daily tax bill of $8,446. The total charge for taxes in 1937 amounted to $3,082,828.61, of which over $1,000,000 went directly into school funds for the benefit of common schools and higher institutions of learning in Alabama. The company's tax bill amounts to 1 1|3 times the amount paid in dividends to preferred stockholders, 2|3 as much as is paid in interest to bond holders, 70 per cent as much as is paid in salaries and wages to its 2,700 employees, and 4|5 as much as is received from all residential customers.

The 1937 taxes were the highest in the history of the company, and rates were reduced to the lowest point in its history. Sales of electricity to regular customers in 1937 were 5.3 per cent greater than in 1936, although the report states that the slump in business generally, which began in the late summer of 1937, had an adverse effect on the sale of power.

According to the report, during 1937 residential customers of Alabama Power Company used on the average 62 per cent more electricity than residential customers throughout the nation, but paid 32 per cent less than the national average rate for it. The average rate paid by Alabama Power Company residential customers during 1937 declined to 2.97 cents per kilowatt hour, with much of the current being sold to residential consumers at 1 cent a kilowatt hour. The report states that the competitive operations of the TVA has so depressed prices of the company's securities that it has been unable to refinance at lower rates of interest, and is thus prevented from realizing savings in its fixed charges, which could be largely passed on to customers in the form of still lower rates.

According to the report, the company was, at the end of 1937 operating 5,541 miles of rural lines, serving 57,000 rural customers. It supplied directly or indirectly, electric service to 672 communities in 64 of the 67 counties of the state, in which the power requirements of 226,000 customers were being provided by the company.

Net income during 1937 was only $252,725 greater than in 1936.

S. J. M. Webb Writes To Voters

Editor Union-Banner:

I will thank you for a small space in your columns this week to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County.

First, I wish to thank the large number who so urgently insisted on my getting in the race for board member again this time, and especially for all of those generous compliments as to my actions as a board member in the past. I wish to say just here that all of these things are most highly appreciated, and it all serves to make me feel very humble. And may I say, too, that I have tried to do the right thing to the very best of my ability. It is through these earnest appeals from a large number of voters that I answered by telling them that I consent to your wishes and have offered myself to the voters of Chilton County again as a candidate for membership on the school board.

I am not canvassing any this time, because, first, the place does not pay but very little; and, second, my 12 years of service lie before you, and if these 12 years of service such that you can honestly support and vote for me again, I shall very graciously appreciate it. I appeal to each voter to be sure you get the facts, the whole truth, and then vote your honest convictions, and I shall be satisfied with the outcome in both the primary and also the November elections.

I want to say just here that when I can serve you, call on me, for I am your servant just so long as I may hold public office.

Yours for the very best educational advantages.—S. J. M. Webb.

MARCH CHEVROLET SALES

Chevrolet dealers sold 62,639 new cars and trucks in March, according to an announcement by Chevrolet motor division officials at Detroit this week. This was 57.2 per cent increase over the sales total for February.

A feature of the sales total piled up by Chevrolet dealers in March was that during the final 10-day period 27,606 new cars and trucks were sold, which constituted 78.8 per cent of the total for the first 20 days of the month, indicating a firmer market for new units as spring and sunshine arrived.

The March used car sales of Chevrolet dealers totaled 130,788, according to the announcement, an increase of 11.9 per cent over the February total of 116,915. This was the 37th consecutive month that Chevrolet dealers sold in excess of 100,000 used cars, and gave them a grand total of used car sales during the last 37 months of 5,630,886.

IS DIXON PUSSYFOOTING?

Montgomery, Apr. 11. — Frank Dixon's repeated attacks on the Graves administration are believed here to be an effort to hide the fact that Dixon is receiving the support of dozens of the chief "pie eaters" of the present administration.

Among those Graves administration leaders who are supporting Dixon are Hamp Draper, state convict department head, and L. L. Herzberg and H. D. Burnham, both members of the highway commission. A number of other sub-officials in this organization are also working for Dixon either openly or under cover.

This county delegated convention will be composed of two delegates from each voting precinct in the county, to be chosen in the same manner as they have been heretofore, namely, by a Beat mass meeting to be held at or near each voting place in the county at 1 o'clock p.m., on the day of the primary, May 3, 1938. Beat 9 will be entitled to four delegates to this convention, two from each of the two voting precincts; Beat 4 will be entitled to eight delegates, two from each of the four voting precincts; all other Beats will be entitled to two delegates each.—T. E. Wyatt, county chairman; C. C. Conway, county secretary.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS
(Too late for last week)

Dr. W. D. Bestteed spoke to the junior and senior high school Monday afternoon at 1:30. The talk was very educational. Dr. Bestteed is a native of Texas. He has been a public speaker for over 15 years. The students and teachers appreciated the lecture very much.

Sports

Baseball at Jemison High School is getting under way in great style. The first game was to be played with Maplesville on April 1, but mother nature played her April fool, and sent rain to cancel the game.

Lesson for April 17

THE VICTORIOUS SERVANT
(Easter)

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:22-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.—Acts 2:32.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter's First Sermon.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter's Greatest Sermon.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Winning with the Victorious Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Risen Christ Our Hope of Victory.

"Up from the grave He arose
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes;
He arose a Victor from the dark domain,
And He lives forever with His saints to reign;
He arose! He arose!
Hallelujah! Christ arose!"

Let the glad chorus swell the good tidings that the One who humbled Himself to become the servant of all is the "Victorious Servant"—yes, the Victorious Lord!

Easter is the great holiday—a real holy day of the Christian church. We rejoice in the incarnation, for only as the Son of God identified Himself with the human race could He bear our sins on Calvary's tree. We keep the cross before us, for only as He died did He make atonement for our sin, but above all we observe the ressurection, for had He not risen for our justification we would indeed have been without any hope. Ours is a resurrection faith; let us live it in resurrection power.

Life is so serious in its responsibilities and burdens, so often disappointing in its trials and sorrows, that we need to sound the note of victory. But it must be real victory and it must be assured at the crucial point where all the hopes of man find defeat—at death. Only the Christian has the assurance of victory there, but, thank God, he does really have it in our Lord Jesus Christ.

Turning aside from our studies in the Gospel of Mark for today we consider together the sermon of Peter on the day of Pentecost. He declares Jesus to be:

I. Approved by Mighty Works (v. 22).

Theories may have validity only to the man who accepts the authority of the one who proclaims them, but facts are stubborn things, the reality of which no man can deny. There are those who speak about the Lord Jesus as though we asked them to accept Him on the basis of our claims for Him as the Son of God. They forget the facts of history—from the hundreds of years before His incarnation when the prophets spoke of His coming, down through the account of His earthly life, death, and resurrection to which we may well add the inescapable argument of Christianity as it stands in the world today—all speak of Him as the Son of God.

II. Delivered Up to Die (v. 23).

The cross was not an accident. Jesus did not die as a martyr to a noble but hopeless cause. He came into the world "to give his life a ransom for many" (Matt. 20:28). He said, "I lay down my life . No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myself. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again" (John 10:17, 18).

But the fact that the cross was in the eternal plan of God in no way justifies those who slew Him. Though they were fulfilling the divine purpose, they were acting as free moral agents fully responsible for their wicked deeds.

III. Raised Up by God (vv. 24-32).

"It was not possible that he should be holden" of death (v. 24)—what a beautifully final and positive statement. It was an impossibility that Christ should remain in the grave, and it is the absolute assurance of Scripture that we who "be dead with him shall also live with him" (II Tim. 2:11). To the believer, the one who is in Christ, the resurrection of the Saviour is the guarantee that we shall be raised. Christ is the first-fruits of them that sleep in the grave. (I Cor. 15:20.)

Peter in his sermon turns to the Scriptures to prove the resurrection referring to the prophet Joel as well as to the Psalms of David. It would be well for us to do likewise on this Easter Sunday of 1938, for we have infinitely richer resources, for in our hands is the New Testament with the story of the resurrection and all the references of the epistles to this glorious truth.

IV. Ascended and Exalted (v. 33).

"Look, ye saints! The sight is glorious:
See the Man of Sorrows now;
From the fight returned victorious,
Every knee to Him shall bow:
Crown Him! Crown Him!
Crowns become the Victor's brow."

"He humbled himself . . . Wherefore God hath highly exalted him" (Phil. 2:8, 9). Read Philippians 2:5-11 as a fitting close to this glorious lesson.

Gaining Knowledge

"More knowledge of God's Word will be gained by a single effort to obey one of His commandments than by a year of reading with no effort to keep the Word of God."

Atonement

No rush to the battle will atone for sin in the tent.—G. Campbell Morgan.

University News

Although student elections on the University of Alabama campus are not to be held until April 12, two of the most important undergraduate positions on the campus have already been filled without competition.

Cyrus Roys Lewis of Dothan will serve next school year as president of the University student body. He was tht only candidate qualified last week by the executive committee of the student government association for the chief student executive job at the Capstone.

This is the first time in many years when there has been no opposition for the office of student body president.

Filled also without competition was the presidency of the Cotillion Club. Ed Turner, of Lineville, was elevated to that position when his opponent, John Moeller, Birmingham, withdrew from the race.

Candidates qualified for other important offices to be filled in the student body elections were: for vice president: A. M. Smith, Decatur; and Harold Mettraw, Oneida, N. Y. For secretary-treasurer: Bob Cooper, Elba; and Alex Chases, Montgomery.

Only one play remains on the schedule of the Blackfriars, University of Alabama student dramatic group, for the remainder of the current school year. This is "The Trial Of Mary Dugan", late in April.

Debaters at the University of Alabama retain the traditional Southern respect for womanhood.

In a non-decision debate Wednesday with Linfield College, McMinnville, Ore., two of the Alabama forensic men—Richard Brooks of Montgomery, and Thomas H. Wilson of Tuscaloosa—upheld the negative side of the question: "Resolved, That the Co-ed Should Stand Half the Cost of a Date".

Every county in Alabama for the first time is represented this year by women students at the University of Alabama.

Nearly 2,000 women—the exact figure is 1,999—have received degrees in the past 10 years, while only 751 won degrees in all the years before.

Ten years ago the women's student body numbered 535, but it has since increased more than two and a half times, to its present figure, 1,346.

Alabama counties with the largest representations at the University are: Tuscaloosa 272, Jefferson 172, Montgomery 36, Mobile 33, Walker 18, Marshall 17, Calhoun and Dallas 16 each, Covington 15, Escambia and Morgan 14 each, Etowah 13, Cullman 12, Barbour and DeKalb 11 each, Pickens 10.

Manners evidently mean more to men than to women, if one goes by the number of books on etiquette issued from the University of Alabama library to boys as compared to the number "checked out" to co-eds.

Library officials at the University report that 90 per cent of the students who read books on etiquette are men.

Among the various explanations concerning the men students' research for culture are the ones which indicate that the boy enrollees aspire to be the typical Southern gentlemen of song and story, and that girls are so accustomed to doing the right thing in a social way that they don't need to read up on manners.

The usual male etiquette reader, the librarians state, is either the timid type of individual, or the freshman social aspirant who is beginning to feel he is slipping with the skirted sex and consequently needs brushing up on matters and manners social.

Social letter writing and introductions are the favorite subjects studied by the manners-conscious men, while women show wherein their interest lies by concentrating on material about weddings and engagements.

As a matter of fact, the library assistants have to keep well "Emily Post-ed" themselves, for when an asked-for book is in use they frequently have to answer questions on pressing social problems of Joe Undergrad.

CANCER CONTROL MONTH

Montgomery, Apr. 11. — Both Governor Graves and President Roosevelt have issued proclamations designating the month of April as Cancer Control Month, and urging health workers, educators, and the general public to aid in the nation-wide campaign to reduce the heavy mortality of this disease, which ranks in seventh place as a cause of death in this state, and claimed the lives of 1,729 Alabamians in 1936.

Mrs. G. W. Adams, of Andalusia, has been named state commander of the Alabama Division of the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and is directing the drive in this state.

Turkey Hunting

Pictures of stalwart Nimrods holding big wild turkeys (dead ones) have adorned the pages of several daily papers in recent weeks. The last part of the open season began March 15 and closes April 15, and reports from all parts of the state indicate good shooting. Alabama boasts wild turkeys in 65 out of 67 counties, with the big birds concentrated more in some sections than in others. Clayton and Dorthan Sanders, Jasper brothers, got turkeys weighing 26 and 28 pounds respectively in the Black Warrior National Forest. W. L. Nichols of Birmingham brought down another big one in Chilton County, near Calera. H. L. Brown and M. C. Schluter of Mobile killed two husky gobblers on the Salco tract, north of Mobile. In Shelby County, A. A. Lynch, Al Hamilton, J. W. Neeley and O. C. Comer accounted for two more.

Bob Whites Laying

April 4 and 5 were important days at the state quail farm in Autauga County, for it was then that the first two eggs of the new season were laid by quail hens. From now on, Supt. Alex McPhail and his assistants will be kept busy gathering eggs every week and placing them in the incubators. There are more than 300 pairs of quail isolated in laying pens, and under average conditions they will produce nearly 1,000 eggs per week. The incubation period is 21 days, and then the newly hatched birds are put in brooder pens for six weeks.

Raising Fish Worms

The July, 1937, Alabama Game and Fish News published an article by H. S. Swingle and D. G. Sturkie, of Auburn, on "how to raise 5,000 fishing worms in a tub for $2.40". A national outdoor magaine reprinted part of the article a few months ago, and since that time approximately 50 requests from all parts of the nation have been received for copies of the article from the Game and Fish News. Maine, California, and other faraway places were represented.

UNITY - CHILTON INSTITUTE

At the Executive Board meetings of both Unity and Chilton W. M. U. plans were made for a bigger and better Mission Institute, but if this is to be, we must plan now. The dates are July 5, 6 and 7. SCHOOL HEALTH PROGRAM IS NEARING COMPLETION

Work of the health department in Chilton County schools for the current school year has been completed, except for giving smallpox vaccinations in Clanton and Concord, it was announced by the local health department this week.

A total of 1,110 pupils in 22 schools have received school health examinations, the report revealed; 1,710 children were vaccinated against smallpox, and 530 were protected against diphtheria with toxoid. Besides regular health examinations, 2,178 inspections of children for scabies (itch) and pediculosis (lice) were made, the report showed.

Chilton County teachers have shown excellent cooperation with the health department, according to Dr. Sturkie, were urged to return all compilation charts and letters to parents which had been signed by family physicians.

The regular health examination of 4-H Club workers for the health contest started Monday, Dr. Sturkie said. The local health department cooperates with the 4-H Club workers and home demonstration agent in conducting these examinations.

"When housebreaking a puppy, it is advisable to keep him on the kitchen linoleum as much as possible until he learns what is expected of him," says A. H. Leonard, head of the Dog Department of Purina Mills. "Open newspapers—perhaps over an entire floor the first few days—should be provided. Gradually the amount of space covered by newspapers can be reduced until the puppy has only a single newspaper pad in one corner," Leonard says. "After the puppy learns to use the paper, both puppy and paper may be placed outdoors after each meal, the last thing at night, and first thing in the morning. When the puppy has learned to make use of the paper both indoors and outdoors the job of housebreaking is complete."

Unsaturated oils rich in Vitamin F should be included in dog food since they help prevent the itchy nutritional eczema from which so many dogs suffer. Infections and mites may bring on certain types of eczema but the nutritional kind of eczema is caused by improper feeding and can be prevented by feeding a complete, balanced feed such as Purina Dog Chow, which includes special additional oils rich in Vitamin F.

All puppies should be wormed between the time they are two months and one year old, according to Purina dog specialists. Large round-worms are very common, and most dogs, particularly puppies, pick them up. Worms cause loss of weight, run-down condition, rough hair, and erratic appetites. In severe cases of worms dogs are often subject to fits. A veterinarian may be called upon to do the worming, or it may be done at home by using a 3 m.m. size testule, obtainable from any Purina feed dealer. These testules work rapidly and efficiently and when administered according to directions on the box will efficiently rid the puppy of worms.

"Fleas and dogs were never meant to live together," says A. H. Leonard, head of the Dog Department of Purina Mills. "Only the carelessness of man has made them co-habit. Fleas are easily eliminated when dog owners realize that they multiply from eggs dropped in the kennel, in a bed of weeds, or in dust where dogs often pass. Sources of infestation should be eliminated as much as possible by disinfecting with Purina Cresofec, a powerful cresol disinfectant which prevents eggs from hatching. If the dog is already infested, a thorough dusting with Purina Insect Powder is recommended. Dogs subject to fleas should be thoroughly sprinkled at least once a week."

A proper ration not only nourishes a puppy but also supplies an abundance of vitamins which are so important for best condition and resistance to disease. Purina Dog Chow is made of animal proteins extracted from meat and milk, prepared cereals, cod liver oil and other vitamin foods, and fortified with Puratene, a rich Vitamin A concentrate. This complete feed in checker form keeps dogs in peak of condition, keeps hair healthy and growing, and assures husky, robust growth in puppies. An abundance of Vitamin A helps build resistance to disease and infection.

H. F. Owens, famous dog trainer of St. Louis, Missouri, says that a good dog's greatest desire is to please his master. "And, as the owner teaches his dog manners and tricks, he increases the dog's pleasure in living and gives him greater opportunity to serve and be with the owner. Cruelty has no part in training. The most obedient dogs are taught through love for their masters and bits of reward like Dog Chow Checkers. Training consists of establishing a comradeship between master and dog. The things dogs can learn are practically unlimited if the master has patience and skill in teaching."

A puppy's natural instinct is to chew . . . first, because of his puppy love for play and second, to relieve the pain of teething. Dog specialists at Purina Mills say that puppies can be taught that chewing is destructive and harmful and results in pain and scolding. Every time he is caught tearing up a newspaper or chewing on a table leg, the master should speak to him in a gruff voice, telling him he is a "bad dog." If this doesn't work, a newspaper may be rolled up and the puppy slapped lightly, and at the same time reprimanded. Discipline cannot be established by laughing at the puppy one time and scolding him the next. Be consistent. He must understand every time he is wrong.

A mistaken idea is that clipping a dog keeps him cool. Dogs should never be clipped, particularly in summer. Removal of the dog's coat does not make him cooler, since a dog does not sweat through his skin but through its lolling tongue. Clipping the hair, therefore, does not allow for any more evaporation. On the other hand a dog's coat protects his skin against the sun and acts as an insulator to help keep the heat out. Frequent bathing in hot weather, is also inadvisable.

STREET IS TO BE PAVED FULL WIDTH

Second Avenue and Lay Dam Surfacing Project Is To Begin Soon

For some time a WPA project has been under way to pave from the courthouse out the Lay Dam road for five or six miles. Recently the property owners on Second Avenue from the courthouse to First Street have asked Mayor C. Fenn Jones to confer with the government on getting that street paved full width and curbing built, the extra cost of same to be borne by the property owners. This Mr. Jones has done, and it looks as though the work will be done in accordance with this plan.

Begnning at the cemetery, the asphalt paving, twenty feet in width, will go north out First Street and into the Lay Dam road. The paving will end about a quarter of a mile beyond the Gap of the Mountain.

Mayor Jones stated that work on the paving will begin within a short time.

COMMUNISTS THROW OPEN SUPPORT TO ROOSEVELT

Birmingham, April 19. — In a statement issued today, terming the issues of the May 3rd primaries as that of "Progress versus Reaction", R. F. Hall, Secretary of the Alabama State Committee of the Communist party, called on the voters of the state to support those progressive candidates who support the Roosevelt New Deal program. The national program of President Roosevelt for democracy and recovery will be threatened, the statement declared, if men are elected to office who are at odds with the president's program, and who support the attacks on the president by Republicans and reactionary Democrats.

Stating that Chauncey Sparks, Jim Simpson and Sam Clabaugh represent the anti-New Deal, big business elements in the Democratic party, the Communist party urged the voters to throw their support to others than these candidates.

PURCHASING VOTES CHARGED IN MOBILE

"Higher-Ups" To Be Hunted, Say Authorities, In State Vote Fraud

Mobile, Ala., April 18.—Charges of vote buying against three men and promises of Sheriff R. L. Holcombe to arrest "higher ups" enlivened local political races today as the May 3rd Democratic primary neared.

Those under arrest were: Tom Crivalleri, former city policemen, Robert Bolling and Charlie Swendsen. Warrants charged conspiracy to purchase an absentee vote.

Bolling was arrested Monday night on a warrant charging he paid $10.00 to influence an absentee voter. He was released on bond Wednesday but refused to seek bail when jailed yesterday.

Pat Byrne, candidate for sheriff, and Bart B. Chamberlain Sr., incumbent, and M. F. Dozier, candidates for solicitor, denied the men were buying votes for them. Cards of the candidates were found on the three men when arrested.

Can Alabama Democracy Shed Its Hide?

[AN EDITORIAL]

From our ring-side seat, The Union-Banner observes with a degree of interest the heroic attempt Alabama Democrats are making to shed off the old, rusty hide that is now enclosing them and not only impeding healthy growth and free movement but is gradually contracting and crushing the life out of our commonwealth's popular government and our right to assert ourselves on questions of most vital interest.

The Union-Banner is taking no active interest in the gubernatorial race in Alabama, although we do like to observe the various movements and watch the trends of things in general. As we see it, there is a battle royal between and among the Democrats of the State, one side of which is trying to hold the State's government for the machine that is now in power in Montgomery, and the other is trying to free the people of the bondage they are under at the hands of the big moguls of the political machine.

When narrowed down to its actual reality, the battle is between those now in power and those not in power. All of the candidates now running for Governor occasionally throw a brick at the administration, but it is very clear which ones draw their licks and which one really intends for his darts to go home to his target—and there is only one in the latter class.

There has grown up within the Democratic party in Alabama a very powerful and a very dangerous political machine. It has working for it a host of state employees who are being paid out of the public treasury but who are exerting every effort toward a partial and a selfish interest. Alabama citizens are being gutted with exorbitant taxes, and this money is being spent to bring about personal and selfish political ends. We all agree that public money should not be used for selfish political gain; but we all know that such is being done in Alabama.

Governor Bibb Graves is not running for re-election, but the race is definitely narrowed down to an administration candidate vs. a non-administration candidate. We have heard more cussing of Bibb Graves and his extravagant and partisan administration by the Democrats of Alabama than there has ever been of any one incumbent before; now, on May 3rd we will see these irreconcilables show their hand. They have a chance to vote against this crowd or vote for it; the issue is clear-cut and simple; no one need err in determining which side is the other. We will see on May 3rd whether or not Alabama Democracy is able to shed its hide.

Berry Crop Hard Hit By Rain and Cold Weather

The recent heavy rains and the cold weather has cut down the production of strawberries and has done it right at the time when fine berries would have brought a good price, according to Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer of the Clanton Berry Growers Association.

Mr. Dief reports that about a dozen cars have been shipped from here, but they were mostly inferior grade berries. There will likely be twenty more cars shipped from here. Prospects are that the rest will be better berries, but the price will likely not hold up to what we would like to get.

Commissioners Court Makes Statement To The Citizens

Editor Union-Banner:

The Commissioners Court would appreciate a space in your paper that the Court might explain to the people a matter relative to the payment of the road hands in the county.

For almost two years, the building and repairing of the public roads and bridges has been under the supervisor's law. This law provides that every quarter, the Court shall appropriate money for road and bridge work for a three-months period. An appropriation of $14,000 was made for the period of November and December of 1937, and January, 1938, and to this appropriation an additional amount of $4,000 was added, as well as the purchase of some machinery in addition to the $18,000. Under the Supervisor's Bill, the supervisor hires all road employees as well as makes requisition for other material, machinery and supplies for the road and bridges of the county. The Commissioners Court has no way of knowing what amount of obligations will be incurred during a quarter for the roads and bridges, and the best that the Court can do is to estimate the probable amount that will be needed on the roads and bridges for the quarter, and, of course, they have the right to add to that amount during the quarter any additional amounts that may be needed and proper to expend on the roads. The Attorney General, in an opinion of May 11, 1937, in construing the Supervisor's Bill, held that any funds expended over and above the appropriations fixed by the Court, either for material or labor could not be paid by the county, that is, if the supervisor exceeds the appropriation or hires labor or buys material over and above the appropriation fixed by the Court, then under the ruling of the Attorney General, neither the person furnishing the labor or material could recover form the County. During the quarter of November, December of 1937, and January 1938, there was incurred by the Supervisor more than $3,500.00 over the appropriation fixed by the Court. The Commissioners Court had no way of knowing and did not know that the appropriation was over spent until after the quarter had expired and then it developed that there was due to many road hands of the county money for road work which they had done in good faith, but which, under the local Supervisor's Bill, the Court was in doubt whether or not they could pay. This question was then submitted to the Attorney General on February 18th, 1938, and on April 12, 1938, the Attorney General gave an opinion answering our question and holding that after the expiration of the quarter the Court was without authority to make any further appropriations to the quarter passed and that the Court was without any legal authority to pay the road hands or any persons who might have sold the county material or supplies during the quarter

TWO KILLED IN BAD AUTO WRECK

Pratt City Family On Easter Good Will Mission Are Accident Victims

An auto accident Saturday before noon above Jemison proved fatal to M. V. Sanford and daughter, 15, of Pratt City. The girl was killed instantly, and the father died shortly after he was brought to the hospital in Clanton. Mrs. Sanford also was brought to the hospital here by Martin's ambulance, where her injuries are said to be not serious. Mrs. C. R. Baker of Pratt City and Miss Katherine Nabors of Roberts Field were injured.

It seems that there were three car loads of people from Pratt City en route to Selma on a charity mission—carrying Easter eggs to children in the orphanage in Selma. The Sanford car collided with a car in which four negroes were riding; they were: F. W. Taylor, the driver; F. W. Taylor, Jr., his 8-year-old son; G. W. Lockhard, and Cohen Simpson, all of Montgomery, and said by officers ot be connected with the State Teachers College there.

Hospital attaches at Clanton said the driver's condition was serious. The other three were only slightly injured.

State Highway Patrolmen M. E. Jones, J. E. Smith, Earl Henley, and Wallace Waites, who investigated, said the accident occurred when one of the cars attempted to pass a car in front and collided head-on with the other car coming in the opposite direction.

The Birmingham party, composed of about 15 persons, was made up of members of the Pratt City Methodist church Sunday school who were on their annual Easter visit to the Methodist Orphanage at Selma, carrying Easter eggs, toy rabbits and other gifts to one of the little girls there, which the Sunday school sponsors.

Sanford's car was said to be the car in the middle with the other cars in the party in front and behind him.

Mrs. Baker is teacher of the Men's Class at the Sunday school, and president of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The bodies of Mr. Sanford and his daughter were sent to Bell's Funeral Home at Crumley's Chapel.

Surviving are Mr. Sanford's mother, his widow, and two brothers, all of Pratt City.

Canceling their plan to bring Easter joy to the Selma children, the members of the Pratt City church party attended the double funeral for Mr. Sanford and his daughter at Sandusky Methodist Church Monday. With Bell of Crumley's Chapel in charge, burial followed in Elmwood Cemetery.

Mrs. C. D. Hughes announces the marriage of her daughter, Pearl, to Mr. Bonnie Hand, the wedding having taken place in Clanton last Saturday night, April 16th.

Percy M. Pitts Writes To Voters

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

Owing to the fact that I have been unable to see many of my Republican friends in the county to discuss my candidacy for the nomination in the Republican primaries to be held on May 3rd and June 14th of this year, as candidate for nomination on the Republican ticket for Representative in the Legislature, I desire to take this method in communicating with you pertaining to my candidacy.

I fully realize the responsibility resting upon the shoulders of the man who is nominated and elected in the November election to fill this important trust, and I also believe that the voters of Chilton County realize more now than ever before the necessity for the nomination and election of the best qualified man to fill this position, as all of our laws, both pertaining to local affairs and state affairs are either created or repealed by the State Legislature, and unless your Representative attempts or endeavors to carry out the desires and the wishes of the people whom he represents, after his election, there is little chance for the people for the incoming four years.

I desire to quote and reproduce here an editorial written by the editor of The Union-Banner on September 9th, 1937, which was headed as follows: "Grand Jury Touches On Road Matters", or rather I desire to quote a portion of this editorial, which was as follows:

"We figured from the start in the manner it was drawn up and passed it was unworkable. In the first place it was passed over the wishes of the people of the county. That in itself was enough to make it unworkable, even if there was some fairly good features to it.

"Now how about sending a man to the next Legislature who will repeal the law. That is the point we were pleased to have the Grand Jury make (although they would have made it whether it pleased us or not). The Union-Banner right at this juncture is going to go a little further down the road than the Grand Jury did. We are going to suggest someone whom the voters might choose to have the honor of repealing that unworkable law. Honorable Percy M. Pitts has served the people of Chilton County as their Representative for two terms already and during his sojourn in Montgomery, we do not remember of him passing any laws objectionable to the people of Chilton County; but we believe he obstructed the passage of some laws that would have displeased the people of Chilton County. We believe Mr. Pitts can be trusted to do the right things by the people of Chilton County in the Legislature of Alabama. . . . . Let us send a man to the Legislature who will do the thing up right".—Union-Banner, September 9th, 1937.

I desire to call your attention to the fact that this editorial was written last year. It has been said that the best way to judge a man is by his past record instead of political promises. I want to assure the people, the citizens of Chilton County, that I have appreciated the trust that they have bestwoed upon me in the past, and pertaining to our legislative matters, I will endeavor to vote for those things which in my judgment the majority of the people of Chilton County are in favor of.

As I have in the past, I will attempt to keep our government in the hands of the people, and I will sponsor any bills toward that end. As you will recall, there was an attempt made several years ago to abolish our Commissioners Court, duly elected by the people, and create a Board of Revenue, appointed by the Governor, in lieu thereof. This bill was passed through the Senate by Senator Ellis and defeated in the House by me, together with my friends in the House of Representatives. Also, to show my faith in allowing the people to select all their officers, I promised the people of Chilton County that if elected in 1930 that I would give them the right by Local Act to elect the Superintendent of Education by popular vote. This bill was enacted during the 1931 Legislature and bears my name as the author, and since that date the people have elected, by popular vote, their County Superintendent. As to the local bill causing so much unrest and dissatisfaction in Chilton County pertaining to the road supervisor, passed by Representative Cox and Senator Thomas, I am convinced that the people of Chilton County, as a whole, desire this bill repealed, and personally, I will take pleasure, should I be your Representative, to repeal this law immediately upon the convening of the Legislature.

I.—Absentee Ballots

There was an attempt during the 1931 Legislature to abolish the Absentee Ballot Law, which failed to materialize. I think of all the laws on the statute books pertaining to elections that is the most abused of all laws pertaining to the conduct of our elections, and it opens up the way for many frauds to be practiced which are violated apparently daily in our midst. I will use my utmost influence to abolish or amend this terrible law.

II.—Prohibition

My record shows that I have constantly voted with the prohibition forces in Alabama and I will continue to do so, should I represent this county, and I am thoroughly convinced that a goodly majority of the people of Chilton County believe in prohibition, and that Chilton County has a reputation as voting dry, which I have carried in the past.

III.—Poll Tax

I will sponsor and support a bill repealing the requirement prerequisite of paying poll tax to become a qualified voter. Upon investigation I have found that Alabama is one of the eight states out of forty-eight which makes the poll tax a voting requirement, all other seven being Southern states. During the depression, or so-called New Deal, many good citizens have fallen behind in the payment of poll taxes and are disfranchised. In the recent Hill-Heflin Senatorial race, Lister Hill was elected Senator over Thomas Heflin by only about five per cent of the state's population. That vote represented twelve per cent of the population of voting age, and about fifteen per cent of the white adult population.

Many of the candidates for Representative over the state, together with candidates for Governor, are sponsoring a bill allowing those who are behind with their poll tax to be allowed the privilege of paying for two years back poll tax which will qualify them to vote in future elections. If the poll tax cannot be done away with, and assistance cannot be had to pass the bill above mentioned, I will support the two-year plan.

IV.—Education

I will work for and vote for those measures designed to give a full term school, to which our youth is entitled, as other states are maintaining.

V.—Automobile Tags

I will also favor the reduction of the price of automobile tags, which I think are about twice as high as they should be at the present time.

VI.—Homestead Exemption

I favor the exemption of both county and state taxes on homesteads, and, although I have always voted in the past against the sales tax, which was up during the Miller administration, I think that if the sales tax is continued and not eliminated, as advocated, by many during 1939, that certainly the people should be entitled to homestead exemptions.

I will also work for and sponsor any measures that would tend to place economy in our government, as I believe most of our departments of the state are overburdened with employees who are there by reason of political patronage.

There are many problems which will come before the next Legislature, too many to mention here; however, I will be glad to discuss from time to time my stand on any matter affecting either the county or state, with any man or woman in this county in the future. In other words, I believe what our county needs is fewer laws, more respect for law, and more law enforcement.

I will be unable to see many of the voters in the county, however, I desire to talk with as many as possible between now and the date of the election. I want to assure you that any consideration that you will give my candidacy will be highly appreciated, and if I am your next Representative, I will attempt to be a true representative of the people of Chilton County and the State of Alabama. We have many capable and fine candidates offering in our primary, and I trust that all Republicans will go to the polls and select their choice, and in the general election, I feel confident of our success.

Respectfully yours,
PERCY M. PITTS.

Game & Fish News

Mackerel Appear Early

Here's good news for deep sea anglers, many of whom go several times each year from the interior of Alabama to Mobile and Baldwin County waters in search of tarpon, mackerel, and other fighters. The king mackerel, running several weeks ahead of schedule, appeared off Sand Island in lower Mobile Bay on pril 14, according to Capt. Earl Bryant, widely known boat operator of Bayou LaBatre. One of his boats came in that day and reported king mackerel "by the thousands" off short from Sand Island. Capt. Bryant said they were the largest schools ever sighted. Ordinarily the mackerel make their appearance in May off the Alabama coast, but they are early this season.

Fishing Report Resumed

For the second successive season the Alabama Department of Conservation will prepare and distribute a weekly report on fishing conditions in Alabama. The first one went out of the Montgomery office on April 15, and it will be followed by one every Friday during the remainder of the spring and summer. Nearlp 100 lakes and streams are inspected weekly by game wardens, who send their findings to headquarters for condensation and distribution. Several papers and radio stations use the report each week and it is available for individual fishermen who want it. Address Department of Conservation, State Capitol, Montgomery, Alabama.

With The Clubs

The Walker County Conservation Council, boasting over 600 members now, planted 25 acres in wild duck food as an experiment. If it is successful the sportsmen plan to spend several hundred dollars next season.

June 15 will be a big day for the Jefferson County Sportsmen's Asso ciation, for on this day the annual barbecue will be held in conjunction with dedication of the association's new Lane Park fish hatchery.

The Montgomery County Sportsmen's Association invites officers and members of clubs ni adjoining counties to atend an entertainment at the Gay-Teague Hotel in Montgomery on the night of April 21.

A GOOD STRAWBERRY RECIPE

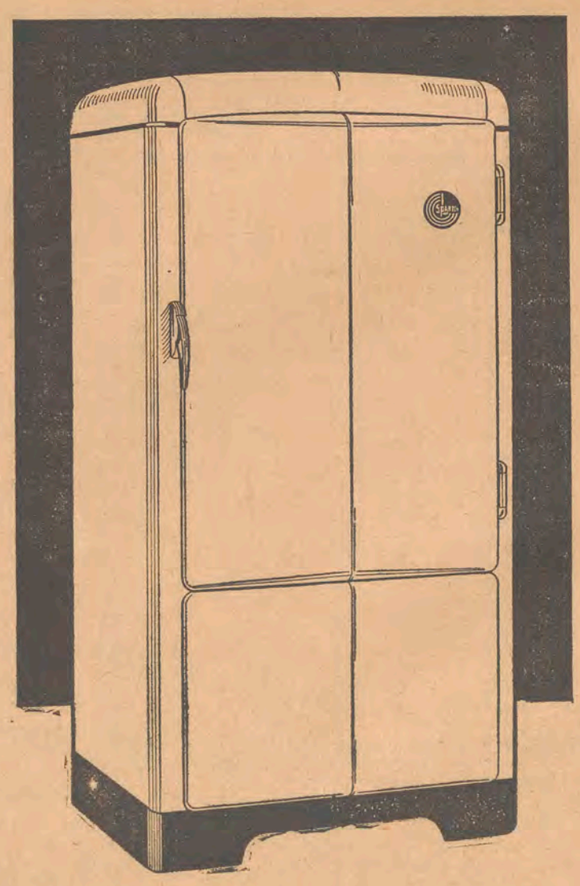
This is a good way to serve strawberries when everyone grows tired of shortcake. Take an angel food cake, scoop out inside until a shell with wall about two inches thick is left. Crush berries, mix with sugar, add one package of gelatine, and a little whipped cream. Fill cake shell and wrap in oiled paper. Put in ice box until thoroughly chilled. Slice and serve with whipped cream.

Mowing weeds early in the year is a good practice. By leaving a comparatively long stalk at first mowing it is easier to mow lower the second time and destroy the second crop of weeds without disturbing the shorter and desirable plants.

One effective way to keep hogs and pigs from picking up parasites that cause trichinosis si to provide legume and other forage crops and to carry out a sanitary hog program.

LEADERSHIP SCHOOL

The Home Demonstration Clubs met at the city hall for a demonstrative tea given by Miss Meta Grace in behalf of the clubs. After discussing the arrangements of flowers and other decorations and various types of refreshments appropriate for teas and appropriate teas for such occasions, the lesson was carried out in reality with Mrs. J. D. Williams acting as hostess, Miss Juanita Warr the guest of the occasion, and with the club presidents joining them composing the receiving line.



Mrs. Olive Welch and Mrs. George Stutt met the guests at the door and presented them to the hostess, while Pauline Sisk accompanied the guests to the table for registration, where they were registered by Miss Martha Kennedy. The guests were then ushered by Mrs. Alice Hudson of the Mt. Creek Club, where they were served refreshments by Miss Hattie Maudling and Mrs. H. G. Anderson.

The refreshments which were served were carefully chosen and made by Miss Juanita Warr, of the Alabama Power Company, Miss Martha Kennedy, Miss Hattie Maudling, and Mrs. Olive Welch. They were composed of ribbon sandwich, open faced pineapple sandwich, butter cookies, and fruit punch.

The occasion was enjoyed by everyone, and each of the officers and leaders returned to their respective clubs and communities to assist in giving this lesson back there.

Attorney General's Ruling About Paying Claims

April 11, 1938.

Hon. J. Lee Smith,
Judge of Probate,
Chilton County,
Clanton, Ala.

1. Chilton County Road Supervisor—Local Act of 1936, page 4—Court of County Commissioners has no authority to make additional appropriation for roads after expiration of period for which appropriation is made.

2. Appropriations made by Court of County Commissioners for expenditure on roads and bridges pursuant to Local Act of 1936 (Local Acts, 1936, page 4) include amounts to be expended bith for material and labor.

Opinion by Assistant Attorney General Crenshaw.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of February 18th in which you request my opinion as follows:

"I would like to have your opinion in regard to a question that has arisen relative to the Local Supervisor's Bill for Chilton County. Section 8 of said Supervisor law, which is found in Extra-session 1936, at page 4, provides that the Court of County Commissioners shall make appropriations for each quarter of funds which shall be available for the purpose of building, maintaining and constructing the public roads of the county for three months. In the quarter commencing November and ending January, the Court of County Commissioners appropriated a certain amount of money which was expended on the roads and bridges of the county by the supervisor and the supervisor during this period of time spent some $3,500 more than was appropriated. You will notice that in said Section that the Commissioners Court is authorized from time to time 'within this period' to increase the amount so allowed.

"The question I would like to know is, the quarter having expired, whether or not the Court of County Commissioners can now make an additional appropriation to take care of this excess of $3,500 expended for labor and materials during said quarter? In other words, whether or not the increased appropriations would have to be made during the quarter or whether the order can be made after the expiration of the quarter? I will apreciate your giving me your opinion on this at your earliest opportunity. I would like to refer you to your opinion construing this same Act to J. Lee Smith, Judge of Probate, of May 11, 1937, which is stated in your Quarterly Opinions, Volume 7, for the period of April 1, 1937, through June 30, 1937.

"There is also another question on which I would like to have your opinion. The Court of County Commissioners has construed the law to mean that the appropriations so made by the Court for the quarter, included both material, supplies and labor, that is, the appropriations made by the Court has been construed by them to mean funds to be expended on the roads and bridges of the county, whether for material or labor. However, I am informed that it is the supervisor's contention that the appropriations include only labor under the terms of the Act, and I would like to have your opinion as to whether or not it is the intent of said Act that the appropriations include both material and labor or only labor."

It is my understanding from you that for the quarter commencing November, 1937, and ending January 31, 1938, the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County appropriated the sum of $14,000. During this quarter this appropriation was increased by an additional amount of $4,000. After the expiration of the quarter additional claims were filed with the Court of Commissioners in excess of the total appropriation for road and bridge purposes during that quarter.

1. Your first question is whether under the bill regulating the road supervisor for Chilton County (Local Act of 1936, page 4) the Commissioners Court may again increase the appropriation by an additional appropriation after the expiration of the quarter. In my opinion the Commissioners Court does not have this authority.

Under the express terms of Section 8 of the Act referred to, the authority of the road supervisor is limited to the expenditure of such funds as may be set aside and appropriated by the Commissioners Court for each quarter. The Commissioners Court is required to determine the amount of funds available for the purpose of road work within one month preceding the first Monday of each quarter and make an appropriation for that amount which amount must not be exceeded by the road supervisor during that quarter. The Commissioners Court is given the authority from time to time to increase the amount so allowed to be expended during any such period, but this authority is expressly limited to action "within such period".

I realize, of course, that under certain circumstances the express letter of the law may be tempered by the spirit thereof. The basic rule of statutory construction is to reach the intention of the Legislature. However, although the strict letter of the law is not allowed to defeat an otherwise clear intention, to justify a departure from the plain language of the statute there must be a moral conviction that the Legislature could not have intended such a result. Board of Revenue vs. McDanal, 105 So. 191, 213 Ala. 349.

We may in construing the statute consider the evils intended to be remedied. Richardson Lumber Company vs. Howell, 219 Ala. 328, 122 So. 343; Abramson vs. Hard, 229 Ala. 2, 155 So. 590.

A consideration of the evils sought to be remedied and the effect or the result reached by such construction strengthen the conclusion reached from the literal meaning of the words "within any such period". The Legislature in this Act has evinced a purpose to regulate the amount expended for road and bridge purposes in Chilton County to such amount as the Commissioners Court determines is available for that purpose during the particular quarter. It is evident that this Act is another of a long series of acts designed to aid counties in diving within their income. Under the express provisions of Section 9 of the Act no funds of the county shall be expended or liability created against the county for road purposes in any manner other than provided by the terms of the Act. If a construction were adopted which permitted the Court of Commissioners to appropriate funds after the end of the quarter to meet an expenditure of funds over and above the original appropriation for that quarter, the entire purpose and effect of the Act would be avoided. The limitation placed upon the expenditure of funds by Section 8 of the Act would be meaningless and without force if the Court of Commissioners could be faced with a so-called moral obligation to make further appropriation for claims in excess of the appropriation.

The Commissioners Court has no inherent or constitutional powers. Whatever power it has must be derived from statutory enactment. If there is no statute or construction of a statute authorizing the payment of a claim, it cannot be paid. Weakley, et al vs. Henry County Treasurer, 86 So. 46; Mobile County vs. Williams, 180 Ala. 639. By the express terms of Section 9 of the statute those claims or obligations incurred by the road supervisor for Chilton County in excess of the amount appropriated for road purposes do not constitute a liability against the county. If the Court of County Commissioners were permitted to make an additional appropriation after the end of the quarter to take care of this deficit during the preceding quarter, we would permit the county to do by indirection what it could not do by direction, that is, to pay a claim which is not a liability against the county. These considerations, as you see, are not in conflict with, but support the conclusion reached from hte strict letter of the statute and it is, therefore, my conclusion that the Court of Commissioners of Chilton County has no authority to make any appropriation for road purposes to cover amounts expended during the preceding quarter.

2. Your second question is whether or not the appropriation made by the Court of County Commissioners includes amounts to be expended both for material and labor, or only for labor. It is my opinion that in providing for such appropriations as is done in Section 8 of the Act, the Legislature intended such appropriations to include appropriations both for labor and for materials. It is true that under Section 5 of the Act the materials, machinery, etc., are purchased by the Court of County Commissioners after requisition filed by the road supervisor. However, these provisions of Section 5 do not purport to affect the amounts to be appropriated or the purpose for which the appropriation may be spent. Under the privision of Section 8 the Commissioners Court of Chilton County must fix and determine the amount of funds available "for the purpose of building, maintaining, and constructing the public roads of Chilton County". The law expressly provides that the amount so appropriated shall not be exceeded by the road supervisor in cinstructing, maintaining or repairing the public roads. The clear purpose of these provisions, as set out above, is to prohibit the county or the road supervisor from expending on the public roads an 'amount more than tsat avilable fir those purposes. If a construction was adopted that the appropriation referred to in Section 8 of the Act included only labor, then the county would be expending for labor on roads the entire amount available for road purposes and would have to pay for machinery, equipmtnt and supplies to be used on the roads from other sources. This would materially affect the Court of County Commissioners in making the appropriations for roal purposes, for in setting the amounts available for labor purpises, they would necessarily have to take into consideration the amounts to be expended for materials. Such irrational construction should not be adopted unless there is clear and unambiguous language requiring such a construction. I find no such language.

In my opinion, therefore, the appropriation of sums for the purposes named in Section 8 of the Act include all sums to be expended for those purposes, whether the same are expended for labor or materials.

Yours very truly,
A. A. CARMICHAEL,
Attorney General.

With the release on April 20 of "Rachel's Children", novel by Miss Harriet Hassell, University of Alabama junior, Alabamians will have the first opportunity of examining the work of their state's latest literary "find".

Besides having the distinction of being one of the few college students ever to sell a book written largely for class work, Miss Hassell achieved the almost unique honor of signing a contract with her publishers when considerably less than half of the novel had been written.

The Alabama girl was "discovered" last year by Edward C. Answell, associate editor of Harper's who at that time was touring the Southern states in search of new literary talent.

There are 31 University of Alabama students who have been initiated into Kappa Delta Pi and Phi Delta Kappa, both organizations in the University's School of Education.

Among those initiated into the organizations were: Phi Delta Kappa—J. B Havard, Daphne; Columbus Savage, Kennedy. Kappa Delta Pi—Nila Louise Carnes, Boaz; Margaret Cosby, Dadeville; Eloise Ertzinger, Bay Minette; Alberta Grant, Jasper. Mary James, Northport; Grace Jones, Enterprise; Opal Lee, Cullman; Myrna Reeves, Vinemont; Rebecca Thompson, Boaz; and Mary Elizabeth Wilburn, Demopolis.

"Miss Alabama" for the 1938-1939 school year at the University of Alabama will be Miss Mary Read Harris of Wilmington, N. C.

Given that title by members of the "Million Dollar Band" at the University, Miss Harris will parade with the 'Bama musical organization at the football games next fall.

Miss Linna Colper, president of the American Dietitians Association, was honor guest at the annual banquet of the School of Home Economics of Alabama April 18.

Economic balance is the key to the friendly relations existing between the United States and Canada, Sir Herbert Marler, Canadian minister ti this country, told University of Alabama law students last week.

The fact that an unfortified boundary and admirable feeling exist between the two great North American English-speaking countries was attributed by the statesman to the countries' mutual closeness to Great Britain and to friendly trade relations.

Convening for their third annual convention at the University of Alabama, members of the Alabama Collegiate Registrars Association recently named officers for next year.

W. G. SHAW WRITES TO VOTERS

As the primary is drawing near, I would like to say a few words in my behalf. In running for this office twice before and being the highest man in the first district four years ago prompted me to try again, and with the solicitations I had encouraged me greatly.

I am trying to see every voter, but trying to farm and other work to do and canvass at odd times makes it hard, but if I don't see you, I will appreciate your vote just the same. I sincerely hope you will never have cause to regret supporting me. My only platform is to serve the people as best I can.—W. G. Shaw.

WISE DAIRYMEN ADJUST AMOUNT OF GRAIN RATION TO TAKE EVERY POSSIBLE ADVANTAGE OF PASTURE

When dairy cows were still more or less in their "original" state, and gave only enough milk to feed their calves, pasture met their entire needs. Not much was expected of them so little feed or care was required.

"While not considered sufficient feed for the modern cow, grasses and good pasture still play and important part in our present-day plan of dairy feeding," says W. R. Arends of the Dairy Department of Purina Mills, in giving his recommendations for handling cows on pasture. "Nature has put important vitamins and health-giving materials into grasses and no dairyman can afford to overlook the advantages and benefits of good pasture.

Modern Cows Highly Bred

"The cow has come a long way since the time she gave only enough milk to raise her own calf. Man has taken the original dairy cow and, through breeding, management, and feeding, has developed her natural instinct to produce milk to a level where grasses alone cannot give her all the nourishment she needs for making milk and keeping up body condition. If forced to exist on a ration of various grasses such as her ancestors did the modern dairy cow with a 12,000-pound milk record bred into her would break down completely," Arends says.

Loss of Weight Costly

"At the Purina Experimental Farm, every advantage is taken of grass in season. Green grass, as every dairyman knows, stimulates a heavy flow of milk. But the bulk, palatability, and juicy freshness of green grass causes the heavy milking cow to over-work. This invariably leads to a falling off in flesh and milk flow later in the season," Arends points out. "Loss of weight means the dairyman must spend extra money in the fall to build her back to normal weight for winter production.

"Loss of weight on a grass diet is easy enough to understand," Arends explains, "because over-stimulation takes more out of the cow than it puts back in. Additional feed along with pasture is an absolute necessity if cows are to come through the summer in healthy condition and give a full flow of milk through the cold months.

Pasture Must Be Supplemented

"Our experiments at the Purina Experimental Farm show the necessity of supplementing pasture to keep cows in good condition. It seems that little attention need be paid to milk production when cows are first turned out on grass. The chief concern is keeping up the herd's body weight. Feeds for supplementing pasture should be high in body building materials, very palatable, and bulky.

"On flush pasture the regular winter grain ration should be cut in half," Arends recommends. Holsteins and Ayrshires should get about one pound of grain ration for every seven pounds of milk when pasture is good. Guernseys and Jerseys should be fed one pound of grain ration for every six pounds of milk.

Grasses Become Like Hay

"Chemical analysis of pasture grasses shows that early season samples contain more moisture, and nearly twice as much protein as those cut later in the season. Crude fiber content increases as the season advances, and there is more calcium present. These are the chemical causes of the milk stimulating properties of early spring pastures," says the Purina dairyman, "and explains why milking cows do well on half the usual amount of winter grain ration when first turned out. As the pasture season advances grasses become more like hay, gradually the amount of grain ration should be increased until the herd is back on the regular winter feeding schedule.

Grain Increase Necessary

"Start working back on to the winter feeding schedule as soon as milk begins to fall off," Arends advises. "When pastures become burned and dried up the regular winter grain ration should be supplemented by one gallon of Bulky Las to each cow, morning and evening. This feed is palatable, laxative, and supplies the nutrients that dried-up pastures lack.

"Planning pasture programs to get increased grazing yields is a problem to which state experiment stations and county agents have given a great deal of attention. Dairymen should contact these dairy specialists and secure their help in building profitable pasture improvement programs."

PRE-SCHOOL CLINICS PLANNED

Plans are being drawn up for a program of pre-school clinics over the county by local P.-T. A. and health officials, a health department report shows. This program, known officially as "the summer round-up", is held annually, clinics being conducted at each of the larger school centers, it was said. Medical and dental examinations are made of children who attend, and such physical defects as are found are outlined to parents. Promotion of the corrections of these defects is engaged in jointly by the health department and the P.-T. A., through educational measures.

"While the clinics are intended primarily for children who are to enter school next year, children from one to six years of age will be invited", said Dr. Sturkie, county health officer. "Diphtheria toxoid and the smallpox vaccination will be offered to all who attend", he said.

An account of the incarceration of one negro man in the county jail for failing to attend the syphillis clinic regularly was received also from the health department.

"We were forced to take this extreme measure", siad the local health officer, "because all of our efforts to persuade this man were to no avail. This should serve as a warning to other syphillis clinic patients who are neglecting to obtain their treatments."

CLANTON GOSPEL TABERNACLE

MASS MEETING IN BIRMINGHAM APRIL 26TH

Atlanta, April 19.—A monster mass meeting of Southern Methodist laymen in Philips Auditorium in Birmingham on Tuesday night, April 26th, with Bishop Collins Denny as the main speaker, will climax the far-flung campaign against the proposed unification of the Northern and Southern Methodist Churches, it was announced here today at headquarters of the Laymen's Organization For Preservation of The Southern Methodist Church.

The proposal was adopted by the Northern General Conference at their meeting in Columbus, Ohio, in 1936, and will be acted on by the Southern General Conference which convenes at Birmingham April 28. In addition to the protest mass meeting, laymen attending the same, as well as all others opposed to unification, have been asked to converge at Birmingham and fight unification to the last ditch until the Southern General Conference takes final action. A survey of the southeastern press shows that Methodists are rising in thousands against unification, it is claimed at headquarters here.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—This summer's session of the Institute of Pacific Relations will have many new factors and policies to consider, as new power formulas and equations are being drawn. The Philippines have changed their mind about cutting their United States towline. Japan and Germany make a joint survey of a 50-mile, low-lying canal route across the upper neck of Siam, which will bring Japan four days nearer Australia and perhaps five days nearer India. England's Singapore naval base isn't what it used to be. Australia announces a big new rearmament program.

World's Eye Now Turned on Pacific

Ian Mackenzie, Canada's handsome and versatile defense minister, breaks the news that Canada will rely on the United States fleet, voicing "reasonable assumption," rather than definite "commitments."

And Paul V. McNutt, commissioner of the Philippines, says we should carry "liberty and peace" to the Far East.

Mr. Mackenzie, a Vancouver lawyer, is one of Canada's most famous scholars who writes fluently and publishes articles in Gaelic. In his native Scotland, he was the most illustrious prize scholar of his generation, virtually monopolizing all the medals and garlands of the University of Edinburgh, for attainment in the classics.

Gaelic Ace Is Canada's Top Scholar

He later won a Carnegie research fellowship, gathering more honors in his work on old Irish manuscripts. He later attended the Royal academy at Dublin, wrote songs and stories in the ancient Celtic language and picked up a law degree as a sort of afterthought.

He went to Vancouver in 1914, returned for the war, and romped through grades to the rank of captain, fighting in all the major engagements.

He kept his stride in his later success in law and politics in Vancouver, becoming national defense minister in 1935. He is regarded as Canada's most eligible bachelor. He says his favorite recreation is study.

* * *

JOSEPH A. LYONS, Australian prime minister who announces a rearmament program of approximately $215,000,000, has no such gift of tongues and reached eminence by a longer and harder road.

Rearmament Fever Hits Australia

He rose to power in the labor movement and, in 1931, like the late Ramsay MacDonald, broke with his party and entered a coalition government. His shift to the right brought him under vigorous assault, but he was re-elected by a large majority last October.

He is sixty years old, gray and tousle-haired, the father of 11 children, and walks with a limp as the result of a railroad accident 13 years ago.

He began his working career as a country school teacher in Tasmania. Insularity and "home rule" marked his attitude a few years ago. Now he recommends as a commonwealth slogan, "Keep in tune with England."

Everywhere, the little nations are calling, "Wait for baby."

TAKING arms against this sea of troubles is the Countess Alain Dedons de Pierrefeu, formerly Elsa Tudor of the Boston social register. Under impressive patronage, which includes faculty members of leading universities, scholars, diplomats and sociologists, she organizes a "world youth tour," with a fervor comparable to that of Peter the Hermit leading the children's crusade.

World Tour of Youth Is Peace Move

She is recruiting young persons from all nations, including Germany, Italy and Russia, on a world tour to flux animosities and foster good will and understanding. "World peace through world trade" is their slogan.

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is among those who give warm indorsement to the plan. Headquarters for the tour are in New York.

The French husband of the countess was killed in the World war. Since then she has been vigorously active in social movements in Europe, Chicago, Boston and New York. For nearly four years she has been traveling around the world, recruiting support for her youth organization among diplomats, economists and business men.

Workers Need Not Retire At Age Of 65

Social Security Official Says Benefits Await Eligible Workers

It is not necessary to retire from work at the age of 65 in order to receive a lump sum payment undtr the federal old age insurance program, Martin C. Folmar, manager of the Social Security Board's Bureau of Old Age Insurance field office in Birmingham, emphasizts.

"In my contocts with business and industrial workers in Birmingham and adjoining nine counties served by my office, I have found that there is a general belief among the majority of them that when they reach age 65 they will be compelled to retire from work to receive a lump sum benefit payment," Mr. Folmar said.

"Under the present terms of the Social Security Act, a worker retires from covered employment in order to receive the monthly retirement benefits which will be paid beginning in 1942. However, the lump sum cash payments are paid now to workers who reach age 65, and who have worked, since 1936, in an employment covered by the Act."

The lump sum payments amount to 3½ per cent of wages the worker has received during the covered period.

Every assistance is being given to claimants, without charge, at the Social Security Board office, which is located at 621 Chamber of Commerce Building, Birmingham, Ala.

ATTENTION 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

It is planned to have a tournament, with the final games being played off at the camp this summer. All clubs should organize a ball team and enter the tournament.—B. N. STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Benjamin Russell, President of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce, and J. C. Hodges, of Birmingham, Chairman of the Farm Products Marketing Committee, announce the appointment of a strong and well informed Farm Products Marketing Committee, representing the major branches of agriculture in the state.

With 72 per cent of the people of Alabama dependent upon agriculture for a livelihood, and with the income or buying power of this 72 per cent extremely low, the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce recognized in the beginning that much of its work should be directed toward increasing the purchasing power of this great number of our citizens.

Three of the seven major objectives set forth by the State Chamber at the time of its organization bear directly upon the marketing, processing, and refining of Alabama farm products.

J. E. EASTERLING WRITES TO VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to let the voters know how I stand.

I am in favor of good schools; I have two children to send to school. I have been a school trustee for 12 years, and a member of the Republican Executive Committee from Beat 4, Box 1, for six years.

I believe a man should take his family to Sunday school or to meeting every Sunday if possible, somewhere. I believe every voter ought to know how a candidate stands.

I am a farmer, and am asking every voter for his or her vote and influence. I ran for tax collector four years ago and was beaten, but I stood pat.—J. E. Easterling, R 5, Clanton, Ala.

ATTENTION ALL FARMERS AND CLUB MEMBERS

What? A pasture tour.

Where? Mr. H. S. Shaw's pasture across Coosa River.

When? Monday, April 25, meet at county agent's office by 1:30 p.m.

Why? To inspect the clovers that Mr. Shaw has planted in his pasture.

Anyone interested in developing a good pasture or improving the one you now have, I think, would be benefitted very much by seeing the results which Mr. Shaw has obtained in the past few years.

The different kind of clovers, rate of seeding, fertilizers, etc., will be discussed on this trip.

All meet at the county agent's office, and transportation will be arranged for those who do not have a way.

RHUBY'S PLACE

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you give me just a small space in your good old paper to ask my friends of Chilton county to stop with me when in Shelby county. I am still trying to make a living. I have a line of plaster novelties—sailor girls, dogs, cats, squirrels. They are very nice. When passing by my place, stop by and get one of these beautiful images.—Rhuby Chasteen.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that will hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.

Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

A correspondent writes to ask the identity of the "selfish few" whom President Roosevelt castigated in his Gainesville, Ga., speech. The selfish few, my son, are those who are not on the government payroll, but have to pay the taxes which take care of the unselfish multitude who are on the payroll, one way or another.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work, and forced to do your best, will breed in you temperance, self control, diligence, strength of will, content, and a hundred virtues which the idle never know.—Kingsley.

NEW DEAL TAX THEORY

Before the New Deal appeared on the horion with its self-announced mission of blessedness, taxes commonly were levied for the sole purpose of meeting necessary expenses of government; and on the whole, an effort was made to levy them justly and make them no more onerous than adequate government demanded.

But in the last five years the whole theory has been changed. Now the chief aim of the tax appears to be to find new ways of mulcting the public so that government will have more money to spend in demagogic enterprises and in faddish experimentations.

Beside that, a goodly amount of taxation is imposed in order to punish people for daring to engage in productive business enterprise and become prosperous.

There is even reason for believing that in some instances taxes have been proposed and even enacted for the purpose of ruining private enterprise. And some have almost achieved that purpose.—Detroit Free Press.

GET THEM AT WORK

One question more important in Kansas just now than minimum hours and maximum wages is as to how we are going to get people out to do the work that ought to be done in this state.

Go to many Kansas farms and you will find a need of from one to three extra hands. The farmer and his immediate family have all the work they can do, so they have let the fences tumble and the barn go unpainted. They used to employ a hand or two just to keep the farm up. They can't do it any more, because they are not able to compete with the relief administration, which gives $48 a month to a farm hand to work at some boondoggling activity six hours a day, five days a week. A farmer today cannot entice any farm hands from a generous government which contributes to him a living on 40 hours of pretended work a week, with no chores.

There isn't a city in the United States where a shortage of casual labor does not exist. If you do not think this is true, see if you can find somebody to do an odd job around the place. As a matter of fact, the casual, domestic, seasonal and agricultural labor has been absorbed by the relief administration and made into a list of permanently unemployed persons who are warned that they must not take private employment if they expect to remain on the relief lists.

While waiting to get these people back to work at individual enterprise, the subject of maximum wages and minimum hours ought not to take too much time of the Kansas Commission of Labor.—Topeka State Journal.

SOME OF THESE DAYS

Some of these days someone will stop talking about the poor people on relief and say something in defense of the hundreds of families who are attempting to hang onto their property and keep their taxes paid. There are hundreds of families who do not have as much to live on as the people who are on relief. They are the kind of citizens who need help and encouragement. They are carrying on with the true spirit of the pioneers who built this nation. They are the ones who will eventually organize and demand that present theories be junked and people be given chance to have some reward for their industry and thrift.—Douglas County (Kan.) Republican.

Of course, the New Dealers may be great defenders of democracy, but it is a curious fact that every bill they sponsor is designed to center more power with the executive at Washington.

Colorado cut 15,000 deer and elk off relief last week. The state game warden said: "As long as we provide something for them to eat they'll never hunt anything for themselves".—Jewell County (Kan.) Republican.

Helping the railroads seems to be developing into as big a political issue as helping the farmers.

How many of the middle aged people of South Carolina would have believed five or ten years ago that the time would soon come when they would be compelled to put in one day in four for the support of government?—Charleston News and Courier.

One promising idea might be to declare a world moratorium on all foreign policies of all nations for five years.—Worcester Gazette.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

One of the most common illusions of the modern political thought is that which characterizes the New Deal policies of regimentation and control of production, with planned artificial scarcity in many lines, as "liberalism". We have been told by the supporters of these measures that they, themselves, are the advanced "liberals" of the modern era and a great many of us seem to have accepted these claims without a demand for proof. Those who have dared to oppose these ideas have been denounced as feudalists, economic royalists and moss-back conservatives who date back to the horse and buggy age.

Yet anyone who takes the trouble to think seriously must come to the conclusion that these plans for rigid control of production, centralizing control and forming a totalitarian state along the modified American lines are just the opposite of "liberal". They are reactionary—nothing more and nothing less. If regimenting business, agriculture, and labor is a liberal process, then fascism is liberalism. To see that this is true we have only to look at the record in Europe. Just what have Hitler and Mussolini done along economic lines, after all? How are manufacturing, capital, and labor in Germany and Russia? Haven't they been regimented and state controlled? It would certainly seem so, if we are to accept all the reports which have been coming to us from abroad, and there is little of economic freedom and individual enterprise left in the fascist states in Europe. Now if regimentation and state control in Europe are dictatorial, why wouldn't they develop into something similar in America, rather than into liberalism? And if permitting economic forces to have free play in America would bring a relapse to the laws of the jungle, why are we critical because liberalism has been wiped out in so many dictatorial states in Europe?

But we can find some interesting facts in our own country. We are repeatedly told that regimentation, and production control under the New Deal, are a step toward liberalism. The old fashioned business magnates were denounced as plutocrats and feudal leaders. Yet what were these old fashioned "business barons", the "heartless corporations" of the horse and buggy days, accused of doing? They were charged with regulating production, indulging in a program of scarcity in order to control industry, raise prices and wipe out individualism. Will the general result be any different if the government tries to do this under the guise of "planning"?

When one studies recent history carefully it is difficult to come to the conclusion that state control and liberalism have much in common. In the past, and in Europe today, state control is rightly regarded as black reaction. It might therefore end a great deal of confusion if we were to have our political dictionary clarified. Is a liberal nowadays something different from the liberal of the times of Jefferson and Jackson? And is the same thing true of a tory?

Joe Kennedy, the new American ambassador to Great Britain, says that Americans ought to stop worrying about Europe. We agree with him; there are plenty of things to worry about at home.

THE SAME OLD COURSE

President Roosevelt, on the fifth anniversary of his first inauguration, took pains to assure the correspondents who attended his press conference that "the old ship of state is still on the same old course".

That, of course, is one way of saying it. Another way of saying it is that Mr. Roosevelt took office five years ago in the midst of a depression and that after five years of unparalleled expenditure, we are again in the midst of a depression.

Mr. Roosevelt's methods of saving the country are thus proven by the event to be no more effective than Mr. Hoover's efforts to save the country. To that extent the ship of state is still on the same course.—Baltimore Sun.

Three years ago France put a New Deal into effect, and it doesn't seem to be going so well over there, either.

To keep peace, the next Nobel Peace Prize may have to be divided between Mussolini and Hitler.—Toledo Blade.

Germans will not have bock beer this spring, but they have Austria.—Bangor Commercial.

MAGIC IN WASHINGTON

There are a good many people in Washington who apparently believe that the time has come for the president to draw another rabbit from the hat which produced so many rabbits during his first administration. They are urging him to perform some feat of magic which will startle and impress the country. Some of them think that granting a large subsidy to the railroads is the right way to go about it. Others want another experiment with government pump priming. Still others favor more monetary manipulation of the kind that was tried in 1933 and 1934.

The sponsors of all these plans, and many others, have one faith in common. They believe that there is some legerdemain by which the government can suddenly create prosperity.

There is no reason to believe that sober minded business men share this faith or that they are looking now to the government for an act of magic. What they hope to find in Washington is a very simple thing—more of the same spirit of cooperation which the Senate Finance Committee has shown in its revision of the tax laws.

They are hopeful that well intentioned laws which needlessly discourage the investment of capital will be revised; that production will be encouraged; that the fiscal affairs of the government will be put in order as rapidly as possible, so as to avert the threat of a further increase in the heavy burden of taxation. Above all, they are hopeful that the Roosevelt administration will cease to regard as a covert attack on its social program every proposal that is put forward in the interest of saving this program from the collapse which awaits it if business continues long enough to run down hill.

There is no act of magic by which the government can re-create the conditions of prosperity overnight. But it can lift out of the path of private enterprise some of the obstacles which now block a resumption of the movement toward recovery.

RAIDING THE THRIFTY

The present tax law which penalizes through the undistributed profits tax a conservative and thrifty industry for building up a reserve against hard times is like a law taxing an automobile driver for carrying a spare tire to insure uninterrupted operation.

A taxation or legislative policy which discourages and destroys industry gradually sets the stage for advocates of state socialism to claim that private enterprise has broken down and that government must step in and operate the affairs of tis citizens.

It seems fantastic that such a program is being deliberately promoted here. But the idea is growing in the minds of persons who have watched the current world trend to submerge the individual under government dictation, and the increasing drive to constantly inject government into business, and into the affairs of private citizens in our own country. —Ansonia Sentinel.

ISOLATION

Let us hear no more of the nonsense about the duty of the United States to form a united front with the "democracies of the Old World" to combat fascism and communism.

There is no such common ground for action. It is a figment of the imagination; the pet child of the propagandist; the Charley McCarthey of European politicians who would like to see this country once more pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

"It is not what man does, but what he would do that exalts him." Brownin said that. There are many tests of character but any man can get a pretty accurate test of himself by sitting down and quietly asking himself, "What would I do if I could? Would I do wrong if I knew I could get away with it? Would I do a good deed if nobody ever saw me and nobody ever knew it? Am I a good man or am I just careful and cautious" At the judgment seat of Christ Christians will not auswer to Christ for the quantity of their work. They will answer for the quality of the work and the quantity of the work they would have done if they could. An evangelist may lead a great many people to Christ because he has access to great crowds. Some lowly Christian moving in an obscure sphere would be glad to do the work the evangelist does of he had access to the crowds. Man looks at the outward appearance, but God looks at the heart. Browning was right. It is not what man does but what he would do that exalts him.

A story is told of a minister who was having his shoes shined. When he thought it was time for the bootblack to be through he noticed that the boy had not half finished the job. The minister in rather strong language reprimanded the boy for being so slow. "I am sorry, sir, but my mother died last night and I am working to make some money to buy some flowers for her coffin." The man noticed that the boy was so blinded by his tears he could not work rapidly. We never know the secret sorrow locked in the heart of the one who sits by our side on a railroad train. We never know the secret loneliness in the souls of the people whom we meet in the streets. There is something dreadfully pathetic about the yearnings and the sorrows of the hearts of earth's teeming millions. When Jesus saw a great crowd He was moved with compassion toward them. He said they reminded Him of sheep who had no shepherd. It is not surprising that the Bible speaks of Jesus as a man of sorrows. He knew the sorrows of all the race and He entered into the fellowship of sufferings of a broken-hearted world. It was He who said, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Someone who reads these lines may have a broken heart. The writer would like to suggest that Jesus Christ is all-sufficient. He understands. He offers comfort for a broken heart. When He was ready to go away He said, "I will not leave you comfortless." He promised to pray the Father that He might send us another Comforter. The Holy Spirit is the "Other Comforter." He does not only convict a sinner and indwell a Christian and give power for service, but He gives comfort to us along the way of life.

LIBERTY HILL

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days, and the members attending the services heard good sermons by Bro. Holland. We invite visitors at any time.

We have the front of our church finished now, also the petitions have been placed in the Sunday school rooms. As soon as we can raise enough money we want to give the church a good coat of paint.

Our Sunday school is growing each Sunday. We have 115 on roll and the majority of them attend every Sunday. If you don't go to Sunday school any place we would like to have you meet with us each Sunday morning, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. B. Lawrence is making us a good superintendent.

We have changed our singing afternoon back to the thrid Sunday. If you do not attend either of the all day singings meet with us next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. E. P. Littlejohn is our new chairman. We use the Showalter books.

The Young People's Rally will be held at our church the fourth Sunday afternoon in this month. Mrs. L. D. Hughes will have charge of the program.

The B. Y. P. U. had a social at the home of Margaret and Zane Lowery last Saturday night. Most all the members attended, even if it was a bad night.

A family of Jewish people by the name of Pitnick, from Marianna, Fla., en-route to Birmingham, wrecked their automobile near Verbena last Sunday about noon. Mrs. Pitnick and little daughter were injured so as to be carried to Central Alabama Hospital. Their conditions was not serious.

CITIZENS MILITARY CAMP

Editor Union-Banner:

I have just come back from a trip in Florida which was a very enjoyable trip. After spending seven months in Florida I have just come back to Chilton County, my original home county.

I am one of the boys that attends Citizens Military Camp held at Fort McClellan, Ala. I have some friends that has gone to the camp with me in the past years. They have enjoyed the camps fine and each year it is better. The sole purpose of the camps is to have the fine young men of our States to get to together in good healthful living conditions, to learn the value of citizenship and leadership. What will be the most healthful living conditions and realization of our citizenship to our nation.

I have one friend who attended camp with me in 1935, who should be the very best of an example. He was in bad health when we attended camp, but after staying one month at the camp he had gained about 16 pounds. This go to show the boys of this county that the C. M. T. Camps are the very things for a boy who wants to be in a healthful place.

As I attened the camps for the last two years I know that it will be enjoyed by many boys that doesn't know the real meaning of this camp.

For an application blank and folders write a card to Leo Deason, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 1. This is for boys that are 17 years or older. Please state your age.—Citizen Military Training Camp, Solitioning Acency, Leo Deason, Clanton, Ala., Rt. 1.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Powers of Lay Dam was the scene of a gay party on last Wednesday afternoon when their daughter, young Miss Suan Powers, celebrated her 8th borthday.

The children assembled on the lawn where several games and contests were enjoyed. Inside the house multi-colored balloons clung to the ceiling, and the Easter idea was carried out in the decorations of the long table around which the guests gathered. In the center of the table was the eight lighted candles and attractive favors marked the children's places.

The young honoree received many gifts. Those attending the occasion were: Ruth and Betty Jones, Joy, Eddie and Marie Lakeman, Jo Woodson, Barabara Green, Sarah Wall, Jimmie and Bobby Murphy, Joyee Bates, Patty Farley, Annette and Pat Broadhead, Nedra Ann Miller, Don, Pat, and Mary Marcus, Muriel Grace and Betty Jo Miller.

Sims Is Busy On County Roads

T. J. Arledge Writes In Interest Of His Candidacy

T. C. (Clyde) Sims, candidate for the nomination as Commissiner for First District, Chilton County, unselfishly sacrificed all his campaign activities in order to devote his entire time to rebuilding bridges and drainage structures which swept the county last week, and therefore has had to neglect visiting his friends on behalf of his candidacy and devote his time to getting the roads passable for the people's benefit, and to enable them to receive their mail and get their children to and from school.

Clyde, as we all know him, asked to say to all the voters of the county, that he was still in the race for the place indicated, and that he wished it were possible for him to visit each individual and solicit their vote and support in this campaign. We all know that he is first, a true Democrat, and second, a true believer in fair practices in government and a loyal citizen of Chilton County, and if he is selected for the place as Commissioner we can all expect nothing except honest and straight-from-the-shoulder conduct towards every citizen of Chilton county.

"Seeing both sides so well we can take neither." The people of Chilton County are very able to see both sides and choose that which is right without the aid of another. Therefore, it is up to them to name those who they feel are the most fully equipped to serve their best interests. We are being called upon to select "servants," not "masters" to fill the place of Governor, Senator, Representative, Attorney General, Superintendent of Education, Tax Collector, Tax Assessor, Sheriff, Commissioners and members of the Board of Education and others on May 3rd, which is only two weeks away. What are we going to do about it? You all know what I stand for, and that is summed up in three words—Right, Fairness and Justice.—T. J. Arledge, Road Supervisor.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Sunday school wasn't so well attended Sunday on account of our Easter singing at Poplar Springs, but let's be present next Sunday with a well prepared lesson.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Lansford were in this community Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lansford.

Dr. Ephriam Wilson of Birmingham, was in this community Thursday visiting friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Keena Wells have moved back in our community. We welcome them back.

The many friends of Mr. Erby Lewis were broken-hearted over the sad news which came to us last Saturday afternoon that Mr. Lewis had shot himself. It was learned that he did it on account of bad health.

A few weeks ago he throught he was going to have to go back to the hospital on account of his arm, and he told some of his friends that he had rather go to the Chestnut Creek graveyard than to have to go back to the hospital.

Mr. Lewis is survived by his wife and several children, his father, mother and a great host of relatives and friends.

Only Mother and Baby Porpoises in Captivity

A MOTHER porpoise (Tursiops tursio) and her baby, believed to be the first pair ever caught alive, can be seen here coming up for air just after they had been placed in the new aquariums at Marineland, Florida. The mother, thought to be the largest of the species ever captured alive, weighed an estimated 850 pounds, and her baby, which is probably only a few months old, about 125 pounds.

After being caught about one mile north of Marineland, they were carried from the dock on stretchers up the side of Marine Studios' three-story aquarium and lowered into their new home. In the upper picture the baby can be seen just before being reunited with its mother which it immediately followed about, always coming up to breathe at the same time its mother did.

Porpoises, being mammals, breathe somewhat similarly to human beings and must come to the surface for air. The opening of their nostrils, or blowhole, is on the top of their heads, as the arrow indicates, and they breathe only when their heads are above the water's surface.

These two porpoises, together with two others (a Dolphinus delphis and another Tursiops tursio) which were recently caught are, according to the acting director of the New York Aquarium, Dr. Charles M. Breder, Jr. the first living porpoises "ever to be exhibited behind glass" or "to be seen swimming in side view."

These are believed to be the only porpoises in captivity today. The only others known to have lived in captivity were at the old New York Aquarium. They died in 1913.

In addition to the porpoises, sharks penguins, huge turtles, California sea lions and other large and small forms of sea life are being assembled in these immense aquariums which are designed for scientific display, motion pictures and public observation.

Lesson for April 24

RECEIVING VISION FOR SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:2-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—This is my beloved Son: hear him.—Mark 9:7.
PRIMARY TOPIC—On a Mountain with Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—With Jesus on a Mountain Top.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Worship Prepares Us for Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Place and Purpose of Vision.

"Where there is no vision the people perish" said the wise man of old (Prov. 29:18). For want of a true vision of God, a knowledge of His truth, and the God-given constraint which makes men give themselves in sacrificial service, the people will perish in their sins. But let men come to know the truth as it is in Christ, learn to know Him as the Son of God glorious and powerful, and then let them translate their knowledge of Christian truth and their personal spiritual experiences into the daily ministry to the needs of their fellow-men, and there will be songs of salvation and joy.

The transfiguration of our Lord meant much to Him as it brought new assurance of His divine Sonship, His acceptance with the Father, and His resurrection to follow the death of the cross. We do well to recognize its testimony to Him, but we think today especially of the experience of the disciples and their preparation for service. We, like them, must

I. Know Christian Truth.

Fundamental in both Christian life and service is a clear understanding of the person and work of Christ. One may come to Christ knowing little more than that He is the divine Saviour, and one may enter into Christian living with a meager knowledge of the doctrines of the Bible. But the Christian who fails to grow in knowledge will not grow in grace as he should.

The disciples came to a fuller conviction that He was the Son of God as they saw Him transfigured and heard the Father say, "This is my beloved Son." They learned more plainly the truth of His coming death for the sins of all mankind. They saw in the indescribable beauty of that moment the foregleam of His coming glory. What important truths these are—His deity—His redemption—His coming kingship. Do we have a clear grasp of these truths?

II. Experience Spiritual Power.

Great experiences of spiritual renewing and power are necessary to effective life and testimony. They may not be in outward manifestation, in fact they are more often in the inner recesses of the soul, but they transform men and send them forth to magnificent living for God.

The disciples had an unforgettable mountain-top experience. Even so have many others found the secret of power. It came to D. L. Moody as he walked down a New York street, praying in agony, "Deliver me from myself. Take absolute sway." The story of what happened to him and through him as a surrendered instrument in God's hand is written large on the pages of history. Others had similar experiences. Let us remember that such privileges are not reserved for a few, they are the birthright of every Christian. Power without knowledge is a dangerous and destructive thing, but knowledge without power is a dead thing, resulting in a stale and unfruitful orthodoxy that in turn produces a dreadful and unchristian religious system. It is not enough to know the truth, to be able to discuss it, to divide it, and possibly to fight about it. Let us study God's Word, but let the truth be baptized in the overflowing spiritual power of a personal experience with God.

III. Serve Needy Humanity.

Dr. Moore beautifully suggests that Jesus and the disciples went up to the place of prayer, into the place of glory, and down to the place of service. How fitting is that sequence. Much confusion exists in the church because those who have foolishly abandoned their interest in the truth of God's Word and have substituted the energy of the flesh for spiritual power, have been most diligent in service to humanity, while those who know and accept the truth about Christ, and who profess to believe in the power of the Spirit-filled life have failed to serve their needy neighbors. How delightful and useful is the normal, well-rounded life of the true Christian, one equipped with an understanding of Christian doctrine, endued with Holy Ghost power, and humbly serving others.

I am persuaded that every time a man smiles, but much more when he laughs, it adds something to this fragment of life.—Sterns.

CANDIDATE FOR AGRICULTURE POST GIVES PLATFORM

EVERETT S. HAYNES

Everett S. Haynes of Birmingham, who characterizes himself as a "farm-born boy who has had many years of practical experience and knows what Alabama farmers are up against," is running for Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries on a program calling for development of agriculture and industrial resources to make the state more self-sustaining.

Haynes, who lives in Central Park, is a native of Cullman County, where he spent 12 years in actual farming. He served four years as principal of a Junior High School and has been connected with Industry here 8 years.

POULTRY MEETING

The meeting of the County Council on Thursday, April 14, was to discuss poultry raising in the county. Mr. John Ivey, poultry specialist from Auburn, gave a very interesting discussion on poultry raising as an industry, and some important facts to be remembered. He stated that a poultry committee giving six or seven demonstrations a year throughout the county could do more toward teaching the 3,600 farm families in Chilton county the correct methods of poultry raising than the six teachers of agriculture in the county could do by making personal calls on each farmer.

Mr. Ivey stated that high egg production is transmitted from a hen to her son, and visa versa, and if a high production cockerel, a high production flock will be produced.

"We need," said Mr. Ivey, "to fit poultry into the new farm program." Unless the farmers can do something to offset the reduced acreage in cotton they will be in a bad shape. As it has been proven that 100 hens will produce the equivalent of 6 bales of cotton. He recommends that we try poultry.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. DOLLY JACKS

On April 14, 1938, Mrs. Dollie Jacks laid her earthly burden down and crossed over into the great beyond. She died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Parrish, of Cane Creek and Robinson Springs. She often spoke of why God did not call her home, for she was ready to go. She made peace with her Maker over 56 years ago, and always lived a Christian life.

She was a member of Salem Baptist church in Coosa county, and was 85 years old. She leaves seven children: Mrs. E. E. Carroll and Mrs. J. P. Parrish of Clanton, Mrs. Alice Patterson of Titus, Mrs. Cora Woodfin and Mrs. Kazie Corley of Rockford; Walter Jacks of Weogufka, and A. A. Jacks of Arcadia, La. There are 52 grandchildren and 100 great grand children. There are three great great grand children. Her husband died 38 years ago.

The remains were laid to rest in Cane Creek cemetery Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Revs. J. D. Hughes, E. A. Norris, J. P. Littleton and W. S. Cox officiating; Spigener directing. Pallbearers were grandsons—A. L. Carroll, T. B. Carroll, Curtis Parrish, Newman Newell and Allen Ruff. G. C. Walker Writes To Voters

To The Voters of Chilton County:

As I have said to you many times over that if you elect me as your Representative in the Legislature, my first official act will be, to repeal the present Chilton County Road Laws. I will go no further with local legislation until you by majority of your votes give me directions.

It has come to my attention that during the month of January, 1938, certain of our citizens did work for the county and certain others sold the county supplies. The Attorney General of Alabama has ruled that this work and supplies can't be paid for, because the budget for the months of November and December, 1937, and January, 1938, had been exceeded. I want the voters to know that I have had nothing to do with the Commissioners Court; neither have I had anything to do with the work of our Road Supervisor and I am in no way responsible for this situation. I will, however, if it meets with your approval, introduce and pass a bill in the Legislature to pay these people for the work they did and for the supplies bought by the county during that quarter, with interest from the date that the claim was due.

I want the voters to further know that I have no "steering committee," except that the voters of Chilton county will be my steering committee and that in all of my official acts as their representative, I will be obedient to a majority of their votes.

I do not believe that newspaper controversies do any good and this article is about all that I will have to say. You have tried others, now try me.

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives me to see the right." I will keep my promise to you on matters of local legislation for Chilton County. Thanking you I am,

Your Obedient Servant,

G. C. WALKER.

REFUGE

We had a large crowd out Sunday and Sunday night. The egg hunt preceding the service Sunday morning was an enjoyable occasion. Two hundred and fifty eight eggs were hid and more than 250 were found. There was a seperate hiding for the children under 14 years of age.

Prizes were given to the one finding the most eggs. The pastor awarded the prizes to the winners. After the egg hunt everybody gathered at the church for preaching, which everyone enjoyed.

We have preaching every Sunday and Sunday night. Everybody is invited to attend.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Magazine Solicitors.

HOUSTON, TEXAS. — What has become of all the struggling collegians, ranging in age up to fifty-five, who used to solicit magazine subscriptions so they could spend another semester at dear old Bushwah?

We counted that day lost whose low descending sun didn't find us signing on the dotted line. And sometimes we got the wrong magazines and sometimes we didn't get any magazines at all and once in awhile we got the magazines we'd ordered and then didn't like them.

But our consolation was that we'd aided all those earnest undergraduates to complete the education for which they panted as the hart panteth after the waterbrook.

Can it be that the gallant army packed the campuses until vast numbers got crushed in the jam? Or is it that many of them are getting too old to travel around? Lately there has been an unaccountable falling-off in the business. We are bearing up bravely, since now we have more time in which to lead our own lives.

Matriarchy's Approach.

SOME inspired philosopher—and not a woman either—declares that within a century women will dominate every imaginable field of human endeavor.

What do you mean, within a century? If the prophet will leave out the ancient science of growing chinwhiskers and the knack of making a sleeping car washroom look like a hurrah's nest I'm saying that women are already away out in front everywhere.

Since Henry the Eighth, the two greatest kings England had were both queens—Elizabeth and Victoria. Men thought up war and improved the art of war and now are hoping to perfect it to the point of exterminating the species, but 'twas in the midst of bloody warfares that Florence Nightingale laid the foundations and Clara Barton built the structure of mercy by method and life-saving by skill and tenderness and sanitation.

Take this country at the present moment: for energy, for readiness of speech, for range of interest, for versatility in making publicity and, incidentally, acquiring it, for endurance under strain, what man amongst us is to be compared with the first lady of the language, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt?

Banishing Sectionalism.

ON ONE stretch of road down here—and it is not a main-traveled highway and this not exactly the tourist season—I saw cars bearing license tags of nine separate states, ranging from New Hampshire and Florida to Utah and Oregon, besides one from Hawaii and one from Puerto Rico. And next summer Texas cars will be boring into every corner of this Union and the folks riding in them will be getting acquainted with their fellow-countrymen and finding out that, when you know the other fellow, he's not so different, after all.

Like most evil things, sectionalism and parochial prejudices and with Vermont neighbor to Virginia and the Dakotas talking it over with the Carolinas, there's seed being sown which inevitably must sprout a finer yield of Americanism than any our land ever produced—if only we keep the tares of communism and the chaff of snobbery out of the crop, only make patriotic service a thing of elbow-grease and not of lip-movements.

What price, then, the wearers of the black shirts and the white sheets; the parlor pinks, the yellow internationalists and the red flag wavers?

Freedom of the Press.

DICTATORS invariably cancel freedom of the press and curb freedom of education. Otherwise, they fail.

Although he uttered the words over 250 years ago, Governor Berkeley of Virginia spoke for all the breed of political tyrants when he said: "I thank God there are no free schools, nor printing, for learning has brought disobedience and heresy into the world, and printing has divulged them."

Foulness in drama or literature, like a skunk penned under a barrel, eventually destroys itself by just naturally choking to death on its own smell.

Control of the newest medium of publicity, the radio, is easy. But information put in type keeps on traveling. No people ever stayed free once the press—and the schoolteacher— had been muzzled.

Paul C. Mims Is Favored by Voter

To The Republican Voters:

As you know, the first primary will soon be here, and it is likely that most of you are making your selections among the candidates. We have a good group of candidates from whom to select. I have heard of no dissatisfaction or hard feelings so far among any of these. I believe this has been one of the quietest campaigns we have ever had, and for this we should all be glad. There are no political sores to heal; we have apparent perfect harmony; and this generally tends toward victory.

While I have no particular reason or desire to try to unduly influence anyone in any way regarding any candidate, yet there is at least one race in which I am very much interested—that for Representative. I believe we should nominate a man who knows the needs of all our people; one who meets and is in almost daily contact with people in all walks of life. Such a man naturally can represent us best.

In this connection, I would like to support the candidacy of Paul C. Mims for this place. I have known him for more than 20 years. He was raised on a farm, and lives on that same farm today; he knows the needs of farmers. In addition, for a number of years he has fought for the rights of farmers through the columns of The Union-Banner, both in his column, "The Man In The Moon," and in special articles; and in these articles he has shown plainly that he knows the farmer's side of every question as it has arisen. I can most heartily recommend him to farmers.

For a number of years he was connected with manufacturing and mercantile firms; he knows their troubles, too. For several years he has been connected with The Union-Banner, where he has had the opportunity of meeting hundreds of people in all walks of life, and has heard them pour out their troubles. He knows what the general public of our county needs and wants.

I fully believe that Mr. Mims is best qualified for the office he seeks, by the full experience mentioned above. He has been in the thick of our Republican fight for a number of years, and I have yet to know of an occasion when he was forced down by Democratic opposition in any of these controversies. I believe he is a man to really "represent" all classes.

In closing, allow me to plead with our Republican people to turn a deaf ear to the Democratic tempter to turn back on the Republicans and vote Democratic. Some did that one time, much to the sorrow of all, including themselves, and I can hardly believe they will do it again. Let's go down the line with our own kind—Republicans—for we have an excellent chance of winning this fall. United, we are sure to be victorious; divided, we are sure of defeat.—Walter W. Popwell, Clanton, Rt. 2.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

TIME FOR SIDE DRESSING COTTON AND CORN LISTED

Auburn, Apr. 18. — Should cotton and corn be side dressed with nitrogen? If so, when should it be applied?

Answering these two questions, J. C. Lowery, agronomist, Alabama Extension Service, says:

"If less than 6 per cent nitrogen was used at planting, sufficient nitrogen should be applied as a side dressing to bring the nitrogen up to 6 per cent.

"Cotton fertilized with 3-8-5, 4-8-4, and 4-10-4 should be side dressed at first cultivation after chopping, to bring the nitrogen up to that in a 6-8-4 grade.

"For example, if 600 pounds per acre of 3-8-5 was applied at planting time, apply 112 pounds of nitrate as a side dressing. If less than 600 pounds per acre of 3-8-5 was used, side dress with about 20 pounds of nitrate for each 100 pounds of the 3-8-5 at planting.

"If 600 pounds per acre of 4-8-4 or 4-10-4 was applied under the cotton, apply 75 pounds per acre of nitrate as a side dressing. If less than 600 pounds was used under the cotton, use 12½ pounds of nitrate as a side dressing fir each 100 pounds of the 4-8-4 or 4-10-4 used. Where 6-8-4 was used, it does not need to be side dressed.

"If home mixing was used with ¼ of the nitrogen put under the cotton, apply the remaining ¾ at first cultivation after chopping.

"Apply up to 36 pounds of nitrogen (225 pounds of nitrate of soda ir its equivalent) per acre as a side dressing to corn 3g to 40 days after planting if the corn did not follow a good crop of winter legumes."

STATION FINDS WAY TO ERADICATE NUT GRASS

Auburn, Apr. 18. — Nut grass can be eradicated on Norfolk sandy loam land by plowing or disking the land at regular intervals, report E. V. Smith and E. L. Mayton, agronomists, Alabama Experiment Station.

"Plots of land heavily infested with nut grass were plowed or disked at intervals of one week, two weeks, three weeks or four weeks, during two successive growing seasons, 1934 and 1935, from April until frost," they report. "Nut grass was destroyed by plowing every week, every two weeks, or every three weeks, but not every four weeks. Disking was almost as good as plowing.

"The results of this experiment indicate that it is possible to eradicate nut grass on sandy soils by either plowing or lisking at intervals of three weeks or less throughout two successive growing seasons. Such treatment would, of course, prevent the growing of a summer crop on the land, but a winter grain or hay crop which is planted in October and harvested by the first of June might be grown. Such a crop, in fact, would be lesirable because land fallowed throughout the summer is very susceptible to erosion losses in the winter, and a winter crop would give considerable protection. Nut grass will make very little growth in a dense crop of grain or winter legumes, and tillagt treatments would not be seriously delayed by such crops.

"A considerable amount of labor and time may be wisely spent on the eradication of nut grass from small areas before it spreads to larger areas," they conclude.

FARMERS SHOULD PLANT 80% OF COTTON ALLOTMENTS THIS YEAR

Auburn, Apr. 18.—It is important Alabama farmers plant at least 80 per cent of their cotton acreage allotments in cotton this year. Unless this is done, the 1938 cotton payments will be reduced, advises Walter L. Randolph, administrative officer in charge of AAA program in Alabama.

The payment rate for cotton is 2.4 per pound. If a farmer with a nromal yield if 200 pounls of lint cotton per acre plants within, but not less than 80 per cent of his cotton allotment, his cotton payment will be 2.4 cents times 200, or $4.80 per acre for each acre in the cotton acreage allotment.

If the acreage planted to cotton is less than 80 per cent of hte cotton acreage allotment, and the county committee finds that the failure to plant 80 per cent of the allotment was not due to drought or flood, payment will be made on the normal production of 1¼ times the actual planted acreage. This means that if a farmer with a cotton acreage allotment of 100 acres actually plants only 60 acres — and the county committee finds this reduced planting was due to flood or drought — he will be paid 2.4 cents a pound on the normal production of 1¼ times 60 acres, or on 75 acres.

DEDUCTION IN PAYMENTS FOR OVER PLANTING OF COTTON

Auburn, Apr. 18. — Deductions will be made in the 1938 conservation payments to farmers over planting their cotton acreage allotments or failing to reach their soil building goal this year.

"If the cotton acreage allotment is knowingly over planted in 1938 the farm will receive no conservation payment of any kind," say the regulations.

If a farmer inadvertantly over plants his cotton acreage allotment, deductions for over planting the allotment will apply to the normal yield for each acre in excess of the allotment. Example: The deduction rate for cotton is 5c per pound. If a farmer inadvertently over plants his cotton acreage allotment and his normal yiel dis 200 pounds of lint per acre, the deduction from the payment to the farmer will be 5c times 200 or $10 for each acre over planted.

For each unit by which the farm falls short of the soil building goal a deduction of $1.50 will be made.

More information on this may be obtained by farmers from county agents or community committeemen.

Blount was originally one of the largest if not the largest county in the state. It extended from the Tennessee River on the northeast to the city of Tuscaloosa on the southwest, and included most of Marshall, Etowah, a part of Shelby, all of Jefferson, part of Walker, Winston and Cullman. It has been trimmed until it is now smaller than the average county.

FARMERS ADVISED THAT 200 POUNDS OF SODA IS BEST

Under general average conditions, 200 pounds per acre of nitrate of soda usually gives cotton an adequate and profitable supply of nitrogen. Experienced farmers often use considerably more to good alvantage, especially under the crop, but 200 pounds is doubtless safer for the average user. It should be split, however, about 50 pounds under, and 150 pounds side dressing about chopping time. The side dressing is the secret of the results obtained by "money" farmers.

ENTERPRISE CLUB

The Enterprise Club met for its regular meeting, with 21 members and one visitor present. The meeting began by the singing of club songs. The secretary called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting, after which a business discussion was held. The meeting was then turned over to Mr. Ivey. Plans for the rally and a social in the near future were discussed. Mr. Ivey also stressed the kinds of fertilizer to be used under our various crops.

The club elected Samuel Burkhalter to represent our club at the state short course in Auburn in July.—Elbert Griffin, reporter.

EROSION CONTROL

Erosion control methods which are establishing on their farms in the Soil Conservation Service area near Clanton, Ala., can be seen to good advantage at this season of the year according to Mr. James Wood.

Contour cultivation, which means simply plowing level rows along the contour of the slopes, rather than straight rows up and down hill, can be seen on all cooperation garms. When this method of tillage is used, each row forms a small reseroir which impedes the flow of run-off water across the slope, Mr. Wood explains.

Broad channel capaciyt is emphasized in the freshly plowed terraces on many farms. Green meadow strips and other vegetated waterways used for conducting surplus water out of terraced fields, also stand out particularly well at this season, he said.

The contract between freshly plowed land and strips of close-growing vegetation, affords a clear idea of the system of strip cropping which farmers are using as an adjunct to terracing and contour cultivation in their cultivated fields. Many farmers are also using field and woodland border strips which provide food and cover for wildlife.

These are only a few of the methods cooperating farmers are combining into a unified program of erosion control on their farms. The primary purpose of this work is to demonstrate for the benefit of the farmers throughout this entire section, how these methods are being adapted to ocnditions similar to those found on their own farms, he added

Last year the State of Alabama spent $13,094,382.50 for education. This includes federal funds, poll tax receipts, expenditures for free text books and the general fund appropriation for the state department of education, but it does not include the funds contributed by the counties and the cities which amounts to many times that contributed by the state. Of the amount spent by the state for education, -9,879,309.80 went to the elementary and secondary schools, while the higher institutions got $1,568,884.86 The remainder of this fund went to extension, vocational education, the state department, and miscellaneous.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

FRANCHISE TAX DEPARTMENT OF STATE TAX COMMISSION

The duties of the chief clerk of the Franchise Tax Department of the State Tax Commission are to see that all corporations file franchise tax returns and make application for permit each year. He also audits the returns and assesses tax on same. He handles the entrance of a foreign corporation into this state, as the entrance fee, based upon the amount of capital employed, or to be employed in this state, is paid to this Department, and it is his duty to determine the amount of capital employed, or to be employed, within Alabama.

There are approximately 5,000 active corporations within this state, of which about 3,500 are domestic corporations, and 1,500 are foreign. Domestic corporations pay a franchise tax of $2.00 per $1,000 on the amount of paid-in and subscribed capital stock, while foreign corporations base their franchise tax on the amount of capital employed within Alabama.

During the last fiscal year, the amount of franchise tax collected was approximately $1,530,515.31, and tthe amount of permit fees collected was $110,326.77. The entrance fee collections were approximately $20,000.00. All of these collections go into the general fund except 10 per cent of the franchise tax, which goes to the counties for the reason that a corporation has property in that county. These collections have been increasing during the past four years.

JUST FROM SHOULTS

West Chilton has had the largest overflow of water it has had since 1916. You may remember the July fresh that year. Okmulga Creek got a little past the high water line of that year. Hill sides caved in, timber and logs went down the hills and dammed up the streams. Good place to fish.

Cap has gone south to watch the big streams flowing through the big farms of Dallas County. I don't know what he will report when he gets back home. I hope he gets back in time to vote for the best man for office. It is a fact, we think we know what we want, but we don't know how to get it. Can you tell?—Uncle Remus.

NATIONAL AIR MAIL WEEK

Birmingham, Ala., April 18.—A two-color air mail stamp will be issued by the United States Post Office Department as a special recognition of National Air Mail Week, May 15 to 21, which will be the greatest effort in the history of this service to increase its effectiveness and popular support.

An announcement today at National Air Mail Week general headquarters here by Major Paul R. Younts, Executive Chairman, said this stamp will be symbolic of the Air Mail and should be highly desirable for the many thousands of collectors who will send and receive letters on the special flights that week.

Major Younts said he has been informed by Postmaster-general Farley that this stamp will be of six-cent denomination, the same size as the commorative issues. The border, of distinctive Air Mail design, will be printed in blue and the central design will be in red. This design will depict an eagle with outstretched wings, in its talons a shield, olive wreath and a bundle of arrows. Numerous ornamental details have been included in the over-all design.

Each year approximately $3,000,000 in mutilated currency is sent to the U. S. treasury in Washington for redemption. In a surprisingly large number of cases, identifications of the ruined money are made, and redemption made to the owner. The average is 100 to 150 cases a day.

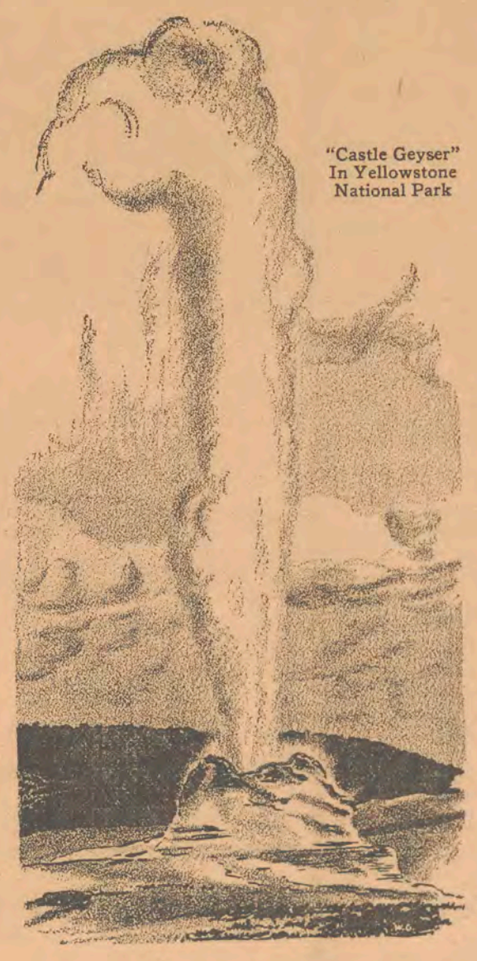
In no case should the county committeeman permit two or more tracts of land to be covered with one work shee if such tracts are operated with separate work stock, farm machinery, and labor.

LIBERTY HILL

Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Very few attended Saturday on account of the farmers being behind with their work. We had a large crowd Sunday and a fine sermon. There were 116 in Sunday school. Brother Lawrence is our superintendent, and he is a good one. We have our Sunday school rooms finished, and we are very proud of them.

Our singing also meet every third Sunday afternoon. Mr E. C. Littlejohn is our chairman. We are expecting to have visiting singers from several different communities next third Sunday afternoon.

We are changing our Saturday preaching day to Saturday night at 7 o'clock for the next two months, on account of the farmers cannot attend on Saturday.



Remember Sunday school every Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock, preaching at 11 and B. Y. P. U. at 7 p. m.; preaching the third Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Flannagin, from Cepperell, was a visitor in our community this week.

May the Lord bless our pastor, Bro. Holland, to regain his health and strength is our prayer.

CASTLE GEYSER

Is A Water Heater but not much good when compared to an ELECTRIC WATER HEATER

"Castle Geyser" In Yellowstone National Park

SHAKING the ground, and rumbling like thunder, Castle Geyser spews forth, at spasmodic intervals, enough hot water for the needs of thousands of families (if they didn't mind the rocks, and mud, and chemicals mixed with it). So, although Castle Geyser is "some punkins" as a water heater, it isn't much good for anything but a thrill.

Electric Water Heaters, now, are different. You install them, and except for the fact that whenever you turn a hot water faucet, you get hot water -- clean and sterile — you'd never know there was a water heater around. Electric Water Heaters are moderately priced, cost little to operate (the electricity for your electric water heater comes to you at the lowest rate). They require no attention, are silent, clean as electric light.

Letter To Citizens From County Commissioners

For the information of the public, we have asked both the county papers to publish this opinion in full, which you may read in this paper. If the Court should pay any of these road hands or any of the parties selling the county materials and supplies, then, of course, the claim would be illegal and the next state examiners would charge it back to the Commissioners. We presume that every fair minded citizen will agree that the Commissioners Court should have the right to limit the supervisor, whoever he might be, in expending money on the roads and bridges of the county, as the public knows there are other functions of the county that have to operate and the only way under the Local Bill whereby a person working for the county might positively know whether or not he can legally be paid would be to ascertain from the Supervisor whether or not the appropriations were over run, or would likely be over run. We submit that this is not practical or reasonable, however, it is the way this local bill is written, and it is the way it has been construed by the Attorney General.

As members of the Commissioners Court and as citizens and taxpayers of your county, we do not feel that it is right for any person to give a day's service to the county with the expectation of pay and not be paid, and that, notwithstanding the Court has appropriated each month every penny for road work that we felt that the condition of our county would warrant. However, this road law was passed and became the law of our county and, of course, we, as officials, are bound by it and will be bound by it until it is repealed.

Forgetting any feeling we may have had in the past or that may have existed between the present supervisor and the Commissioners Court, we feel, along with the Grand Jury which reported sometime ago upon this bill, as well as practically all, if not all, candidates for the Legislature and as a great majority of the citizens of this county that this law is not workable, that it is not practical and regardless of who you might elect in November as your county commissioners, that this law should be repealed as soon as the Legislature meets in January. This is just one of the many instances which prove that this law is not workable and not practical and could never be made beneficial for the county and the Commissioners Court throughout the past two years have encountered many other instances under the law which has convinced us that the same should be repealed. We feel further that the working of the roads and bridges and the expenditures of your money should be placed back in the hands of the Commissioners Court, men who you directly elect and who are directly responsible to you, and if this law is repealed and the matter placed back in the hands of the Commissioners Court, then whenever a man is employed to do a day's work on the roads of the county or whenever the county buys aterials or supplies, the Commissioners will have a right to pay for the same and not be bound by the technical provisions of the supervisor's bill.

We make this statement in view of the fact that some blame has been placed on the Comissioners Court for not paying these road hands, as we believe when you view the situation fairly in view of the local supervisor's bill and the opinion of the Attorney General, that you cannot justly place any blame upon the Court.—J. Lee Smith, Judge of Probate, J. P. Bean, H. R. Oden, R. L. Ousley, J. M. Parrish, Members Comissioners Court.

SPARKS SPOKE TO BIG CROWD FRIDAY

Candidate For Governor Made Strong Appeal To Voters Of Chilton County

Judge Chauncey Sparks, Democratic candidate for Governor of Alabama, brought his campaign message to Chilton county voters by speaking at the courthouse last Friday at 11 o'clock. The courthouse was almost filled and a loud speaker arrangement permitted all on the outside for a block or more to hear what he said.

The meeting was opened by Attorney Lawrence F. Gerald, who introduced Dr. F. G. Dubose; the latter, after a few short and pointed remarks. introduded the gubernatorial candidate from Eufaula.

In his speech here Sparks picked Dixon's most vulnerable spots, always referring to the Birmingham lawyer as "Chief Woodpecker," and sent thrust after thrust home. He specifically asked the second-time candidate to declare the following men would have no part in his administration, should he perchance be elected:

Henry Long, W. W. Ramsey and John P. Kohn, Sr., tax commissioners; Hamp Draper, convict department head; Josh Goddard, Graves' personnel representative in the highway department; Gaston Scott, L. L. Herzberg and Mr. Burnum, highway commissioners; Will Gunter and Cy Brown, Montgomery county political bosses; John P. Kohn, Jr., campaign manager for Graves in Montgomery county in 1934, and Pitt Tyson Maner, Graves' personal secretary who engineered the "handpicking" of delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

"If you vote for Frank Dixon, you will perpetuate the Graves' kind of government in this state for four more years."

Sparks condemned the present "pie-eating," political-machine type of government and offered himself as the only candidate espousing a government where the taxpayer would receive a dollar's worth of service or materials for every tax dollar paid to the treasury.

Sparks pointed out to his hearers that a woodpecker fattens on the termites and bugs he drives from rotten logs. "Is the Chief Woodpecker of Alabama driving out these termites from the Graves' tree and absorbing them in order to grow fat?" asked Sparks.

"I want to plow under all politicians, not every third one—I want to get rid of the seed! These politicians are worse than nut grass," thundered Sparks.

Dixon's recent attacks on Graves followed a conference in which he was told by supporters that if he didn't attack the Chief Pie-Eater, "Sparks would win in the first primary," the Barbour county candidate charged.

He showed that he first charged Dixon several weeks ago with the support of the Graves' machine, and while Dixon had "spanked Bibb a little" in public, he had said nothing about the governor's advisors who Sparks claimed are as responsible for present mis-government as Gov. Graves.

His platform is a definite contract with the people of Alabama. It is not filled with "wishes," desires," "wants," and "hopes," Sparks asserted. He said he is a "medicine man" and has a remedy for the ills of bad government from which the people of Alabama are "sick unto death."

Sparks showed he was not interested in "retrenchment"—or a "cutting off" of some of the services of the state—but stood for efficiency and economy in the operation of the state's affairs.

Sparks showed that he led the floor fight in 1919 for the passage of a bill that marked the beginning of a real, efficient, effective health service in Alabama. The bill increased that department's appropriation from $25,000 a year to $50,000 for the next year, $75,000 for the next, and corresponding increases.

Judge Sparks mentioned the whiskey question, saying: "I have always voted for and worked for prohibition, but since the flood gates have been raised and whiskey is flowing in upon us, we people in Alabama will proceed to figure out some way to control whiskey. It is a thing we do not know how to handle, but we will keep working at it and do the best with it that we can."

CLUB MEMBERS EXAMINED

During the past week eight clubs have been examined by the County Health Officer to determine the healthiest boys and girls in the county. After the examination is completed, a select group will be called in to determine the winner.

To date about 115 have been examined and there will probably be about 50 or 75 more. A notice will be sent to each club member's parents stating their defects in hope that many of them will be corrected.

Greenville Men Only Alabamians At Small Business Hearings In Washington

Greenville, Ala., Apr. 25. — John W. Stanfield and J. Wilmer Stanfield of Greenville were the only representatives from Alabama at the hearings sponsored by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper in Washington recently. The small business men of the nation went to Washington to make suggestions as to their most urgent needs.

They went after receiving invitation from Secretary Roper. Mr. J. W. Stanfield was a member of the Sub-Committee on Loans to Small Companies. Eight hundred representatives of businesses from all parts of the United States went to Washington for the epochal meeting.

Mr. Stanfield states that the meetings were orderly, and he believes a great deal of good was accomplished, as the findings of the group were carried before the president, who expressed his appreciation of the suggestions formulated.

We sincerely hope a good representation from our county will go to Birmingham on June 22nd and meet our National Chairman and hear him speak.

COUPLE INJURED HERE SATURDAY

Car Capsized About Ten Miles North Of Here Last Saturday A. M.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Satterwhite, of Birmingham, were injured about 6 a. m. Saturday when the car in which they were returning to Birmingham is said to have overturned three times about 10 miles north of Clanton.

The couple was brought to a Clanton hospital by Walter Bragg Smith, U. S. marshal of this district, and Lamar Howe, deputy marshal, who happened on the scene while returning to Montgmery from Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Satterwhite was treated for numerous cuts, most of which were about her foot and leg. Mr. Satterwhite suffered a shoulder injury.

Mrs. R. L. T. Hudgings, of Guntersville, was riding in the front seat of the car, driven by Mr. Satterwhite, but escaped injury.

It was reported that when the car swerved towards the highway shoulder, Mr. Satterwhite grasped the wheel and steered it to the opposite side, whereupon the driver gave the wheel another twist and the car went off the highway.

The party was returning from a dairy meeting at Auburn.

Vote In The Republican Primary Next Tuesday

[AN EDITORIAL]

You, no doubt, have heard argument after argument during the past few weeks that you should go in the Democratic primary in order that you might be permitted to do this, that and the other. Well, The Union-Banner would like to appeal to your reasoning just a little, in behalf of you voting in the Republican primary next Tuesday.

This is just Democratic bunkum, put out for the purpose of boosting the local vote for certain candidates in the Democratic primary. They are not interested in the Governor's race nearly so much as they are interested in saving their own none-too-wholly hides. Not many Republicans will be inveigled into this enticing little Democratic scheme.

You will find a full list of candidates for all county offices on the Republican ticket, and a finer set of men never graced a ballot in Chilton County. There are two or more candidates to choose from for all offices except two, which will afford all voters a chance to express their individual tastes as to the particular candidates voted for.

Then, as to State officers, the Republicans have out a man for State senator from this district, whose name will appear on the Republican ballot. The Republicans will have out men for all State offices in the general election in November; those not nominated in the primaries will be named in a Republican State Convention to be held in Birmingham on June 22nd. All candidates from Governor on down will be on the Republican ballot in November. Therefore, you do not have to vote the Democratic ticket in order to get to vote for State officers.

And, further, without casting any reflection on anyone, we have known of some organizations which we had rather participate in than the present New Deal-Democratic party in Chilton County and Alabama. We believe they have the expression "lily white" somewhere in their line of endeavor, but when we think of the deplorable mess our State government is in, our unreasonable Federal and State taxation, and the disgusting inefficiency of Chilton County's governmental affairs under Democratic rule, and the internal strife among our local officials, it is hard for us to see much "lily whiteness" in the whole thing.

We recall that famous saying of Henry Clay, "I had rather be right than president". Well, maybe some of us citizens of Chilton County had rather be right than vote the Democratic ticket. Tell some of your Democratic friends this when they ask you to vote in the Democratic primary.

So, again The Union-Banner urges the citizens of Chilton County to think twice before they go into the Democratic primary. It may be a bad policy. Let us go on about sawing our own wood, bearing foremost in mind the importance of nominating our best and strongest men as Republican nominees,—men who will stand the best chance of holding our forces intact and of making a clean sweep with our entire Republican ticket in November.

There are some things about Alabama politics in which the voters of Chilton County are proud not to have a part. Maybe this particular Democratic primary is one of those things. What say you, voters?

To The Young Voters

The Republican party of Chilton County needs the help of the young voters who have just registered—both men and women—and we believe the young voters need the Republican party. There are several young men on the Republican ticket, and every consideration and inducement possible is offered the young people to participate in the Republican primaries. You should begin now to study the needs of your government and to take an active interest in politics. Study the principles of the Republican party as well as the various candidates; the Republican party invites our young voters to participate in its primaries ind various political functions.

COUNTY HEALTH NURSE IS SERIOUSLY ILL

Miss Irene Smitherman, Chilton County Health Nurse, was reported to be gravely ill at the Highland Baptist hospital in Birmingham, according to a news release from the health department Tuesday. Miss Smitherman on leave of absence for rest since April 8th, was stricken while visiting relatives in Birmingham. While her conition has shown slight improvement during the past several days, an attending physician said she was not yet completely out of danger.

Miss Margaret Rumbley of Monroeville, attached with the Marshall County Health Department since July 1936, and a recent graduate of a short course in public health nursing at Peabody College in Nashville, has been assigned to relieve Miss Smitherman during her illness.

REPORT OF ARRESTS BY COUNTY AND CITY OFFICERS

During the past week, arrests like business has been slow. The sheriff an his deputies have booked eight arrests. They include: one negro for no driver's license; two white men for driving while intoxicated; one white man for issuing fraudulent check; two white men for public drunkenness; one white man for reckless driving; and one white man for robbery. One of the white men arrested for driving while intoxicated plunged his car off into the wash-out where the bridge used to be on the highway above town he came out of it with no injury save a fractured nose.

Mayor Jones reports two white men coming up beore him—one for public drunkenness and the other for stealing a sack of flour. Each one was assessed $8 for fine and cost.

Road Supervisor Offers $500 Reward To The People Of Chilton County

Charges Incompetency To Probate Judge and Commissioners Court; Says Court Has Been Inconsistent

The writer noticed two statements in the local papers for the week of April 21, 1938, one of which, signed by all the members of the Commissioners Court, is very subtle and misleading, a mis-statement and misrepresentation of the facts in the case. The other, signed by G. C. Walker, seems to fully agree with the statement from the Commissioners Court in its connection with the non-payment of wages earned by employees of the road department; wages so justy earned by the citizens and tax payers of this County by hard and honest work on the public roads and bridges of Chilton County.

In the second paragraph of this statement by the Commissioners and Judge Smith they say: "The Attorney General held that any funds expended over and above the appropriation could not be paid by the County, that is, if the supervisor exceeds the appropriation or hires labor or buys materials over and above the appropriation, . . . then—neither the labor nor matrialman could recover from the County."

Under the law, as you are all aware, the Supervisor has no authority to "buy materials," this is strictly the responsibility of the Probate Judge and the Commissioners, a responsibility fixed by law. Mis-statement No 1.

In the same paragraph Judge Smith and the Commissioners say: "The Commissioners Court had no way of knowing, and did not know that the appropriation was over spent until after the quarter had expired. . . . ." Mis-statements No. 2 and 3. Why?

"The Commissioners Court had no way of knowing!" Who else could have a way of knowing except the Purchasing Acency? What would either of these men do had they employed a purchasing agent in their private business who could not tell them what had been bought? You know what they would do—what you and I would do, we would immediate-

W. A. Reynolds Warns Voters To Shun Demos

Editor Unoin-Banner:

I am encouraged over the prospects of a glorious victory for the Republican party this fall, so much that I cannot refrain from saying a few words.

Although I am unable to get out among the people, yet my numerous friends who have called to see me have inspired me with our glowing prospects this fall. I realize this is a very busy season, yet I want to urge everyone who has ever voted a Republican ticket to go to the polls on May 3, and cast his or her vote for the candidates of their choice. I am personally acquainted with all of the candidates running, and I feel they are very competent and trustworthy, and would make good officers and work together for the good of our county.

Information has reached me that some of our good Republicans are going to vote for governor in the Democratic primary. If I were competent to advise you, I would advise you not to do this. The Republicans will put out a candidate for governor that you can vote for, and if we ever accomplish anything in the state that is worthwhile, it will surely have to come this way.

For 30 or 40 years I have been listening to the soothing promises of the Democratic party; should they have come true, we would be lavishing today in a paradise of plenty; instead we are burdened with the yoke of taxes unbearable, with the national debt almost beyond the comprehension of a college professor.

Every good citizen of this county, regardless of his political affiliations, who has ever driven over some of these rough roads in our county, know the need for a good, economical government of our county affairs. We have asked for bread, and are given a stone.

There are plenty of Republicans in this county to overwhelmingly elect a ticket this fall. What we must do is stand together.—W. A. Reynolds.

Man Drowns As Boat Is Drawn Over Dam

Birmingham, Apr. 25 — When his boat was swept over a power dam on Kelly's Creek in Shelby County, James George Eady, Jr., 31, of Birmingham, was drowned yesterday.

Onlookers said Eady was rowing with a young woman and a child, and apparently drew too near the dam. The craft was swept over and capsized. Clifton Matthews, power house keeper, said he and his son rescued the woman and child. Eady's body was recovered a short time later. Artificial respiration proved futile.

PROWLER ENTERS LOCAL RESIDENCE

Sum Of Money Taken From W. I. Mullins Home Last Monday At Noon

While the family was eating dinner in the rear of the house, the home of Mrs. W. I. Mullins and Mr. and Mrs. John Deramus was entered by a prowler Monday at noon and about $3 in cash taken.

The marauder is thought to have entered through the front door, turned up the bed mattresses, moved other articles and furnishings in the front rooms, and escaped through the side door unnoticed. The money was taken from a purse stuck under a bed mattress.

It is thought that thick hedges sometimes serve as a protection to pilferers on entering and leaving homes; and it might be well for people to bear this in mind in landscaping their lawns and yards near their homes.

The above might also serve as a warning to other housewives in Clanton, to make them be careful how they leave their doors unlocked and go about their business in the rear of the homes.

LETTER FROM A GOOD REPUBLICAN

The Union-Banner is in receipt of a letter from a former Chilton county citizen and a good Republican—Rev. J. G. W. Bailey, who is now at Davisston, Ala., in Tallapoosa county. Among other things Rev. Bailey writes:

"We are always glad to get The Union-Banner; wife and I read it all with great interest. People here are very busy with their crops, but you hear and see lots of politics. The Democratic candidates have to wear flags to keep from canvassing themselves. I have been watching with much interest what different people of Chilton county are saying about politics through The Banner, also the piece you clipped from the Yellow Jacket; I want to shake that man's hand.

"When I think of our national situation I think of the Bible passage which says: 'The time will come when you can't buy nor sell without the number of the beast.' Most everything now is numbered. Also we are taught that a house divided against itself cannot stand; these words will apply to nation, State and county, as well as to the church.

Yours for a better government and a big turn-out on May 3rd.—J. G. W. Bailey.

VOTERS INVITED TO VOTE REPUBLICAN

Statement By Officials Of The Chilton County Republican Organization

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Next Tuesday, May 3rd, is the day set for the primary elections of the two great political parties. On this day the Republican party of Chilton County will choose those whom it wishes to present its cause to the entire electorate in November.

We, as chairman and secretary of the County Republican Executive Committee, speak here for the entire committee, and thereby invite all qualified voters of Chilton County to join us and participate in this Republican primary election. If for various reasons of your own, you have seen fit to vote otherwise in the past, that is absolutely your business. What the Republican organization is interested in is the present and future welfare of Chilton County and its taxpayers. We firmly believe our interests in the county have been served best in the past by Republican officials, and we believe the same will be true in the future.

We commend to you the men who are running on the Republican ticket for the various offices. We want you to come into our primary and vote for those you think best qualified from every standpoint. We want to nominate the strongest ticket possible from the available list of candidates; then we want to elect them in November. The more voters who come into our primary, the better chance we will have of nominating the most suitable men. Don't be satisfied to leave the job to the other fellow, but lay down whatever you are doing for a few hours next Tuesday and go to the polls and vote a Republican ticket. This invitation is extended to all—regardless of past differences and sundry affiliations.

May we appeal especially to the young voters who have just registered and availed for themselves the franchise. Begin now to study the needs of your county's government. If, after you have considered it well, you decide the interests of all can best be served by Republican officials, then we respectfully solicit your entering our primary and voting for your choice.

And we will not overlook the lady voters, although their participation in elections has become more or less a matter of course. It means much for the women to exercise their franchise, and we will be pleased to have a good strong woman vote in the Republican primary next Tuesday.

In closing, let us appeal to you again to let nothing hinder you from going to the polls on May 3rd; and if you like the good old-time Republican principles, efficiency in government, and our list of candidates for county offices, then we invite you to call for a pink ballot and vote in our primary. Respectfully submitted. — County Republican Executive Committee, T. E. Wyatt, Chairman; C. C. Conway, Secretary.

PWA PAVING PROJECT MAY BE RENEWED IN CITY

Mayor C. Fenn Jones informs The Union-Banner that renewal of the street paving project applied for under the old PWA two years ago has been applied for through Mr. H. T. Cole, of Atlanta, superintendent of PWA in the Southern States. The matter will be explained to the citizens of the city by Mayor Jones in the near future. The old application was on a 55-45 basis.

SIAMESE TWIN TURKEYS

Mr. James Baker of Clanton Route 1 left at The Union-Banner office last Friday two little turkeys that came from one egg shell. They were perfectly formed and were joined together by a small tissue. Mr. Baker said that the egg failed to hatch when the rest did, and when it was broken into, that is what was found. The turkeys were not alive.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

MATTRESS MAKING IS POPULAR IN ALABAMA

Auburn, Apr. 25. — By making their own mattresses, hundreds of Alabama farm women are adding to the comfort of their own homes and at the same time are helping use the surplus cotton produced on their farms. During 1937 a total of 1,909 mattresses were made in the state.

"This work is being encouraged by county home agents throughout Alabama", says P. O. Davis, director, Alabama Extension Service, in expressing hopes that more rural women will join in the movement to make mattresses at home.

If each of the 275,000 cotton farmers in Alabama were to use 45 pounds of cotton in making a mattress, they would use about 25,000 bales of cotton. Should this be extended to the 2,000,000 cotton farms in the South, about 90,000,000 pounds or 180,000 bales would be consumed, he says.

"Our records show that women owning their own cotton can make an excellent mattress for a cash outlay of less than $2.00 for ticking, thread, and buttons", says Nell Pickens, home management specialist, Alabama Extension Service. It takes between 40 and 45 pounds of cotton to make a mattress. Figuring this at nine cents per pound, the cotton would be worth about $4.00, making the total cost of the mattress less than $6.00. It would be worth several times this amount when completed.

"Three or four women can make a mattress in three or four hours", she says. Women interested in making mattresses may obtain full information from home agents.

AAA DOES NOT PERMIT THE DESTRUCTION OF COTTON

Auburn, Apr. 25. — Can a farmer who knowingly or unknowingly overplants his cotton acreage allotment receive benefit payments if he destroys the excess cotton?

This question is answered in a letter from I. W. Duggan, director, Southern division, to Walter L. Randolph, administrative officer in charge AAA program in Alabama, as follows:

"As you know, the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 provides that any farmer who knowisgly over-plants his cotton acreage allotment on any farm loses (1) all soil conservatoin payments, (2) his cotton price adjustment payments, and (3) the opportunity to obtain a loan on the marketing quota of cotton for the farm. However, he may obtain a loan on cotton produced in excess of his marketing quota at 60 per cent of the rate to cooperators.

"In view of the fact that the Act specifies that such penalties shall apply if a person knowingly plants in excess of his cotton acreage allotment, performance must be checked on a planted acre basis, and, even though a producer should destroy the cotton on the excess acreage, it appears he would not be eligible to receive any payment for that year under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended. If, however, he unknowingly planted in excess of his cotton acreage allotment, the only penalty he would incur would be a deduction from any soil conservation payments which otherwise would be made to the farm at the rate of five cents per pound of the normal yield for the farm for each acre of cotton in excess of the cotton acreage allotment.

In either case, a penalty of two cents per pound will apply to the sale of any cotton produced on an acreage in excess of the cotton acreage allotment for the farm.

FARMERS URGED GROW OWN PLANTING SEED

Auburn, Apr. 25. — J. C. Lowery, agronomist, Alabama Extension Service, is urging all Alabama farmers to plant seed patches so they will not have to purchase all of the planting seed in 1939.

He is also advocating that farmers take care of patches of kudzu so that the plants will produce crowns for setting in future years.

Present indications are that insects will be numerous throughout the country this year and will do considerable damage to crops and vegetables unless controlled by farmers.

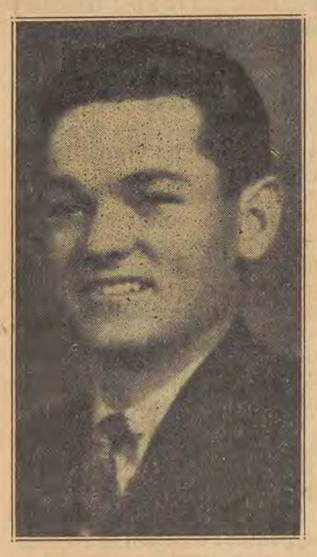
Everett S. Haynes

NORTH ALABAMA CANDIDATE FOR

COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE AND INDUSTRIES



Qualified by Actual Farm and Industrial Experience

I was reared on a Cullman County farm, and have had real, practical experience. A Farmer 12 years, Junior High School Principal 4 years. Industrial experience in Birmingham 8 years. I am the only Candidate in the race for Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries who has never held a political job. This is my first time to offer for public office. I am not connected with any political machine. It will be my ambition to make my office the most helpful in Montgomery. I am appealing for your support and the support of your friends.

Young Republican Candidate Is Full Of High Ambition

Since entering the Republican primary early in February, Clifford M. Manning has been talking and studying politics while he was not busy with his farm and other business operations. He says that he has learned lots about politics he did not know before, and now realizes there is much more to learn. Mr. Manning has high ambitions, and he possesses the "umph" necessary to realize his ambitions.

CLIFFORD M. MANNING

The above is the likeness of Chilton County's youngest candidate, now 24 years old. He is a resident of Isabella community, Beat 3, and is running on the Republican ticket for Tax Assessor. A son of the late Duncan O Manning, Clifford was rocked in a Republican cradle, and thus far been brought up under the strict nurture and admonition of the G. O. P. doctrine.

FORMER SCHOOL-MATE AT AUBURN BOOSTS MANNING

To the voters of Chilton County:

I have heard that Clifford Manning is a candidate for tax assessor of Chilton County.

This news came as quite a surprise to me. We were freshman room-mates at Auburn, and I knew he would go far, but I didn't know he would start so soon. I am very happy to see that he has offered himself as your candidate for tax assessor.

I'm not sticking my neck (if I may use collegiate slang) in your politics, because I am rather interested in my own county election, but I do want to say to you voters of Chilton County a few things that you probably already know about this native Manning.

In my association with him as a student and since then as a friend, I have never known a boy with more integrity of character, or with a cleaner mind which directed his admirable way of living.

While at Auburn he took an active interest in campus life, and at the same time kept diligently at his school work. He was a willing and untiring church worker, rarely missing a service at his church.

He is a straightforward, honest and sincere person, and I am sure that if you people of Chilton County elect him he will give you an honest and clean administration.

We, his many friends of Auburn days, are proud that we know him, and each and every one of us wish that we could help elect Clifford Manning to tax assessor of Chilton County. — W. R. Peters, 449 North Gay Street, Auburn, Ala.

SPARKS FLAYS SALES TAX

Birmingham, Apr. 25. — Argument that the sales tax law should be re-enacted because it brings into some of the counties financial benefits in excess of money actually paid out by way of the tax, is misleading and unsound, declared Chauncey Sparks, candidate for governor, in a speech at the opening of court in Tuscumbia last week.

Judge Sparks declared that his opponents were scattering literature in the smaller counties of the state reciting that those counties received financial returns in excess of the sales tax collected in these counties, and using that as a reason to urge its re-enactment.

"This argument is based upon pure selfishness", declared Judge Sparks. "The citiens of this state should consider the uestion of taxation together with the general welfare of the entire state. The moment a person seeks to take political advantage by appealing to the selfish interest of certain sections, counties or cities, he is striking at the cardinal principle that the purpose of a democratic government is to render the greatest good to the greatest number of people."

PROPER COTTON SPACING INCREASES PRODUCTION

Auburn, Apr. 25. — "Much of the cotton planted in Alabama should be on 2½-foot rows with 2 stalks per hill, 18 inches apart," says Dean M. J. Funchess, in explaining that "our results indicate strongly that this is by far the best spacing where low to modest yields are to be expected.

"All the work indicates that where something like a bale of cotton per acre is possible the hills should be something like 18 inches apart and the rows about 3½ feet wide, with 1, 2, or 3 stalks per hill," he says. "However, where no fertilizer was used, decidedly the best yield was obtained from 2½-foot rows with hills 18 inches apart. At this spacing the yield was 124 pounds per acre greater than with the next best spacing, which was 3½-foot rows, hills 15 inches apart."

FOLLOWING VISION WITH SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:14-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—All things are possible to him that believeth.—Mark 9:23.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Only Jesus Could Help.
JUNIOR TOPIC—At the Foot of the Mountain.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living Up to Our Knowledge of Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Following Vision with Service.

One of the lessons that seems hard to learn and to keep constantly effective in the life of a Christian is that mountain-top experiences of spiritual uplift are not an end in themselves but a preparation for service. All too often we come to regard such times of peculiar blessing, whether in the privacy of our own room, or in the great conference of Christian workers, as something which should glow warmly in our own hearts, making us glad in the Lord, and not as a background and preparation for ministry to others. One might just as well hope to feed the physical body constantly without any work or exercise and keep in good health, as to feed the soul on good things, do nothing for God or fellow-man, and still avoid what someone has called "spiritual dyspepsia."

The writer has just attended a most unusual and blessed Bible conference, the leaders of which rightly apprehended this truth. Evangelism was the matter chiefly in mind, but instead of announcing the theme of the week's meetings as "Evangelism" the program presented it as "Preparation for Evangelism." That is sound spiritual sense. We came not to discuss evangelism itself so much as to prepare ourselves to go out and evangelize. God help us to do it!

Jesus rightly characterized the time in which he lived as

I. A Faithless Generation (vv. 14-19).

"Jesus found in the valley disputing scribes, a distracted father, a demon-possessed boy, and defeated disciples." The unbelief which called forth the rebuke of Jesus "is revealed in different phases. There were the scribes, willful and persistent unbelief; there was the father, unwilling unbelief; there was the boy, irresponsible unbelief; and there were the disciples, unconscious unbelief. The whole atmosphere was an unbelieving atmosphere" (Morgan).

As we look at that depressing picture of long ago, let us consider ourselves lest we also be tempted to "limit God" by our faithlessness. The most casual reader of Scripture cannot help but see that God seeks out and honors faith, and as we begin to study God's Word with care we realize that the fundamental of all fundamentals is really to believe God. Some Christian men and women are living out a tremendous testimony for God by fully believing Him and His Word, but many of those who profess to follow Him actually make Him appear ridiculous before the world because their unbelief makes Him out to be a "small" God instead of the infinite, eternal, omnipotent God.

II. The All-Powerful Saviour (vv. 23-27).

The keynote of our first division might well have been the sad words "they could not" in verse 18. But now the Son of God has come and the new keynote is the inspiring words of verse 23, "all things are possible to him that believeth." There is no problem too difficult for our Lord; there is no sorrow too deep for His comfort; there is no challenging opportunity too great for His enabling power.

III. Prayer the Connecting Link (vv. 28, 29).

The disciples in chagrin at their inability to deal with the difficulty of the demon-possessed boy, having witnessed the power of Christ in delivering him, begin now to realize that evidently even though unconscious of it, they had come into the powerless position of unbelief.

What a solemn warning there is for us in the experience of these followers of the Lord. Like the termites who destroy the very life and strength of wood—and yet leave it apparently whole, only to crumble in dust when it is put under the pressure of daily use—there are spiritually destructive influences which all but unconsciously destroy the virile strength of the Christian. Prayerlessness is the most effective weapon of Satan at this point. Without prayer there is no power. Real problems are not successfully met nor are opportunities grasped "but by prayer."

The Union-Banner, 1 Year $1.00

Rev. E. W. Butler Favors Rascoe Maddox

Editor Union-Banner:

Though we are absentees from Chilton County, our thirty years residence there gves us a larger interest in that county than we have in any other. Especially are we interested in the children and young people there.

For that reason, we have been much pleased to see in your columns the name of Mr. Rascoe Maddox as a candidate for the nomination for superintendent of education in Chilton County.

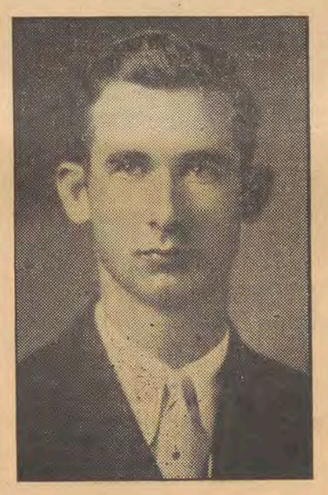
We have known Rascoe Maddox since those days nearly twenty years ago when as a boy he walked six miles every day between his home and Thorsby Institute to get his high school education. He meant business then—"one thing I do—this job".

The promise of those youthful years has been fulfilled. He has always meant business. He has always been ready to tackle the next job and has done it well, no matter how hard it might be.

When I say that I consider Rascoe Maddox one of the cleanest men I ever knew, I am not using that word in any narrow sense. He is clean physically, mentally, morally, spiritually. He never seems to do anything in a "sloppy" way. He is dependable. You always know where to find him.

For more than ten years he has been the very efficient Registrar of Thorsby Institute. He is a good teacher, interested in his pupils, and knows how to interest them.

I have often wondered how long Chilton County or Thorsby Institute could hold a man of his calibre. I think he prefers rural life, but if the larger places "get on to him", goodbye!



To sum up in a few words my opinion of Rascoe Maddox as a possible Superintendent of Education for Chilton—I know no man anywhere to whom I would rather entrust the welfare of any children or young people.

I hope Chilton County may have a chance to find out how well Rascoe Maddox measures up to the jobs given him.—E. W. Butler, Canandaigua, N. Y.

RASCOE MADDOX WRITES TO VOTERS

To The Voters of Chilton County.

I take this opportunity of writing you because I will not be able to see all of you. This is through no intention of slighting any of you, but my primary duty is to the school which I am now serving. And just as I now serve it first and afterwards campaign for a new office, so, if elected, I will put my duty to the schools of the county before other considerations. I want to see and talk with you all, but I know it will be impossible. I am happy over the fact that I have met so many of you and you are folks interested in the welfare of your schools. It is a good sign that people are concerned about whom they trust their children to, whether it be bus driver, teacher, or superintendent. I deeply appreciate the many expressions of confidence in my absolute fairness and impartiality. I repeat what I have said to many of you: If elected I will go into office with no promises of special favors, but equal consideration to every citizen and child will be my policy.

I wish also to repeat my promise of cooperation with teachers, trustees and patrons of the schools. We know there is a trend in the world today toward concentration of power in the hands of one man or a few men. This is being justified on the ground of greater efficiency. I believe in efficiency but I also believe in democracy. I believe that education of the finest kind cannot come through dictation by those in authority but that the people must be free and willing to share in the process. The teachers also must be free to exercise their rights as citizens at the same time they bear the burden of teaching.

COLLEGE PRESIDENT SUPPORTS MADDOX FOR SUPERINTENDENT

Editor Union-Banner:

I am delighted to notice that my old friend, Rascoe Maddox, has announced for the superintendency of the Chilton County schools. Maddox is a former college student of mine and is remembered as a fellow with outstanding ability and with a passion to serve in every good movement. His years of classroom experience, his honesty and devotion to general educational work, and his desire to be of service to his fellow men eminently qualify him for public office. Chilton County is fortunate, indeed, to have such a candidate. Sincerely yours,—J. C. Rogers, President, North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga.

Let's all go to the polls on May 3rd and exercise the right of free men, the right to vote our choice without fear. And may the best man win.—Rascoe Maddox.

CANE CREEK

Last Sunday was our regular preaching day. We had good attendance for Sunday school and preaching, and Bro. Norris gave us a real good sermon.

At 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon we held our regular singing, which was the best one we have had this year. The president, Emmett Wilson, sang the opening song; prayer by Posey Cleckler. Directors for the afternoon were: W. L. Sanders, Mr. Jones, Posey Cleckler, Marion Easterling, Marion Mims, Orene Wyatt, Morris Mims, Floyd Little, and Johnnie Easterling. Pianists for the afternoon were Marion Easterling and Miss Lillie Mae Weldon. Mr. Marion Easterling gave us a piano solo, and a special number was arranged by Mr. Easterling. We were dismissed with prayer by Bro. Norris. We had visitors from Friendship, Collins Chapel, New Salem, Pleasant Hill, Sunshine, and other places. We were very glad to have them with us and hope that they will come and help us again.

Our B. T. U. met at 7 o'clock Sunday night. There were 22 members present out of a total enrollment of 24. The program was good. We are still growing, trying to make our B. T. U. bigger and better every time. We invite all our church members to come and join our B. T. U. We need your help. Come next Sunday night at 7 o'clock.

Our W. M. U. will meet at the church next Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. We hope all our members can be with us, and we will be glad if any of our church members would join, to come and be with us in our meetings.

REFUGE

There will be preaching here Sunday night as usual by the pastor.

There was an error in last week's article saying that the pastor preached here each Sunday and Sunday night. He preaches here the third Sunday at 11 o'clock, and every Sunday night except the fourth Sunday night. Bear this in mind.—Reporter.

W. M. U. RESOLUTIONS

The following resolutions were made at the Executive Board meeting of the Chilton County W. M. U., and adopted at the W. M. U. quarterly meeting, April 21, 1938:

Resolutions

We request the Board of the Alabama State Convention that Clanton continue to be the residence of Dr. S. J. Ezell and family, because:

1. Clanton is so centrally located that Dr. Ezell can reach all parts of the state from here.

2. That Mrs. Ezell is almost indispensable to the mission institute of the Unity and Chilton Associations. She is such a help to the officers of the Chilton Association with her advice and counsel that we earnestly request that she remain with us.

3. The children are helpful in the institute as teachers; Grace plays the piano. They are an example to the young people in Christian living.

4. The fact that Dr. Ezell will be in Clanton many Saturdays will mean a lot to the pastors, laymen, and everybody in general.

And we request that a copy be sent to Dr. Barnes, one to the county papers, and one to the Ezells. Respectfully submitted,—Mrs. S. J. M. Webb, Mrs. D. O. Manning, Mrs. J. D. Griffin.

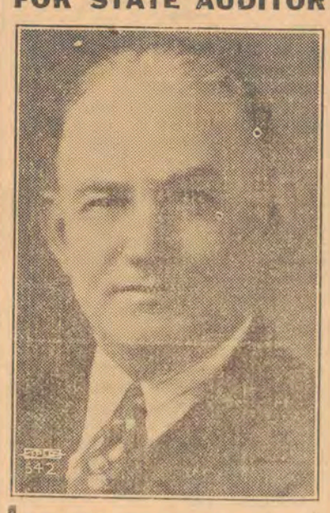
There will be a cemetery cleaning at Cedar Grove church next Friday, April 29. All members and friends of the church are invited to come. Be sure and remember that hoes, rakes, brooms, and wheelbarrows are needed in yard work.

PILGRIMS REST

The singing at Pilgrims Rest was held, as announced in the papers last week.



The singing was called to order by the local chairman. Prof. I. D. Huett was made chairman for the afternoon. The following were called to direct: Ralph Grant, O. L. Devaughn, Joseph Varner, John Devaughn, Orbie Devaughn, G. B. Williams, R. W. Kendrick, Rev. A. C. Weaver.

The Burkhalter quartet sang several numbers, and each of the boys directed one song. Pianists for the afternoon were Will Culp, Ralph Grant, Mrs. Birdie Johnson from Jemison, Prof. Varner, and Frances Kendrick.

There were visitors from various communities, Alpine, Bethel, Milton, Billingsley, and Antioch. The good spirit of praising the Lord in song seemed to predominate, and everybody seemed to enjoy the time spent together.

AUTO INDUSTRY IN PICTURES

A new and comprehensive moving picture of the ramifications of the automobile industry has been produced by Chevrolet that is called "Materials". As the name suggests, it pictures sources of materials used in the manufacture of the automobile and shows how they are mined and smelted, grown on farms and gathered, taken from the forests and ranches and transformed into usable products for the factories of suppliers of the industry.

More than 1,500 government officials, senators, congressmen, trade and business executives, preview "Materials" in Washington, D. C., in March, and were enthusiastic about it. Three congressmen made laudatory speeches about it from the floor of the House.

The picture was 2½ years in the making. More than 50,000 feet of film was shot and this was edited to 2,200 feet that can be viewed in 23 minutes. Five camera crews worked at seasonal times in different parts of the country. They overcame all manner of obstacles presented by weather, transportation, distance and research.

AMERICAN LOCOMOTIVES BOUGHT

A half million dollar order for seven locomotives has just been placed in this country by the Chilean State Railways, according to an announcement made this week by E. Guzman-Gonoso, United States representative of the Chilean State Railways in New York City.

The order was placed with the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and reflects the improved economic conditions in Chile. The locomotives are of the heavy type designed for mountain service, and will be ready for delivery by September.

FITZHUGH LEE FOR A. P. S. C.

Urging re-election of Fitzhugh Lee to the Alabama Public Service Commission, a statewide committee, composed of many hundred citizens, representing agricultural, labor and commercial intertsts in 86 communities of Alabama, has issued an endorsement of his candidacy. Pointing to the record he has made on the Commission, his supporters call attention to the fact that during his recent four year term, rates of transportation companies and utilities have been reduced with a total saving to consumers of approximately $2,000,000 every year. They also urge that his experienced service is now needed on the Interstate Commerce Commission Joint Board, to which he was named by act of congress.

J. E. Cobb Gives Last Message to Co. Voters

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you allow me to express through your Union-Banner, a few words to the voters and taxpayers of Chilton County.

First, I wish to thank all of you for electing me commissioner for one term from the first district. I tried at all times to look to the best interest of the people. I realized that the money we were spending was everyone's money, and tried to spend it in such a way that everyone would get his equal share. On business matters that came before the Commissioners Court, I always tried to vote in a way that would be fair to everyone concerned.

My record as commissioner from the first district, and as a private citizen, is open to anyone to investigate and see whether or not I am competent for the job I am asking for.

In asking you for a second term, I see quite a few changes that need to be made. If elected, with the experience that I have had, I feel that I can serve the people better, and help put our county on a higher plane.

Following are a few things which were accomplished during the time I was a member of the Commissioners Court: the jail was built and paid for, which cost quite a large sum, steel bridges were built in various parts of the county, all county expenses were kept paid, and $25,000 was placed in a singing fund to pay on the county debt.

In the first district there are several mail and school routes, and at the end of my term they were in good shape, passable at all times, whether wet or dry. I believe that every man should have a road to his home. I believe that the money of Chilton County should be spent equally among her people, as much so as possible. I believe the work should be divided regardless of how you vote. I believe in spending our county's money in as conservative a manner as possible, and placing the surplus tax money on our county debt, which will be due in 1949. The reason I say pay what we can on the county debt is to lighten the tax burden which will be on us more within a few years, and to save interest.

My aim in asking for the job as commissioner from the first district is to help build our county to a heighth where it will stand out financially and morally, and be one of the best counties of our state.

Due to the fact that I am a farmer and have to work for a living, I have not been able to see all the voters, and I am taking this means of asking that every voter think this over seriously; not only my cause, but every candidate on the Republican ticket. Let's go to the polls next Tuesday and cast our votes for men who will make our county better and stronger.

Thanking you for past favors, and asking your support next Tuesday, I am, very truly yours,—Joe E. Cobb.

A CONFESSION OF FAILURE

It would be hard to imagine a franker confession of failure than is embodied in President Roosevelt's appeal for another seven billions for "relief" and subsidies. After all the billions already wasted, the administration can think of nothing more original or constructive than additional "pump priming". It is significant that this latest demand for additional outlays comes on the verge of the congressional elections, in which the New Deal is fighting desperately to retain nominal control of the legislative body. It gives a "slush fund" aspect to the appeal, such as has tainted so many other of the New Deal manipulations undertaken under guise of humanitarian motives. It creates a situation that has disgusted responsible Democrats and Republicans alike. The press of the nation, regardless of party affiliations, is nearly unanimous in denouncing the latest proposed raid on the public till.

One does not have to be a business man to know that prosperity cannot be restored by borrowing billions and distributing them in the form of gifts or so-called loans. It is like administering a blood transfusion to a patient already beyond hope. It was hard enough to justify such a policy even as a temporary emergency measure. Today, we have had more than five years of emergency, and the only logical outcome of the New Deal policy of piling debt on debt is national bankruptcy and chaos.

The truth is that we may expect to continue in our present state of "emergency" and distress so long as we continue in power the New Deal, with its vindictive enmity toward private enterprise, its policy of encouraging class warfare and confiscation of private property. The business interests of the country long ago lost confidence in the fairness and fundamental decency of an administration that has hounded business and played the demagogue to win the votes of the discontented. This lack of confidence has at last permetaed down to the man on the street, so that the smallest citizen has come to realize that a nation split asunder along class lines cannot prosper, cannot even hope to survive. The sort of relief this country needs today is relief from Roosevelt, relief from his hymns of hate and tirades of abuse, his half-baked socialistic theories and his ill-concealed ambition. Given relief from these things, and a return to fundamental American principles, and this country will recover, as it has always in the past recovered, from periods of panic and depression.

President Roosevelt's latest appeal comes close on the heels of his crushing defeat on the reorganization bill, a measure that would have concentrated more power in his hands and boosted us further along the road to dictatorship. The Democratic leaders in the House make the issue one of confidence in the president, and declared that an unfavorable vote would be a repudiation of his leadership. In the face of this, a House overwhelmingly Democratic sent the measure down to defeat. With this action, the Roosevelt prestige, already damaged by previous setbacks, sank to a new low level.

Two years ago, it looked like conservative Democrats might have to bolt their party in order to get rid of the Roosevelt incubus. Today, it looks like Roosevelt and a remnant of radicals may be the ones to do the bolting. We sincerely hope so—that by 1940 the Democrats will have cleaned house, and given the Republicans a respectable American party of opposition, in place of the present assorted lot of radical treasury raiders now running the Democratic party.

DR. GEORGE PALMER

Double honors among Alabama scientists are held by Dr. George D. Palmer, associate professor of chemistry at the University of Alabama.

Recently chosen president-elect by the Alabama Academy of Science at its meeting in Troy, Dr. Palmer automatically will succeed Father P. H. Yancey of Spring Hill College, Mobile, as president next year.

The Alabama professor also was elected vice president in chart of the Academy's section on chemistry, physics and mathematics.

This story is for you if you're one of those six or eight folks who are worried about the mounting national debt.

A University of Alabama economics teacher this week reported to his class that the debt now stands at some $37,558,369,963. This statement inspired the school's Chief Doodler and One-Man Boon to the Pencil and Paper Industry to stay up late that night and produce these fancies and figures:

If the debt were in $1 bills and if they were placed end to end, they would encircle the earth at the equator 145 times. Or they could be used to make a bridge to the moon $15 wide.

If these bills were laid out in noe area, they would cover 149.6 square miles, or a space larger than the combined areas of San Francisco, Washington, D. C., and Richmond, Va.

If the currenty were stacked 16 to a 16th of an inch, it would form a pile 1,181 feet high, a stack higher than the Chrysler building.

At this point the Chief Doodler went to an all-night restaurant and squandered a nickel on a soft drink.

"College students are considerably larger in stature today than they were a generation or two ago," stated Miss Lenna F. Cooper, president of the American Dietetics Association, at the annual University of Alabama Home Economics banquet last week.

In making reference to the size of present day college students, she explained that young children are being better fed because of a knowledge of diet and nutrition that is spreading throughout the population of this country, and they consequently grow into larger men and women.

With only Mississippi State and Georgia Tech standing in their path to thronedom, the University of Alabama baseball team is roaring toward the Southeastern Conference championship.

As the season enters its final stages for college diamond work, the Tide baseball outfit is rounding a powerful, well balanced team.

Weak in its team hitting in early season games, the 'Bama clan has become unusually adept in its stick work in the last few games.

THERE MUST be a reason. In fact, Purina Chick Startena couldn't keep on leading year after year unless there were several reasons.

The whole answer is simply this: poultry raisers have found that Startena does a better job of raising chicks than any other chick starter on the market. When they feed Startena, they get better livability, bigger chicks, healthier chicks, and other qualities that they can't get with ordinary chick feeds.

Stop by and see us the next time you're in town. You'll like the new free Purina poultry booklet we have for you.

W. G. Culp Writes To Voters

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper for a few remarks, as this is the last issue before the election next Tuesday.

It was not my intention to say anything more than what I said in my letter a few weeks ago, until after the primary, but it has come to my attention that perhaps some of the people would not understand why I have not made a more active campaign. Hence, I shall try to make myself plain in this second letter.

As you all know, I have no opposition on the Republican ticket, and it would cost me quite a bit in loss of time from my work and the expense of travel. As I have said in my first letter, and as stated above, since no one is running against me, I will be your nominee. I feel that it is more important for me to save my time and energy for the campaign between the primary and general elections.

From May 3 on, I am making my plans to get actively in the campaign and remain in the fight until the votes are counted in November.

I hope the above is sufficient explanation, and let me assure you that even though I have no opposition in the primary, it does not make me any less appreciative of your vote and influence in the coming election next Tuesday.

May I insist that you go to the polls on that day and cast your vote for the man of your choice, and in November we will hope for a solid front and a great victory. Respectfully submitted, —W. G. Culp.

FOOLISH QUESTION NO. 41144

By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—There is hope for world peace and solvency. Some day a little band of diplomats and financiers will meet in the Paris catacombs or a London fog, heavily disguised, and put something over, and Pertinax won't catch them at it. To date, the watchful French journalist has anticipated and cried down every effort, warning all and sundry that, whatever it is, it won't work.

Diplomats Prey to Pertinax

Thus, the studious proposals of Paul van Zeeland, former premier of Belgium, were blasted several weeks in advance of their publication, as just so much eye-wash.

Pertinax is one of the most brilliant and influential journalists of Europe and anything he touches up in advance goes in with two strikes against it. As does the Van Zeeland plan for economic reconstruction.

Walt Disney is readying "Snow White" for France. That probably means that Pertinax is preparing to swing on it, just before it lands there. One American commentator made the film his sole exception in many years of dissent. Nothing like that may be expected from Pertinax.

He is the only full-time dissenter who bats 1.000. He has picked fights with Senator Borah, former President Hoover (being the only man ever to assail an American President with that dignitary present), with all the Germans, before, during and after the war, and with all ambassadors of good will.

In 1933, the French government announced it would spend $1,320,000 to build good will in America. Pertinax, fielding that one, pegged over to this country some sour cracks about American materialism. And, just in passing, any French journalist ought to know a lot about materialists. For a few days it looked as if he might overlook the recent Brussels conference, but he was on the job and smeared it in plenty of time to get it a bad press. He is at his best in discovering and exposing Geneva's good will conspiracies.

Wise Cracks Soured U. S. Good Will

He is a Parisian sophisticate, dapper, dressy, monocled, getting about a great deal and nosing in various diplomatic feed-boxes—a first-class reporter; but never satisfied. One of the depressing things about him is that he is so often right as he pans this or that hopeful endeavor before anybody else knows what it is.

* * *

APROPOS of recent flare-ups of the behaviorist argument among the psychologists, here's Eugene Ormandy in the news as a timely exhibit of the effect of early conditioning. Long before he was married, Eugene Ormandy's father, a Hungarian dentist, used to say, "Some day I'm going to get married and have a son and I'm going to make him a great violinist." Years later, he pressed a tiny violin into his new baby's hand and had him coached in rhythm before he was out of the cradle.

Boy Wonder Now Great Conductor

At the age of three, the boy was working hard at his violin lessons. His only toys were music boxes. And now, Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, gets the Gustav Mahler medal, following the performance of his composition, "Das Lied Von Der Erde."

At the age of five, he was a student in the Budapest academy of music, through at fourteen, but not allowed to go on tour as a violinist until he was seventeen. In 1921, he was in New York, hoping to bridge the break in his career with his last five-cent piece. He did, as a violinist at the Capitol theater, then assistant conductor, later with Roxy's gang and then six years as conductor of the Minneapolis symphony orchestra. He is perhaps the first conductor to be upped to fame by radio.

His father in Hungary isn't altogether pleased. "Just think what a great violinist you might have been," he wrote to his son.

Constitution-Maker

Pelatiah Webster was a Philadelphia business man, remembered for his advocacy of a revision of the Articles of Confederation by creating a new Constitution in his "Dissertation of the Political Union and Constitution of the Thirteen United States of North America (1783)." He is, therefore, sometimes considered as the originator of the Constitution, though his plan was unlike the product of the federal convention.

Eat Fish in Norway

In Bergen, Norway, fish is served three times a day in nearly all families, and as a result, the life of the community revolves about its fish market. The Bergen housewife is a somewhat fastidious shopper, insofar as fish is concerned, and prefers to have her fish scooped up alive from salt water pools within the market. The serving of fish amounts to a fine art in Bergen.

LIKES MANNING FOR ASSESSOR

Soon the people of Chilton County will go to the polls to vote for county and state officials. Because these officials will be our leaders, we should endeavor to select them on their merits alone. What do you want in a leader for any group? In one voice we hear, "honesty, patriotism, ability, and willingness to work with others for the good of the group."

It is well to look over the record of any man who is a candidate for public office. Has he been honest, unbiased, and square in his dealings with others? Has he been an upright citizen? Along with citizenship, let us consider his patriotism. Has he been loyal to his community, his county and state? Has he been true to his party? Only a person who has been noted for his good record should be given a position of trust.

To be a good leader, one must be able to lead. That is, he should have training, should be interested in his work, and he should have the personality that distinguishes a leader from his followers. Not only should he be able to do the work, but also he should be willing to work.

I recommend to the voters of this county, Clifford M. Manning for tax assessor. Before you cast your ballot, check the qualifications of the men who are running for this office. Let us elect our tax assessor, and our other officials, on merit, and merit alone. Let's elect Clifford Manning for tax-assessor.—C. S. Smith.

JUST FROM SHOULTS

I notice that Attorney General A. A. Carmichael has ruled that a county can build a house for the purpose of voting in. We, the voters of Beat 7, Box 2, at Shoults, hereby ask our friend, Mr. Lee Ousley, to see to it as soon as possible that we get a small house to vote in, as our school house has been sold and moved away. If the county will furnish the material, the voters will build the house free of charge. Mr. Crof Shoults will give the land to build on, free of charge.—Uncle Remus.

CLANTON CHAPTER F.H.A. MEETS

The Clanton chapter of F. H. A. held its regular meeting Friday, April 22, in the home economics building.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Annie Pearl Honeycutt. A brief business meeting was held to make some plans for future meetings. Some good reports were given from some of the committees at this time.

This year there have been several outstanding home projects carried out in home economics. At this meeting several girls gave reports on their projects. From these reports we find that well-carried-out home projects are worth while.

The repirts were as follows: "Caring For Yards and Bedroom", Lenell Eubanks; "Beautifying the Yards," Evian Littlejohn; "Improving My Personal Appearance," Edith Bell.

The meeting then adjourned.—Reporter.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that will hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.

Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

Better Plug the Leaks—

Pocketbooks often spring a leak. And they are worse than leaky roofs or leaky valves when they do.

The worst leak of all is paying more than we need to pay. The best way to stop that leak is to shop and buy where we get full value and save money at the same time.

The ads in this newspaper will stop the leaks and help you keep your pocketbook plump.

The quickest way to ruin an enemy is to help him win great power and let nature take its course.—Lawrence Tribune.

MORE SPENDING — MORE DEBT

Unnamed White House sources are now talking about a new billion and a half program for loans to public agencies on construction projects. The money is to be raised by the sale of government bonds and political subdivisions all over the United States will be asked to help spend in another pump-priming enterprise.

Now there are haywire economists in plenty about the nation who will hail such a plan as they have hailed the others which have brought the new depression. Insofar as it pumps money out of private investment and into political hands, it will seem to their obscure thought processes to serve democracy. They will write articles in the magazines, moreover, which prove conclusively that such expenditures add to the fixed capital of the nation, and so should be looked upon as assets. The flush of feverish activity such a program will doubtless precipitate will be hailed by them as new indication of their own essential accuracy.

Just so, the slump inevitable after this further perversion of orthodox rules of recovery will be traced by them to another sit-down strike by private capital. Once more the liberal magazines will thunder delicately about sabotage from the right; once more the President of the United States will erupt in a brand new set of picturesque epithets against those on whose hopefulness he nevertheless depends, with all the nation, for the optimistic risk-taking by which our ultimate living must be made. It is as thoroughly depressing a picture, as bleak a portent, as could be imagined short of deliberate printing press inflation.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

SURVEYING THE RESULT

Now that the defeat of the reorganization bill, one of the New Deal pet "reform" measures, has been accomplished for the present session of congress, and the heat has evaporated to a certain extent, political students at Washington are taking a calm inventory of the situation.

There is no question but that the defeat was a stunning and unexpected blow to the administration. Its forces in congress had confidently expected to win. Even the publicity department of the Democratic National Committee had issued a bit of "news" comment in advance which took it for granted that the bill would be passed. This release on the reorganization bill had to be "killed" when disaster overtook the measure.

The defeat of the reorganization bill following the junking of the so-called court packing measure undoubtedly carries some political significance. It is all the more remarkable from the fact that this action against the New Deal was accomplished in a congress elected in a Democratic landslide, one which promised to bring on an era of good feeling which would sound the death knell of the Republican party.

In spite of this defeat of the administration, some political observers are pointing out, however, that there is no ground for saying that President Roosevelt and the New Deal have entirely lost control of the present session of congress. The president evidently means to make the best of a bad situation and salvage as much as possible for the good of his administration. After the senate passed the reorganization bill came the unfortunate remark by the president that the vote showed the majority of the senate could not be purchased by pressure. With the defeat of the measure by the House, however, there were no charges from the White House, indicating that a different course was to be pursued toward congress in the future. This means that the executive department will naturally seek to reassert its control over congress. Measures brought forward for new expenditures of public money "back home" for relief, will doubtless be inclined to re-establish cordial relations between the White House and the Capitol. For this reason it would be too early to say that the president's entire program has been defeated.

On the other hand, it cannot be denied that the Democratic party has been decisively split between the old fashioned Jeffersonian Democrats and the New Deal leaders. The split cannot be healed entirely and there will be some evidences of it in the results of the coming congressional elections. Just what the effects will be two years hence, in 1940, remains to be seen.

The surprising result on the reorganization bill clearly shows the force of public opinion. The majority of the voters back home were against the drastic provisions of the reorganization bill, just as they were opposed to the court packing measure. And their opposition was made to count at Washington despite all party and administration pressure applied by the New Deal.

The American Tariff League says that our tariff treaty with Czecho-Slovakia is a poor example of Yankee trading. This is the first time we ever heard Cordell Hull called a Yankee.

Maybe Secretary Wallace will come forward with a plan for saving the railroads by plowing under half of the locomotives.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

The Republican elephant, whose winter quarters have been in Washington, D. C., is now getting ready for the campaigns of 1938 and 1940. Anyone who thought that the old pachyderm had gone into an unlimited period of political quiescence will now discover that they have another guess coming. The Republican leaders have been biding their time, "waiting for the breaks", and the proper moment for partisan activity. They have never been out of touch with the political situation, regardless of what many impatient Republicans over the country may feel. That their strategy has been sound is evidenced by the results. The political picture in Washington and over the nation now is none too pleasing for the New Dealers. What was once popularly known as the party of Thomas Jefferson has been split wide open. Two best evidences of this are the defeat of the court packing and the reorganization bill, one of which was stopped in the Senate and the other in the House. But the cleavage is wider than the rifts caused by these two measures of unfortunate memory. It is fundamental, and goes down to the grass roots. Whether it can be healed remains to be seen. The president has been successful in a healing role many times during the past five years. But the present job is one which makes past wounds on the Democratic body politic look like mere pin marks. Moreover, the background now, with its panorama of unemployment and economic depression, is by no means as favorable as it used to be.

But to get back to the G. O. P. elephant. The latest evidence of its revitalization was appointment of Mr. Franklyn Waltman, chief political writer of The Washington Post, as director of publicity for the Republican National Committee. In commenting on this appointment, Chairman Hamilton said:

"The publicity division of the Republican National Committee will be revitalized and reorganized in order that the minority party may more effectively fulfill its function as an intelligent, alert opposition — an opposition that is essential to the preservation of our system of government".

Those who know Frank Waltman are of the opinion that he fills the bill for the purposes outlined. For some time it has been noised about that the Republicans needed a young and active director of publicity. Mr. Waltman is young — barely 35 years of age — and his activity is attested by his work as chief political writer of The Washington Post during the past several months.

Mr. Waltman is a native of Maryland, graduate of the Loyola High School at Baltimore, and was a student of the University of Maryland. He started his newspaper career with the Baltimore Sun — one of the nation's outstanding newspapers — in 1922, and was assigned to the Sun's Washington bureau in 1928. He joined the staff of the Washington Post in 1933, and at the beginning of 1936 became the chief of The Post's national news staff, commencing his column, "Politics and People", which has been a daily feature of the newspaper.

Mr. Waltman is noted for clear analytical ability and a sound political judgment. His analysis of the so-called "court packing bill" gained him much praise. Political sages around Washington, when somebody begins to talk about possible contingencies in 1940, generally arise to remark that after all the 1938 election comes first, and it is the duty of the Republican party to make a real showing this year rather than to be speculating on what may or may not happen two years hence. To bring about Republican gains in congress the wisest kind of cooperation will be necessary among Republican leaders and between Republican organizations. That this important development will be encouraged by Mr. Waltman, according to the belief of his friends, is a point well worth noting at this time.

SOMEBODY WILL LOSE

With the union of Austria and Germany, many of the countries who have heretofore enjoyed a free flowing international trade with the latter country expect to lose some of this business. Germany is a regimented country which controls its foreign trade closely, producing as much as possible at home. The same rules on foreign trade will now apply to Austria, which will be bound by the iron-clad restrictions of the Reich.

One of the countries which expects to lose through this new order of things is Czecho-Slovakia, which borders Austria and has always maintained a heavy trade with its little neighbor. However, the Czechs are not unduly depressed. While they expect to lose trade through the Austro-German anschluss, they hope to make it up out of Uncle Sam.

A new trade treaty between the United States and Czecho-Slovakia has just been completed. It confers certain favors in the way of lower tariffs against important products of Bohemia such as shoes. The same favors, of course, must be given to every other nation having a most favored nation agreement with the United States. In return it is hoped some of our products will flow more freely into the little republic in Central Europe.

In a speech in the Czech parliament this hope of making up from the United States the loss of Austrian trade was expressed by Minister Kalfas, who predicted greater exports not only of shoes but of carpets, textiles, and glassware, to that of the United States.

The people of the United States are generous people — as is indicated by their attitude toward Europe during the past twenty years. They will therefore be pleased to hear that the Czechs will not lose in the long run by a drying up of trade to Austria. But how about the already suffering shoe, textile, and glass industries of the United States, which must now face a sharper competition from cheap Czech labor? Who is going to make up the difference to them? Will they get it from loans granted by the government and relief checks to the workers from Uncle Sam?

Hitler and Mussolini are urging their national married couples to raise bigger and bigger families. But, of course, when the two dictators go out campaigning they don't have to kiss all the babies.

Probably the European war scare is not to be taken seriously—yet. None of those countries over there has tried to borrow money from us for quite a while.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A BREAK IN THE LUCK

For years the "Roosevelt luck" held up, and the president was regarded as a miracle man who always knew the answers, and never made a political break. But since his sudden promulgation of the ill-advised Supreme Court enlargement plan slightly more than a year ago, Mr. Roosevelt has seemed no more of a prestidigitator than the average office holder. His political necromancy has gone. What does this portend for the future?—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

The Indian population of the country has risen to 337,000 as against 266,000 at the beginning of the century. Maybe some of these days there will be enough of them to take the country back and run it again.

In these days of the Roosevelt recession, telling the average man the dollar is worth only 60 cents doesn't get a rise out of him. If you want to get a reaction, just tell him a dime is only worth six cents.

If congress agrees that Hungary can settle her debt to Uncle Sam without interest, this will form a fine precedent for cutting off interest on the government loans to farmers and home builders.

A resident of a Kentucy poor farm sent a "perfect" ear of corn to Washington, writing he understood the treasury would pay a million dollars for a "perfect" ear. Of course the treasury turned the request down. What the boys at Washington have been doing is to give the farmers millions for not raising corn.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Someone has said that no man can be as bad as he wants to be. This statement may be interpreted in one of two ways. It might mean that men naturally has in himself a spark of divinity, but the Bible does not teach this. The Bible says man was born in sin. The statement might mean there is something that restrains men and keeps them from going to the lowest depths of depravity toward which their temptations lead. Man is restrained by law, by social standards, and by the throught of self preservation. Merely being restrained does not make man good. Being restrained keeps a bad man from committing bad deeds. It takes divine grace to make a bad man a good man. It takes the new birth. It is true that God created man so he could not be happy in sin. The hogs the prodigal son fed could be satisfied with swill and a pig sty, but the prodigal son could not be happy away from his Father's house. Sinners are never happy in their sin. Man is an immortal being. The things that perish with the using cannot satisfy man. Man is imperishable and possess the eternal if he is to be happy. Left alone unrestrained man does not evolve toward perfection. Man is not inherently good. Left alone he goes downward. He gravitates toward hell. He cannot stop himself. There are no brakes on his machinery strong enough to completely stop him. He may slow himself down. That is all he can do. God knew this so on man's road to hell He put a cross and hung on that cross His Son. This cross does not only warn man of the precipice toward which he is going. It is not just a red lantern to flag the train of human depravity. At the cross man gets the power to right-about-face and put his back on hell and march up a shining road to a heavenly home.

"If there is a being above who takes thought of the needs of man, if that being will reveal his will to me it will be my highest joy to do that will wherever it may take me and whatever may be involved." That was written on a piece of paper years ago by a cynic in England. That man spent 40 years in India as a medical missionary. There have been many cases similar to this. No man ever sincerely wished to know the will of God without God revealing that will to him. The Bible says "he that willeth to do His will shall know of the doctrine." God does not permit men to live long in honest doubt. A student came to the Bob Jones College a secret atheist. After staying in the institution for several weeks he got up out of bed one night at midnight. He got down on his knees and said, "Oh, God, if there is a God, and if Jesus Christ is His Son, and if God will reveal this to me, I will accept this Jesus Christ as my personal Savior and live for Him for the rest of my life." The young man was instantaneously converted. He has since finished college and is a minister of the Gospel in a midwestern state. At the root of every doubt there is a sin. It may be the sin of intellectual pride. "I do not want anybody to bear my sin as orthodox Christians say Jesus Christ did when He died on the cross. I will stand on my own feet" a woman said that to the writer recently. She was an egotist. She was a bluffer and a foreflusher. Her mother took care of her and suffered for her when she was a baby. She has been dependent upon other people all her life. The writer is exceedingly glad that Jesus Christ bore his sin in His body on the chross. If men would honestly and sincerely yield their hearts to Christ, they would easily solve their intellectual doubts. Of course, there are things we cannot understand but there are a sufficient number of things we can understand. We can understand everything that is necessary to the salvation of our souls.

HUNTINGDON COLLEGE IS RAISING FUND

Montgomery, Apr. 22. — Leaders of the Forward Movement of Huntingdon College from all parts of Alabama and West Florida were primed for their task of raising $250,000 within the next three weeks at an enthusiastic rally in the college chapel today.

In the group were key figures in the force of more than 500 men and women who will carry out the campaign among the membership of the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the alumnae. From the rally they returned to their home fields to speed actual money raising activities.

Dr. Hubert Searcy, president elect of the college, told the gathering that "success of the Forward Movement will open a new era of development and service for Huntingdon. It is the final step in thirty years of progress by Huntingdon to a place among the leading colleges of the South".

The addition of the $250,000 fund to the resources of the college, Dr. Searcy explained, "will make its future financially and scolastically secure, and enable it to utilize its fine plant and equipment in the most effective manner for a larger number".

During the past three years Alabama has received over $22,000,000 from the federal government to be used for highway building. Some of this had to be matched by state and county funds, and some of it did not. Some of it was used on three-way projects. During the Miller administration, $17,000,000 of federal funds were used on Alabama roads.

DOCTORS ARE DECREASING

Montgomery, Apr. 25. — Chilton County has five per cent fewer practicing physicians than it had a quarter of a century ago, Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, pointed out in an address delivered during the annual meeting of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama, which was held in Mobile Tuesday through Thursday of last week, (April 19-21).

"The medical profession, which has been making such great progress in the conquest of disease during the past 25 years, has nevertheless lost ground numerically," he said. "In spite of an increase of approximately half a million, or about 21 per cent, in the state's population, accompanied by higher living standards, and a greater appreciation of the great importance of proper medical care as a factor in the general well-being of the community, there has been a decrease of nearly 16 per cent in the number of physicians providing this care. Alabama now has only 1,887 physicians, as compared with 2,245 in 1912. The present total includes 67 full time county health officers, doing no general practice, of which there were none in 1912. Thus there are 425 fewer physicians engaged in private practice than a quarter of a century ago."

Dr. Baker pointed out that Coosa County suffered the greatest percentage loss of physicians during the 25-year period, with 20 doctors in 1912 and only four at present. Only nine counties have more doctors now than 25 years ago, he said, these nine being Jefferson, Chambers, Colbert, Etowah, Lee, Macon, Mobile, Montgomery, and Tuscaloosa. Most of these nine he added, are largely urban.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT NEW SALEM CHURCH

The annual Memorial services combined with a Mothers Day program, will be held at New Salem church next Sunday, May 1. We invite all who can to be with us to spend the day.

The program promises something quite different this year from anything which we have presented heretofore, and one which will be helpful, instructive an inspiring. It consists of a pageant of the Life of Christ, in ten scenes, all presented with appropriate scripture and music, and lasting about 45 minutes. After the program, which begins at 10 o'clock, there will be preaching service then dinner at noon and singing in the afternoon. All singers are especially invited. Everybody come, and bring dinner.—G. H. Carroll, Pastor.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Prehistoric Lore.

DEL RIO, TEXAS.—According to the scientists, who have a great way of naming earthly phenomena without inquiring into the wishes of the phenomena, we are now living in a terrestrial era known as the Hollocene period.

This will be news to a lot of people who rather suspected we were living through a stage which might be called Chaos.

Irvin S. Cobb

Still, it's no wonder that the word hasn't got around generally yet, because this present era is quite a young era as eras go. It's merely a few million years old, which, to our true geologist, is the same as yesterday. Mention a few million years to him and he'll say "phew!" and just snap his fingers—like that.

I wonder if the authorities would pardon a suggestion from a poor ignoramus whose acquaintance with geology is largely limited to two of its surface phases, namely: Regular paved roads and those derned detours. When we consider most of the humorous illustrations and the bulk of the humorous text printed in the average smart magazine of today, and the even spicier lines heard in smart modern plays, wouldn't it be more fitting to call it, not the Holocene, but the Obscene period?

* * *

The Law's Long Arm.

THE long arm of the law—it's a grand phrase, isn't it? So mouthfilling, so satisfying to the honest citizen's soul!

It conjures up visions of unrelenting warfare against crime, inevitable punishment for the guilty. It's the bunk!

It's the bunk because of crooked lawyers; venal policemen; complacent prosecutors; soft-hearted or corrupted jurors; witnesses, bribed or intimidated; the law's delays; reversals of fair verdicts on foolish technicalities; a false sentimentality which forgets the widow and orphan of the victim and thinks only of the family of the killer; most often of all, abuse of the powers to commute and to pardon and to parole.

These days, when I see a sentenced offender handcuffed to an officer, I find myself saying to myself, "Chances are that fellow, literally or figuratively, is wearing that decoration only temporarily."

* * *

The Passing Years.

EVERY newborn year is a rosy prospect just as nearly every dying year is a dun-colored disappointment. But without revived hope what could we look forward to except being measured for a shroud?

It seems only yesterday when 1937 was busting in, a radiant, bouncing baby-child, his arms burdened with promises, bless his little soul! After several false starts, happy days were here again. Nobody was aiming to remodel the Supreme court. Senator Ashurst told us so, and didn't he know? He didn't.

Secretary Wallace, slightly assisted by Divine Providence, would immediately have the crop situation well in hand. Grass would grow only in the street leading to the almshouse. The Wall Street boys were expecting two suckers in every pot. And the song of the Bulbul was heard in the land—ah, the bull-bull!

Within the 12-month the Republican party again would be a going concern. Well, if it's a going concern, the question is, where?

And now, laden with future gifts, comes 1938. How time flies! Why, before you know it, Sistie will be old enough to take a job with the radio and Buzzie will be signing testimonials.

* * *

Gambling Houses.

A ONCE famous card-sharp—not reformed, but retired—said to me:

"Show me a professional gambling house where the roulette wheel isn't crooked, where any other mechanical device is on the square, where the operatives from the bosses on down won't skin a customer—call him a sucker, if you want to; the terms are interchangeable—and I'll drop dead from shock, because no such outfit ever existed nor ever will, not so long as games can be tricked, as all of them can, and gamblers are out for the coin, as they naturally are, and the hand is quicker than the eye, which it is."

"But how about the mathematical percentage in favor of the bank—isn't that enough?" I asked.

"How about the mathematical percentage of crooked law-enforcement officers who have to be bribed?" he countered. "There's never enough coming in to satisfy those babies."

J. E. Easterling Appeals To Voters

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I have tried to see each of you to personally ask you for your vote and influence in my campaign for tax collector; however, it has not been possible to see everyone, and I am taking this means of telling you that I shall certainly appreciate your support in the primary on May 3.

I am a farmer myself, and I am especially appealing to the farmers and their families for their support, for I feel that we should stick together and help each other whenever possible.

I have always tried to live an honest and upright life, and I feel that I am thoroughly competent and qualified to fill the office of tax collector. If I am given the nomination, I assure you that I shall do everything in my power to be elected this fall, and whether or not I am the nominee, I will stand by the ticket and help to elect Republican officers.

I hope you will analyze all the candidates and then vote your honest convictions. Your choice will be my choice.

Again assuring you that I shall appreciate any help that you give me, I am, sincerely yours,—J. E. Easterling.

LOCKHART FAVORS JOHNNIE EASTERLING FOR COLLECTOR

A number of people have asked me questions concerning Mr. Johnnie Easterling, who is seeking office for Tax Collector.

I make no apologies as a minister of the Gospel in answering these questions creditable to Mr. Easterling, to my neighbors and to myself.

I have known Mr. Easterling for 20 years, and have lived door neighbor to him for several years. I also farmed with Mr. Easterling one year. I find him to be an honest man, always taking a keen interest in community affairs.

"A good neighbor" has become a household word by the people in the community in which Mr. Easterling lives.

The only thing prompting these lines is just feeling duty bound. Mr. Easterling hasn't any knowledge of these lines being written.—Rev. M. Lockhart.

Alabama Needs A Governor Qualified for the Job--SPARKS IS THE MAN

Pd. Pol. Ad by Birmingham Sparks for Governor Club

MR. ROOSEVELT, THE SPENDTHRIFT

After more than five years of the most profligate squandering of public funds by the national administration, we find ourselves with an almost confiscatory tax burden, the national debt increased twenty billion dollars, and more unemployment than at any other time in our history. The morale and confidence of more people has been destroyed, and almost everyone's faith is at the lowest point it has ever been in our nation's life. This is the fruits of the New Deal up to the present time. Mr. Roosevelt's present prescription and remedy for this appalling situation is only more of the same thing that has brought us to our present plight.

As a camouflage to cover up all his folly, Mr. Roosevelt and his followers are always harping back on the terrible condition of the country when he came on the scene with his New Deal. Any intelligent, unprejudiced man knows that this is only a smoke screen by Mr. Roosevelt to divert the attention of the people from his own blundering mismanagement of national affairs.

What are the facts about the condition of the country when Roosevelt became president? It is true that we were having rather hard times, something, in fact, like an old time panic, such as this nation and all other nations throughout history have at times had to suffer. This condition had about run its course, and we were already on the threshold of a real, sound and permanent recovery. The national resources were here, and the credit of the nation had not been impaired. The people's confidence in our form of government had not been shaken. The people were not looking to the government for sustenance and support, and we had more wealth than any other nation ever before possessed. That is the kind of nation Mr. Roosevelt had delivered into his complete control by a servile, time-serving rubber-stamp congress more than five years ago.

His conduct with this great, rich nation immediately became like that of a wayward, profligate son of a wealthy father, who had pampered his son from infancy, and never taught him the value of money, how to earn money, nor how to use it when it came into his possession.

When, at his father's death, the son comes into possession of the great fortune, he gathers around him a large number of his friends and associates, who, like himself, have never earned money and are free spenders, glad to smile and fawn on the gay young dissipator of his father's slowly acquired wealth. The son draws several thousand dollars from the bank, and he and his friends start on a free spending spree. New high-powered automobiles, night clubs, lavish entertainments—it is a twentieth century story of the prodigal son of old who spent his patrimony on "riotous living". After the first few hundred thousand dollars, a million more is drawn and spent, then another million and other millions. The young rioters are really prosperous and the son is popular so long as the fortune lasts. From their easy largess they scatter some coins among the beggars, though they sneer at the plodding hands, now dead, that have earned and saved the coins. Gay young blades of this kind have little respect for the hard working producers of wealth.

Roosevelt had delivered into his hands a fabulously rich nation. He gathered around him an army of fawning, spineless, blatant parasites and political hybrids, such as one could not have previously believed to exist in the same country that produced Washington, Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln. They have already dissipated almost forty billion dollars, and there is more unemployment, more distress and suffering than when he started his spending spree. Now he goes back to congress and the people with a request for seven billion dollars more.

Yet we hear people who should have better sense saying they approve of the objectives of Roosevelt, even if they disapprove of some of his methods. What are the objectives of Roosevelt? Power and aggrandizement of Roosevelt! Every act and every move he has made has been toward centralization in Roosevelt of all power and authority of the free people of America.

He talks about fear being the chief ill of a sick nation, and so it is. Fear of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

In the lives of several hundred youngsters Friday was a very important day at Jemison High School. It was the last day of school. The commencement was very well carried out. The first and second grades gave programs, while the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth gave an operetta, based on the story of Goldenlocks and the Three Bears. The part of Goldenlocks was played by Eugenia Foshee; several bears sang, "How Would You Like To Be A Little Brown Bear?"; the part of the smallest bear was played by Junior Dawson; the mother bear, Olene Dennis; and the father bear, Coy Rasberry. The costumes were very pretty.

A quilt was given away, the winner being Mr. Robert Jones. This quilt was made by the Junior II girls, nad was quilted by the P.-T. A.

Saturday night, April 23, Miss Harvey and the cast of "Dotty and Daffey", a play, went to Collins Chapel and put on the play. A large crowd was present. This play was presented at Jemison Friday, April 15. It was sponsored by the F. F. A. and the F. H. A.

Jemison is an average community when it comes to politics. Everyone is getting stirred up as election day is drawing nearer. Thursday night a political speaking was held at Jemison High. There were many candidates on hand to offer their opinions on different matters. Among them were Judge Sparks' manager, and also a manager for Mr. Goode. Also present were Mr. Clifford M. Manning, Mr. J. E. Cobb, Judge Lee Smith, Mr. Walker, Mr. Smith, and Mr. Gulledge. These talks were enjoyed by everyone attending.

Last week three games of baseball were played by the peppy Jemison High team. On Thursday the team played Collins Chapel to a 6-6 tie. On Friday they played Maplesville, losing by the score of 13 to 5. Saturday they played Verbena, winning by a score of 20 to 5.

Everyone is looking forward to the senior play, "Girl Shy", to be presented May 13. It will be directed by Miss Nichols. The cast has already been selected, and rehearsals are going on nicely.

Maynard's Chapel

The Reds gave a supper Saturday night for the Blues; all Blues who were not present certainly a good supper. There was also a good sermon by Rev. Robert Cost.

Sunday was our regular preaching day; everyone enjoyed the sermons on Saturday night and Sunday.

The ladies' Sunday school class will meet with Mrs. W. G. Maynarl Thursday at 2 o'clock for their business meeting. All ladies are requested to be present.

Let's all of us remember the first Sunday in June, as it is not far off. It is our regular Homecoming Day, and everybody is invited to bring a basket of something to eat and spend the day. We are planning a big day, so don't forget—first Sunday in June. —Mrs. W. G. Maynard.

LIBERTY HILL B. Y. P. U.

Our B. Y. P. U. met last Sunday night with a large attendance, which we are proud of. Our topic for discussion was, "A True Witness in Japan," which was enjoyed by everyone present.

Our B. Y. P. U. is still growing. Won't you come and be with us?

SHADY GROVE

The second quarterly conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, of Clanton Circuit, will convene at Shady Grove church the first Sunday in May.

Rev. J. W. Gibson will preach at the noon hour. Everybody bring a well filled basket.—J. W. Enfinger, pastor.

I have taken over the New Era Gas Station, which is one-half mile north of Clanton on the Birmingham Highway. I invite my friends to come to see me and fill up with New Era Gas. I will treat you right!

Paul C. Mims Writes To Voters

To The Voters of Chilton County:

As you know, the present campaign is fast drawing to a close, and on next Tuesday you will say, by your ballots, just who you want to fill the several offices of our county. It is but right and fitting that you have this privilege, living in a free country as we do. They are offices in your county government, and you are the ones who should, and do, have the last word.

Now, in picking these officers, I believe it should be the aim of everyone to pick the best man to fill the place. I have never believed that personal prejudice should enter into a citizen's consideration of anyone's candidacy. By your votes you are picking men to do certain jobs for you, to do them as you would have them done, and to do them well. You would not pick an inexperienced man to run your farm, just because he happened to be a personal friend.

So, in making your selections, see if you can bury any personal prejudice, or any special feeling for candidates, long enough to consider all, one against the other, in their true light of ability to fill the places they ask for; decide which you believe would be most efficient, and vote for that man; the chances are that you will never regret it.

I have not been able to see many of you personally during this campaign. I have been unable to get away from my work very long at a time. Consequently, I have prepared and distributed, as widely as possible, cards and pamphlets, setting forth in detail my own ideas of what the people of our county want and the things I will work for if I am honored by your nomination and election to the post of Representative. I hope you have been able to obtain one of these and read it.

PAUL C. MIMS

I do not intend to worry you at this time with a lengthy article. I trust that those cards and booklets have already carried my message to you in recent weeks, together with a few newspaper articles. But, in a few words, if nominated and elected, I intend to do this simple duty: I intend to find out clearly just what the wishes of the majority of the people of this county are, round out a legislative program guided strictly by these wishes, carry it to Montgomery with me, and consider it my legislative road map, to be adhered to as strictly as I would an actual road map in a strange state.

I do not tell you that I will go to Montgomery, move heaven and earth, take everybody by the seat of the pants and chuck them out of the window until I get the crowd down to where they will allow me to get through the measures I desire for you. Rather, I shall conduct myself in such manner as to command the respect of my colleagues, and in this respectable manner secure for you the things you want.

No man can go to the legislature in an overzealous frame of mind, determined to force things his way. If he does, he will soon find himself bumping his head against a stump, and getting nothing done. If I am your choice to represent you, I intend to include patience and careful handling of all questions brought before me, that I may be considered by other members of the legislature as a man of reason, not hasty and inconsiderate, but one who views each problem squarely, and then gives an honest and sincere answer on it. I believe such a procedure will gain friends for me there, and then I can obtain for you the things you desire.

So, as you go to the polls Tuesday consider the things I have said above. If you will, consider my program, and the frame of mind I would carry to the legislature with me. See if you cannot decide that a reasonable, sensible legislative program, presented in sensible, judicious manner, will command respect in the legislative halls.

When you have done this—when you have considered what my program is, and the manner in which I intend going about presenting it and obtaining its enactment—if you believe that I know the problems of all the people of our county, and am desirous of finding a solution for them—then I will appreciate your vote.

Allow me to express my appreciation for the words of encouragement many of you have spoken to me in this campaign. I am truly regretful that I was unable to see all of you personally, but circumstances over which I had no control have prevented it. Rest assured, if I am elected, that I will, to the best of my ability, make of yours a county government "Of the people, by the people, for the people."—Paul C. Mims.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—The Nazis haven't bothered Frau Katherina Schratt. Unlike the Pompadours and Montespans, usually among the first victims of political upheavals, Austria's "Gnaedige Frau," as Emperor Francis Joseph called her, has ridden the surf-board of dynastic and political change for nearly 60 years. She is now eighty-two, doing crossword puzzles, disclaiming knowledge of the current cataclysm, but longing for the "good old days."

Frau Katie Immune to Nazi's Ban

In those days, she was pretty Katie Schratt, a dancer in the Burg theater, which was under the patronage of the emperor. After a hit performance, with the emperor attending, she obtained an audience.

"Sire," she said, with a low curtsey, "we cannot maintain ourselves on the salaries you pay. I owe $50,000 for my costumes."

The emperor promised a new benefice for the theater and said he would help her take care of her debts. She was backing gracefully to the door when the emperor said: "Gnaedige Frau, why do you leave us?"

She stayed 40 years, in a snug little villa by the palace gates. The emperor, after a hard day swinging the scepter, used to drop in at Frau Katie's, split a bottle of Pilsener and sing a few songs. She knew all the mellow old tunes which he particularly liked. She used to darn his socks and tell him when he needed a hair cut.

She refused to accept gowns or jewels, always remaining the "Gnaedige Frau," but the emperor, by an amusing artifice, induced her to accept a fortune in gems. He was a famous huntsman. He told her he was sending her a wild boar he had killed.

Slain Boar Is Studded With Jewels

She saw no harm in that. When it arrived, it had diamond earrings, a diamond necklace and bracelets and a diamond breast pin, and its back was studded with precious Hapsburg jewels. The money lenders got them, after the emperor's death.

She was supposed to know more of the secrets of the realm than any other person. She guarded them carefully, but did reluctantly reveal a few details of the Mayerling tragedy of 1889.

She said Archduke Rudolf shot himself, after killing Baroness Vetsera. That's the version of the film now running. It would make a good story if somebody could take Frau Schratt to see "Mayerling" and have her write a critical review.

MARK ETHRIDGE becomes "czar" of the radio industry. It is hard to think of Mr. Ethridge as a czar, or even a third assistant Simon Legree, but he clicks neatly as an able, deft, diligent and resourceful executive.

While Mr. Ethridge is only forty-four years old, he is of the type of old-line, leg-man newspaper man, with an insatiable appetite for news. A native of Meridian, Miss., with soft southern speech and instinctive courtesy, he ought to be an excellent trouble-shooter for the radio, rather than a czar. He was a reporter on the Meridian Dispatch, studied at the University of Mississippi and romped on up through grades to the managing editorship of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph. He was with the New York Sun in 1926 and his old friends there have been nominating him today for a loud cheer in this corner.

Radio 'Czar' Began Career as a Leg Man

He was lured back to Macon, went thence to the Richmond (Va.) Times, of which he was publisher, and later became general manager of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Louisville Times. He spent the year 1933 in central Europe, on an Oberlander Trust fellowship, studying politics and economics and—the only touch of anti-climax in his career—the Versailles treaty.

The radio has picked a man who knows the social and educational box-score as well as good entertainment. He is still general manager of the Courier-Journal, up and coming in the new enlightened leadership of the South. His "czar" job is unsalaried.

FLYING SCHOOL BEGINS JULY 1ST

The Honorable Pete Jarman, Representative of the Sixth District of Ala., Monday morning said that it was very gratifying to have so many young men of Alabama apply for admission as Flying Cadets to the Air Corps Flying School at Randolph Field, Texas.

Mr. Jarman said there was still plenty of time for young men to apply for admission to the class starting July 1st. In order to be admitted a young man must be single, have reached the age of 20 and not reached his 27th birthday, a high school graduate and pass a physical and mental examination. If he has completed two or more years of college no mental examination is required. For further information and application blanks Mr. Jarman suggests that young men apply to the nearest Regular Army Officer.

Miss Sara Hollis, Miss Ruth Weaver, Miss Ruth Joyce and Miss Dorothy McCloud, represented Alabama College at the Southern Athletic Convention at Florida State College for women, which was held on April 18, 19 and 20. Mrs. John Hollis chaperoned the party.

Tom Taylor Appeals To Voters Of County

To The Voters of Chilton County:

In my campaign for nomination for the office of Tax Collector I have seen all the voters personally that time permitted. It will be impossible to see all of you before next Tuesday, primary election date. Hence, I am making my last appeal to you through the columns of our paper.

TOM TAYLOR

This is the most important primary the Republican Party ever held in the county. In this primary you will select most of your nominees to carry your banner in November. We must look to the success of the party in November and not to the needs of any one candidate. Every substantial office in the County is now held by a Democrat. In order to restore these offices to our people we must nominate our strongest and most influential candidates. Due to the failure of the Democratic administration in National, State and local affairs dissatisfaction with this party is universal and we must pull together in order to restore our party to power and thus to keep our government from going to wreck and ruin.

My business and experience has been such that I can render you service in the Tax Collector's office to which you are entitled. If I am your nominee you can count on me to devote my time and exert every effort possible for the success of the Republican ticket in November. No member of my family has ever held public office in Chilton County, although we have been active in every campaign for the success of the Republican party.

We must look to November and not be misled by fabulous appeals now. If I am not able to bear my part of the burden in November, and will be a drag on the party do not nominate me. This is a time when the party needs to put forward candidates who can meet the enemy on every issue presented and thus insure success in the general electon.

Yours for Success,
TOM TAYLOR.

INDORSES TOM TAYLOR

The time is drawing near for the primary election, and we should be thinking seriously about our candidates. I am very much interested in my friend, Tom Taylor.

He is a man who has a great deal of influence and will make the very best man for this office. It has been rumored around that Mr. Taylor doesn't need the office. Perhaps he doesn't, but the county needs him.

He is a mature man with good business judgment. Mr. Taylor is a self made man, and is not controlled by any ring or boss. He is a man whom the whole country may be proud to have as tax collector. He has a record of which any man should be proud, and that is the type of men we must strive to put in office. Carelessness in the selection of officers often results in disaster.

Mr. Taylor rates high among his many friends, and they are anticipating his election with pleasure. His friends are not business men alone, but are among people in every walk of life.

His intelligent management of his own business is enough to prove to the people that he would be a capable man to put in office. Let's all go to the polls in the May 3 primary and make Mr. Taylor the Republican nominee for tax collector. Sincerely,—A Citizen.

MRS. EMILY LEE INGRAM

At 5:20 on the morning of April 14, our heavenly Father called from our midst our dear mother, Mrs. Emily Lee Ingram.

Mrs. Ingram was born in Coosa County. She was married there to William Alvin Ingram in 1883; he died in 1901. To this union were born seven children, four of whom are still living.

Mrs. Ingram was a staunch Baptist. None knew her but to love her, and everyone who was associated with her felt closer to God from being in contact with her.

Besides a great host of friends who mourn her passing, she leaves: four children—Mrs. David Scott of Verbena, Mrs. G. A. Longcrier of Jones, Ala., Mrs. J. E. Colee of Jones, Ala., and J. W. Ingram of Clanton; 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Interment was in Weaver cemetery, with Rev. Arnold Weaver officiating; Brislin Brothers directing. Pallbearers were: Raymond Scott, Pratt Weaver, Robert Scott, Preston McGee, Elvin Traywick, Raymond Walker.—Mrs. Ethel Colee.

More than one-fourth of the farm families in 12 Southern cotton states do not have a single dairy cow, says Walter L. Randolph, in charge of AAA program in Alabama, in pointing out that this is responsible for the inadequate diet of many of the farm families in these states.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS

W. L. Sanders For Representative ---

To The Voters of Chilton County:

This will be my last appeal to you before the primary of May 3rd, in regard to my candidacy for the office of Representative. As most of you know I have not canvassed the county and talked to you personally. I regret very much that my business has been such that it made it impossible for me to talk to each of you, but whether I have talke to you or not each voter can feel assured that I will appreciate any consideration.

W. L. SANDERS

I have given you, through the press, the principles I shall advocate and support if elected to the Legislature of Alabama.

I made the race for this office four years ago and received a good vote, and should I have been elected we would not have the local problems that we now have. The principles that I advocated four years ago would not have brought the discord and confusion among the people that now exist.

The principles I am advocating in my platform, in my opinion, are in harmony with these who stand for equity and justice. Below I am resubmiting my platform, and ask that you give it careful consideration:

Repeal Road Law—

1. Repeal of the law that provides for a road supervisor, and place the roads in the hands of the Commissioners, who are elected by and directly responsible to the people.

"Recall Law"—

2. The enactment of a "recall law" for all officials. The recall law would place our government in the hands of the people because of their power to recall any official during his term of office if he fails to comply with his campaign pledges.

Useless Expenses and Salaries—

3. Repeal of all laws that provide for useless boards and officials, and discharge from the state's payroll an army of useless officials.

4. Repeal all laws that provide for extortionate salaries of state and county officials, and provide such salaries as are in proportion to the income of the majority of the taxpayers. All offisials should be paid according to the service they render.

Sales Tax—

5. Repeal the sales tax and establish a tax system based on ability to pay. The sales tax is not a just tax, because it collects from the poor blind beggar on his food and clothing just as much in proportion as it does from the rich man. The sales tax is unjust because it collects from those least able to pay. The sales tax is unjust because it forces every merchant to serve as tax collector without pay. It forces him into more complicated bookkeeping than it does the regular tax collector, who receives a salary of from five to ten thousand dollars per year. The history of the sales tax shows that it is the most vicious of all tax systems, and if elected to the legislature I shall register my opposition to it.

Education—

6. Education is the cornerstone on which civilization is built. It has brought to the people thousands of necessities, services and enjoyment that otherwise would have been impossible. It is the state's obligation to provide educational opportunities to every boy and girl. The schools should and could stay open a full term each year if a little economy were practiced in the other departments of state. If elected to the legislature I shall support education in every way that is consistent. Education should receive nothing less than parity.

Health—

7. Health is the greatest asset of life and should be protected in every way possible. The state is not doing it's part in preserving the health of it's people. There is a large per cent of the school children that have some physical defect that causes them to finish school from one to three years later than they should. This costs the taxpayers money. There are thousands of men and women who suffer severe pain and finally lose their health, because they are unable to secure such medical or surgical treatment as they need. Those people with the proper treatment at the proper time could be made an asset to their state and county, but neglected they soon become a liability. I am for no health program that allows the dollar to stand between health and sickness, or life and death. Our present health program renders mostly "information." I stand for a health program that will

Highways—

8. All highways should be maintained only when it does not jeopardize the health and education functions of the state. Schools should not be closed in order to construct new highways.

Unjust Auto Licenses—

9. The license and tax paid for the use and ownership of cars and trucks are too high. Before a man can own a truck he must pay two per cent of it's value in sales tax. Before he can run his truck he must pay an extortionate price for a license tag, and a tax of about 30 per cent on his gas. And before he can haul for the public he must pay an extortionate carriage license. I am opposed to the legislature robbing the people in such manner. The Jesse James and Rube Burrows type robbed the people with the gun; the modern politicians rob the people with the law. The only difference, the latter robs the future generations. I am opposed to all extortionate license or taxes, and bitterly opposed to any tax or license that gives to any individual or corporation monopoly on any given commodity or service.

Abuse of Privileges—

10. I am opposed to any legislator serving for the state for pay in any capacity other than his regular legislative duties.

The Parole Racket—

11. I am opposed to our present parole racket. If a man commits a crime and is sentenced to the penitentiary by a jury of 12 men, I feel that he should serve the sentence imposed unless sufficient evidence is presented to the pardon or parole board to prove that he is innocent of the crime for which he was convicted. Pardons and paroles for political purposes is nothing more than dumping criminals back on society, only to cause more corruption and crime.

The Prison System—

12. I am opposed to the state working convict labor in competition with free labor. Convicts should be used on public roads, highways, and other projects of interest to the public. According to the record, the convict department is not self-supporting, yet the lawmakers expect us to support our families together with our extravagant tax system. According to the report of some of the convicts, the penitentiary has become a place of recreation instead of a place of punishment. I believe the convicts of Chilton County with reasonable short terms should be worked on the roads of Chilton County. I favor such labor and punishment as will make the penitentiary an undesirable place to be.

The foregoing issues are sufficient to express my views on needed Legislation, however, there are several other issues I could have mentioned, but space would not permit, and if elected and the time ever comes for me to cast a vote on an issue affecting the people and I do not know how they stand, I will call the people together and find out what they want and be governed accordingly.

My record as a member of the County Board of Education is open to the public. I tried to serve the wishes of the majority of the people and if elected to the Legislature I shall continue that policy.

I realize the obligation of the office for which I am seeking, and feel that I can secure the cooperation of the House of Representatives.

In conclusion I wish to say that, as far as I know, we have had a clean campaign among all the candidates as well as these for the office of Representative. I hope that no candidate will resort to false accusations against their opponents in order to gain support. I feel that most voters have been fed up on this last minute propaganda. A clean race among the candidates will mean much toward a "Republican Victory" this fall.

With my pledge to be a servant of the people, I solicit your vote and influence.

Yours for Equity and Justice,
W. L. SANDERS.

TO ALL BAPTIST CHURCHES IN THE CHILTON ASSOCIATION

The quarterly meeting of the Chilton B. T. U. Association was held on Sunday, April 24th, at Chestnut Creek. There were five churches represented with an attendance of about 70.

Officers for the coming year were elected and they are as follows: President, Rev. Maurice Hodgens; Vice-President, Phares Raybon; Secretary-Treasurer, Helen Kendrick; Chorister, Dewell Jones; Pianist, Melba Patton; B. A. U. Leader, Rev. A. W. Nix; Senior Leader, Mrs. Maurice Hodgens; Intermediate Leader, Rev. M. Lockhart; Junior Leader, Mrs. W H. Maynard; and Associational Pastor, Rev M. I. McLeod.

We hope that each of these officers will put forth every effort to make this year the most successful year in B. T. U. work in this association. But before we can do this, we must have the cooperation and support of every church in the association; we make this plea to each of you that we may have such

Our next meeting will be held the second Sunday in July at Mecedonia church No. 1. We trust that every church in the Chilton Association will be represented.

The highest producing herd in Alabama during March is owned by J. C. Beene, of Huntsville. The cows were fed a grain mixture of 200 pounds of 24 per cent commercial dairy feed and 100 pounds of crushed corn. The roughage consisted of silage and soy bean hay.

IN MEMORY OF W. J. DAVIS

At 6:20 p.m., Tuesday, April 19, the death angel visited our home and carried our father, W. J. Davis, to that great beyond. He was sick about two months, after a stroke of paralysis, and was confined to his bed for about five weeks. All was done for him that loving hands could do, but the Lord doeth all things well. His will must be done—not ours.

Daddy was 64 years old on April 12. He leaves to mourn his passing: his devoted wife, five sons, three daughters, three brothers, four sisters, and six grandchildren.

He was laid to rest at Collins Chapel church, with Rev. Robert Cost officiating; Martin and Sons in charge.—His daughter, Miss Bertha Davis.

OWNERS ARE ADVISED TO READ INSTRUCTION BOOKS

Chrysler owners who are anxious to get the maximum performance, economy an long life from their cars are urged to read the book of instructions to be found in each new vehicle (generally in the glove box on the right hand side of the instrument panel).

This instruction book is the result of long experience on the part of both the owners and the company's engineering staff. Written in such non-technical language that it can easily be understood even by those who lack mechanical knowledge, it gives many valuable hints on the operation and care of a car.

While every individual is inclined to believe that he knows all of the essentials of driving and maintaining a car, this frequently proves to be a fallacy. In fact, it is not uncommon to discover that drivers who have had many years of experience are entirely ignorant of facts that would contribute greatly to their enjoyment of the car and to its long life and economy. There is considerably more to good driving than merely shifting gears, operating brakes and steering.

ALABAMA EFFECTIVELY SERVED BY. REP. PETE JARMAN

Public approval has been with Representative Pete Jarman, Democrat, Alabama, ever since he came to the Nation's Capital to serve his first term in Congress. Local favor here has been outspoken in the commendation of his excellent principles of statesmanship and sincerity in furthering the interests of his many constituents.

It is interesting to note that this eminent representative is a candidate for re-election to office and indeed he has a record worthy of public inspection and appreciation. Regardless of party, every right-thinking citizen qualified to cast a ballott in that election should go to the polls ready to serve right and justice in the selection of personal choice for the office. Representative Jarman need only point to the compilation of outstanding services meritably performed in serving the public and to carry on with his effective duties.

Constantly called upon for the higher responsibilities here, he is chairman of the Memorials Committee and also a member of the following ones: World War Veterans' Legislation Irrigation and Reclamation. — Reprint from Washington Northwestern.

MALARIA DISCUSSED BY HEALTH OFFICER

With the advent of the mesquito breeding season rapidly approaching, Dr. S D. Sturkie, local health officer, today sought to inform Chilton County of its malaria problem and means to combat it. "Compared with other Alabama Counties", said the health officer, "Chilton has very little malaria. uring 1937 only 23 cases and no deaths from malaria were reported to the health department. These, however, represent only a fraction of the actual incidence of the disease as many persons with malaria unwisely take chill tonics and do not consult physicians."

"Despite its low prevalence here," he continued, we need to be equipped with knowledge concerning malaria. A most important fact is that it can be transmitte only by the bite of an infected female anopheline mosquito. Contrary to popular opinion, malaria is not spread through drinking water."

The malaria mesquito usually has spotted wings and rests on a wall in a perpendicular position. The anopheles usually breeds in quiet, clean water, usually wants some shade and some sunshine and breeds well where there is some ecquatic plant growth such as cattails, etc."

"Malaria control," he stated, "therefore resolves itself into mosquito control. Among the measures used in breaking the chain between man and the anopheles are drainage, application of larvicides, screening of houses and increasing the mosquitoes natural enemies.

Road Supervisor

ly discharge him and secure the service of one who could know what had been bought at any time. Up until August 1st, 1937, the office of the Road Supervisor was able at all times to render an accounting of this department through clerical aid, and up to that time there was never a question of correct accounting or the correct expenditures in this department, except two or three times various criticisms from the Probate's office got in circulation, but which was proven untrue and unjustified. But, Judge Smith and the Commissioners did not desire a cost record of the road department, so they, by an order or resolution advised that no further wages would be paid for the services of such a clerk or costkeeping aid in the Supervisor's office effective June 1st, 1937. This clerk, A. D. Maddox, remained in service until August 1st, 1937, and to this date has not been paid for his work, although the Attorney General ruled that the Commissioners Court did not have the authority to hire or fire any employee of the road department. Refusing to pay the wages of this clerk deprived this office of any means by which necessary cost records could be made and kept covering operations of some 350 men on some 2,000 miles of public roads, actually operating a $100,000 business without cost records.

"And did not know that the appropriation was overspent until after the quarter had expired!" I believe that half of the people in Chilton County, and I know that all the business men of Clanton, remember the rukus in the Commissioners Court on January 5th, 1938, 20 days before the "quarter" expired; I know that the Commissioners and Judge Smith remember it very well, also, Messrs. Hugh Simpson, Dan McKinnon, Marion Gore, and more than 100 others we do not have to name. They were all very present when I went in there in protest to viciously substle statements made by Judge Smith to several citizens of Clanton and more than 100 of the men employed by the road department, who had called for and had been denied their wages earned during the month of December, 1937, to the effect that "all of you who do any work during the month of January, can look to Tom Arledge for your pay as the County will not pay it." Although the Commissioners had passed and approved all claims for wages earned during December, Judge Smith told these men: "You can't get your checks today." "You may never get them." "If you expect to get your pay promptly you will have to go to the polls and vote right on May 3rd." etc.

When I entered the Commissioners Court on that date and asked why such action was being practiced, Judge Smith stated: "I just told these men they could not be paid because you had overrun the appropriation.". Uncle Dan McKinnon was called in and denied to Judge Smith that no mention was made about the appropriation. This statement was made in the presence of those named above. At that particular time Judge Smith charged that the appropration had been overrun, and in the presence of more than 100 citizens of th's County. Now he comes back and says he did not know until after the quarter had ended. Which statement is true?

There is nothing in the Attorney General's ruling that prohibits the paying of these wages on for the material bought and used by the County. Neither is there a law in these United States which might be construed to deprive a workmn of his wages or a merchant of his pay for goods bought and used. The whole thing seems to be a deliberate desire to deprive these men, all citizens of Chilton County, out of thir wages through pure malice and a mad desire to disrupt and prevent efficient work on the public roads of the County, to humble these people as though they were slaves or beasts of burden, to make them subservant to a certain centralized group.

It is perfectly all right, and very legitimate, to discriminate against the people, to favor a certain select few! It is perfectly fine and correct to pay Polk Brothers a bonus of 4c and 6c per foot on all grader blades, paying 62c when they could be bought from the regular authorized manufacturers for 56c and 58c! It is perfectly correct and right to pay H. S. Shaw a bonus of $5 and $7 per thousand feet of oak lumber, $27 per thousand feet, when such lumber was offered by men who were denied a purchase order, at $18 and $20 per thousand feet. This practice is all right! But, when it comes to the paying of the little wages, some of which were as small as 16c, wages earned through hard labor, in the mud and the rain, during the cold days of January, they must not be paid! There is a law against them being paid, according to the Probate Judge and the Commissioners' understanding of such a law.

These wages cannot be paid because the supervisor has overrun the appropriation! If this is true, how were Mr. Ralph Mims and Mr. M. R. Oates paid for their lumber sold to the county during the period in question, in the sums of $150.21 and $151.07, respectively? Also Jones Brothers, $143.83? Why were these men paid and others denied, several of whom were forced to take their wives and children to their relatives because they did not have bread to eat? Would you like to have me name them? They are every one a citizen, and have loyally given their time and energy to the work of maintaining a decent riding surface on the public roads of Chilton County! Did the Commissioners and the Probate Judge deny themselves their salary? It is well remembered that they did have their salaries, and even Mrs. Delene Wyatt's salary, included in the costs of road work in a recent statement signed by Judge Smith and published in the Chilton County News.

Anything done or any obligation made over and above the appropriation cannot be paid by the county, and in case such payment is made the same shall be charged back to the Commissioners. All right! Listen to this, Judge Smith, and you Commissioners, too:

Total appropriation for the period November 1, 1936, throughout the year 1937, to January 31, 1938, was the sum of $79,235.00; total expenditures over the same period were $85,334.33, covering all labor, materials and supplies, including all lumber, oil, gasiline and tax, grease, repairs, etc. This shows an overrun in the period in the sum of $6,099.33.

The appropriattion for the period August, September and October, 1937, was $15,000. Expenditures for this period was as follows:

Month of August, 1937—
Matreials on requisitions No. 1107 to 1164, inclusive	$ 2,757.24
Labor, including supervisor's salary and expense	3,025.25
Month of September, 1937—
Materials on requisitions No. 1165 to 1204, inclusive	$ 2,163.54
Labor, including supervisor's salary and expense	3,773.77
Month of October, 1937—
Materials on requisitions No. 1205 to 1282, inclusive	$ 4,832.93
Labor, including supervisor's salary and expense	4,419.89
A grand total of	$20,972.62
Appropriation for period	15,000.00
Overrun for period	$ 5,972.62

I will pay any person who can prove that these figures, covering the period of August, September and October, 1937, are not approximately true and correct, the sum of $599 in cash. The Commissioners and Judge Smith say they cannot pay out funds of the county for obligations made in excess of the funds appropriated. It is very evident that they did, from the above figrues, and they did not increase the appropriation during that quarter, either. So, now what?

The reason for this overrun was due to an effort, which was sanctioned by the Commissioners, to accumulate a surplus supply of lumber and bridge materials to take care of the demand during the winter, rainy season, when it would be impossible for the mills to get their logs from the field. Why the Commissioners failed to meet this with an extra appropriation I do not know. But, I believe that all the citizens of the county remember the large piles of lumber and heavy timbers which were stored at the various yards.

Regardless of the overrun in this period, as indicated in the above figures, all material bills and worker's wages were promptly paid without question. And, as you note from the above figures, more than 90 per cent of the overrun indicated for the whole fifteen months period actually existed and happened in the "quarter" August, September and October, 1937. Yet, the very small payroll for wages earned during the month of January, 1938, have been withheld and not paid at this date. Why? Was it because the Attorney General ruled that nothing could be paid over and above the appropriation? According to Judge Smith's own statement, the Attorney General gave his opinion on May 11, 1937, yet they approved and paid an overrun in the sum of $5,972.62 at the end of the quarter ending October 31, 1937. No! It was not because of the Attorney General's opinion! It was just a slap at the honest citizens of this county, to so confuse them and discourage them to the point that these people would be afraid to work on the public roads and expect to receive pay for such work.

Judge Smith, hiding behind the name of the Commissioners Court, and in some instances in the name of the Commissioners Court, has tried various acts of subterfuge and guilt to confuse, beguile and mislead the people of Chilton County by misinforming, and misrepresenting conditions or things in connection with his administration. His own, and the Commissioners' statement referred to in the opening of this article, "we have no way of knowing what is spent", is actually or virtually, an acknowledgment of his and their incompetency or inability to administer the affairs of a half million dollar industry, the affairs of Chilton County, so willingly entrusted to their safe keeping by the people. Their practices of discrimination, favoritism, against the business men and other citizens of the county, are completely out of line with the principles of true democracy and our democratic nation! We are all citizens of this county and these United States and should expect and have the same consideration from those men elected to office, regardless of their political alliance. When he has been elected to office, no matter what ticket he was elected by, he becomes the servant of all the people regardless of their political faith or affiliation.

With the sincere hope that this article will show to you what is happening in connection with the affairs of the county under this administration, and that it will at least cause some of you deep thinkers to take notice, I will close. I am not in politics or seeking office, but I do want to see Chilton Ciunty the top in clean government. Your Road Supervisor, — T. J. ARLEDGE. (Paid Adv.)

Dewey Rockett Makes Final Appeal To Voters Of County

To The Voters of Chilton County:

I would like to make this last appeal through the county paper for your vote and influence, as candidate for Tax Assessor on the Republican ticket in the election next Tuesday.

I wish that I could have seen every voter in Chilton county in person, as I feel the office is one of much importance to you an every taxpayer in the county, but we all know that this is impossible. I have seen a great many and hope to see many more in person before election day, but with the crops being unusually late this year and with this pretty weather we are having just now, I am sure most of you had rather not be bothered with candidates this week in your fields, and I take this means of soliciting your vote. I have had several years experience in the office of Tax Collector under my father, who served you as your tax collector, and in this office I gained considerable experience as to the duties of the Tax Assessor and I feel that if I am elected that I can go in the office with a fair knowledge of its duties; and with the other experience I have had I feel that I can serve you as your Assessor in an efficient manner.

My father and family have always voted and always supported the Republican party. I realize that a primary is not the real test of a party's strength, but simply a method of selecting the best and strongest candidates to oppose the Democratic ticket in the general election, and I think the voters of a party should consider the best candidates from a standpoint of the one that can render the most service to the county and who can perform the duties of the office in the best manner, and I think a party should select the strongest candidate, the one most likely to win in the general election. I realize that the strength of the Republican Party will not be tested next Tuesday, but next November. And I want to say here and now to the Republican voters of this county and to all who may see fit to vote in the Republican primary, that if you select me as one of your candidates next Tuesday, that I will be on my toes from then until the last vote is counted in the general election, doing the best I can to win for my party. We realize, of course, that we have a hard fight and all of us, especially the candidates whomever you might select, should be giving their best to witn this ticket. On the other hand, if, after careful consideration of all the candidates, you feel that someone else can serve the county better in this capacity, or can help lead your ticket to a surer victory next November, then I want to state to you that I am with you, and whether nominated or not, I will be on the firing line every minute until the last vote is counted.

You who have talked with me, know I have always strived to keep our party harmonized and in union, and this will continue to be my policy whether I am nominated or not.

I ask you to look over my record both in my business and personal life and to give my candidacy fair consideration on next Tuesday.

Yours for the success of our party,

J. DEWEY ROCKETT.

CHILD HEALTH DAY DESIGNATED SUNDAY, MAY 1ST

Montgomery, April 26. — Sunday, May 1, has been designated as Child Health Day in a proclamation issued Friday by Governor Graves, in which he urged the people of Alabama to devote particular attention at that time to the problem of children's health.

WALNUT CREEK

Everyone is invited to attend the annual Mother's Day service and singing at Walnut Creek church the second Sunday in May.

There will be preaching at 11 o'clock and singing in the afternoon. There will be several quartets to entertain the large crowd that is expected. Everybody bring a well filled basket.—Reese Baker.

STUDENTS WILL HONOR 'MOTHER'

Mrs. Ada McGraw Pitts To Receive Students' Thanks

Jacksonville Ala.—To date or not to date, that is the question. And for the past 18 years around 15,000 co-eds at Jacksonville State Teachers' College have had rulings from Mrs. Ada McGraw Pitts, social director, as the answer.

Mrs. Pitts is to be honored as "college mother" at a special Mothers Day ceremony Sunday afternoon in Daugette Hall, sponsored by the Y. W. C A. The faculty and student body have been invited.

To the critics of modern femininity Mrs. Pitts has a quick retort: "Modern girls are better than their sisters of a generation ago."

Mrs. Pitts explains, "Girls nowadays are not only better, but they are stronger than the old-fashioned ones who were strictly forbidden going places and knowing things. Knowledge has made them stronger and keeps them from being imposed upon as many girls were because of innocence a generation ago.—Birmingham News.

HIGHLAND

We have organized a singing society at this place. Our singings will be held the first Sunday afternoon in each month. We invite all singers and lovers of music to come and be with us.

We will meet next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. We invite you all to come, your help will be appreciated.

J. P. Bean Writes Letter To Voters Of County

To the Voters of the County:

First, I want to express to you my most sincere thanks and appreciation for electing me commissioner of the first district of your county, and to assure you that I will also appreciate very much your help in the primary of May 3.

Owing to unavoidable circumstances it will be impossible for me to visit every voter of the county, but hope you do not feel at all that I am not interested in you for not doing so.

It has been my greatest pleasure at all times to give the very best service possible to all people of the county, regardless of how they vote or how your attitude is toward me.

It has especially been a very great pleasure to be of all the help possible to the unfortunate and aged people of the county.

I feel that with the experience I have gained in my dealings with the Commissioners Court, and the acquaintance I have with the people of the county, that I will be able to serve you more efficiently another term than in the past. My platform is to do all the good that I can, and as little harm.

So, I am asking you to consider this as an appeal to you for your support in the May 3 primary.

Thanks in advance.—J. P. Bean.

C. REESE MULLINS SAYS SPARKS ELECTION FOR GOVERNOR SURE

Editor Union-Banner:

It seems that North Alabama has turned over. Reports from all over North Alabama are to the effect that Dixon is being deserted. His allegiance with Graves has seeped through and his supporters are now flocking to the Sparks column. Good reports are coming from every county north of Jefferson. South Alabama will give Sparks a large majority. Chilton County will give Sparks a nice margin. Dixon has left enough planks out of his 1934 platform this time to build himself a cottage on the sea shore.

We are going to elect Chauncey Sparks as the next governor of Alabama. We will all then have cause to be proud and happy. Don't forget to attend the big Sparks rally in Birmingham on next Saturday, April 30. Yours most sincerely,—C. Reese Mullins.

Republicans Nominate All Candidates In First Primary

Pitts, Rockett, Taylor, Maddox, Deloach, Webb, and Cobb Placed On Republican Roster In Tuesday's Voting; No Probable Run-off

Race For Superintendent Of Education Only Close One; Likely Will Be No Run-Off

In Tuesday's primary, Republicans Tuesday night had apparently made a clean one-day job of nominating their choice for the several offices, unless C. L. Wilkins decides to try a run-off with S. J. M. Webb for one of the School Board posts; S. D. Deloach had cinched one of the nominations, according to unofficial returns tabulated, and Wilkins was trailing S. J. M. Webb by 282 votes—there was an unconfirmed rumor that Wilkins had said he would withdraw, especially if his was the only race in a run-off.

The following results were shown by unofficial figures with returns from all boxes tabulated:

Percy M. Pitts had a total of 1,029, to lead both Paul C. Mims with 326, and W. L. Sanders with 293, by a margin of 410.

J. Dewey Rockett polled 1,088, to lead Clifford M. Manning with 172, and Sam F. Mims with 386, by a margin of 530.

Tom Taylor's 1,139 topped J. E. Easterling's 511, to lead by 628.

The closest race of all saw Rascoe Maddox leading Ralph D. Grant by 84, in the race for Superintendent of Education; Maddox had 857 and Grant 773.

In the Board of Education race, S. D. Deloach led with 957 to capture one of the nominations; S. J. M. Webb was second with 937, and C. L. Wilkins trailed with 655. As said before, there was a rumor that Mr. Wilkins would withdraw if final official results proved his would be the only race in a run-off June 14.

In the First District Commissioner race, J. E. Cobb held a majority of 32 over his opponents; Cobb had 834, J. P. Bean 479, and W. G. Shaw 323. There was a bare possibility that final returns might point to a run-off in this race, but it was considered improbable.

In the unopposed races, Fred Allen of Calera polled 1,133 for the Senate, W. G. Culp had 1,601 for Sheriff, and A. J. Davis had 1,376 for Commissioner of the Second District.

The largest total vote polled in any one race was in that for Tax Collector, which drew 1,650.

Following are itemized unofficial returns in the several races:

BYRD ATTACKS F. D. R.'s PUMP PRIMING PLAN

New York, May 1. — Sen. Byrd (D., Va.), compared President Roosevelt's proposed five billion dollar spending-lending program Sunday to a gasoline-flooded automobile.

"When an automobile is primed too much, gasoline is wasted and the machine will not run", he said. "It occurs to me that we have choked recovery by too much priming already".

His remarks were contained in a memorandum distributed by the American Defense Society, Inc.

CLIFFORD MANNING THROWS FULL SUPPORT TO ROCKETT

Youngest Republican Candidate Cheerfully Submits To Majority Of Republicans

In a statement issued by Clifford M. Manning Tuesday night, the youngest candidate on the Republican ticket said: "I am deeply grateful to the voters who saw fit to support me in the primary, and am glad that I can conscientiously commend my successful opponent, Mr. Dewey Rockett, to the electorate in November. I am going to work now for a solid Republican front in the general election. We have out a fine ticket—one which we can all support with zeal and sincerity, and I appeal to all Republicans to line up now and get ready for battle. I am at your service any time I can be of assistance."

Mr. Manning has manifested a manly spirit and loyal attitude in the above statement, a position which is most admirable in politics. There is a future for a young man of such fortitude and party loyalty.

UNDERWENT OPERATION LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Bonnie Hand, nee Miss Pearl Hughes, was carried to Birmingham last Saturday night and underwent an operation at Highland Avenue Baptist Hospital. Mrs. Hand is reported to be doing nicely.

WORD FROM SAM MIMS

I want to thank my friends for their support in the election. I take my defeat like a man, and my support goes to my opponent, Mr. Dewey Rockett.

I am anxious to see our entire ticket elected this fall. I am just as much a Republican as ever, and will continue to work for the interest of our party. I had some friends who did not stand by me in the election, but voted for what they thought was for the best interest of the party. This being your wish, I am with you, and am, as ever before, your friend.—Sam F. Mims.

JIM FARLEY COMES TO TOWN

When Big Jim Farley, chief spoilsman and racketeer of the New Deal, delivered an address in Montgomery Thursday night he laid aside the Big Stick and spoke softly and sweetly. In fact, if we did not already know Big Jim, his ways and wiles, we would have found ourselves looking to see if he had not sprouted wings. His address is merely another confirmation of the old proverb about "how sweet are the uses of adversity". The New Deal has run on the rocks, and so we find Farley laying aside his swashbuckling role and talking in a gentle, friendly fashion. His talk will deceive no one who knows Farley, the fairest flower of New York state politics, the greatest modern exponent of government by coercion and pillage. Jim was merely using good diplomacy, and trimming his sails to meet the need of the hour.

Mr. Farley accused the wicked Republicans of trying to buy the coming congressional elections. He said nothing, of course, about the billions in public slush funds that the Democrats have had the use of. Farley himself is a past master at the art of shaking down federal employees and private corporations for campaign donations; but of course he said nothing about that. All indications point to Republican victories in the coming elections for congress; so Mr. Farley resorted to tactics as old as the history of politics, and cried "steal" as a pre-election explanation of what he expects is coming.

Another amusing utterance of the Democratic chieftain was his promise of "no rewards and no penalties" from the administration in the coming election. This statement can be taken with more than a grain of salt. One of the outstanding features of New Deal diplomacy has been the savage manner in which it has punished, or sought to ponish, all who have been guilty of any breach of party regularity, who have dared disagree with the man in the White House or his Grand Vizier, Big Jim. This policy of reprsals has failed to go over in a big way; in fact it has been resented by the public, who have never looked with favor on White House meddling in local elections. If what Mr. Farley says is true, and the old policy of penalties for dissenters has been abandoned, we may be sure that this has been done out of political expediency rather than principles. In fact, if the New Deal should again gain the upper hand, we doubt very much, judging from past performances, whether Mr. Farley's promise on this score would be worth much.

Another statement from Chairman Farley that sounded well in the Deep South was his declaration that he favors a Democrat of any stripe to a Republican. Notice, please, that he did not say he prefers any kind of Democrat to a radical independent or a renegade Republican who has left his party fold. Chairman Farley dared not go so far as to say that, because it obviously would not have squared with the truth. Take Nebraska, for example, where Senator Norris, once a Republican, later turned radical independent, had the support of Roosevelt, Farley, and the New Deal machine, running as an independent, against the regular Democratic nominee. This is by no means the only case where the New Deal has supported mavericks and renegades, provided they were radical enough, red enough in their political professions, against the regular Democratic party ticket. Big Jim skipped all reference to this sort of thing in his speech at Montgomery of course; it would not have sounded as well in the Deep South as in Nebraska, Wisconsin, or North Dakota.

The truth of the matter is that Mr. Farley's sweet talk is merely further evidence that he and Mr. Roosevelt and the whole New Deal outfit are in a bad fix, and growing worse, and they realize it is time to start talking sweet. Defeat on court-packing, on the reorganization bill, on the wages-and-hours bill, have brought the Roosevelt prestige to a low ebb. Failure of his fight against independent business, and the business "recession" that has resulted from New Deal bungling, have all contributed to a chastened spirit on the part of the New Dealers.

On top of all this the radical LaFollette has announced the formation of a third party, the only effect of which will be to weaken the Democrats. LaFollette has supported most New Deal measures, but finally even he became disgusted, and formed a party of his own. Every vote polled by this new "Progressive" ticket will cut into the New Deal strength by splitting off its radical "left wing". In the past two presidential elections, the radical forces of the nation have been united under the Democratic banner. In the future, these forces will be split between Democrats and the new LaFollette party, with the split increasing the already bright prospect of Republican victory.

No wonder Big Jim talked sweetly to the democracy of Alabama assembled at Montgomery. He realized that he is going to need the electoral votes of Dixie as never before, two years hence.

ED EDWARDS BUILT CEMENT ROCKING CHAIR

A rocking chair is the latest addition of Ed Edwards to his list of cement contrivances. He recently built one of these for Mrs. Clara Mullins, and might take orders for such from other people. Mr. Edwards says that these chairs are most appropriate for lawns, cement porches, and for cemeteries.

If you don't want a rocking chair, Mr. Edwards might be able to build you a bird bath or lawn bench, or what have you.

YELLOW FRONT HAD FINE DAY LAST SATURDAY

Mr. Blockketter, manager of Yellow Front Store, reports that he had a nice business last Saturday,—in fact, the best he has had since the store was put up in Clanton some years ago.

The success of the week end was attributed to the specials offered in the advertising of the store. On account of running out of one item last Saturday — lard — the Yellow Front Store is extending the same special price for this week end.

Turn to the Yellow Front's adv. this week and read about their many specials for this week end.

Rev. Oscar Davis Selected Pastor

Is Graduating With Honors At The Louisville Seminary This Week

At conference last Sunday, presided over by Prof. Luther E. Little, the matter of selection of a pastor to succeed Dr. S. J. Ezell resulted in the naming of Rev. Oscar A. Davis, who filled the pulpit here Sunday and Sunday night, April 24th. Included in the call was the name of Mrs. Davis, to have charge of the women's activities and other contingent auxiliaries of the church and associational functions.

Oscar A. Davis is a native of Winston County, near Haleyville. He grew up on a farm of that county, one of a large family, and was forced to acquire his college and seminary education by means of his own efforts. He graduated from Howard College with high honors in 1935; during his college career he pastored a church at Holt, Ala.

Upon entering the seminary at Louisville, Rev. Davis became pastor of a church in Indiana, where he served for about a year, taking up full time work at Sanders, Ky. He has been preaching for twelve years, and has met with much success and complete satisfaction wherever he has pastored or preached. His record at the seminary has been very outstanding, receiving his Master's degree on May 3rd; is one of a very small number of seminary graduates who has taken both Greek and Hebrew and has made such high grades on all subjects as to be exempt on all final examinations.

Mrs. Davis, nee Miss Eunice Long, is well known to the women and young people of both Unity and Chilton associations. Before her marriage to Rev. Davis last June, she was engaged in W. M. U. field work, and has done institute training for five years; was "Scholarship Daughter" of W. M. U. at Howard College for three years, and two years at the W. M. U. training school. She won all the honors that Howard had to bestow, and her record at the training school was no less brilliant.

The pulpit committee, consisting of Luther E. Little, J. Renfroe Mullins, J. Watts Moore, O. M. Webb, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, and Mrs. Grady Heflin, has already dispatched the information to Rev. and Mrs. Davis, and it is expected that their acceptance will be forthcoming. They will likely be on the scene and take charge of the work here about May 15th.

CASH STORE NO. 2 WILL BE REMODELED THROUGHOUT

Plans are under way to thoroughly and completely remodel the No. 2 division of Clanton Cash Store, according to Mr. Obie Deloach and Mr. Tom Taylor, the owners.

This work will be all finished during the next two weeks, and the store will be formally opened, with its inside all new and rearranged. Further announcement will be made later as to the opening days and the attractions offered.

Killed Six Moccasins In One Pile

Last Friday Mr. Will Burks of Clanton Route 3 heard his little dogs barking down in the pasture. A continuation of same caused him to go down there and investigate, which resulted in his finding six large copper-belly moccasins, all in a pile, in a small marshy place in his pasture. Mr. Burks took a hoe and killed the reptiles, the shortest of which was three feet long; they were as large as a man's arm.

This report was given The Banner by Mr. W. J. Best, who wanted proper credit accorded the little dogs. Mr. Best also wishes the warning sent out to others—especially children—to be careful when prowling around in the marshy places. Such snakes, when they bite a person, are very poisonous and dangerous.

KIWANIS CLUB IS TO OBSERVE MOTHERS DAY IN REGULAR MEET

A special program in honor of "Mother" will be given at the regular meeting of Clanton Kiwanis Club on Thursday night of this week. All members are urged to bring their mother, or someone's mother as their guest. Mr. John C. Page has arranged a splendid program; and all are urged to attend.

R. I. VARDEN WANTS PLACE TO MOVE TO

Mr. R. I. Varden, of Clanton Route 5, Pinedale community, sends word to The Union-Banner by Mr. J. C. Wilson that he must have some place to move to. The people where he is want possession of the house. Mr. Varden is an invalid; he is in position to pay reasonable rent. Anyone having a place to rent Mr. Varden will confer a great favor on him by letting him know about it, says Mr. Wilson.

"HOW WILL TWENTY FIND US FIXED FOR LIFE?"

Below is an article written voluntarily by a 4-H Club member:

Will twenty find us a grouchy, slouchy, go-lucky kind of a person, or will it find us neat, pleasant, cheerful, cooperative persons?

If we expect to be respected in this world we must first respect other people. We should be willing to cooperate in everything that is brought up. As for club work, we should always try to find something to do for our club. When we respect our club we are respecting our government. Some may say: How and why do we do that? Because our government spends thousands of dollars each year for the experiment station to study the things that are most needed on the farms and in the homes.

If a boy and girl get married and the boy can't plow and can't work for a living, then he can't expect his wife to cook very much food, even if she is a perfect cook, because the boy hasn't put anything at the home for the girl to cook. To change that around—to say that the boy has all kinds of food at home, but the girl cook—well, a poor farmer boy can't afford to hire a cook. In order to learn the different methods of doing things the 4-H Club teaches us, we must take active parts in the clubs. We learn how to keep correct records on what we do so we can tell if we are making or losing money on our projects.

The girls are taught to sew, to cook, to arrange the dishes on the table so it will be neat and attractive; to have a well set table adds 25 per cent to the appetite. So, girls and boys, let us learn the correct way to do things while we are yet young. Let's don't wait until we are 30 years old before we find our bank roll is becoming low because we have been losing money for about 10 years. That is too late to do anything about it. So let's learn to keep an accurate rcord of what we do. Let us not fail to become 4-H Club members.

Now, being a member of any organization doesn't mean that we are going to get one thing out of it if we don't put something into it. If we attend every meeting and sit and talk to our desk partner, we don't get anything out of it nor let our desk partner get anything out of it. In that respect we would have been better off over in the corn field throwing rocks at a toad frog in a well, because our desk partners might have gotten some good thoughts from the discussion.

I and the 4-H leaders wish there were enough who wanted a club that they would have to hold four or five meetings a day, so let's become club members and learn to cooperate, to be a good sport and be attentive at every meeting. If you go to a meeting of any organization and do not pay close attention, you never know what is said or done. You are bound to lose some interesting point that would be of great value to you some day. If you fail to hear any part of a speech you will never hear that speech again, word for word, so attend every meeting and listen to every word that is said by the speaker.

4-H Club work furnishes plenty of sports and plenty of knowledge for every boy an dgirl over 10 years old, so don't fail to become a member and do everything you can to help your club. Above all things, cooperate with the other club members in everything that is brought up.—(Signed) L. Z. Dickey.

NEW SALEM

The memorial services were held at New Salem last Sunday. A large crowd attended the services. We had a nice program, after which Bro. Carroll delivered a wonderful sermon.

At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was spread.

In the afternoon we had some fine singing, with Mr. Dock Harris acting as chairman. The directors were as follows: O. L. Devaughn, Arch Glasscock, E. L. Glasscock, Marion Mims, Morris Mims, P. M. Cleckler, Dave Melton, another Mr. Melton whose name we were unable to get, Howard Maddox, Hilda Smith, the Collins sisters of Birmingham; a solo by Mr. Percy Pitts; there were some quartets arranged by Mr. Devaughn; and there was one director's name whom we failed to get.

The pianists were Mrs. Giula Murrah, Mr. Will Culp, and Mrs. Edna Harris. We were sorry that Prof. Ralph D. Grant could not be with us, on account of the death of his mother.

We thank everyone who helped to make the day a success.—Eason Maddox.

PROVIDENCE

A cemetery working at this place is set for May 12th. Please don't forget the date, as there is much work to be done. We are getting ready for our homecoming day, which will be on May 15. The committee will have the program ready for print next week.

Everybody come to the cemetery, and help make the job light. — W. F. Thompson.

BETHSALEM

We had a nice crowd out to Sunday school last Sunday, but all were not present. Let me say to all of you who did not attend to come and help us—we need you, and you need us.

Next Sunday is Mothers Day, and we want all the mathers in reach of Bethsalem church to be sure and come. We want to see how many mothers we can get to come to our services. We hope to have preaching by Bro. L. M. Gray after Sunday school. Now, all of you mothers who rtad this and have your membership here, or ever did, won't you make a special effort to come and worship with us Sunday?

Don't forget to pray for our church. We need your prayers and presence.

Our B. T. U. is not what it should be, so be sure and come and join our B. T. U. and help us. The program for last Sunday night was a good one for all of us to think about—"Being Christian In Our Homes". We hope everyone read that program.

So, come on and let's make our services better and better every Sunday that the Lord let's us live.—A worker, Mrs. C. L. Wilkins.

Lesson for May 8

CO-OPERATING IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:30-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—For he that is not against us is on our part.—Mark 9:40.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When We Want to Be First.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Not in Our Class.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working with Others for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Co-operating in Service.

That there is strength in united and co-operative effort is a truth so obvious that in the affairs of the home and of the office we would not attempt to make progress with "a house divided against itself." But with strange and destructive inconsistency some who are engaged in the propagation of the Christian faith, and often the very folk who speak much of love and fellowship and sacrificial service, fight one another with cunning and often bitterness of spirit, and all in the name of Christ whom they profess to serve.

No one who is awake to the real issue involved would ask any true believer to co-operate in Christian work with those who, while holding the name and outward symbols of the followers of Christ, deny His deity and His Word. But surely there is need for loving co-operation between all those who truly love the Lord, who believe in Him and in His Word.

I. A Dispute by the Way (vv. 30-34).

Jesus had taken His disciples from the Mount of Transfiguration by secluded roads through Galilee so that He might instruct them in the all-important truths regarding His death and resurrection. One could hardly conceive of a more propitious arrangement for their growth both in knowledge and grace. Did they profit by it? No; they not only did not understand what He told them but they used their time to dispute "among themselves who should be the greatest" (v. 34).

Possibly James, Peter, and John were a bit puffed up by their experience on the Mount, or perhaps the others were jealous because Jesus had taken them with Him. Or perchance it was just another unprovoked expression of the sinful pride that is so close to the surface of the human heart and mind.

II. An Example of Humility (vv. 35-37).

"True greatness consists not in attaining the first place in the notice and praise of the world, not in being served by many, but in being willing to stoop down to a humble place, not for the sake of self-effacement, not in timid diffidence, but in order to serve others for the sake of Christ" (Erdman).

Note carefully that it is the receiving of a little one in the name of Christ that brings to us the glory of His presence with us. Every deed of kindness and love is commendable and has its own reward, but there is a vast difference between it and humble service in the name and for the glory of Christ.

III. A Lesson in Co-operation (vv. 38-41).

John, quick to apprehend spiritual truth, sees in the teaching of Christ concerning the little child the condemnation of something he had done. " 'If indeed it be true that to receive a child, an ordinary everyday child, is to receive Christ, and to receive God,' said John within himself, 'what did I do when I forbade that man who in the Name was casting out a demon?' Verily, the light had broken in upon him."

The man who casts out demons, or who gives the disciple of Jesus a cup of water, in His name—that is with true faith in Christ, and in His power, and for His glory—must be a believer. He may not belong to our group or circle, he may not speak our language, he may not use our methods, but if he is serving Christ we should not forbid him or speak evil of him. God has at times called a man to witness for Him, who has done so in a manner distasteful to others, and these in turn have aligned themselves against him and hindered his full usefulness in the gospel. One of the great evangelists of the last generation used methods which shocked many church folk. They stood against him, and yet that man was used to win hosts of business and professional men that the church had scarcely touched, into earnest Christian testimony and service which continues to this day. You and I may not like one another's appearance, or voice, or methods, but let us love and cooperate with one another for Christ's sake!

The Word of God

The word of God will stand a thousand readings; and he who has gone over it most frequently is the surest of finding new wonders there.—J. Hamilton.

Good Intentions

Good intentions are at least the seed of good actions.—Sir William Temple.

Even as Christ

True forgiveness is a very strong virtue.

He leaves to mourn his loss: five children, three girls and two boys; five sisters and two brothers; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Cleckler; and a host of friends and relatives.

MRS. L. T. GRANT BURIED AT CHESTNUT CREEK MONDAY

On last Sunday morning at 1:30 the death angel visited the home of one of Chilton County's oldest and most prominent families, Mr. L. T. Grant, and wafted the spirit of his devoted wife, Zoada, to the great beyond.

Mrs. Grant was 61 years of age on December 22, last. She leaves to mourn her loss: a devoted husband, Luther Thomas Grant; 12 children, Lee J., Iry L., Ralph D., Lewis D., Mrs. N. J. Jones, Mrs. Addie Cantrell, Mrs. N. A. Smith, Mrs. J. Lawton McDowell, Mrs. N. Gresham Smith, Mrs. R. B. Johnson, Mrs. John Messer, and Mrs. Hubert Messer; 18 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren; one sister, Mrs. Sid D. Deloach; and a large host of friends.

Mrs. Grant was taken ill about a month ago with light heart attacks, which continued to grow in severity until her death. No effort was spared to alleviate her suffering, but all to no avail.

She was a devoted wife, a kind and loving mother, and a faithful friend to her church and community. Her life radiated with cheer and good will.

Zoada Kelley was born in Coosa County, December 22, 1876, and was married to Luther Thomas Grant on November 20, 1890, Rev. J. D. Hughes reading the vows. To this union were born 12 children, all of whom are still living.

Mother Grant joined the Olive Branch Baptist church in Coosa County in 1891, transferring her membership to Chestnut Creek shortly after the turn of the century.

Mother Grant's life was devoted to supporting all those agencies which reflect Christian character. Her tender and sympathetic smile, and her willing hand will be sorely missed in her home and community.

Funeral services were held at Chestnut Creek Baptist church last Monday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. J. D. Hughes conducting the service, assisted by the pastor, Rev. M. I. McLeod.

The active pallbearers were sons-in-law: Gresham Smith, Lawton McDowell, N. A. Smith, N. J. Jones, Robert B. Johnson, John Messer, and Hubert Messer. Spigener was in charge.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Wild Ducks Expensive

Wild duck at $57 a plate is expensive, but that is what each of 23 Texas citizens recently paid for dinners of wild duck, dove, and plover. Their meals were obtained at an inn near Fort Worth, operated by one Jack Hornor, who is now serving a 13-month term in Leavenworth for his part in the law violations. Evidence leading to the conviction of Hornor and the other defendants was gathered by agents of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey. The original cost of each dinner was $1.25, but costs and fines assessed against the 23 diners totaled $1,315.

Bass Leaps Into Boat

Otis Robertson and James Wilson, 13-year-old 4-H club members of Macon County, were paddling a boat around on a lake the morning of April 23. Suddenly a 6-pound large mouth bass leaped from the water and landed in the boat! The incident occurred on Lake Corona, 10 miles above Tuskegee, and is vouched for by H. C. Arant, assistant county agent in charge fo 4-H club work.

Birds Not Protected

The only birds not protected by law in Alabama are: English (house) sparrow, Cooper's (chicken) hawks, sharp shinned hawks, blue darters, the great horned owl, crows, starlings, and buzzards. All other species of the falcon family, including the osprey and eagle, are protected at all times. This information was furnished by the Conservation Department of the Ornithological Club of Harvard College, which is conducting a study of the hawk and owl situation in the United States.

We're Home-bodies, too, NEIGHBOR

Sitting home at night, you've probably heard the neighborly whistle of our locomotives.

Next time you hear that sound, we hope it will be a reminder that we are home-folks, too . . . sharing in community responsibilities . . . making a definite contribution to the comfort and security you enjoy when you step inside your own front door.

From wherever they are produced, we help bring your home-building materials to you . . . lumber, stone, cement, brick, steel. Chances are, we brought many of the things you use inside your home as well . . . furniture, fixtures, heating equipment, even your foodstuffs. Last year we hauled around six million tons of material largely used in construction and home furnishing.

Thus we have been a helpful partner in developing the communities we serve . . . carrying nearly fifty million tons of freight last year at an average cost of less than a cent per ton for each mile hauled. That's why we're home-folks, too . . . why we hope to deserve your continued friendship and patronage.

Hear the actual sound of The Pan-American. Tune in WSM 650 kilocycles, 5:08 P.M. every week day.

TEACHING COMMISSION PROMOTES ETHICS

Montgomery, April 30. — According to the April issue of the A. E. A. bulletin, Alabama is one of only five states that have provided special authority for the investigation of the professional conduct of teachers by a commission composed of members of the profession.

"This commission is composed of four recognized leaders appointed to overlapping terms by the president of the Alabama Education Association", so the bulletin points out. "It sponsors instruction in ethics for teachers in training institutions, through local associations, and through periodic inquiry into violations of a general Code of Ethics adopted by the Association which is identical with the code adopted by the National Education Association".

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

LIVESTOCK SUGGESTIONS OFFERED ALABAMA FARMERS

Auburn, May 2. — What kind of livestock should each Alabama farmer produce?

Answering this question, F. W. Burns, livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Service, says "there is no such thing as a best kind of livestock for all farmers under all conditions," and then suggests:

1. Select the kind of livestock well suited to the farm. Large farms having ample pasture may be suited to the production of beef cattle, while a small farm may only be able to carry a few milk cows and chickens.

2. Select the breed of livestock you like. A good rule is to select a breed common in the community. This will enable the exchanging of surplus breeding stock with neighbors. Aothtr advantage is that farmers from other sections are more liable to come into a community where several herds are available to select their animals.

3. The beginner should select well developed, healthy, grade females nad pure bred sires, because the initial expense is much less and the resulting offspring is entirely satisfactory to suit most demands. Some of the most successful herds and flocks in Alabama have been established in this way.

4. Select your livestock and stick to it. The most successful livestock producers have been in the business a great number of years. They stick to one breed and constantly strive to improve it.

ALABAMA IS GROWING CRIMSON CLOVER SEED

Auburn, May 2. — Crimson clover is becoming more popular in Alabama, especially in the northern part of the state, where framers are this year producing large quantities of seed for planting purposes.

"Save all the crimson clover seed possible", is the timely advice being offered Alabama farmers by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, in expressing belief that there will be a good demand for the seed this fall.

The seed may be saved with mowing machines, home made hand or horse-drawn strippers, he says, in advising that plans for making the strippers may be obtained from county agents.

Many farmers in the northern part of the state are trying to sow their entire farms in crimson clover for temporary grazing and soil conservation during the winter, and soil building in the spring, he reports.

ISABELLA HIGH TO PRESENT "OH, DOCTOR"

The graduating class of Isabella High School will present "Oh, Doctor", a 3-act comedy, on Friday night, May 13, at 8 o'clock, in the school auditorium. When a medical and a veterinarian try to heal a fellow who isn't even sick, thtre is sure to be some fun. Be sure that you see this two hours of fun. Admission, 10c and 20c.

Despite production of the largest cotton crop on record, the growers' income in the 1937 calendar year amounetd to only $863,970,000, or $41,000,000 less than in the previous year. Of the 1937 income, cotton fiber paid $734,194,000 to the growers, ond cotton seed $129,776,000.

Feritlizer tag sales in Alabama are about 25 per cent lower this year than they were to the same date last year, but are considerably higher than they were to the same date in 1936.

With a membership of 82,302 boys and girls, Alabama is leading all other states in the nation in 4-H club enrollment, announces T. A. Sims, state 4-H club leader.

That Alabama home demonstration club women are active in church work is indicated by the fact that Alabama is leading Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia in a church improvement contest being sponsored in these states by a leading farm magazine, announces Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent, Auburn.

One of the best ways to take advantage of the provisions of the AAA farm program for soil building is by planting summer legumes, such as cowpeas, velvet beans, soy beans, and crotalaria.

MATERNAL MORTALITY

Montgomery, May 2. — Calling attention to the fact that diseases associated with childbirth were responsible for 421 deaths in Alabama in 1936, Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer today urged people in all parts of the state to consider the problem of maternal mortality on Mother's Day, which will be observed in all parts of the country on Sunday, May 8.

"Alabama mothers who sacrificed their lives in giving birth to children outnumbered all those in this state who died from typhoid fever by more than five to one", he said. "Nearly one-tenth as many Alabamians lost their lives in that way as succumbed to heart disease, the largest single cause of death".

Dr. Baker estimated that, in the Unietd States as a whole, approximately 15,000 women die every year from causes associated with childbirth, and referred to a widely held belief among medical men that two-thirds of these deaths could be prevented by proper medical care before, during, and after the birth of a child.

AAA ENCOURAGES FARMERS TO PLANT FOREST TREES

Auburn, May 2. — An interesting feature of the 1938 AAA program is the very generous payment offered for planting or caring for forest trees on crop land, reports Lyle Brown, extension forester.

"The payment for planting an acre of pines or other acceptable species is $7.50, with $3.00 per acre paid for caring for trees set on crop land since January 1, 1934", he says.

"In view of the fact that it will cost the farmer only about half of the payment price for securing and setting these trees, this phase of the program should be very attractive. Also, upkeep costs will be low as compared to the payment for this practice and a substantial cash profit should be realized there.

"Trees recommended for planting are principally the pines, white and red oaks, ash, poplar, hickory, cedar, bois d' arc, black locust, basswood, catalpa, and mulberry. Specifications for planting in the 1938-1939 planting season will likely be 1,000 trees per acre for all except the longleaf and slash pines, which may be set 680 per acre with a 65 per cent survival of all species required.

"There is much land on farms cropped at least once since 1930 which is totally unfit for growing cultivated crops and which can very profitably be set to trees.

"There should be a plentiful supply of trees this year with production in the state nursery considerably increased. All who are interested should see their county agents and make applications for trees to be delivered this fall."

ALABAMA NEEDS TO PRODUCE MORE HORSES AND MULES

Auburn, May 2. — Alabama does not raise enough mules and horses to supply its own needs, says R. S. Sugg, extension livestock specialist.

"It is estimated that it takes from 30,000 to 35,000 mules and horses annually to provide replacements, and 90 to 95 per cent of this number are purchased from outside the state each year, at a cost of $3,500,000 to $4,000,000", he says.

"Crop production costs can be lowered by $3,500,000 to $4,000,000 annually by having more brood mares on the farm and raising our own replacements of work stock.

"With land available for pastures and feed production, horses and mules can be grown and maintained at low cost. Brood mares cost less than mules, and if properly handled can be used for work and at the same time produce a colt each year.

"Pastures, both permanent and temporary, are the key to success in raising horses and mules. Mares must be fe dliberally while at work, on a well balanced ration, as they are doing double duty. One to one and one-half pounds of grain and about one pound of good quality leafy hay should be fed for each 100 pounds live weight when the mare is doing hard, regular work. A grain mixture of equal parts of corn and oats, with good legume hay, free from dust and dirt, is satisfactory. If oats are not available, and grass hay must be used, a mixture of 90 per cent corn and 10 per cent cotton seed meal can be used."

"BLESSED BE THE TIE" SING METHODISTS, UNITED AT LAST

Leaders Of Three Divisions Join Hands To Symbolize Unification

The unification of Methodism was symbolized in an historic moment Saturday night when heads of the three branches stood with clasped hands, singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" and saying in unison the benediction over the crowd at Municipal Auditorium in Birmingham.

The stormy protests of a small faction in the day's debate were engulfed in the scene of triumphant good will on the stage of Municipal auditorium Saturday night, at the general conference of the Southern church.

Bishop John M. Moore, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, clasped hands with Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of Washington, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church (Northern), and Dr. J. H. Straughn, president of the Methodist Protestant Church. They had just spoken as fraternal messengers from these two branches.

"We will proclaim to the world that we have at last achieved the largest reunion of Christ's people that has ever been accomplished in the long history of Christendom!" declared Bishop Hughes.

Dr. Straughn proclaimed: "Even though we have desired to remain apart, there is confronting us an unconvinced world, and together we shall be able to do that which separated we could not do at all. Perhaps the one convincing gesture we may make is that Christians, called Methodists, can live together."

The solemnnity of the occasion was not without flashes of humor. Dr. Straughn, referring to the fact that the Methodist Protestants would be so greatly outnumbered, declared:

"Indeed, in the land of giants, we are but grasshoppers!"

Bishop Hughes declared that "the man in my church who does not believe in your sportsmanship is as lonesome as was Crusoe before Friday arrived! We will turn over to predominantly Southern jurisdiction 600,000 or nearly 150,000 more members than were enrolled in the Church, South, after the separation in 1864. You will be fair with them, as we will be fair with your 150,000 who come to our jurisdictions".

After the joint benediction by the three men, the crowd of Methodists surged to the stage to gather around them and rejoice.

"It is just like a revival!" someone in the crowd murmured.

As the long debate neared its end Saturday, one of the most ardent pleas for unification was made by Harry Denman of Birmingham, lay leader of the North Alabama Conference. An ovation followed him all the way back to his chair, when he finished speaking.

WHAT'S THE HURRY?

Secretary Hull takes a strange stand in his letter to 15 New England congressmen, denying their request for delay in the negotiation of reciprocity treaties until the cost of production in the countries negotiated with, of articles competing with American manufacture, can be ascertained. Even the Democrats in recent years have conceded that equalization of the cost of production is a proper function of the tariff, and Hull's contention that the negotiations take sufficient account of this factor is not well sustained.

The New Englanders merely insist that it is better to be safe than sorry and cannot see why, when negotiations with the United Kingdom have already been delayed some four years, a further delay would ruin the program. Hull's assertion that the American trade policy must be fixed immediately for all time to come will strike most people, in fact, as rather arrogant. No administration is going to be able to make a trade policy that will necessarily stand for all time. Conditions will change, and policies with them.—Los Angeles Times.

REAL TAX PROBLEM

The real taxation problem is not that taxes are not systemized or coordinated, but that they are simply too high. There is nothing basically wrong with the tax systems employed in this country, though they could of course be moderated in some phases and strengthened in others. What is principally wrong is that all branches of government have been provided with, or have discovered for themselves, new ways to spend money, and thus need more revenue to maintain their various agencies and discharge their newly acquired functions. Taxes have mounted higher and higher because of the assumption by the government of these additional functions, and will mount higher in the future because expenditures are outrunning existing revenues. Consequently, the point of attack for those who seek relief from the tax burden is against the steady growth of government paternalism.—The Texas Weekly.

PRAISE FROM WRONG SOURCE

Often a cause can be embarrassed by the character of some of its supporters and the ludicrous arguments which are brought forward to support such cause. The recent case of Earl Browder, communist leader and candidate for president in 1936, is in point.

Congressman Knutson, of Minnesota, charged on the floor of the House of Representatives that Browder "had been calling on congressmen and urging them to vote for passage of the president's reorganization plan". Browder denied the charge, and said:

"Congressman Knutson is not really worried about myself, my party, or even the reorganization bill, except as he can deliver a blow against the president, the New Deal, and every move to curb the power of Wall Street. I have not been urging congress to vote for or against any particular form of reorganization.

"But I am glad of every opportunity to urge progressive congressmen and everybody else to unite against the reactionary drive headed by William Randolph Hearst and the Liberty League which is trying to match the fascist drive on Barcelona by their own march on Washington. I and all communists throw in our lot wholeheartedly against Wall Street and fascism."

Mr. Browder's wild charges smell so soapboxy that they do not even require an answer. But support and word of cheer coming from the center of the communist movement, which would Russianize the United States, bringing firing squads and rifle purges "in the interest of democracy" must be a trifle embarrassing to the engineers of the New Deal who certainly cannot relish this kind of support—especially in view of the fact that some of the leaders of the new dispensation have frequently been accused in the past of wooing the favor of the red-tinged disciples of Eastern European totalitarianism.

IN ILLINOIS

The Illinois primary, early in April, drew nationwide attention principally because it was the first one of the season. It is admitted that the New Deal was not a clear cut issue in the Democratic conttst. Yet the results are not without some significance. Federal District Attorney Igoe was an appointee of the president, and a close friend of the Democratic Ntaional Chairman. His opponent, Congressman Lucas, didn't criticize the New Deal in the campaign, but it is significant that he has never been counted as a New Deal congressman. He took occasion in the House, when the senatorial battle was hot, to make a speech criticizing the president's Supreme Court plan. He voted against the administration-backed wage and hour bill. When the reorganization bill was up he was not in Washington, but back in Illinois battling his opponents. Yet it is a fact that he paid no attention to the frantic appeals sent out asking absent Democratic congressmen to come back and support the reorganization bill.

There will be other primaries later on which will better show the trend of Democratic thought for and against the New Deal. But it may be said in passing that the result in Illinois was not one which would bring much aid or comfort to the disciples of the new dispensation.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Observers of international politics both in Europe and America were inclined to view the Easter season this year with satisfaction. They were of the opinion that the political skies had cleared considerably during the past few months. Not so long ago war seemed to be imminent. The Germans had taken over Austria and were said to be ready for a march further east. The civil war in Spain was waxing hotter and hotter and it seemed that Italy, France, and even Great Britain might be involved. France was threatened with financial collapse and civil strife, while the feeling between Mussolini and the rulers of England was daily becoming more bitter and a war over Mediterranean interests seemed inevitable.

But now the picture has changed considerably. France has abandoned the Popular Front which gave the balance of power to the communists, and has chosen a dictator whose word will be law for three or four months at least, with the probability that the financial problems of the country will be worked out. The Spanish civil war seems to be coming to a close as a local conflict and without involving any of the European powers. It is evident that Great Britain will not be too badly displeased by the probable victory of Franco. The Spanish rebel dictator will, of course, be friendly to Mussolini and Hitler, but he is going to need a lot of financing if he succeeds in taking over the country, and here is where John Bull comes in. Even the French are becoming reconciled to a rebel victory, so that the only country really put out about it is Soviet Russia, and the Red Bear is so busy with his home problems that he has little time for adventure elsewhere.

The British disturbance over Spain is lightened also by the recent treaty which was made between Italy and Great Britain. This agreement creates a much better feeling between the two countries, as it will solve the North African and Mediterranean problems if its provisions are carried out, and will do more than any one thing to remove one of the chief dangers of war in Europe. Moreover, this agreement will probably be followed by another between France and Italy and perhaps finally by one to keep the peace in which Italy, Great Britain, France and German will take part. There are still some hurdles to be overcome, but the prospects for peace seem much brighter than they did a few weeks ago.

In the Orient the situation seems to be changing. The Chinese are putting up an unexpectedly strong resistance against the Japs. Now that she is clearing up her European problems, Great Britain will have more time to spend on the situation in the Orient. This means that Japan will not have things as much her own way as formerly, and may be more willing to conclude a reasonable treaty of peace with China.

Here some of the fine points of British diplomacy may be seen. John Bull is vitally concerned in the Chinese situation. He was handicapped because of the misunderstanding with Italy. With the Mediterranean friction removed, he can "go after" Japan with stronger measures. The much criticized strategy of Mr. Chamberlain is now developing according to plan. If he puts it over he will make his critics in Great Britain look foolish. There is of course a lot of work yet to be done, but the European situation seems temporarily to have taken a change for the better. Let's hope the economic situation in the United States does the same thing.

"A BEDSIDE ADDRESS"

It was a changed president who addressed congress and the voters recently. Message and speech seemed half hearted in comparison with the exuberant boyishness, the gay scornfulness, the supreme confidence of happier days. Here was, indeed, a defeated leader—defeated not by votes, but by events, by the inexorable consequences of his own acts. The atmosphere was bedside far more than fireside.

It would be cruel to criticize in detail the economics of such a personal defense. Through it all, Mr. Roosevelt acted like a man who had refused to face the truth until very recently, and had still to come to grips with reality. The superficiality of the argument went far to confirm the view that Mr. Roosevelt has never thoroughly mastered any of the fundamental issues over which he has skimmed so blithely.

Of the measures discussed, it is sufficient to say that they revealed no slightest appreciation of what must be done to free business and make it possible for pump priming to accomplish any permanent improvement. Tribute was paid to the profit motive, but there was no indication in the list of remedies in the president's mind that he had accepted any of the vital items on the list of constructive remedies.

It is not unfair to say that the president has actually ceased to lead save in the one field in which he apparently still feels at home, that is to say, spending. The speed with which he insisted that the billions must be poured out brought a painful reminder of the political exigencies which confront the president in the primaries now close at hand and in the elections of next November. The presentation of the spending program was novel and skillful from a political point of view. But how this vast inflation was to effect any lasting betterment there was not even an effort to suggest.—New York Herald-Tribune.

THEN AND NOW

In an address on Jefferson's birthday, Democratic Chairman Farley called the great author of the Declaration of Independence a New Dealer. This of course is his right. There is nobody who can tell us just what Thomas Jefferson would say about present conditions, and he is not here to defend himself.

It is only fair to say, however, that if Mr. Jefferson was a New Dealer, then New Dealism in his day must have meant something different than it does now. Mr. Jefferson might be called a revolutionist, but he was revolting not against individualism in the United States, but against the regimenting of the individual by the monarchists of Europe. Mr. Jefferson believed in giving the greatest possible freedom of action to the individual. He said that the least governed people are the best governed. He even told us that if agriculture had to be regulated from Washington the people would soon be wanting bread. That would sound like a strange sort of New Deal doctrine for today.

Mr. Farley was quite right in saying that the people of the United States want nothing of the fascism or the communism which are sweeping Europe, two creeds in which the executive department swallows almost everything—including of course the legislative and judicial departments, and some if not all of the rights of property. Our people oppose, among other things, Old World regimentation. Witness the defeat of the Supreme Court and reorganization bills because it was feared they would give too much power to the executive.

MERELY CALLING NAMES

Mr. Roosevelt's plaint that recovery is being halted by a small group of selfish men is not to be taken seriously. It is only a repetition of his previous ranting against princes of privilege and economic royalists. The same sad tune is always sung by bogus messiahs when their promises to their dupes fail to come off.

For five long years Mr. Roosevelt has had almost absolute power in his hands. The business of the country has been completely at his mercy. There was no person between the Atlantic and Pacific big enough to defy him and get away with it, and no combination of persons. He had congress in one pocket to begin with, and he applied himself ardently to getting the courts into the other.

If he actually had any plan for preventing recurrent depressions, there was certainly plenty of chance for him to apply it. Business men would have been just as glad to hear it as working men. But he had no such plan. All he had was a series of all promises. He spent billions of dollars, and got precisely nowhere. The natural recovery from the old depression was hardly under way before his gang of quacks in Washington plunged us into a new one.

The parallel with the case of that other counterfeit, Mr. Stalin, will not escape the judicious. Stalin, too, had a five-year plan, and all sorts of miracles were to have come out of it. When, at its completion, the Russian workers were still slaving away at 35 cents a day, it became necessary to find goats. They were discovered in Stalin's critics, and of late he has been entertaining the world by liquidating them.—Baltimore Evening Sun.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently the writer read an interesting editorial on "life and college education" in the Chicago Tribune. The editorial referred to a message delivered by Chicago business men to a large group of high school seniors and high school graduates who were in attendance at a career conference. The business men said that college education is not essential to employment or a successful business career. The writer in his travels in all sections of America finds many college graduates who are out of employment.

Recently the Bob Jones College, located at Cleveland, Tenn., of which institution I happen to be the founder, made a careful survey of the record and standing of all of the graduates of the college. Every graduate has a good position. They are all successful in their chosen fields and professions. There is not a whiskey drinker in the crowd. Those who are married have happy homes. There have been no divorces. Most of the graduates are active Christian workers. "Will you guarantee me a position, if I will come to the Bob Jones College and take a business course?" a young lady wrote the president of the college some time ago. "As far as we know, every young man and young woman who has taken a business course in our college has a position, but we do not guarantee any student a position. We do guarantee every student that he will be able to hold a position if he will do the work we require and live according to the moral and spiritual standards of the college", the president replied. I have found that most of the college graduates whom I have met that were out of employment had had employment, but they did not have the moral character and stamina to hold a position.

I have said on my platforms that it is my honest opinion that a large percentage of young people who have gone to college would have been better off if they had remained at home and had gone to work at something. Unless the atmosphere of a college or university is conducive toward the building of character, the institution is a handicap to young people. A recent investigation of a Western university showed that 60 per cent of the young ladies "drink when they go out on dates". Any man who has a Christian slant on life is bound to realize that the welfare of the youth of this nation is imperiled by the "moral drift" in many of our colleges and universities. The parents of this country owe it to their children to protect them by seeing to it that their children, especially for the first two years of college, are in a real Christian environment. You will note that I say "real Christian environment". I know some church schools in America where there are immoral practices, such as drinking and sensuality. A church school, when it becomes un-Christian, is the most dangerous place on earth in which to educate young people. There are good orthodox colleges in America. There are a few educational institutions left, institutions that put first things first. If parents will select such schools in which to educate their children, they will have sons and daughters who will find positions when they get through college, and they will have the moral character to hold tht positions when they get them.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Manufacturing and Industries Committee of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce met last week in the offices of the State Chamber in Montgomery and discussed and laid plans for further industrial development in Alabama.

The committee members expressed themselves as believing that Alabama's greatest period of industrial development was just ahead.

G. Arthur Cook, of Montgomery, chairman, told the committee that the State Chamber of Commerce was in contact with a number of important industries considering locations in this state, and that representatives of a number of these had been in the state in the last 60 days viewing various localities. He predicted definite announcement by several of these in the very near future.

The committee erpressed the opinion that Alabama's greatest need was for additional industries to furnish payrolls and offer employment to a larger number of citizens now engaged unprofitably in agriculture.

It was pointed out that there are 32 of Alabama's 67 counties with fewer than 500 industrial workers, and with extremely low per capita income.

At the same time a miscellaneous shower is being held for Mrs. Clyde Liveoak, formerly Myrtice Melton, and we are taking this opportunity to invite all her friends and come and bring a present.—Oma Lee Pounds, reporter.

CORRECTION IN WHITWORTH DEATH NOTICE LAST WEEK

In last week's Union-Banner a notice was published about the death of W. J. Whitworth; the age of Mr. Whitworth was printed as 74 years. It should have been 59 years. Also, the deceased is survived by three sons instead of two, as reported in last week's article.

The Union-Banner regrets this error, and extends apologies to the Whitworth family and others who might be interested.

Phone Lineman Fatally Shock'd

Two Others Burned While At Work Atop Poles Near Deatsville Monday

Robert D. Martin was electrocuted and two other Southern Bell Telephone Company linemen were burned Monday about noon as they repaired some lines about eight miles from Deatsville.

The two injured are W. C. Arnold, six burns about the body; J. B. Spradlin, burns about the side and arm. Both were treated in Clanton and later removed to their respective boarding houses. Their physician said their burns were dangerous.

Monday night Spradlin was able to converse, and said:

"I don't know what caused the accident. Some think a transmission line sagged, touched a telephone line and formed an arc. Seems like a fair guess to me.

"However, I didn't notice any wires falling. I didn't notice anything. It just hoppened. I was on one pole, Arnold on another, and Martin on a third.

"I think Martin died instantly. We were all fastened to our poles with safety belts, and so none of us fell. I don't know exactly what happened after the juice got us. Later they lowered Martin away. But by that time they were taking us on to Clanton to be treated.

"Me? I feel all right."

The body of Martin, who was about 38, was turned over to T. F. Leak and Son; funeral plans were to be announced. The dead man was formerly of Lincoln, in Calhoun County, near which his parents reside.

REPUBLICANS HELD COUNTY CONV'TION

Various Committees and Delegates Selected Saturday At Party Meeting

The Republican county delegated convention was held at the courthouse in Clanton last Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, as per official call and announcement. There were 32 delegates present out of the 40 chosen from the various precincts, together with a number of visitors from over the county.

Significant in the convention was the presence of a number of young Republicans serving for their first time as delegates, or as for that matter, their first time to serve in any prominent capacity for their party. This is indeed encouraging, and is a healthy indication that the Republican organization is functioning in the right direction. It is fine for our young people to take an active interest in the political activities of the county.

Mr. H A. Harris was elected chairman of the meeting and Mr. Clifford M. Manning was elected secretary. After a few inspiring speeches by some delegates and visitors, the chairman appointed a committee to submit a tentative list of delegates to the State and District conventions; on this committee the chairman named: W. H. Gillespie, J. E. Harrell and C. B. Huett. The selection of State and district delegates resulted as follows:

State Convention

Delegates—C. C. Conway, Dewey Hughes, H. A. Harris, Ralph D. Grant, W. T. Bean, J. N. Dennis, Sam F. Mims, J. O. Middleton, W. H. Gillespie and J. Z. Mims. Alterpates—Z. J. Jones, B. L. Cobb, Akins Collins, P. M. Martin, W. A. Calloway, C. H. Giles, E. H. Freeman, L. C. Keen, W. G. Shaw and M. L. Driver.

District Convention

Delegates — Clifford M. Manning, Johnnie Easterling, H. H. Armstrong, G. W. Murrah, E. E. Edwards, C. B. Huett, Archie H. Glasscock, Ernest Grant, Ellis Ellison, and Paul C. Mims. Alternates—Ed Littlejohn, Sam Pate, Ben Vines, J. E. Harrell, J. P. Bean, C. L. Wilkins, Ben Glasscock, Wade Harris, Eugene Mullins and Archie Jones.

The State Convention meets in Birmingham on June 22nd; the District Convention meets in Clanton on June 21st, subject to a call by Mr. N. C. Fuller, of Centreville, the District chairman.

After a few resolutions and business matters of minor importance, the meeting stood adjourned.

CANDIDATES WARNED TO LIST ALL EXPENSES

Reminders to all candidates in the recent election to file an account of all expenses incurred since they filed their last reports under the corrupt practice act, are issued. Such action must be taken within 15 days of the election. The law applies to all candidates in the race, whether or not they won election.

A sworn account attested by a notary must be filed in the office of the probate judge in order to comply with the law.

Wednesday, May 18, is the last day.

MONTGOMERY RADIO STATION NOW COMES IN STRONGER

Station WSFA, Montgomery, is now on the air with increased power, so that Clanton people are able to get much better reception from their sets than heretofore. This a recent improvement of WSFA.

On another page of The Union-Banner will be found an advertisement explaining all about the improved service of this station. Read what is said about it. WSFA on your dial is No. 1410, and you are invited to tune in any time any day between 6:30 a. m. and 11 p. m.

Sparks Will Not Contest Race With Maj. Dixon

Announcement was made Tuesday by Judge Chauncey Sparks, of Eufaula, second man in the Democratic race for Governor, that he would not contest Maj. Frank Dixon, of Birmingham in a second primary. The final count gave Dixon 152,612; Sparks 74,752; Goode 70,23666; Riddle 15,349; Arnold 1,216.

ENCOURAGING TO THE LAME G. O. P.

The survey conducted last week by the Institute of Public Opinion and published Sunday in The Birmingham News, says that if the elections were held today the Republicans would gain a minimum of 80 seats and a maximum of 110 in Congress. Such gains would still leave the Democrats with a good-sized majority, but the Republicans would become a sharply revitalized opposition, stronger than at any time since Roosevelt took office in 1933.

This will likely serve as encouraging news to some down-in-the-mouth Republicans who sometimes feel that there is no hope.

PLANS NOW UNDER WAY FOR RENEWING CASH STORE NO. 2

Mr. Obie Deloach announces that satisfactory progress is being made toward renewing and re-decorating Clanton Cash Store No. 2, announcement of which was made in The Union-Banner last week. When finished, this will be a most commodious place as well as attractive to look at. A big formal opening day will be held soon after everything is put in readiness, and the trading public will be the beneficiaries of treat after treat at that opening event. Watch for the full announcement.

$12.00 FOR ONE VOTE

The Evergreen Courant says that in the election held there recently there was one absentee vote cast, and it cost the county $12 to have that one vote counted: Six persons served as election officers to count the absentee returns at $2.00 each. This particular reference was made by The Courant to the Lister Hill election on April 26th, however, it introduces a subject which might stand a little public discussion. The question of absentee ballots, or rather the law, its use and abuse in Alabama, is called to task in counties where there is only one political party as well as where there are two strong parties.

In Chilton County last Tuesday there were cast in the Republican primary a total of 57 absentee ballots. In the Democratic primary, where the contest got rather hot, there were nearly 500 absentees cast. There were nearly ten Democratic absentees to one Republican absentee, while the entire county average was much less than two to one. Why the overwhelming Democratic average of absentees?

In some instances objection is raised when the absentee totals are announced about noon on election day, that the absentee results have a bearing on that element of voters who just vote on what they think will be the winning side. Then again some groups of managers have been charged with withholding the absentee returns until all the rest of the returns are in from the various precincts, so that it can be determined just how many bogus absentee votes are needed to carry the election one way or the other. At what hour were the Republican absentee returns announced last week? When the Democratic? The misuses of the absentee election law are as legion as they are corrupt, probably the worst abuse being the buying and selling of them.

It is a fact of common knowledge that our elections have become more of a barter with lots of voters than of a conscientious selection of the best men or the best parties to be entrusted with our governments. This being a fact, what can we expect from our governments other than inefficiency, corruption, graft, and unbearable taxation? Selling our votes for a few dollars or giving them in return for a little measly job with the county or state, and closing our eyes to the best interest of our governments in the future has already got everything in a heck of a mess, and we may expect nothing other than to reap iniquity so long as we sow to the wind. The God of the Universe still lives, and He will continue to mete out His wrath upon an unruly people.

Prominent Young Lady Buried Last Sunday

Nurse In County Health Department Succumbed To Illness

Miss Irene Smitherman, age 28 years, died at a Birmingham hospital last Saturday morning at 1:00 o'clock, following an illness of about three weeks. The body was brought to Clanton by Spigener and prepared by Spigener Funeral Home. Services were held Sunday at 2:30 p. m., at Plantersville Baptist church, Revs. G. G. Williams and J. M. Truett of Clanton and Rev. Nail of Plantersville officiating; Spigener directing.

Pallbearers were: Dr. J. M. Kimmey of Anniston, Prof. J. A. Peterson of Jemison, Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Senator Earle Thomas and Prof. Luther E. Little of Clanton, Dr. H. M. Nix of Maplesville, Messrs. Terry, O'Neal and Fuller of Plantersville.

Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smitherman, of Plantersville, surviving are three sisters—Mrs. J. P. Montgomery of Starkville, Miss., Mrs. Eugene Fuller of Tuscaloosa, and Miss Dorothy Smitherman of Plantersville; four brothers — Windall and Robert Howard Smitherman, of Plantersville, Emmett of Starkville, Miss., and Woodfin, of Auburn.

Miss Irene Smitherman had been county health nurse here for the past three years, and had endeared herself to a broad circle of friends and acquaintances. She was a member of Clanton Pilot Club, and members of the club acted as flower girls at the funeral.

Coming as she did from a fine and highly respected family, Miss Smitherman had a bright and promising future before her, but by the will of her Maker, death has cut short a life of usefulness and service. Such things are beyond the apprehension of mankind, but the promise is that we will understand it all bye and bye.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Askins, of Montgomery, spent the week end with relatives in Clanton. Mrs. Askins was formerly Miss Ruby Eiland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eiland of Montgomery.

FIRED FOR VOTING "WRONG"

Last Wednesday morning, May 4th, a certain young man in the southwestern part of Chilton County reported for his work with the road gang, only to be informed by the overseer that he was fired. Upon asking the reason, the young man was told, "You voted Republican yesterday, and for that reason you are fired."

The young man had been warned before hand that if he did not vote "right" he would have no job. This particular young man cared more for his political character and his rights as a citizen than he did for his job. Hurrah for such a valiant spirit!

CULP STORE BROKEN INTO LAST SATURDAY NIGHT

The store belonging to Mr. Joe Culp, across the creek toward Samaria, was entered by burglars Saturday night, and a quantity of dry goods and groceries taken. Stuff known to have been taken included a shirt, some sox, soap and washing powder, tobacco, flour, lard, and a small amount of change left in a box in a show case.

The burglars entered by taking an augur and boring several holes in a wooden door so that a large plug of the door sould be removed. Entrance was made through the hole in the door and the goods handed out through the hole.

The officers are on a hot track of the ones who did the mischief.

CHILTON TIGERS ARE CHAMPIONS

Local High School Baseball Won Eight Straight For Central Ala. Title

Coach J. B. Varnell's Chilton County High "Tigers" last week cinched the Central Alabama High School Baseball championship. The boys have won their eight league games, beating Montevallo, Columbiana, Centreville, and West Blocton high school two games each. Plantersville was in the league, but withdrew.

After winning their first three starts the boys began to smell a championship, and bore down to take the remaining five in rapid fire order.

On April 25 the Tigers beat West Blocton 10 to 6. Guy McKee led the Tiger batters, getting two of their nine hits, while Bill Armstrong was holding the visitors to three hits, and striking out 12.

April 27, the Tigers had their closest call, but nosed out Montevallo 8 to 7, getting 10 hits, while Bucky Armstrong, Sides and Baggett were giving up nine; Baggett received credit for this victory. Bucky led Chilton with three hits.

On April 29, Centreville fell by a count of 8 to 2, with Bucky Armstrong, Bill Armstrong and Ted Reynolds getting two each of Chilton's 10 safeties.

On May 4, Centreville again fell, this time by a score of 10 to 3. Bill Armstrong gave up six hits, while Reynolds and Locklear were leading Chilton's 11-hit barrage with two each.

The closing game for the league series was on May 6, when the boys went to Montevallo and beat the latter team 6 to 1, behind the 7-hit pitching of Lefty Baggett. The Tigers gathered 10 hits, including one which Stella Williamson drove into the juniper bushes in the next lot for a home run. Guy McKee had a field day in this game also, driving out four hits in as many times up.

The Tigers have played two non-league games, one of which they won from Jemison, and the other they lost to Hicks Memorial of Autaugaville.

They have a few more on tap, but they will not figure in the league results — that championship is in the bag. Two of these remaining games will be played on the local field. On May 18 Autaugaville will come here, and on the 20th Plantersville will be the visitors.

This year's Tiger team has developed fast. At the beginning of the season no one expected a championship team, but the boys have made those hits count, and the pitching has been good. Hail to our champions!

CLANTON JOINS IN AIR MAIL WEEK

Brief Program Will Be Held Sunday At Gragg Field At 2:00 O'clock

Citizens of Clanton and Chilton County will join Alabama and the nation next Sunday, May 15th, and through the following Saturday, the 21st, for the annual celebration of Air Mail Week, with an air mail pick-up service for Clanton, arranged by Postmaster H. F. Downs in cooperation with the Alabama Aviation Commission.

There will be pick-up services here on May 15th and Thursday, the 19th, the latter day being the anniversary date of air mail inauguration. Mr. Downs says that there will probably be other pick-up dates during the week. Dr. V. J. Gragg and other local pilots will co-operate with the post office department and aviation commission in the venture. Mr. Downs urges that the people of Clanton assist in putting over the air mail from Clanton. If you have a letter to mail those days to some far-off point, please mark it air mail and double the amount of postage. We would like to make as good showing as possible for Clanton on its first air mail venture. The pick-up will be made at Gragg Field about 2:30 o'clock on the above dates.

The celebration of Air Mail Week is being sponsord in Alabama by the post office department working 27 leading Alabama cities and their post offices.

Clanton Postmaster H. F. Downs said the primary object of the celebration is to make the people of Alabama "air mail conscious", and it is planned for every person in Alabama to mail at least one air mail letter during the week's celebration.

Cooperating in efforts to make the campaign a success will be the Alabama Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Aviation Commission of Alabama, and the Alabama National Guard.

The three control points will be Birmingham, Montgomery, and Mobile, regular air mail stops in Alabama; 19 feeder lines will be run into the feeder points—10 to Montgomery, six to Birmingham, and three to Mobile.

Asa Rountree, state aviation official, states that schedules have been arranged so that planes will converge at the various points at approximately the same time. The planes will arrive in Birmingham and Mobile at 5 p.m., and at Montgomery at 3 p.m.

There are 33 towns on the various schedules, including points of departure, intermediate stops and control points. At each point there will be a concentration of mail from the various surrounding districts.

The 106th Observation Squadron of the Alabama National Guard and 30 pilots and plane owners throughout the state have been invited to participate.

A brief program will be held at the airport just prior to the first pick-up of air mail from Clanton. Beginning at 2:00 o'clock, a few brief speeches will be made, as follows:

1. "The development of mail service in Chilton County", by Hon. Luther E. Little, County Superintendent of Education.
2. "The value of mail service to Chilton County", by Hon. J. Lee Smith, Probate Judge.
3. "The value of mail service to the City of Clanton", by Hon. C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.
4. Presentation of commissions and delivery of mail to pilots, by Hosea F. Downs, Postmaster.

Annual Fourth Sunday Singing At Providence

The 39th annual session of the Salem May Singing will be held at Providence on Sunday, May 22nd. The public is cordially invited to attend. Bring your dinner and new song books, and enjoy the day together, meeting old acquaintances and singing praises to God.—R. Robinson, Chairman.

Rev. Oscar A. Davis Accepts Baptist Call

A letter from Rev. Oscar A. Davis to Mr. J. Watts Moore, chairman of the Board of Deacons of Clanton Baptist Church, states that the former accepts the call as pastor of Clanton Baptist church. Rev. and Mrs. Davis will be in Clanton in time for services Sunday, May 22nd, which time they will take up their duties with the church.

Rev. Davis preached at the church Sunday, April 17th, and returned to Louisville to receive his degree. Sunday, April 24th, the pulpit was filled by Rev. Roscoe Griffin of Howard College. Last Sunday another Howard student, Rev. Thomas Chandler, preached both morning and evening. There will be no preaching at the Baptist church next Sunday or Sunday night. On Sunday May 22nd, Dr. J. O. Colley, of Troy, will preach the commencement sermon at the Methodist church, and there will be no preaching service at the Baptist church.

The night service of May 22nd will be a union service and a special program will be arranged welcoming Rev. and Mrs. Davis to their work in Clanton. A complete announcement of this program will be made later.

J. DEWEY ROCKETT THANKS SUPPORTERS

To The Voters of Chilton County:

I want to thank the voters of the county for the vote they gave me in the primary election. To receive such a vote of confidence certainly is a big inducement for a person to bend every effort to make himself worthy of such a vote.

To those who voted against me, I want to say that I consider this your privilege and no one should be criticized for the way he cast his ballot as this is and should remain a free and untrammeled right.

As I promised you before the primary, you will find me on my tiptoes from now until election day next November, and I intend to do this.

I want all my friends and supporters to discuss the campaign with me as all of you have good ideas and as I said before, we have a hard fight to win, but if we will go to it in absolute cooperation and without any ill will toward anyone, we can win.

Thanking you again for your vote, I am,

Yours Very Truly,
J. DEWEY ROCKETT.

"TRIPLED CORN YIELD WITH ARCADIAN"

"I will make three times the amount of corn on my soda plot that I will make on my no-soda area. On Cotton I make now from ¾ to 1 bale per acre, which is much better than before I started using Arcadian. I consider it a very fine soda."

H. P. Farmer, Collinsville, Ala.

"ARCADIAN PAID EXTRA PROFITS"

"I used 200 pounds of Arcadian on my corn this year and profits from my soda enabled me to buy a radio and a 10-volume encyclopedia with the addition of one volume per year for the next ten years."

Dr. T. H. Ingram, Opelika, Ala.

"YIELD AT LEAST ONE THIRD MORE"

"I fertilized my corn with Arcadian Nitrate, and I figure it increased the yield at least a third more. I like Arcadian Nitrate of Soda fine and expect to continue using it."

M.C. Jones Writes From Tuscaloosa Hospital

Editor Union-Banner:

This is to comply with my agreement to give you whatever news I could gather about the veterans facility here at Tuscaloosa.

Dr. DuBose of Maplesville was a visitor to the veterans hospital May 4. Mr. E. E. McCary of Maplesville was admitted to the hospital May 4; he was accompanied by his wife and Dr. DuBose. Mr. McCary's exact condition was not learned; however, it does not seem to be serious.

Mr. Frank Lockhart was discharged from the hospital May 4, after several weeks in the institution.

Mr. H. B. Esco, the well known hamburger man of Clanton, was admitted to the hospital May 2. His condition is not considered serious and he is doing quite nicely. Mrs. Esco was a visitor to her husband May 4. Mrs. J. Andrew Jones accompanied Mrs. Esco to the Veterans Hopital. This was the first time Mrs. Jones had ever visited the hospital, and she was much pleased with what she saw.

Mr. Graham Milstead was at the facility for examination May 3.

This seems to be all the news I can gather at this time, but will try to have something for you each week as long as I am here. I have not been admitted to the hospital yet, and may not be for some time, as I have been advised by the facility that, after having been examined, my condition is not such as to be in need of hospitalization at this time.

Thanking you for many past favors, I am, yours truly,—M. C. Jones.

SEVEN MILLION BIBLES DISTRIBUTED IN YEAR

An annual circulation, throughout the world, of seven million copies of the Scriptures, for the 13th successive year, was reported by the American Bible Society at its 122nd annual meeting held on Thursday, May 12, at its headquarters, the Bible House, 57th Street and Park Avenue, New York City. During 1937, the circulation, totaling 7,328,550 copies of Bibles Testaments, and portions of the Bible was in 197 languages and dialects, including different systems for the blind. Scriptures in 97 languages were circulated in the United States and in 149 languages by the Society's 12 foreign agencies.

The year 1937 was the first full year in which the Bible Society operated from its new Bible House. As anticipated, the new location brought the Society's work to the attention of many who were unaware of the important place the Society occupies in the life of the nation and the world. Among the gains noted was an increase in the number of volumes distributed in the United States.

China, in spite of the fact that for half the year was torn by war, for the 6ht successive year reported a distribution of more whole Bibles than ever in her history.

A 10 per cent increase, totaling the largest circulation of Scriptures in its history of 41 years, was reported by the Brazil agency of the Society.

Lesson for May 15

TESTING DISCIPLESHIP BY SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come . . . and follow me.—Mark 10:21.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A Young Man Jesus Loved.
JUNIOR TOPIC — What a Rich Man Needed.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Proving Our Loyalty to Christ by Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Marks of Discipleship.

"The almighty dollar"—how triumphantly it rules in the affairs of nations and of the men who make up nations. The world's measure of success is how much one can "make," and "no questions asked" as to how one made it, if he but avoid the legal pitfalls that may land him in jail. Even that is no longer a disgrace, for men who have defrauded others serve a term in jail to "pay their debt to society," and then return without shame to enjoy the use of their ill-gotten gains. Skill in the arts and sciences is rated according to its financial value. Brains and beauty are commodities of the market place. Liquor is permitted to destroy our people because it provides a profit.

The minds of men and women of decency and intelligence revolt at the whole situation. Let us encourage them as we improve the opportunity today to present God's moral and spiritual standards.

I. Self Before God (vv. 17-22).

The rich young ruler had many advantages and virtues. He was young, life was before him, vivid was his imagination, strong was his body. He was educated, and developed intelligence is an honor to any man. He had position, which can always be used for good. He had money, which when rightly gained and used, is a powerful and honorable possession. Above all, he had the priceless jewel of good character. Notice that he had kept the commandments, that he came before the Lord in humility seeking truth, and that Jesus "loved him" (v. 21).

Almost any father would be proud to own this young man as a son. Many churches would welcome him to membership and even to leadership. Jesus dealt with him honestly, however, and went to the root of his difficulty which was that he loved himself and his possessions more than he loved God. Therefore he must give them up before he could really follow Jesus. Sad indeed was his refusal. He came running (v. 17), but he went away sorrowful (v. 22).

What stands between you and a full surrender to Christ? Face it honestly. Be thankful if your pastor or a friend frankly points it out. Shun those who would "pat you on the back" and assure you that all is well. A cancer will kill unless it is cut out. The surgeon's knife may hurt, but it is an instrument of good.

Note that the statement of Jesus in verse 18 is not a denial of His deity, but a definite claim that He is God. He says in effect, "If you call me good you must recognize that I am God."

II. God Before Self (vv. 21-27).

The disciples, who evidently shared the common opinion that money could do almost anything, were surprised to hear that riches were really a hindrance to spirituality, because (v. 24) of the tendency of men to trust in their wealth and forget their need of God.

Jesus does not leave the rich man without hope, for he goes on to say that what is impossible for men and even for the rich man himself is entirely possible with God.

Two things need emphasis in this connection. First, let those of us who have little of this world's goods be thankful that we have, at least, been delivered from this temptation. It may well be an expression of God's love and grace toward us. Second, let us thank God for every man of wealth who has given himself and what he has into God's hands.

III. The Last Before the First (vv. 28-31).

The ways of God are confusing and humbling to the flesh. The way up in spiritual things is to go down (Mark 9:35). Those who are first in the eyes of men are often last in God's sight. Others whom men count as least stand highest in God's sight because they are faithful and true to Him. The world looks at the missionary of the cross and says, "He has sacrificed everything," and knows nothing of the "hundredfold" reward even in this life, "and in the world to come, eternal life" (v. 30).

Man's Humble Origin

And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and the man became a living soul.—Gen. 2:7.

The Live Minister

The minister who gets out of touch with men will soon forget to speak their language.

What to Pray For

What should we pray for? Everything which we need.

Mr. Morris Nunn spent the week end in Prattville.

RETURN FROM STATE OF WASHINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Plier a few days ago returned from a trip to Spokane, Washington, where Mr. Plier went to see about a big construction job he is to begin working on for the government in September. Mr. and Mrs. Plier made the trip up through California and the Pacific coast and returned via an inland route.

Mrs. Plier told The Union-Banner of a number of interesting experiences they had, among them being seeing a movie star in Hollywood, witnessing some major landslides in the mountains of Oregon, and on their return they came through an enormous amount of snow. They wrecked their car while traveling on a frozen road, delayed them some and which ran up quite a little repair bill.

We tried to prevail on Mrs. Plier to write us the complete story of their trip, and we are hoping she will consent to do it. Such a story would make very interesting reading for our subscribers.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY DINNER

Last Sunday the nieces of Mrs. E. D. Hammonds took her by surprise when about 10 o'clock they began to arrive with their baskets filled with good things to eat, to celebrate her 58th birthday.

In the afternoon the women went to the cemetery and carried flowers to the graves of their mothers. When they returned, the men served them ice cream and lemonade. About 4:30 o'clock all left to go home, wishing for her many more happy birthdays.

He Looks Rough

"THE lineman looks rough. That's because he has a rough job—it must be done in all kinds of weather. Even though he looks rough, he does his job smoothly and efficiently, regardless of weather.

"Because he does his job well, dependable electric service is yours, and because of him and others like him whom we are proud to call our employees, weather disturbances impair your electric service infrequently and you enjoy a swift restoration of it after serious storms.

"Linemen go out on midnight trouble calls in the worst of storms. That is a part of their job. They are proud of their record of keeping your cheap electric service dependable.

"When the wind shrieks, and the lightning flashes, and the thunder rumbles, you take it as a matter of course (as you should), that if trouble occurs, the lineman and his buddies will be 'Johnny on the spot' to keep cheap electricity always 'Reddy' for you."

METHODIST NOTES

Dear Children:

When writing to you last week about our daily vacation Bible school which begins Monday morning, May 23, at 8 o'clock, I forgot to sign my name. We are anxious for all of you to come. You have no idea what a wonderful time we have planned for you. We are going to have the story hour, a period for handicraft, a time for song, and a time to play, as well as study. Will write you more next week.

FAIRVIEW HOME DEMONSTRATION

The Fairview Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Mrs. Lela Culp on March 15. There were four visitors and nine members present. A splendid demonstration was given by the leaders on baking powder biscuits and cheese biscuits. The leaders also served each lady a slice of ham to eat with the biscuits.

The members were sorry that Miss Grace was unable to attend the meeting, since the demonstration was a success.

The club will meet next time on April 19, at the home of Mrs. Ola Edwards.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Gen. Saturnio Cedillo, the feudal chieftain of the province of San Luis Potosi, is moving out of the ruck as the No. 1 menace to the Cardenas administration, according to all one can glean at this crossroads.

Gen. Cedillo No. 1 Menace to Cardenas

A friend of this writer, an oil operator who has reasons for remaining anonymous, brings news from Mexico that the big, swarthy Mestizo, the most conspicuous hold-out on the state agrarian program, is gaining a following in a long sweep of Mexican provinces, and, in this view, dissident factions will swarm in behind him, if there is a further drift toward civil war.

He has the friendship and backing of various foreign interests, according to my informant, and around his huge, stolid, grim person there is gathering powerful opposition to the government.

He is a self-made fighting man who served his apprenticeship in various minor work-outs, before the big upheaval of 1910, when old Porfirio Diaz was overthrown. He joined this revolt, but called himself a "conservative revolutionist."

He never liquidated his personal army, now numbering about 10,000, and his autocratic state is firmly encysted in the constitutional commonwealth. When he resigned as secretary of agriculture on August 16, of last year, it was reported that he had made a truce with President Cardenas, but that talk seems to have been premature.

He Keeps Up Own Army of 10,000 Men

He was a member of the National Revolutionary party committee of 1934, which drafted Mexico's six-year agrarian and economic plan, but has been a determined and effective opponent of such fixings, particularly the Cardenas agrarian plan.

My friend picks Senors Cardenas and Cedillo as the two strong men of Mexico, one being driven left and the other right by the present social tension.

THE Swiss bell-ringers, the one-armed trap-drummer, the circus ring-master and all such supposedly busy and preoccupied people are just snoozing along compared to Dr. Morris Fishbein, goal-keeper against medical quacks, heresies, panaceas, innovations, utopias and unsanctioned experiments.

Tap-Drummer Has Nothing on Fishbein

When Dr. James H. Means, retiring president of the American College of Physicians, drops a few provocative words about self-imposed medical reform, they scarcely hit a press wire before Dr. Fishbein swings a devastating counter-assertion.

Dr. Fishbein is elaborately equipped and organized for timely blasts against any encroachment of subsidized or socialized medicine. As editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, with headquarters in Chicago, he commands a large staff of secretaries and assistant secretaries, trained like a fast ball club to field any challenge or dissent.

He is undoubtedly the most highly publicized medical man in America. Through the journal, he reaches the nation's 125,000 doctors; through Hygeia, the more popularized medical publication, he carries his message to many more thousands and is a prolific writer for national magazines.

He wolfs hundreds of exchanges and eight or ten medical books every week, lectures, speaks on the radio, reviews books, writes books and, always enjoying a fight, keeps up a fast running fight against the quacks.

Finds Time for Fights on Quacks

When he finished Rush Medical school, at the age of twenty-three, he had the choice of becoming a pathologist for the state of Indiana, or an assistant editor of the Journal of Medicine.

He chose the latter. Mrs. Fishbein, who was Anna Mantel, serves through the war with him, traveling with him and assisting him in the biggest and busiest job of medical journalism ever attempted. They have three children.

Dr. Fishbein, plump, affable, bald, and forty-eight years old, also is deep in art, music, literature, the drama, bridge, golf and public affairs, exercising a sharp critical judgment in all these fields. He is a magnificent demonstration of how a knowing doctor can build up his basal metabolisms.

C. L. WILKINS WRITES TO VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please allow me space to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County?

To you who voted for me—I am sorry you lost your vote, but will you please remember that I am your friend. I owe to you and my Lord my life. When I can serve you, don't fail to call on me. I take this means to tell you that I am the same man that I was in the beginning. I want to say that I have tried to defend you in every way possible. .

I have tried to take care of your children as well as mine. It has been said that I was running busses, probably two of them. This is a mistake. I will admit that my son, who is a man of his own, has had a school bus route, but I have not asked the board or Mr. Little for the job for him. Also, it has been said that I had a job hauling coal for the schools, and that is wrong. This same boy has hauled part of that, but he is not the only one who has hauled. What he hauled came cheaper to the county than the other man offered to haul or furnish it. Will you blame me for that? Would you ask me to turn the boy down? He asked for it; others asked, and they hauled. If you want to haul, go get your license and ask for it. Possibly you will.

I want to say that I feel like I have been some help to the taxpayers. In this same question, I think Mr. Little will tell you if you ask him. When you gave me this place, I felt that I owed you my best service. Ladies and gentlemen, I have done the best I knew how. I have tried to give you good, moral, sober teachers, and as far as possible Christian men and women. And the same kind for bus drivers. Now I am sure you think I have failed, but I have done the best I knew. If you feel that I have mistreated you, will you please forgive me? It is not my intention to harm anybody.

Now, dear friends, these are not things just said. I can say them again and I can establish them. I hope you will not feel that I am sore at you because you didn't vote for me, for I am not. I want you to feel free to meet me and talk with me about any question you wish. When we reason together, we understand.

Remember, that your wishes are my wishes, and I am still a Republican and proud of it. So I shall close, with best wishes to everybody, hoping that whoever may fill my place can do more for you than I have—build you more school houses, give you more school busses, more teachers and better ones, and that there will be no one who will falsely accuse him.—C. L. Wilkins.

A Wise Man

Ben Franklin wrote "Poor Richard's Almanac" when he was twenty-six. He preached thrift, economy, quality.

He made Poor Richard very human: he made him say the things we all know to be correct: he made him give advice worth following.

Pretty wise for a young man? If he were living in our town today you would find him shopping for his home and family from the ads in this newspaper.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

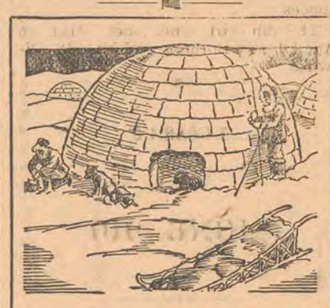
See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that will hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.



Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

What Makes a Home?

Aside from family and friends the really inviting home is made by articles of comfort and taste that create an atmosphere of coziness and charm.

Too often a home suffers because income seems insufficient to provide the needed things. Here is where the ads in this newspaper help overcome obstacles. The wide range of suggestions, with invariably low prices, are a comforting surprise to those who follow our ad pages.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Georges Bonnet, France's new foreign minister, has been a vigorous advocate of a British-French-American alliance.

French May Join Four Power Pact

He is regarded as more in accord with the Chamberlain policies than his predecessors. With the downfall of the Left government, the conclusion of an Anglo-Italian agreement and the appointment of M. Bonnet, interpreters of European politics see an advance toward a four-power pact, possibly five-power, with Poland in, and the further isolation and immobilization of Russia.

The abandonment of the French-Soviet treaty is expected to be an immediate issue in what is regarded as a sharply clarifying outline of dominant conservative policy in France and England.

M. Bonnet, shrewd, suave, dressy, is a somewhat rakish figure, with his hat usually on the back of his head, but a personage of power and dignity in the political forum. He is of the younger school of French politics, and, in that connection, one of the best Jai Alai players in France.

M. Bonnet Cuts Didos on Estate

At his country place at St. Georges de Didonne, he spends much time making incredible kangaroo leaps, playing pelota basque, as they call it there. But, in statesmanship, he is no rubber-heeled bounding basque. He is rather a wary and adroit fencer.

When he was appointed ambassador to the United States in January, 1937, he brought with him a year's supply of truffles and pate de foies gras. He had to take most of it back, however, as, in July, he was recalled to save the franc in the Chautemps cabinet.

He was supposed to have saved it, but, as usual, it didn't stay saved, and, in the turn of the Ferris wheel, which is French politics, he was down-under and up again.

He is an economist, but also a philosopher and author, in the chamber of deputies from southwest France at the age of thirty-six and a former minister of budget, pensions and finance. He budgets a few wisps of hair carefully across his bald pate and surveys the world warily through gold-rimmed spectacles.

Spotlight Now on Jap Strong Man

JAPAN'S strongly authoritarian government, with its feudal carry-over, has never fitted exactly into any of the molds of ultra-modern absolutism. The intensifying issue of fascism which may force out the present government spotlights several likely-looking "strong men" as possible successors to Premier Konoye.

The only one with apparently clearly formulated ideas, and a fluent line of totalitarian talk is War Minister General Hajimi Sugiyama.

After several years of European post-graduate studies in direct action, he returned to talk of "national renovation," "decadent parliamentarianism," "unity and discipline," and the like. More than any other leader, he employs the standard terminology of fascism—if that means anything.

Sugiyama Tells Diet to Behave

On May 27, 1937, he gave the diet quite a lacing and said that it would have to behave, or "we will dissolve it." Since he was then a member of the ruling military triumvirate, this was no casual editorial "we."

While he is fifty-eight years old, he hits big-time politics with a strong momentum, not a contender for high place until 1936, and hence not track-sore, like some of his rivals. He did not become a general until 1936, after the army revolt early in that year. He had been vice-minister of war and head of the military air force.

His heavily underslung face, resting, neckless, on a heavy torso, is asymmetrical, with one eyebrow always cocked, one side watchful and the set of a Benda mask of a dictator. He is of the army caste, graduated from the national military college. He represented Japan at the 1926 disarmament conference at Geneva, remaining in Europe for several years thereafter.

An elephant walked along a road near Rangpur, Bengal, a man in a garden shouted and made faces at it. The beast ambled into the garden, but the mahout restrained it while the mocker fled to safety. When the elephant returned along the road the same night it rushed at its tormentor's house and badly damaged it.

I look forward to renewing my acquaintance with many, and to making the acquaintance of others.—Rascoe Maddoy.

Worms Easily Detected

After the bird is cut open roundworms and tapeworms are easily detected. Roundworms are round, white, or yellowish white in color,, and vary in length from one to six inches, usually about two to four inches, and often curled up. They are found loose in the intestines of birds. Tapeworms are white, or almost colorless, and are always fastened by the head to the intestinal wall. They are flat and in sections, and can be most easily detected by splitting the intestines with a sharp knife, and washing them back and forth in warm water. If segmented threads float in the water perpendicular to the intestines, the bird has tapeworms. If the white worms sink to the bottom of the pan of water, the birds are infested with roundworms

Once the poultryman is sure his flock is wormy (and a post mortem of one bird is the surest way to tell), immediate treatment should be started to prevent the worms getting a "head-start" on cutting down production and growth. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends large individual dosings with carbon tetrachloride or the closely related drug, tetrachlorethylene, using a one-cubic centimeter dose for adult birds, as the most effective and quickest method of removing roundworms. Tetrachlorethylene is the drug used in Purina Tetsules.

Tapeworms Cut Profits

Tapeworms are spread by an intermediary host, like flies, grasshoppers, earthworms, and slugs, which start the incubation of "ripe" tapeworm segments, and then transfer the segments to the bird which eats them. Tapeworm troubles, therefore, are always closely associated with insect time and are worse in late summer, fall, and early winter. Tapeworms fasten themselves so tightly to the intestines of the birds that getting rid of them is really a difficult problem. The best known drug for combatting tapeworms is kamala. Purina Tapeworm Kernels are yellow corn-shaped kamala tablets which are easy to administer. A good flushing of all birds before they are dosed is a good practice. Kernel treatment for tapeworms should be given on a full crop. One-fourth a pound of baking soda in drinking water for 100 birds, given two days before treatment is advised.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Personal Indorsements.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—I used to be a pretty fair hand at indorsing things. But I realize now what a piker I was. I indorsed only one thing at a time.

For the present champions, I offer a suggestion. When that distinguished world traveler ("Bringing Testimonials Back Alive") and that eminent movie star, who lives in Hollywood right next to Live Reading Matter and is authoress of "Miss Colddeck Recommends," get through indorsing practically everything else, let them then club in and attain the very highest peak of indorsementology by jointly indorsing the famous society queen who has indorsed more products than they even, or anybody.

Irvin S. Cobb

Maybe it's a sign of the times that today the most fascinating literature and the most familiar names are found in the advertising sections of a magazine rather than in the table of contents.

Noted Ancestors.

ON THE little Hogg-Dickson ranch at Casa Blanca, Mexico—only 300,000 acres—I met the caporal, or head man, of the cow herd and one famous as a rifle-shot, an upstanding, clear-eyed Mexican, but, I fancied, with some faint indefinable suggestion of the Anglo-Saxon in his facial contours. However, his name, as I caught it, was pronounced "Ernesto Boo-na," which, to my alien ears, sounded Latinesque enough for all purposes.

He knew no English, yet, when I mentioned Kentucky—a thing I've been known to do before—he poured out a rippling flood of Spanish. Louis Kresdorn, the Texas-born manager, translated:

"Ernesto says he has heard of a far-away place called Kentucky. According to a legend in his family, his great-great-grandfather once lived there—was muy valiante, muy vivo, and was the nephew of an even greater Gringo warrior who drove the savages before him like tumbleweeds before a wind."

So I saw a light and I inquired how Ernesto spelled his last name—he spelled it the orthodox way. So, as members of the same stock, a pioneer ancestress of mine having married a kinsman of the great pathfinder, I held a reunion with this mighty huntsman, who is proud that he too, collaterally, is descended from Daniel Boone.

Dachshunds.

I LIKE dachshunds. They've more sense of humor than anything I ever saw that came out of Prussia. I always figured the breed was produced by crossing a rat terrier on a German compound verb, and—I still believe you could combine usefulness with their natural comedy by training them to retrieve collar buttons from under low bureaus.

I indorse the phrase of the mathematical sharp who said a dachshund was half a dog high and a dog and a half long, but I claim Captain Mike Hogg's chauffeur, Mose, coined the best description yet. When Mrs. Hogg brought home the first one Mose ever beheld, his eyes bulged out like twin push-buttons on a mahogany door-jamb.

"Lawsy, Miss Alice!" he exclaimed, "whut is this here thing?"

"It's a dog."

"Wellum," said Mose, "if you hadn't told me, I'd 'a' said it was a snake on roller skates."

Hunting in Texas.

IT WAS raining so hard even the seagulls were trying to get in the clubhouse. So the ducks went away somewhere, out of the weather. So the hunters, who were less intelligent than the ducks, came back from the blinds dripping like so many leaky hot water bottles.

After being bailed out, we sat down to vittles—nothing unusual, just the customary club dinner. All we found on the menu was beef hash, duck stew, liver and onions, country smoked sausage and homemade headcheese, also hot biscuits, corn pones and rice cakes; likewise turnip greens, rice, sweet potatoes, squash, snapbeans and eye hominy; moreover, six kinds of pickles, preserves, jellies and jams; besides stewed pears, apple pie, papershell pecans and various fruits. Then Mrs. Jacob Smothers, the club hostess, came in to say that, if anybody in the future craved anything special, she'd try to fix it up—and wondered why such of her gorged guests as weren't too far gone uttered feeble laughter.

Being now convalescent, I am able to report that Southern Texas is one part of the Union where eating is still being carried on as a regular habit.

THORSBY SECTION.

MRS. TOM LESSLEY, Manager

There will be the usual services at the Congregational church on Sunday—Sunday school at 9:45, church services at 11 o'clock, Christian Endeavor Sunday evening, community song service at 7:15, to which every one is invited.

The Baptist social will be held on Thursday afternoon of this week, in the home of Mrs. G. F. Harper with Mrs. L. C. Lowery acting as hostess. Everyone is cordially invited.

A most splendid and inspiring Mother's Day program was rendered at the Baptist church Sunday morning immediatelly after Sunday school, followed by a sermon by the pastor in keeping with Mother's Day. A large crowd was in attendance.

VOTES HELD AIM OF MOVE

The most amazing thing about this repeat spending-for-recovery program is that, assuming Mr. Roosevelt really believes, in the face of experience, that it will do all that he claims for it, he has waited seven months to put it into effect. If it will work now, it would have worked far better and more cheaply before the country's economic machinery had slowed down so nearly to a standstill, before 5,000,000 more workers had been thrown out of jobs, and before there was so great a volume of distress to be relieved. There is only one explanation possible. This new arm-shot is timed to a nicety so that its temporary effects will make votes for administration-supporting candidates for congress this fall.—Los Angeles Times.

One of the "liberal" magazines, criticizing Secretary Hull's speech before the National Press Club, says that "he was neither clear nor positive". Does anyone expect a subordinate in the present administration to be either clear or positive? Is the president, himself, either clear or positive a week or a month, in the same mind? Are things now going "the way we planned it"?—Charleston News and Courier.

Of course if criticism against the TVA gets too hot the president always will be able to give us a good answer by stating that "we planned it that way".

The trouble with motoring is that the man who drives a 90-horsepower automobile doesn't always have one-horse sense.

Canadians got out of their depression long ago. You see, they think permanent security more important than temporary cheers.—Buffalo News.

NOT THE ANSWER

The long awaited message of the president on the railroad emergency is highly disappointing. In effect the president asks congress to aid the industry by means which can hardly be efficacious in meeting the acute crisis which has developed as a result of high operating costs, and a sharp diminution of traffic.

Resumption of lending by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to enable the railroads to buy badly needed equipment and to meet their interest charges would be helpful, of course, if the reduced income from which they are suffering were the result of a temporary situation which might reasonably be expected to clear up with a fair rise in business activity.

But with one-third of the rail mileage of the country in receivership, and another third on the verge of it, something more than additional loans is obviously needed to put the industry on a sound basis. The consensus of opinion among students of transportation is that the need is, first, of diminished expenses, and, second, of increased revenue.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE DUTY OF CONGRESS

If congress should now make any large new appropriations for public work relief it should keep control of their allocation in its own hands. So doing, congress would resume its constitutional function of handling the purse strings of the nation.

As an emergency measure only, the congress, early in President Roosevelt's regime, began the practice of handing him huge works relief appropriations in lump sums that he might cut up and distribute as he thought best.

It is now full time that this practice ceased and that congress no longer abdicate its authority over the way the taxpayers' money is spent. This delegation of its powers to the president may or may not have been justified in the beginning. It no longer has any justification and its evils have long been apparent.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE GREATEST DANGER

Today about one-half of the people of the nation are getting something directly from the government. Some are in public service. Others are engaged in public works. Some get subsidies and benefits from the agricultural policies of government. Others get relief of one kind or another. All told, half the people of the nation are under some direct obligation to governmental activities or charity. Therein lies the greatest danger that the United States has faced for many a decade. If those who benefit from government take over its control to get further benefits, there is but one end—that is complete bankruptcy of the government.—Grand Rapids Herald-Review.

BALTIMORE

The program does not touch realities. Public spending never has been a substitute for the expenditures of trade and industry when trade and industry move ahead with the energy that is possible in a land which has the natural resources and the human enterprise of this country. What is necessary? It is restoration of conditions in which the enterprise of the people will be encouraged to assert itself. At this point Mr. Roosevelt makes especially sad reading.—Baltimore Sun.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

In reviewing the casualties of the present depression, the utilities and the railroads get a place in the first rank of invalids. It is generally admitted by students of economics that of these two industries could be cured, things would be looking up for the United States. With the continued threat of Uncle Sam to go further into the power producing business one way or another, no immediate help seems in store for the utilities. The railroads, however, are causing more governmental and private concern. And it is well that this is so.

It is pointed out that 100 railroads in the United States, now representing nearly a third of the railway mileage, are now in receivership. There are rumors of impending receivership which concern other roads whose names are well known to the public. The first 37 lines to report on their March business show a decrease of 80.1 per cent in the earnings, when compared with March, 1937. There is a slight grain of comfort in the fact that this is a little better showing than was made in February, when the railroads operated at an actual deficit. Still this report for March is nothing to boast about.

One noteworthy fact is that of these 100 railroads now in receivership, 61 have failed under the New Deal. This is obviously one part of the program which was not planned that way. The situation is not a very encouraging one. Still we can gather some hope from the fact that the administration, including congress as well as the executive, now has come to the realization that something will have to be done for the railroads. More people are interested in rails than the individual possessors of stocks and bonds. Life insurance companies and institutions such as colleges and universities, as well as savings banks, have invested in railway bonds. And the public generally is interested here.

There are about as many opinions as to what is the matter with the railroads and what ought to be done about it as there are individual receiverships. It is of course generally acknowledged that what the railroads need most of all is more business. Last year they were sailing along fairly well, everything considered. But the coming of the new slump has put many of them in dire straits.

Many economists maintain that rail wages are too high for the present and that there must be an agreed reduction if railroads are to get back on solid ground. They point out that rail wages are now higher than they were in the boom year of 1929 and twice as high as they were in pre-war days. But the chance for a temporary wage reduction by agreement is none too bright. Rail labor leaders hope that there will be a business revival soon, and they seem willing to gamble that it will come in time to save the railroads without wage reductions.

Taxes are another charge against railroads that seem entirely too high. This, of course, is not entirely the fault of the federal government. Local communities over the country in many instances get a large part of their revenue taxing railroads. It may easily turn out that they are killing the goose that laid the golden egg. An abandoned railroad is no great revenue producer for state or county. Competition by truck and barge lines is cited as another trouble of the railroad, and it is pointed out that in some instances taxes paid by the road are used to subsidize in one form or another, the railroad's competitors. The bill introduced in congress by Rep. Pettingill permitting railroads to give reductions for long hauls is calculated to meet in part this problem of truck and water competition.

The most definite suggestion by the president to help the railroads is to permit them to borrow $300,000,000 from the RFC to buy new equipment. This, however, is only a temporary palliative. What the roads need is to not pay more interest, but more business and less overhead.

TIME TO RUN UP THE FLAG

In spite of a feeling that defeat of the president's great spending program is impossible, Sen. Austin of Vermont says he has no doubt that the Republican party will "run up its flag in this fight". The Republican party should do precisely that. If it does anything else, regardless of present prospects of victory, it will lose the affection of those who have given it their loyalty through all these black years and it will forfeit the respect of that great body of independent voters which looks to it today to uphold the principles of economical government and sound federal financing.

Wild spendink has never been associated with Republican rule of this country. It was the Democratic Wilson—plus a war—which sent America on the road to bankruptcy. It was the Republican Harding and the Republican Coolidge who began and carried on the thankless job of reducing the public debt. It was the Republican Hoover who did his best to prevent extravagance. but could not prevail over a Democratic congress. Now again it is the Democratic Roosevelt who is giving us another bitter experience—an experience which threatens to wreck the nation's credit, which brings us within the dark shadows of inflation and which must inevitably lay upon all the people an unbearable burden of taxation.

Nor should it be taken for granted at this early date that the lending-spending and pump priming plan will be approved. We cannot believe that a majority of congress is so deaf to the warning voices of the past and so indifferent to the public welfare that it will consent to put one more mortgage on the nation's future. That the people are aroused need not be doubted. That they will make themselves heard is just as certain. When the Republicans run up that flag they will find that a large group of anxious citizens stand ready to fight under their banner.—Boston Transcript.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The International Association of Young Peoples Fellowship Clubs has recently held its Seventh Annual Convention at the Bob Jones College in Cleveland, Tenn. This young peoples movement, which had its beginning seven years ago in the Chapel of the Bob Jones College, has gone around the world. Clubs have been organized in Japan, China, India, Cuba, the British Isles, Palestine, Canada, and all sections of the United States. Rev. Clifford Lewis, a graduate of the Bob Jones College who was reared in a rural community of southeast Alabama, has been the international president ever since the organization began. At the recent convention he was elected International Executive Secretary and Evangelist Monroe Parker, Director of Religious Activities of the Bob Jones College, was elected international president The Fellowship Club movement is binding together the evangelical, orthodox, Christian young people regardless of denominational connections. There are multiplied thousands of young people who have not bowed their knees to the false god of sensuality and loose living. So many of our churches and ministers have misinterpreted what young people want. Young people want the old time religion. Many of them do not know that is what they want, but when they get a taste of it and find the satisfying power of the old Gospel and the old message, they lose their taste for worldly things.

"The things I once loved, I now hate; and the things I once hated, I now love." That is the testimony of Christian pepole. Sam Jones used to say, "If a man would act before he gets religion like he ought to act after he gets religion, he would soon have religion." That is a very practical statement, but it is very difficult to act like you have religion when you don't have it. It is like pumping water out of a dry well. Jesus said you do not put new wine in old bottles. A Christian is a new creation. Old things have passed away. All things become new. Becoming a Christian does not make an old man out of a young man or an old woman out of a young woman. But a young Christian has in his heart the same Divine life which is imparted to the heart of an old Christian. We have the treasure in earthen vessels. Naturally, we are sinners. Supernaturally, we are saints. We were born in sin. We are born into the kingdom of God. We become Christians by the power of a New Birth. "Birds of a feather flock together." One Christian naturally gravitates to another Christian. People who are so denominationally bound they are unable to have fellowship with Christians who are not affiliated with their own denomination are never spiritually-minded people. You cannot build a denominational fence around a fervent Christian soul. There are enough Christian young people in most of the communities of America to form a Fellowship Club of real spiritual leaders if they could get together. They could get together without sacrificing a single denominational principle or a single denominational conviction. We talk about making all of God's people one by organically binding them together. All Christians are made one already. We are one in Christ. It is not a matter of organization; it is a matter of life contacting life. The Bible speaks of the Body of Christ. Christ is the Head. Saved people form the body. Thank God for the grouping together in fellowship of the saints of God in many parts of the world.

S. B. WILLIAMS WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

I would like to have a small space in your paper to thank the voters for supporting Mr. C. L. Wilkins. He carried his home beat over his opponents, if we could have counted the five rejected ballots; this was on account of five voting for two all down the ticket. I am sorry these people didn't understand voting for just two out of three.

Hoping the Republicans win a great victory this fall, and trusting that the Lord will guide us for our good, I am, —S. B. Williams.

PERCY M. PITTS THANKS VOTERS

The Republicans nominated a good strong ticket for the coming general election, and I am sure our people will put up a united front this fall, which should assure the election of the Republican ticket.

Again assuring you of my appreciation, I am, gratefully yours,—Percy M. Pitts.

RURAL WOMEN PREPARE FOR CANNING SEASON

Auburn, May 9. — Canning season for Alabama's rural women is just around the corner. Some perhaps have already started by canning strawberries, dewberries, and other early ripening fruit, according to Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent.

Miss Johnston says many thousands of home demonstration club women are planning to provide their families with a varied and balanced diet next winter by canning a great variety of fruits and vegetables during the late spring, summer, and fall. Some of these many women, however, are not thinking as seriously about their gardens, the source of so many vegetables for canning, as they should.

"The home garden and the canning program should be planned together", she says, "because the garden will furnish so many vegetables during the growing season and a surplus to can for next winter".

During 1937 Alabama women and 4-H Club girls preserved 2,337,746 quarts of fruits, vegetables and meats, cured 2,176,571 pounds of meat, and dried and crystallized 222,981 pounds of fruits and vegetables. The total value of all these products was estimated at $1,756,012.92.

The value of the home gardens last year, both for use as green vegetables and for canning, is estimated to be $2,271,900.

Miss Johnston advises club women nad others to contact their home demonstration agents regarding a canning budget which gives the correct amount of food to be conserved to meet the nutritional needs of the family.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Miss Daisy Parton, state supervisor of elementary education, Montgomery, will be present to take part in the programs.

The teachers of the TVA school at Muscle Shoals, where, according to common knowledge, the best elementary work in the state is now in progress, will participate in all meetings.

The theme of the program will be "Selection and Organization of Teaching Material". The morning programs will consist of addresses and of visits to laboratory schools, either the TVA school or the campus training school, and the afternoon round table and panel discussions.

The meetings are open, without cost, to county, city superintendents and principals who cannot devote a great deal of time to this study; school board members who wish to be informed on outstanding professional problems of the schools; public school teachers, who would like to devote a week to the study of curriculum problems; all students in residence who wish to learn from specialists the objectives and accomplishments of the curriculum movement.

MY HEARTFELT THANKS

Please accept my heartfelt thanks for the splendid vote given me in my race for nomination as Tax Collector in Tuesday's primary. It is indeed gratifying to me to know that I have so many loyal friends.

No word that I might say would truly express my feelings at this time, but I could not let any time pass without sending you this brief expression of my thanks and to tell you that I shall always be grateful for your confidence as expressed by your vote.

Gratefully Yours,
TOM TAYLOR.

Mr. Sam B. Williams is in Dr. Taylor's hospital in Prattville, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis Friday afternoon, May 6. He is doing very well at present. Mr. Williams is a citizen of Enterprise community.

County Farm Agent's Notes

WALTER L. RANDOLPH RECEIVES AAA PROMOTION

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced last week the appointment of Walter L. Randolph, Auburn, AAA administrative officer in charge of Alabama, as assistant director of the Southern Region, effective May 1.

Mr. Randolph formerly held by I. W. Duggan, named director of the Southern Region several weeks ago. The Southern Region comprises Alabama, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, Liuisiana, Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas.

Named to succeed Mr. Randolph as administrative officer of the AAA in Alabama is A. W. Jones, Tuscaloosa County agent since 1933, and previous to that teacher of vocational agriculture in Marengo County.

Strip-cropping, once considered as a very awkward method of farming, is gaining in popularity with Alabama farmers as a means of conserving soil in sloping fields, say Soil Conservation Service officials.

"When the modern farmer talks of crops, he includes his timber crop", says the U. S. Forest Service. "His farm woods yield him cash income, and trees grow on the less fertile soil not needed for other crops. Trees require no fertilizer or cultivation while growing, but the sale of their products has tided many farmers over lean years".

John Brown, a farmer in Illinois, found a watermelon vine that was diferent from others in his patch. The melons also seemed to be superior to others he produced. He saved seed from this superior melon and kept propagating the variety until he has an improved melon that has been his best paying crop for many years. This is one of the many instances where a farmer himself found an improved crop that increased his and other farmers' earnings.

A prominent writer, in commenting on the TVA, says that approximately 18,000 farmers have volunteered to act as farm demonstrators in testing TVA phosphorus. The cost of manufacture, per unit of phosphorus by weight, is about the same for 63 per cent phosphate, which the TVA will probably release in the future, as for 16 per cent phosphate, all that was available in former years.

MAY 30-JUNE 4 DATES OF NATIONAL COTTON WEEK

Auburn, May 9. — Alabama farmers have been busy the last few weeks planting and cultivating their 1938 cotton crop. At the same time plans have been going forward for more than 127,000,000 American citizens to rally to the cause of cotton, the South's principal crop, during National Cotton Week, May 30 through June 4, announces P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

This week is not a sales event, says Director Davis, but a buying opportunity. The success of this week in moving already manufactured goods and in reducing the surplus of our last year's record breaking crop will go far towards recovery.

From the time the cotton farmer plants his seed until finished cloth enters the primary channels, cotton provides the livelihood for practically one out of every ten persons in the country. The surplus of the 1937 crop, unless something can be done to increase consumption of cotton, will seriously hamper a tenth of the population in their earning and spending of money, Mr. Davis points out.

FARMERS ADVISED TO PLANT SOYBEANS SOON

Auburn, May 9. — Alabama farmers planning to grow soybeans for seed production this year should endeavor to get them planted before the first of June, advises J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist. Otootans, Laredos, and Mammoth Yellows are the most important varieties that should be grown, he says.

Mr. Lowery said farmers can save several thousand dollars annually by growing their own seed ond at the same time be building up the soil. Soybeans are also good summer legumes to be turned under or as a grazing crop for livestock, the agronomist points out. For best seed production Mr. Lowery advises fertilizing beans with basic slag or superphosphate.

CLUB WOMEN MAKE RUG FOR 36 CENTS

Auburn, May 9. — Mrs. D. C. Sims of the Rock Springs home demonstration club in Chambers County reports that members of her club have made from one to three rugs each for their homes at the extremely low cost of 36 cents per rug.

"To me rug making is one of the most interesting projects the rural women have ever studied", reports Mrs. Sims. "Our home demonstration agent buys the loops in large quantities. We can make a nice sized rug from three pounds of loops at 12 cents per pound, or the small cost of 36 cents for a rug that would cost us $2 if we had ti buy it."

HIGH MATERNAL MORTALITY

Montgomery, May 9. — Although Alabama's maternal mortality rate has declined by more than 26 per cent since 1914, it is still higher than the ratt for the United States as a whole and also higher than those for many other states, Dr. J. N. Baker, State Health Officer, pointed out today.

"In many parts of the state, and especially in the rural sections, large numbers of mothers do not have the benefit of priper medical and nursing care before, during and after birth of their babies", he said. "The records of the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health show that slightly more than one white woman out of every eight, and more than three-fourths of all colored women, who gave birth to babies in the state in 1936 were not attended by physicians at that time."

The State Health Officer urged prospective mothers to place themselves under the supervision of physicians as early in pregnancy as possible and to continue to receive medical care until after the birth of their babies.

CULP EXPRESSES THANKS TO VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please give me space in your paper to express my appreciation to my friends who so loyally supported me in my race for sheriff of your county in the primary election of May 3rd.

I want to thank each of you for your support. It gives me new courage and more determination to fight the battle that is just ahead. In this connection let me say that in accepting the nomination you have tendered me, I do so, realizing fully the responsibility that this office bears. Having had more experience in this office than any one man in our county and with the help and cooperation of the men that I will employ to assist me should I be fortunate enough to be elected in November, and with the assistance of the citizenship of the county, I believe I will be equal to the task.

Just here I would like to make this statement: I have made no promises and will not make any until after the November election, in regard to deputies, other than to the entire citizenship of the county, that if I am elected sheriff of your county I pledge you my honor that the men who work for me will be clean, sober, honest and law-abiding citizens of your own county.

In conclusion, may I make this appeal to every voter in the county, that if you want the sheriff's office to be a unit of your county government, free from political an dspecial favors, I solicit your vote and influence, pledging you my word that if I am elected it will be my highest ambition to give to the people of the county such an administration that will be a credit both to me and to those of you who made it possible for me, by casting your vote for me.

May I thank you again for your support and insist that every loyal Republican take every step forward from now until the November election, for a great victory for the entire Republican ticket. — Respectively, W. G. CULP.

PAUL C. MIMS OFFERS THANKS FOR SUPPORT RECEIVED MAY 3

Urges Concerted Action And Lack Of Bitterness In Party Ranks To Insure November Victory

The May 3 primary has come and gone, and I was one of those who were left far behind when the final count was made. However, I entertain no ill feelings toward any of those who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents. Certainly I would have appreciated a larger vote, and was led to believe by encouragement from all over the county that mine would be a better vote, but I hold no resentment at the outcome.

I believe my opponents dealt fairly with me. If there had been any undermining influence by either Mr. Pitts or Mr. Sanders, I most certainly would have heard something of it, but I never did. If there were others who were responsible for my comparatively small vote, perhaps they had a good reason for it, and I have no regrets.

From the bottom of my heart I offer sincere thanks for each and every one of the 326 votes cast for me. I am certain that each of these was a bona fide, true blue supporter, and that every one of them will give me their support in campaigns in the future. I treasure each of those supporters to the utmost.

I am not downhearted. Far from it. If possible, I am a better Republican than ever. There will be no "jumping" on my part. I have but one X to make next November, and that right under the elephant. I have no flea blood in me that makes me want to hop to the Democrats. Severally and as a body, Democrats are my sworn political enemies, although I number personal friends by the hundreds among them. But they are not expecting any help from me this fall—they know better than anyone else that I am a 100 per cent Republican from the top of my head to the sole of my feet. They know that I have waged an incessant political fight aginst them in the past, and they expect nothing but a more determined one in the future.

Although I have done the best I could at all times for the old G. O. P. elephant, yet my rebuff at the polls last Tuesday leads me to believe that I must yet fight harder. And I will be back. If I do not change my mind, my name will be on the Republican ticket in the primary of 1940. You can be thinking about that for the next two years. Whatever influence there was which defeated me this time must some day realize that it has at least one enemy who will never give up. I am not made that way.

So, again I want to thank every supporter I had in the May 3 primary, and to assure all that I consider it not only a privilege but a profound duty to do all in my power to elect the whole Republican slate next November. Yours,—Paul C. Mims.

CLIFFORD MANNING THANKS SUPPORTERS

Will Give His Support and Influence To Dewey Rockett

Although I was the loser in the primary, I take pleasure in thanking those who did support me. When I announced for Tax Tax Assessor I thought that I could not win the first time, but I wanted to get acquainted with the people for the future. It is true that I am rather young to hold this responsible office. Our race has been clean, and I have enjoyed meeting and knowing the people of our county.

I believe that you have nominated as your Republican candidate one of the most capable men in this county for this office, J. D. Rockett. In my dealings with Mr. Rockett I find him to be fair and honest in every respect. We have been friends throughout the race and want to continue to be in the future.

If you will give Mr. Rockett your careful consideration you will find him to be a most trustworthy and honorable citizen and business man who can handle the affairs of the county.

I am again thanking those who supported me in the primary, also for the splendid remarks made about me during the local campaign.

Yours fro a better local government, —Clifford M. Manning.

NATURAL SPAWNING OF FISH AIDED BY THE TVA

Water Is Kept At Stationary Level In Wheeler And Wilson

Successful breeding of fish in the impounded waters of the lower Tennessee River in Alabama is being encouraged in a number of ways by the Tennessee Valley Authority this year, according to Dr. A. R. Cahn, chief of the biological readjustment division of the TVA. Conferences held at Norris, Tenn., and at Knoxville have resulted in the stabilization of water levels in Lakes Wheeler and Wilson until at least May 15, Dr. Cahn said. It is assured that fluctuations will not exceed one foot.

Authorities feel that so small a fluctuation will have no influence on the spawning of fish in these reservoirs. Under favorable circumstances even this one-foot fluctuation may not be necessary, it was said. Keeping the water at stationary level has been discussed with the health and safety unit and water control board of TVA, and every indication points to full cooperation in the stabilizing program.

It is believed that the fish in the reservoirs will have every chance for normal spawning and production this season, as conditions seem to be very favorable.

The Elk River hatchery has been started, and already pipes are being laid. The laboratory boat for study of the reservoir waters is nearly completed, and will be in the water and in full operation shortly.

One of the chief problems involved in the propagation of fish in impounded waters is to prevent the destruction of natural spawning beds and spawning operations by the rise and fall of water. The above steps taken by the TVA are expected to eliminate a large percentage of loss this year.

The State Department of Conservation cooperates with TVA in the propagation and protection of game and fish on the lands administered by TVA.

"WE ARE ALL ON THE SPOT"

Henry Ford packed a wealth of wisdom in a few words when in his recent address before a group of publishers, he told the American people that "We are all on the spot". The truth of these words is slowly forcing itself upon the consciousness of the masses of our people. Everywhere, now, it is being recognized that the New Deal drive to put one class of citizens "on the spot" has resulted in placing us all there. We cannot destroy the financial cornerstone of the business edifice without toppling the whole structure.

It is interesting to note how closely the New Deal tactics have followed that of Old World dictators. In Russia, Lenin, and after him, Stalin, sought to "liquidate" the middle and upper classes. Everyone above the status of day laborer was classed as an undesirable. "Liquidation" took the form of the firing squad, exile, or imprisonment. Because the Russians are an ignorant and docile people, accustomed to submitting to authority, the policy seems to have won out, for the time being; though the numerous treason trials and other evidence of unrest show that all is not well with the bosses, even in Russia.

In Germany and Italy, Hitler and Mussolini followed similar tactics but along different lines. While oppressing everybody, the fascist dictators made a play for the support of the rich, and ground down the working classes. In both Italy and Germany, labor unions have been abolished, the right to strike taken away, and the working man works such hours and for such wages as the dictators prescribe.

Mr. Roosevelt sought to follow the footsteps of Stalin rather than Hitler. He set out frankly to "liquidate" the wealthy and well-to-do classes in this country, the "economic royalists". Not, indeed, by force of arms, by mock trials and firing squads, but by oppressive and onerous laws, by encouraging the sit-down strike and the red agitator. In this country, the government did not go to the extreme of seizing private property forcibly; but it fell just a step short of it, when it encouraged such seizure by discontented radicals. The entire policy of the Roosevelt regime has been frankly aimed against not only the very wealthy, but the entire middle and upper brackets of our population, for the benefit of the "forgotten man". As a result of this policy the entire financial and economic structure of the nation has been shaken to its foundation; business has lost confidence in government, lost hope for a square deal from a regime that is hostile to business. And American business has fought back.

It is to the eternal credit of the American people that they refused to submit tamely, like the Russians and Germans and Italinas. The people in this country who had worked and saved refused to allow themstlves to be "liquidated" for the benefit of the politicians, and their allies, the thriftless and indolent. The better class of people, finding themselves assailed, and a proclamation of "no quarter" directed against them, reared up and fought. They have fought back through the medium of a congress at last awake to its responsibilities; through a free press, and an aroused public opinion. Today, this fight has exposed the hypocrisy and futility of the New Deal quack panaceas. We are slowly dragging ourselves out of the New Deal quicksands, and back on the solid ground we abandoned five years ago.

The differences betwetn the New Deal and American business, American institutions, is one that cannot be reconciled. It involves the question of whether the government has the right, by legal injustices and by twisitng and warping the Constitution, to confiscate the property of one element of our people and give it to another. Such differences can be settled only by the destruction of the New Deal philosophy of government, or the destruction of Amerisan business and institutions.

Henry Ford said in his address, also, "Stick to your guns". It has been no easy matter to stick, under the pressure of hammering by a government that has warred against one whole section of its people; and against the mass clamor of a people who temporarily lost their balance and let the politicians make them believe that they could make everybody happy by enacting some new laws. But some of us stuck, and it is a grand and glorious feeling today to see through the smoke of battle, the New Dealers, the false prophets and political quacks at last on the run. The November election will help the good work along, and 1940 will put the finishing touches to their rout.

Butterfat Substitute Made

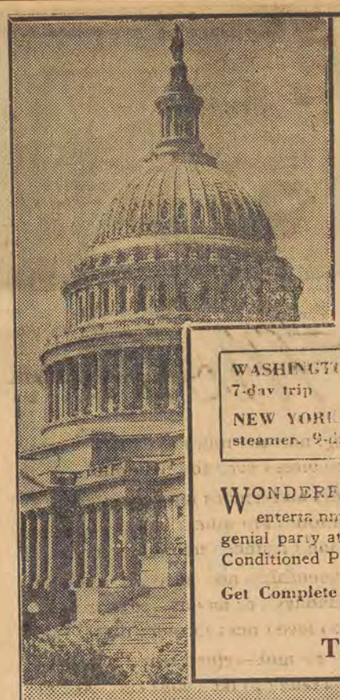
A great deal of research has been conducted at the Purina Experimental Farm to find an answer to these troublesome questions. Since feeding high test milk is both dangerous and expensive, and since skimmed milk does not provide sufficient Vitamin A to properly develop a calf, some digestible and inexpensive ingredient to replace butterfat has to be added for skimmed milk to do an acceptable job. Through years of research and experimentation with numerous calves, scientists at the Purina Experimental Farm have answered the calf-feeding problem satisfactorily in the form of a new calf chow meal to add to milk.

This newly developed calf meal contains pur-a-tene, and is actually made so high in Vitamin A that there is more Vitamin A in the skimmed milk and meal mixture than is in whole milk. Calves fed on this new calf chow meal have more vigor, vitality, and are more resistant to disease.

But the Ash Problem Is Settled!

"WELL, what else did you want that new Westinghouse vacuum cleaner for, anyway?" asks Vic, of radio's Vic and Sade. Of course, Sade had teased for weeks for one of those new cleaners, just like the 1,200 that are being awarded, in addition to six $1,000 cash prizes, in the current series of Crisco contests, running from March 21 through May 1. Still, Vic might be just a bit more careful. Vic and Sade are heard twice daily, except Saturday and Sunday, for fifteen minute periods, 11:30 A.M. and 3:30 P.M., E.S.T. over NBC.

RED CROSS OBSERVES NURSING ANNIVERSARY



1937 Marks 25th Year Of Public Health Nursing In Rural Areas

"Prior to inauguration of the Red Cross Town and Country nursing service in 1912, no national effort was made to bring nursing skill to the rural sickbed," James L. Fieser, vice chairman in charge of domestic operations for the American Red Cross, said today in commenting on the silver anniversary of Red Cross public health nursing.

In a plea for an increased membership during the coming Red Cross annual Roll Call held from November 11 to the 25th, Mr. Fieser pointed out that Red Cross rural nursing rounds out 25 years of continuous service this year. "It is essential activities such as this which the American people support through membership," he said.

In 1910 Lillian Wald, then head resident of the Henry Street Settlement in New York City, proposed that the American Red Cross pioneer in the field of rural nursing. Public health nurses were active in urban districts but no similar provision had been made to guard the health of the rural dweller. Miss Wald felt that the Red Cross was best qualified for the undertaking through its long experience in converting humanitarian ideals into practical accomplishment.

Two years later the first Red Cross rural nurse set forth upon her rounds in a county in Massachusetts. Jacob Schiff, member of the Red Cross Board of Incorporators, and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid each contributed funds to start the project. Special courses of training for nurses resulted in young women

NEW BALL CLUB ORGANIZED HERE

"Clamps" Is Chosen As Team Title After Fan Contest; Dutch Nivens Winner

A new baseball team has been planned and organized for the Clanton territory this season. It is made up of players from last year's teams from Clanton, Alabama Mills, and Lay Dam. Dock Baker has been elected field captain for the coming season, and a committee has been selected from among local sports enthusiasts and officials at Alabama Mills and Lay Dam, who will manage the business end of the venture.

This move was believed wise because of the fact that last year there were three mediocre teams in this immediate district, but none of them a stand-out entry. Consequently, a merger was effected, and by this move the cream of all three teams will put on one team which will, or should, be a real contender for baseball honors.

During the year, the Central Alabama "Clamps" will have the services of the following: Dusty Tatum, Floyd Smith, Gabby Tiffin, and perhaps Alex Hayes behind the bat; Carl Golson, Bill Armstrong, Otis Ellison, Virgil Glass, Micky McGuire, and others in the pitching department; Speed Littlejohn, Jud Culver, and perhaps J. T. Cobb on first base; Shorty Marcus, Tom Reynolds, and others are on hand for the keystone; Alex Hayes is at short, with others to chime in; Cecil Jones is holding down the hot corner at present, but there will likely be others for his relief; in the gardens at present are Duck Williamson, Dock Baker and Gabby Tiffin, but there are others who likely will be used, including Ted Reynolds, hard-hitting fielder with the high school team this year.

All in all, this team should go places this year. There is a wealth of material, some of it experienced, some of it just coming up, which should mold into a good team.

The name "Clamps" was suggested and approved in a fans' contest last Sunday at Lay Dam. Each attendant was asked to suggest a name, and the board of managers picked "Clamps" as the most appropriate. The "CL" is for Clanton; the "AM" is for Alabama Mills; the "PS" is for Powers, superintendent at Lay Dam, or the "AMPS" depicts the power company's part in the aggregation, inasmuch as "Amps" is an electrical term. The winning name was suggested by Dutch Nivens, clerk and soda jerker de luxe at the Alred Drug Co., and a devoted sports fan.

The management has informed us that they will give us their schedule from week to week, which will be published. Also, all available reports on games played by this club this year will be published. Present plans call for a game at Clanton each Wednesday afternoon, and one at Lay Dam each Sunday afternoon. Watch for announcements and reports in the county papers each week.

Sheriff's Office Arrested Nine

There are nine cases entered on the jail register at the sheriff's office since the paper was printed last week. They are: Driving while intoxicated, one white man; public drunkenness, five white men; violating prohibition law, one white man; assault and battery, two negro women.

The sheriff was called by the railroad crew Monday morning and informed that a negro hobo had been hurt somewhere on the yards in Clanton. The negro was carried to the hospital, and it was ascertained that he had broken a shoulder when he jumped from a freight train. He was an escaped convict, serving a sentence for a federal offense.

This negro was found to be Smiley Dorsey, originally of Greenville or Union Springs, and was wanted for revokement of a federal parole, and also for burglary and breaking jail at Union Springs. He has been turned over to federal officers and carried to Montgomery.

L. & N. Handled Record Shipment

The longest single unit shipment ever attempted over the L. & N. Railroad was successfully completed recently, when a huge creosoting cylinder 151 feet 6¾ inches in length, was removed from Boyles, Ala., to Cincinnati, O., via L. & N. for delivery at Lima, O. Weighing 111 tons, the cylinder stood 14 feet 7¾ inches above the rails, when loaded on the three flat cars required to carry it.

The May L. & N. Employes' Magazine, which carries a picture of the shipment, reports that in spite of many speed restrictions and careful day time handling, it was delivered at Cincinnati without a scratch the second day after leaving Boyles.

CLAMPS PLAY FAIRFIELD STEEL MILL TEAM NEXT SUNDAY

Announcement is made that the Clamps will have the Fairfield Steel Mills team of Birmingham on tap for Sunday's game at Lay Dam.

The boys are a little sore about that fracas Sunday, and have a mind to take it out of somebody's hide. Be on hand Sunday afternoon. The game will be called promptly at 3:15.

CHILTON BIRTH RATE UP

Montgomery, May 16. — Chilton County's birth rate for March was 22.6 per 1,000 population, as compared with a rate of 21.4 per 1,000 population for Alabama as a whole, according to the monthly compilation of births and deaths prepared by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health.

The Bureau's records show that 3,246 white and 2,050 colored babies were born in the state during the month, and that 338 babies died during that period before reaching their first birthday, giving an infant mortality rate of 63.8 per 1,000 live births.

New Administrator For AAA Is Chilton Man

Alfred W. Jones, Verbena Boy, Appointed AAA Administrator For State Of Alabama

Some time ago announcement was made by the agricultural office at Auburn that Walter L. Randolph, AAA administrator for Alabama had been removed from that office, and that A. W. Jones had been selected to take his place.

Word comes now that A. W. Jones is a Chilton County boy. He was always known here as Alfred W. Jones, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Jones, Sr., being born and reared in the Verbena community.

Alfred Jones finished high school at Marbury High, and then went to Auburn, finishing there in 1926.

Since then, for a number of years he taught vocational agriculture at Dixon's Mills, Marengo Co. He was with the Federal Land Bank as an appraisre for one year. For the past five years he has been county agent of Tuscaloosa County.

Mr. Jones is well known in the Verbena community, where his friends will be delighted to know of his advancement in his chosen profession.

He is a brother of Mrs. Beatrice Pratt, assistant in the office of Mr. J. C. Pattillo, Circuit Clerk of Chilton County.

Unemployment Policy Assailed By Banker

"We Are Teaching People To Sit Idly By", Thomaston Man Tells Body Of State Financial Heads

Mobile, May 12. — The Alabama Bankers Association today heard one of its members criticize the national administration for its approach to the unemployment problem at an open forum session of the association's annual session held here.

C. C. Pritchett, of Thomaston, declared that since the government began its program to help the jobless, the relief rolls have apparently increased rather than decreased.

"The nation has too many people who take advantage of federal relief", he said. "We are teaching them to sit idly by, when they should be earning their living by the sweat of their brows".

DR. GOWAN'S "RACE TRACK"

In the columns of last week's Chilton County News, Dr. J. E. Gowan, defeated Democratic candidate for the Legislature, had published a letter of thanks to the people of the county for their support in the recent primary election. After a graceful expression of gratitude, the doctor had the following to say:

"I would like to tell you something of a vision I had while going around the 'race track' in my efforts to win the nomination. I had a vision of a group of hard-working road hands, earning an honest living by the sweat of their brows. They were there on the track and were the evidence of a good support of one of my opponents. However, although this scene narrowed my path considerably, I did not feel that it would hamper my chances too much.

"But as I kept going around the race track, I was confronted by a big, shiny tractor, then another and another. And the vision showed that a big tractor company had entered the race with my other opponent and cut my path down to a very, very narrow margin, and it looked then as if I would be pushed off the race track by the 'rolling stock' of this tractor company in Chilton county. Then I saw my path in the race almost vanish."

Now, after reading over Dr. Gowan's vision several times The Union-Banner has been made to wonder if the gentleman's vision was just a nightmare or if it is not a kind of revelation probably worth the thought of the voters of Chilton County. It may be that Dr. Gowan "has something there", and since The Union-Banner is sometimes considered a kind of clarion for the interest of the common people and taxpayers of the county, in the name of our citizenship, we are going to ask Dr. Gowan if he will please make his "vision of the race track" a little plainer so that the folks can understand exactly what he is driving at. Will you please call a spade a spade, Doctor? The people are entitled to know the facts, and we believe you are just the man to call names and furnish these facts in plain language.

Could it be that the first part of the vision pictured the other defeated Democratic candidate, and that the road hands of the county were all supporting him in the Democratic primary. If we remember correctly, there has been something said about road hands not being paid promptly for the time they put in on the roads and bridges; also some road hands were fired from their jobs because they voted "wrong" in the primary. Yes, Doctor, we grant you that no doubt there are goblins in the road department of the county, and we would not be surprised if you encountered some of them while making your "race track".

But now, just what does this business about the big shiny tractor, the tractor company and "rolling stock" mean? Could it be that there was some tangible connection between some tractor company and the successful Democratic candidate's race for the Legislature? And could this "rolling stock" have reference to our common expression of "wagon wheels" or just plain money? Now, putting it all together, could it be possible that some big tractor company furnished money to have the Democratic primary nominate a certain man for the Legislature; and if so why? And who was entrusted with the spending of such money, if such money were spent?

We all know it is a fact that Chilton county has spent lots of money for tractors and road machinery for the past few years, and there will likely be lots more spent during the next two years — a tidy little sum which any tractor company would like to have a cinch on—also there might be some little local laws passed or unpassed which would materially affect the transactions between the county and these tractor companies; who knows?

The Union-Banner believes the above matters are of vital concern to all of the citizenship of Chilton County, and regardless of political affiliations we think the people are entitled to be fully enlightened on the subjects. So, with specific facts, Dr. Gowan, will you be so kind as to furnish this information through the columns of one or both of the county papers?

MORTICIANS NAME OPELIKA MAN ASSOCIATION HEAD

J. Mell Martin Re-Elected Secretary; Huntsville Chosen For 1938 Convention City

R. W. Williams, of Opelika, will head the Alabama Funeral Directors Association, following election of officers Wednesday concluding the state morticians' two-day convention in Birmingham.

Other officers include James J. Duffy, of Mobile, first vice president; E. J. Duncan, of Alexander City, second vice president; and J. Mell Martin, of Clanton, secretary-treasurer, a post he has held eight years.

The more than 50 independent funeral directors attending the sessions selected Huntsville as the 1939 convention city.

The final meeting yesterday opened with an address by J. Lee Headley, of Gadsden, retiring president, and included a report on the association's progressive service committee by W. T. Boyd, of Sylacauga. H. C. Aston, of Birmingham, discussed work of the State Embalmers Association.

The meeting adjourned with a luncheon at the Redmont Hotel, with W. T. Boyd, toastmaster.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN HAS CHANGED TO FORGOTTEN MILLIONS

It is generally admitted that Franklin D. Roosevelt's appeal to what he chose to call "The Forgotten Man" attributed much to his capturing the electorate in his first race for the presidency in 1932. Well, from the following few figures and facts, the slogan could now be very aptly changed to read "The Forgotten Millions Of Men":

There are 20,100,000 people on the relief rolls of the United States today—6,100,000 more than a year ago. One out of every five persons in some states are on relief; about one out of every seven in the nation is out of work. There are 29,000 jobless in Cleveland, Ohio, with 87,000 dependents; Chicago is up against it to take care of 93,000 unemployed, with government funds exhausted. WPA jobs in Alabama have increased from 17,000 last September to 42,000 at present; there are four times that many more in Alabama receiving aid from the government.

In such a dire crisis as this, it is poor consolation and poorer sportsmanship to say "We told you so", but our memories serve us well as to the ridicule piled upon the outgoing administration in 1932 when there were 10,000,000 unemployed in the nation and our indebtedness had recently been reduced from 21 billion to 16 billion dollars. Mr. Roosevelt has piled up the national debt to near 40 billion and the unemployed have doubled. He is asking Congress for 6 billion more now to chloroform the people with until after the fall Congressional elections and to hypnotize them into voting for something else they do not want.

Yes, we must say, we are getting nowhere mighty fast in conquering the depression. We are going so fast until we are actually backing up at a dangerous and alarming speed.

PREPARED TO DO REPAIRING ON ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS

Messrs. Dolphin and Delphin Popwell, of Popwell Radio and Refrigeration Service, announce that they are now prepared to do any and all kinds of repair work on electric refrigerators. Dolphin Popwell has recently taken a course in this work under Mr. E. D. Gothberg, of the Refrigeration Service Company, Birmingham, and understands the electric refrigerator from A to Z. They also have equipment necessary to do the work.

It is not necessary to send for some out-of-town expert to fix your electric refrigerator, because we have a native home boy who is thoroughly prepared to do the work. This is something that Clanton has been needing and will continue to need more in the future.

Alabama Sheriffs May Now Succeed Selves

A constitutional provision prohibiting Alabama sheriffs succeeding themselves was removed by a vote of 95,848 to 81,066 in the May 3 election. Official returns announced by Secretary of State Howell Turner showed Thursday the Alabama voters ratified a constitutional amendment changing the section providing for a sheriff in each county by inserting the provision such officer might be elected as his own successor.

Another constitutional amendment permitting Limestone County to levy a special one-mill tax for malaria control, provided such a tax is authorized by a majority of the county's voters, also was ratified in the statewide vote, 111,889 to 47,764. Although the latter amendment was adopted by an overwhelming majority in the statewide vote, Limestone County voted against it, the returns revealed. The vote in that county was 1,248 for, and 1,631 against.

No official information was available as to the number of Alabama sheriffs who were candidates to succeed themselves in event passage of the "sheriffs amendment". One was Sheriff A. E. Stewart, of Autauga County, who said he believed he was the only successful one of five who were offering for reelection.

New Dry Cleaning System At Laundry

"Sterilizes, Deodorizes, Revitalizes", are some of the adjectives which Mr. Leo Thompson uses to explain "Tru-Sheen," the new, scienticfic dry-cleaning process recently put in operation by Clanton Laundry and Cleaning Company. It is said to be absolutely the latest development of science in modern dry cleaning.

Mr. Thompson can be counted on to keep step with the times, if not a jump or two ahead. If he can't buy the euipment he wants, he just fires in and makes it to suit his own taste.

FIRST AIR MAIL FLIES THURSDAY

Brief Program Will Be Held At Gragg Field This Afternoon at 2:00 P. M.

Clanton is observing air mail week this week, May 15 through 21st. Mail will be picked up at Gragg Field at 2:55 this afternoon, Thursday, May 19th, the first ever to leave our little city. Preceding the pick-up, there will be a brief program of short speeches, as follows:

1. "The development of mail service in Chilton County", by Hon. Luther E. Little, County Superintendent of Education.
2. "The value of mail service to Chilton County", by Hon. J. Lee Smith, Probate Judge.
3. The value of mail service to the City of Clanton", by Hon. C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.
4. Presentation of commissions and delivery of mail to pilots, by Hosea F. Downs, Postmaster.

Flying the mail from Clanton will be Chilton County's pioneer flyer and air enthusiast, Dr. V. J. Gragg, probably assisted by Mr. Leo Thompson. All the other pilots and enthusiasts of Clanton are lending their assistance in the venture, which may mean the beginning of Clanton's part in a great development for the nation and the world.

Postmaster Hosea F. Downs urges all to lend their aid in making the initial air mail flight from Clanton a success. Arrange to send a letter by air mail some time during this week, and certainly so on Thursday.

G. O. P. PLANS ADVISORY RALLY AT CHICAGO

Chicago, May 12. — Republican party policy makers told tonight of plans to obtain opinions on national issues at a midsummer meeting from "the most ably qualified minds available", regardless of the politics of such experts.

Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the party's program committee, announced the meeting of the entire committee was planned tentatively for the third week in July in Chicago.

He said the projected week long session would hear expressions from national leaders in such fields as labor, agriculture, fiscal and monetary problems, taxation, economic and political foreign policies.

"We will not be concerned", he said, whether these most ably qualified minds available are members of the program committee, and we will welcome them regardless of whether they are Republicans".

Season's Banner Turnip

To The Journal office Monday was brought one of the largest turnips ever seen hereabouts. It was beautiful enough to be photographed for a de luxe seed catalog, and it was big enough to show that Alabama's soil and climate can do wonders if properly encouraged. This banner turnip was raised by Mr. W. S. Clark at Mt. Creek in Chilton County. It measured 28 inches in circumference, weighed seven and one-eighth pounds, and the seed was planted this spring. Mr. Clark's farm is only a short distance from the well known sign on the Montgomery highway marked "Midway", the half way point between Chicago and Miami. He thinks he has some turnips yet in the ground that will do better than the one exhibited at The Journal building Monday. — Alabama Journal.

TIGERS TRIM PLANTERSVILLE HIGH BY SCORE OF 11 TO 1

Although Coach Varnell's Tigers have already won the Central Alabama Baseball Championship, they kept in trim for further state competition last Friday afternoon by going to Plantersville to trounce the Dallas County High team 11 to 1.

Lefty Baggett held the Dallas County outfit to three scattered hits and no runs for eight innings. Then Coach Varnell sent in a second team, and Dallas scored their lone run when Cooper, second string catcher, threw wild to third to allow a run to come in.

Meanwhile the Tigers were pounding the ball all over the lot, with McKee leading with four out of five. Ted Reynolds connected for a homer with one aboard, as one of his three hits.

This team comes to Clanton next Friday to play the locals in the last game of the high school season.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

S. J. M. WEBB THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to express my sincere thanks to the voters of the county through the columns of your paper this week.

I wish to say to each one who supported me in any way, that I very greatly appreciate it. I also appreciate all those who are saying so many nice things to me since the primary is over. So, may I tell you again, as I have told you in the past, I am your servant so long as I hold public office, and will you please always feel perfectly free to make your wishes known to me, that I may best serve you. My highest aim is to serve the majority of hte people so far as I possibly can.

May I say, teachers, when you desire a new location, or any help that I am able to render, please make it known to me, as many of you have done in the past. When I know your wishes, I feel I can best serve you. The same to bus drivers—when I know your wishes is when I can best serve you. So, last but not least, to each school community and each person in each community, please make your needs known to me. If that need be a new teacher, or a new bus driver, or a new bus, or more teachers for your school, or a new school building, or whatever your need may be, I am always glad to know your needs, because it is by knowing your needs that I am best able to serve you.

In conclusion, I wish to say that each and every person's needs are exactly the same to me along educational lines, and education does not mean book knowledge alone, as I think of education. My best wishes, my anxiety, my best love goes out for each boy and girl in Chilton County, in Alabama, yea, in the whole world, that they be educated both in mind and in heart, in the fullest meaning that may be placed on the word education.

Yours for a more effective educational system,—S. J. M. Webb.

He Might Be Looking for Germs

(But He Isn't)

"HERE'S a fellow you seldom see at his work, because he performs his duties in a laboratory. He isn't looking for germs, but is inspecting the jewels and other small parts of an electric meter to be sure of their accuracy. He carefully inspects every meter before it goes into service and because his inspection is so thorough, you can always be confident that your meter accurately registers the amount of cheap electricity you use. Your cheap electricity is measured by meters as accurate as the finest watch."

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Big beefy, handsome Joseph Buerckel, forty years old, with hard fists and a whip-lash tongue, is Hitler's grand marshal of the Nazi subjugation of Austria. To the surprise of Nazi home talent in Austria, he is given entire charge of the fusion and subordination of the Austrian Nazis by Berlin.

Hard Fists to Nazify Austrians

He was a poor schoolmaster who worked his way up by continuous and diligent Jew-hating. While less earnest and industrious young men were wasting their time, he was working nights, Sundays and holidays on this, his chosen career.

Against stiff competition, it took him years to gain distinction, but at last he came to outrank even the illustrious Julius Streicher in long-distance anti-Semitism.

He was born in the Palatinate, the south German territory adjoining the Saar. He was in the World war, in the closing years, and joined the Hitler movement soon after the Munich beer hall putsch in 1923.

He was a good rough-and-tumble fighter and organizer and was advanced rapidly in the more overt and violent party drives.

When Baron von Papen was removed as Saar commissioner, in 1934, and made ambassador to Vienna, Herr Buerckel replaced him. Under his supervision was the jug-handled plebiscite and his the exultant radio voice which told the world that German justice had triumphed.

Saar Post Taught Him Technique

The League of Nations handed him the valley, and he became governor in 1935.

A typically forthright ukase was his Christmas decree against shopping in Jewish stores.

"If you try to get out of it," he said, "by pretending that your wife did the shopping, it merely shows that an unreal Nazi spirit prevails in your home, and you are not a he-man, but a fool."

YOUNG Jan G. Masaryk, Czech minister to the Court of St James, had a fervent belief in the Kellogg and Locarno pacts. He once said, "They are splendid instruments of a world order of peace and stability." Now he calls at the British foreign office perhaps to hint that something seems to have gone wrong.

Czech Sees Fadeout of Peace Hope

He is the son of the late Dr Thomas Masaryk, first president of Czechoslovakia. His mother was an American, born and reared in Brooklyn, and so is his wife, the former Mrs. Francis Crane Leatherbee, daughter of Charles R. Crane the widely known manufacturer and industrialist. He has spent much time in America.

At the age of eighteen, he ran away from the University of Prague, in the early years of the war, and worked in a factory at Bridgeport, Conn. He returned home and finished his studies, and was the first Czech minister to the United States in 1919.

He has his famous father's impassioned belief in democracy, and has been its eloquent defender in central Europe, where his country is Horatius at the Bridge.

THE history of this age will be hard to unscramble. Japan can't take a belt at a local power baron without landing on an American stockholder. Dr. Joji Matsumoto warned the government not to get in trouble with American investors by nationalizing its electric power industry.

Japs Learn Power Can Be Headache

This would endanger investments of $75,000,000, he contended, mostly held in this country.

He is Japan's leading corporation lawyer and one of its most important financiers, an officer of the Capital Rehabilitation Aid company, which has a quaint sound but which is understandable even in the Occident.

Sixty years old, he is a former professor of law at the Tokyo Imperial university, from which he was graduated. He is a director of the Tokyo Gas company and several other corporations, and was vice president of the South Manchurian railway.

Spain's Romeo and Juliet

The "Lovers of Teruel," Spain's Romeo and Juliet, form one of the most ancient legends of Spain. They were Diego de Marcilla and Isabel de Segura and lived in Teruel during the Thirteenth century under the reign of King James of Aragon. They parted because of family disapproval and languished and died. Their bodies were mummified and they were buried in the chapel of the church of San Pedro.

MIDWAY-MT. CREEK CLUB

The Midway-Mt. Creek Club met at 2:30 o'clock May 11 with Mrs. S. R. Hudson. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Hudson. Minutes were read and the roll called by the secretary.

There were 30 of our members present, and two new members were added to our club.

A committee of three, with Mrs. Alice Hudson as chairman, was appointed to arrange for the fair exhibit this fall.

A fine demonstration on "Entertaining In The Home" was given by the home agent, Miss Grace, which the members seemed to enjoy very much. The demonstration was on "Afternoon Teas", which was very beautifully carried out by the hostess and co-hostess, Mrs. Alice Hudson and Mrs. Cooper, with the help of Miss Grace.

The meeting was then adjourned by all members joining in singing "America".

MRS. JAMES A. KELLY

Wednesday afternoon, May 4, at her home near Jemison, Mrs. James A. Kelly left this world for a home in the great beyond. Being a firm believer in her Master; we know she has gone to rest. She was a member of the Methodist church, and always held out strong for her belief and faith, always for the right.

She left a vacancy at home, which no one can fill. Her chair by the fireside will always be empty, but we have pleasant memories of mother, as she walked among her flowers, fitting some new quilt design, or anything that would make home the home it was.

As she was seldom away from home, her absence seems more than we can bear. It is so hard to do without her. But we should not weep for mother. She is resting and rejoicing where the soul never dies. To us, mother is not dead. She has gone on, to await the coming of her loved ones to the land of peaceful rest. Though her going brings untold grief, we have only to look to the Savior for consolation in our hour of need. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. With this ever in mind, as we know mother would want us to, we shoulder our burden and smile bravely, hoping to meet her some day in a better world. —Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. William H. Kelly.

WHOSE DEPRESSION IS THIS?

Back in these long, bad, dreary days of 1932 and the few months immediately preceding, this whole world was laboring under a depressed condition. Not only the United States, but the nations of all the continents felt the deadening influence of that depression. Those were the days when we heard so much of "it couldn't be any worse".

Much water has gone over the dam since that time. England, France, Italy, Germany, Russia, and other major world powers have gone about their work of rebuilding their economic structures, and, if we may judge results by the enormous amounts these nations have proved themselves able to spend for rearmament and other projects, they have, at least to great degree, emerged from that depressed condition. England has found money to foster a gigantic arms program. France, with all her changing of governmental heads and systems, and in spite of her internal strife, has found money with which to almost double her standing army, build an air force second to none, and now is in the midst of a giant shipbuilding program. Germany has found a means of putting Hitler's wildest dreams into the realm of reality—and it has cost much money. Italy has found money with which to wage a war of conquest, and the same is true of Japan. Other nations have gone about carrying out pet projects of their own, all of which have most certainly cost great sums of money, yet we have read nothing in the newspapers of any big bond issues being floated nor loans made by these seemingly prosperous nations.

Here in the United States, since that time, we have seen our economic ship flounder around badly. We, too, have spent money, many times that of any other nation. But ours has not been spending for armament or national safety so much, as is the case of other nations, but a spending program bent on pulling us out of that 1932 depression, and along the ideas laid out by President Roosevelt. Why we have failed to fully arise from this depression, or, perhaps, to rise and fall again, while others have been able to come to land safely, has never been set out by economic experts, so far as I have been able to find, and even today is very much a matter of opinion throughout the world, and more so among the thinking individuals of our own country.

This is no indictment of the president. I can readily believe that he has been quite sincere in his attempt to pull his country out of the rut, although there have been times when it seemed that he used poor judgment, according to the opinion of economic experts, who lived to see their dire predictions come true.

There have been times when the president has been accused of dictatorial aspirations, and not alone along partisan lines, for members of his own political party have been his most severe critics in this respect at times. Yet, we must give the president the benefit of doubt there. We must give him credit for observing the wholesome economic results obtained by dictatorial measures by other nations, and a decision to try the same here, if that was his idea, at the risk of being dubbed a dictatorial aspirant, which actually happened. Whether or not he had such dictatorial aspirations in the back of his head, we, of course, cannot be sure, but we can be sure of the fact that he has failed miserably to obtain the same economic results that other countries have gotten, while using almost exactly the same methods, though somewhat modified. This modification, we can also be sure, was a forced condition, if we can believe critics within his own part ranks. It may be that Mr. Roosevelt would have carried his measures to the extreme that other countries carried like measures, but for the nature of our own government, and the inborn desire for complete freedom which is an attribute of the American people to a greater degree than that of any other people on earth.

So, in view of all the above, giving the president credit for true sincerity for the good of all America in his actions, no matter how much we may disagree with his methods, and discounting hte implications and direct charbes of dictatorial aspirations, no matter how closely his actions have led us to the brink of such a condition, let us analyze, and at least attempt to find and prove by the words of the president, himself, and htose of his most trusted lieutenants, just who or what is responsible for our present dilemma, and once and for all place the blame where it rightfully belongs, and, perhaps, suggest a solution for the problem, which so vitally concerns every one of us.

The national political campaign of 1932 was one of the most bitter in the history of American politics. Charges and counter charges flew thick and fast, some of them no doubt credible, while others were certainly super-partisan and unreasonable. On the Democratic side of this fight, whether or not their charges were reasonable, we must certainly admit that they scored the hit for which they were drawn. Charley Michaelson's publicity bureau, dubbed a "scandal mill" by Republican quarters, poured it on Hoover in thick quantities. It blamed him for the whole catastrophe, so far the United States was concerned. No other agency or condition was blamed, but the whole venom poured out on the hapless Hoover.

They charged him with everything from conniving to deliver to foreign interests our vast gold supply on down to inefficiency and a resultant condition of depression caused by his inability to foresee conditions, prepare for them and forestall them. The adamant congress, with which Mr. Hoover's pleadings had no apparent effect, and which allowed things to drift when a bit of prompt action that Mr. Hoover advised might have saved the day, was not mentioned in any of the accusations. Overproduction was not mentioned, nor blamed, for any part in the accusations againts Mr. Hoover, although Democratic chieftains evidently believed it played a big part in the depression, as this was one of the first things they began to work on once they were in power. Big business was not blamed, neither were the labor unions. No one received any credit for the depression but President Hoover. Democratic claims were that, no matter what the cause, if the president was the able and astute man he should be, as the nation's chief executive, he would "do something".

So much for Hoover. Let us admit, for the sake of argument, that everything the Democratic campaign machine claimed was true. Let us even admit that it was wholly Mr. Hoover's fault that we were in the depression, forgetting that it was a world-wide condition. Let us go so far as to admit that if he had been the man he should have been, he could have pulle dus out of the rut. And then let's look further along the economic road.

Mr. Roosevelt was elected. He tried experiment after experiment, while possessing the full powers of a dictator, given him by the congress. He passed measures he believed would "do the trick". Some of these were upheld by the highest tribunal in the land, while others were declared null and void by that same body—not because of the personnel of the court—but because of the basic law of our country, the Constitution.

Mr. Roosevelt charged that the Supreme Court was biased. Then he was reminded that he might have the Constitution changed to suit latter day conditions, if he thought it had been drawn to suit "horse and buggy" days, but he declined to do so. His charge was that this method was too slow. Any way, he did not follow the method laid down for effecting changes in the Constitution, even in the face of charges by men high in his own party that he was afraid to risk his ideas with the whole people.

Whether the president was sincere in his belief that such methods were too slow, we, of course, can never know. We do know, however, if he had followed the Constitutional method for changes, and had gotten the changes he desired, and they had brought about the fine results he claime dthey would bring, we would long ago have benefitted from them, while, as it is, his faster methods have never been realized, and we have not traveled so far along the road toward normalcy.

Came the campaign of 1936, in which the president was reelected. In his speeches throughout the land, he boasted that the depression had been effectively whipped — that we were again on the high road to success. He pointed epeatedly to the factoy smokestacks, with their black billows, and the humming of factory wheels, for proof that "old man depression" was on the run. Again the Democratic publicity machine put on a drive, and proved that it was just as adept at painting as bright and shining picture for 1936 as that of 1932 had been black and sordid. According to the Democratic campaign machine, according to Democratic spellbinders and the Democratic press of the nation, by the very words of the president, himself, many times repeated, we were well out of the depression—it was whipped—we might have another, but this one was a thing of the past, best forgotten. And, they reminded us, a safe way to keep out of another in the immediate future, was to reelect Mr. Roosevelt.

The result was the greatest acclaim ever given any American save George Washington, who was elected by popular acclaim. He was told to keep on going—his were the reins of the American government.

And then something happened in the spring of 1937. What—no one seems to know, exactly. Reason upon reason has been advanced, and there are just about as many ideas as there are people who think on the question. Mr. Roosevelt's administration has made all America government-conscious, and far more people rack their brains daily to find the trouble than was the case in 1932. Allow me to give Mr. Roosevelt credit for one thing right here. He most certainly has taught millions of Americans the importance of their national government in their lives.

Regarding the present "recession", or to be more correct, new depression, since Mr. Roosevelt, himself, told us many times that we were out of the other, the president has been accused of "making" it—that is, by his methods he has deliberately brought about a stale business condition. It is charged that he picked the time for "planning" this recession in an expert manner; that he timed it so that he might "save the country" again, just before the important election next fall, that it might have its full weight upon the electorate. This charge has been made by his fellow-Democrats, and is not mine nor that of any Republican.

Whether this is true, we, of course, cannot be sure, but these important facts have been pointed out by important Democrats on the floors of both the national congressional halls:

1. The recession began early in the summer of 1937, and had reached an acute stage by early fall.

2. The president called the congress into extra session late in 1937, and could just as easily have gotten his relief measure through to stifle the growing recession, as he could now, if he had so willed.

3. That the president has "dallied" with the problem while precious time slipped away, allowing the people to become fearful, then panic-stricken, while he bided his time, waiting so that his call for a "pump priming" orgy would come in time to get a huge sum of money in his hands with which he might influence the November election. They point to the fact that the president wants little or none of the money earmarked as proof of this charge.

5. They predict that, even if the giant relief measure should be passed today, it has come at such a late date that none of the could be available before late summer, just before election, so that the great multitude who would be affected would be warmed toward the administration just in time for them to support administration candidates by the thousands, even millions.

In short, he is charged by his own members, with pitting the suffering of the whole nation against his own personal political gain. They charge that this was a shrewd move, but not altogether ethical.

Summarizing, then, we find:

We have admitted the former depression was Hoover's, for the sake of argument. We have admitted that if he had been the statesman and manager he should have been, he would have been able to keep us out of the depression. Again, for the sake of argument, we have admitted that Mr. Roosevelt did pull us out of the depression. That, just as he said in 1936, we were again a free and happy and prosperous people, with the depression behind us. Let us admit all that, and then take up the blame for this new one.

If Hoover was solely to blame for the first economic collapse, isn't Roosevelt just as much due to receive the blame for this one? He has had much tighter control over all functions of the government and business of the nation than Hoover ever dreamed of. Mr. Roosevelt says the "economic royalists" and big business are in part to blame now. But there must have been "economic royalists" in 1932, at the time he was laying all the blame at Hoover's door—he never mentioned them then. He also says now that there is an overproduction of certain basic commodities which has had its part in bringing this recession; but he said nothing about overproduction in 1932. Everything was the fault of Mr. Hoover.

This is no defense of Mr. Hoover or his shortcomings, nor is it an indictment of Mr. Roosevelt and his "planning". I have not been bitter. I have not charged that the president is liable for this depression—and depression it most certainly is, despite Mr. Roosevelt's vehement denial, in which he called it a "recession" instead of a depression. I have tried in a fair manner to set out the old saying: "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander". I have not pointed out any of Mr. Roosevelt's seeming mistakes and experiments. It is but human to err, and we could not expect Mr. Roosevelt to be perfect.

But is it fair—is it even sportsmanlike—to attempt to dodge the responsibility of his office, when he has so bitterly and persistently charged his predecessor with that responsibility. In short, isn't Mr. Roosevelt just as responsible for the low conditions now as Mr. Hoover was in 1932? Personally, I did not believe that Mr. Hoover should bear the whole blame for the first depression, nor do I believe that Mr. Roosevelt is wholly to blame now, but it seems to me that he should certainly bear as much responsibility for national conditions as any man in his position at any time.

Therefore, if Mr. Roosevelt shall not bear full blame for the present deression, then Mr. Hoover should not have been forced to bear the cross he did. But, if Mr. Hoover was wholly to blame for the 1932 catastrophe, as was so bitterly charged, and, if we have since come out of that depression back to the high road of economic success, as Mr. Roosevelt so proudly boasted in 1936, and have fallen into another, do not Mr. Roosevelt's 1932 accusations become a boomerang, to return and haunt him? This, I ask, to say nothing of the charge of "manufacturing" a depression, which would be infinitely worse.

Whose depression is this, any way?

SENTIMENT AGAINST DIVERSION OF ROAD FUND GROWS

Sentiment against the diversion of automotive tax revenue to purposes other than highway financing is growing in many states, ascording to J. B. Kelly, Vice Chairman, Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee. Measures to initiate constitutional amendments against diversion were introduced in nearly half of the state legislatures which convened in 1938, he said this week. Although favorable action was delayed, it is believed to be only a question of time in those states before diversion of road funds must bow to public sentiment.

"Advocates of measures to end diversion in the various states point to the fact that more than a decade of public protest preceded the adoption by the federal government of the pure food law to prevent the adulteration and misbranding of foodstuffs. There is usually a lag, they explain, between public opinion and its expression on the statute books. Because the effective ending of diversion of road funds ordinarily requires an amendment to the state constitution, rather than a statute, the lag in this case in some states may be somewhat greater than in others."

Farmers can improve the quality of their cotton seed so as to get the highest price whenever they sell, states G. S. Meloy, senior marketing specialist, Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Everything that can be done to improve cotton lint will also improve the value of cotton seed. Pure seed of superior varieties is the first essential to superior lint and such seed are usually rich in oil.

IN MEMORY

Mrs. Julia Parrish Taylor, teacher of our young peoples' class of Concord church died at her home in Clanton, May 13, after a lingering illness.

It is difficult to think of her as dead. She lived life happily, and was an unusually useful person. Her magnetic personality had a great influence upon every person with whom she came in contact, that will live on and on in the years to come. She was especially happy in her church work—possessing those qualities that made her well suited as a leader in church activities.

Her life was a shining example to all, and of especial inspiration to her Sunday school pupils with whom she worked so tirelessly and unselfishly.

She was a loyal friend to all, and bore her suffering patiently and with a smile.

The young peoples' class of Concord church stand in silence, honoring Mrs. Taylor, who was such a faithful and excellent teacher:

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK...
By Lemuel F. Parton

NEW YORK.—It seems possible that Rockefeller Center was trying for a delicate cultural balance in getting three alien artists to do its murals.

There was an inevitable clash, and now, after five years, a compromise. Lenin's head, by the hard-boiled, hard-bitten Mexican Rivera, blocked out in 1934, has been replaced by a conventional mural by the Spanish Sr. Sert, with the orthodox theme of America's continuing development along the old lines. The compromise appears in Sr. Sert's restrained sepia monochrome, instead of his usual lavish outpouring of gold and scarlet, verdant green and ecstatic blue.

Sr. Sert is the most millionairish of all living painters. Here he pipes down. If we didn't go left with Lenin, our new era isn't going to be as gaudy as the last one.

It will be a sober, industrious, thrifty, monochrome age, with no more high kicking and low thinking. That seems to be what Sr. Sert and the Rockefeller Center people are saying.

When the big, booming, sixty-one-year-old Spanish painter is going strong, he makes Vernonese just a wet wash with a touch of bluing. He was a regular stand-by and emergency painter for his friend, King Alfonso. "Con mucho gusto," he can swing the whole spectrum, with bold, regal effects which are the delight of kings.

He has done many magnificent rooms in Europe, including the Madrid chapel of the duke of Alba, now Franco's commercial envoy to England, and Sir Phillip Sassoon's resplendent ballrooms. His first exhibition in this country was in 1924, when he received prolonged critical salvos.

He was born in Barcelona of the ancient Spanish gentry, and studied in Paris in his early youth.

Sert Swings Spectrum With Gusto

From the first, he developed boldness and exuberance, both in color and technique. Briffault's pre-war Europe—which was to have gone on forever, but didn't—knew him for its very own. His new monochrome fits an age "sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought."

In the current argument between government and business, it is interesting to note that the temple of business gets back to the Muses and the classical symbols of work and labor, after its brief leftward deviation in 1933. In Washington, such bold innovators as Henry Varnum Poor and George Biddle still state tortuous new themes in the government murals. But there's not so much splash in those Rockefeller Center murals as there might have been in, say, 1928.

YOUNG BURGESS MEREDITH, at the age of twenty-eight, is picked to run Actors Equity association, for a time at least. A star on Broadway, a country squire, a Hollywood success, he has had more tossing around than a roller-coaster addict, with the up-grade all in the depression years.

Meredith Was Tossed on Upgrade

In Lakewood, a suburb of Cleveland, his father was a doctor and his grandfather an evangelist. His Uncle Joe, whom he greatly admired, was in vaudeville.

He washed dishes and tended furnaces during one sad and lonely year at Amherst, ran a haberdashery shop with his brother in Cleveland, went bankrupt, was a reporter on the Stamford Advocate, until they caught him at it, sold roofing, vacuum cleaners and cosmetics, worked in Macy's department store, sang in church choirs for $4 a Sunday, lived a week on breakfast food samples, and was for a time one of the migrant army of jobless youth.

The depression brought him luck. In 1929, he got a letter of introduction to Eva le Gallienne and a payless job as an apprentice actor. His climb was slow. He first attained high visibility in "She Loves Me "Not," in 1933. He clinched his gains in his three Maxwell Anderson plays, "Winterset," "High Tor," and "Star Wagon."

Depression Was Really Lady Luck

His estate is near that of Mr. Anderson in Rockland county, New York, where he is very busy with house-building, dogs, and books. He has an eager, avid mind, buzzing with new ideas.

He is a faithful intellectual understudy of the older Mr. Anderson and his genius chimes in perfectly with Mr. Anderson's exalted blank verse dramaturgy.

He is five feet, seven inches tall, weighs 135 pounds and is no matinee idol—listed briefly at booking agency as "blond and homely" when he first went after a job in the theater. His wife is the distinguished actress, Margaret Perry.

IN MEMORY

In the passing of Mrs. Julia Parrish Taylor Friday, May 13, there is sorrow in the hearts of those who intimately knew her. With quiet, courteous cooperation she wended her way in a life of service to others.

With unfailing love and loyalty she made herself a tower of strength to her family, church and Sunday school.

With a deep and keen appreciation she found joy in the training of children, having been a teacher in Sunday school for a number of years, and a co-worker in the educational force of this state for more than 30 years.

With high and fine ideals she gathered around her many friends and comrades whose friendship she welded with hoops of steel.

We shall not soon find her like again!

CHILTON COUNTY AND AIR MAIL WEEK

(By CLAUDE E. MARCUS)

Chilton County's participation in National Air Mail Week will reach a climax this (Thursday) afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when Dr. V. J. Gragg, prominent physician and aviation enthusiast, takes off from the Clanton airport for Montgomery with the first cachet of air mail ever to be dispatched direct from the Clanton post office.

When the wheels of Dr. Gragg's trim ship leave the ground for the Capital City, 41 miles away, epoch making history will be transcribed for the archives of Clanton and Chilton County. A precedent will be set in which every man, woman and child in the county may be justly proud. This historic first flight of air mail from Clanton marks the first time air mail has ever been flown from this Central Alabama metropolis to the four corners of the nation by an all-air mail route. It marks the first time a citizen of this county has ever held an appointment as Air Mail Pilot. (Dr. Gragg was sworn in a few days ago by Postmaster Hosea F. Downs as a temporary air mail pilot). It will be the first time in the history of the Clanton post office that the Clanton postmark ever carried its own individual air mail insignia.

These three events alone should be of gigantic importanie to Clanton and Chilton County because the "Beginning" or "First Time" in any undertaking for the service of mankind is an important event.

A few days ago, Dr. Gragg complimented this writer by suggesting that he write his impressions of the importance of Clanton's and Chilton County's participation in National Air Mail Week. The thought came at that time that the aids, advancements, discoveries, inventions and devices for the service and succor of humanity are usually conceived in the mind of some one individual—an individual of vision, imagination and faith—and are usually fostered by some individual or small group possessing creative inspiration, dauntless spirit and courageous tenacity.

It is to such a combination of human attributes that we owe our gratitude for the tremendous benefits of aviation and the air mail service. For, had it not been for the inventive genius, unselfish courage, and implicit faith of Orville and Wilbur Wright we would have no aeroplanes today. It was their precedent-shattering exploit at Kitty Hawk, N. C., just 30 short years ago when they flew a mere 120 feet in 12 seconds, the first time in the world's history that man ever left the ground in sustained flight in a power-propelled vehicle. These two fearless brothers proved a theroy, established a precedent, and mirrored a vision which was caught by other pioneers out of which a vital industry was born.

Today, thousands of aeroplanes, giants of the air, criss-cross the nation, span the seas and circle the globe, transporting passengers, express, freight and mail with the safety of the horse-drawn vehicle of the last century, but at the dazzling speed of hundreds of miles per hour.

Day and night, through good and bad weather, over snow-capped mountains and burning desert sands, across placid seas and hurricane-swept oceans the airmen ride the skies—literally the "world on wings".

We say the "world on wings" was made possible because Orville and Wilbur Wright had courage, faith, inspiration and tenacity.

No one in Clanton or Chilton County will invent an aeroplane because Dr. V. J. Gragg flies the first air mail from Clanton to Montgomery; but Dr. Gragg, Clanton's postmaster Hosea F. Downs and the other postal officials cooperating in National Air Mail Week are setting an example and mirroring a vision of the opportunities that should grow from Chilton County's participation in the air mail celebration. These opportunities can be made to mean as much proportionately to the social, civic, commercial, agricultural and industrial development of this favored section of Alabama as the Wright Brothers' Kitty Hawk aeroplane flight meant to aviation.

Yes, Clanton's and Chilton County's participation in National Air Mail Week can mean proportionately as much, but it will not mean anything unless the Probate Judge and Commissioners Court, the Mayor and Town Council, Representative in the Legislature, school authorities, other appointed and elected officials, together with the clubs and societies organized for the advancement and development of this county, catch the vision of progress reflected by National Air Mail Week and provide the leadership, inspiration and encouragement necessary to interest every citizen in his or her civic and social responsibility as a citizen.

Hundreds of friends in Chilton County know that I am a native of this county, that my parents were born and reared in this county, that I lived here for 25 years, facts of which I am proud. I love Chilton County and know that it has every facility, every resource, every advantage, save one, to become the "bright spot" in the best state in the United States. That single exception is a full time, well planned and properly executed program of education to eradicate the widespread lack of understanding of the problems necessary for the growth of a rural agricultural community. That means not only adequate educational facilities for the children and youth of this county, but of equal and probably more importance, a program of adult education.

As long as the leaders, not only in Chilton County, but in entire State of Alabama as well, make education secondary to other state functions, just that long will progress and prosperity in Alabama be seriously retarded.

Because of circumstances, my home is now in California, but Clanton and Chilton County will always have my sympathies and best wishes. May the example of National Air Mail Week and this county's participation in its celebration be an inspiration not only to the leaders in the county, but to every citizen as well.—Claude E. Marcus.

PREPARE FOR SCARCITY

Everywhere, I hear folks talking about too much cotton, wheat and other produce being raised; about destroying part of it, and reducing acreage.

I do not believe too much is being raised, for there are too many people who have not sufficient clothes and food. But if there is too much, we had better beware of destroying it. We have been blessed with plenty for a long time, but the time could come quickly when we would not raise anything.

When Pharaoh was king of Egypt there were seven years of plenty and seven years when there was nothing. If you will read the book of Genesis you will find a true record of this story. The king was warned of this, and took heed. He built and stored away the grain that was not used when there was plenty. Then at the end of seven years drought struck the country. The people began to want something to eat. The king had the storehouse opened and fed his nation and others around him.

I think we are having a few warnings about our grain. In some states crops were burned for lack of rain, while in others they were flooded. I think it would be wise for America to have its committeemen go around and gather the overproduction and store it away instead of making away with it. I don't believe the Lord will allow too much to be raised if He did not know we would need it later.

This is not written in criticism of anyone whatsoever, but I am just telling it the way I see our condition.—Mrs. Frances Hudman, R 1, Jemison, Ala.

DRY FEED DEVELOPS PROFITABLE CALVES; CHEAPER THAN MILK

Gray Summit, Mo.—When milk sells for a good price the average dairyman is up against it. He wants calves, and he wants cash. The average cost of milk-feeding a calf to six months frequently represents one-half or more of the total cost of raising a heifer to freshening age. High milk cost is an important item. But more important is the fact that calves fed on milk develop beefiness instead of the size and strength of bodies so essential to heavy milking cows.

Milk Is Expensive Feed

One noted dairy specialist estimates that a milk-fed baby calf from birth up to four months consumes 200 gallons of milk. Two hundred gallons of milk at an average price of twenty cents a gallon makes the cost of raising a milk-fed calf up to four months, forty dollars.

"Too much money," say dairymen. Not many can afford to spend forty dollars to build a four months calf. Such high costs at the start cut down the margin of profit later when the animal goes into the milking barn. And, from a point of nutrition, the calf fed on milk alone does not get all the things it needs for building the profit-making body of a milker.

Calves Need Solid Matter

Milk is 87 percent water. Consequently, after the first few weeks baby calves fed on milk alone do not get solid matter enough to meet their needs. Heifers that show up on the profit side of the ledger are those that are grown out well during the first few months and kept on a complete and balanced growing feed up to the time they freshen.

A simple plan of getting away from excessive cost of milk feeding baby calves, and at the same time supplying them with a more nutritious and better growing feed has been worked out here at the Purina Experimental Farm where hundreds of baby calves have been fed on test rations.

With Dams 3 Days

Calves at the Purina Experimental Farm are left with their dams only three days. When the calf is four days old it is taken from its mother and given its first taste of dry feed—a nutritious, balanced starting feed that with hay supplies all materials a calf needs for making bones and muscles.

For the first few days a baby calf will not eat much dry feed. As it grows older, however, the amount increases. For the first four weeks some milk is fed along with the dry feed. At the Purina Experimental Farm calves are given two quarts of milk pe. day for the first week after being taken from their dams, and all the calf startena and hay they will eat. Milk is increased to four quarts per day at the beginning of the second week and held to that amount for a week. At the same time calves are given free access to calf startena, hay, salt, and water. Milk is stepped up to five quarts per day at the third week but at the beginning of the fourth week, the amount of milk is cut to three quarts per day. Naturally the calf is hungry and consequently begins to eat more calf startena and hay, and drinks more water to replace milk as a liquid. These amounts of milk are sufficient for Holstein calves. Guernseys and Jerseys require one-fifth less milk.

No Milk After First Month

After one month calves are given no milk at all. Calf startena, plenty of hay, block salt, and fresh, clean water are the entire ration. This program of feeding saves 180 to 18[illegible] gallons of milk on every calf raised. With milk at twenty cents a gallon, the dairyman who raises his calves this way, gets a money saving of thirty-six dollars, which is far more than enough to pay for three or four bags of calf startena needed to build the frame and body of a four months' heifer.

When the dry calf started program used on the Purina Experimental Farm is followed, calves of excellent growth and development are consistently developed. Depth of body, spring of rib, and strength of top line are much better and a thrifty growing condition is uniformly maintained from birth.

'GATOR HUNTER, DROWNING IN SWAMP, SAVED BY LIGHT RAY UNDER WATER

DON GRAY, Jr., of West Palm Beach, Fla., near death from drowning in one of the sink-holes which make hunting in the Everglades Swamp so perilous, owes his rescue to the beam from a flashlight, which he had held onto as he went down and which continued to shine under water.

Gray was on his first alligator hunt. Luckily, his companions, T. T. Reese, Jr., and William Brandenburg, Jr., also of West Palm Beach, were experienced in the dangers of the Everglades — that mysterious American jungle where cotton mouth moccasins abound and large yellow tulip-shaped pads conceal sink-holes which can drag a man to death.

Gathering at the edge of the swamp about midnight, the three fanned out and began the hunt. Reese and Branderburg wore headlights, and Gray carried a hand flashlight. Each had a spear, made by attaching a hook to a ten-foot cypress pole. Experienced alligator hunters wear light, low shoes so they can swim if they get into trouble. Gray made the mistake of wearing hip boots, but it was too late to change without considerable delay.

For about an hour the hunters walked through the swamp, stepping gingerly around lily pads. Reese and Brandenburg tried to keep an eye on Gray's flashlight bobbing along several yards to their left.

"Then I suppose we got careless," said Reese, "or we began thinking more about the hunt than about Don. The first we knew, his light wasn't in sight. We got into action and in a few seconds, Bill had located him. Don had gone down through a lily pad, but the light from his flashlight was shining up through the water. We hadn't seen it from where we were because some trees were in the way.

"We knew Don's heavy boots were dragging him deeper into the ooze. We threw down some brush and other debris and, lying on it, got hold of him and hauled him out. He was nearly gone, but artificial resuscitation brought him around. The batteries in his flashlight were fresh ones when he put them in, so they kept on working even when under water. If they hadn't, we never would have found him."

Reese is well-known around West Palm Beach for his ability as an alligator hunter. He uses the hides for pocketbooks, luggage and trophies, and also occasionally brings back an alligator alive, keeping him as an attraction for tourists.

CAN'T MAKE IT STICK

Probably on the uncomplimentary assumption that the average farmer is a pretty gullible fellow, Secretary Wallace in Omaha the other day regaled a farm audience with the extraordinary doctrine that the way to save democracy is to destroy it by regimentation, or words to the same effect. It requires "both planning and cooperation" he added, to "make democracy work". Apparently, the planners who have yet to see one of their plans turn out as planned, still have the temerity to talk about planning without choking or getting red in the face.

Mr. Wallace was trying to persuade farmers to put the rope of regimentation about their necks, for a consideration. But even Mr. Wallace may live to learn that the farmer will never welcome government interference with his business. He may tolerate it, in exchange for a subsidy, but he will never be happy under it. When the subsidy stops, the interference will stop.—Springfield Union.

ISOLATION

Let us hear no more of the nonsense about the duty of the United States to form a united front with the "democracies of the Old World" to combat fascism and communism.

There is no such common ground for action. It is a figment of the imagination; the pet child of the propagandist; the Charlie McCarty of European politicians who would like to see this country once more pull their chestnuts out of the fire.

It would be a good thing if they were told in no uncertain and final terms, that America will stay on this side of the Atlantic—let them cut their own throats if they will.—Sacramento Bee.

A GESTURE IS ENOUGH

The president of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, Sir Geoffrey Clarke, told an English audience this week that Great Britain's war debt to the United States may be "tacitly overlooked in the United Kingdom, but it is a very real thing in America".

And he argued that a "gesture toward payment would go far toward allaying suspicions and reviving that confidence in British integrity which is our great pride".

A gesture would hardly accomplish what Sir Geoffrey appears to think it would.

The only thing that will restore confidence in the integrity of our war debtors is for them to cut out the gesticulating and repay in full the amount at which their debts were fixed by agreement after the war. — Detroit Free Press.

For two years France has been experimenting with a New Deal and now it has a dictator. Do coming events always cast their shadows before?

The Moscow reds are now purging what is left of the Russian church. It won't be long until they begin purging the purgers, and that is usually the finish.

"Reform before recovery" has been the slogan of many New Deal proponents. Now it would seem that recession comes before both of them.

What is the use of priming the pump if the bottom of the water bucket is full of holes,

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Of the first bunch of primary elections held in May, only that of Florida is regarded as having national significance. In the peninsular state, Senator Claude Pepper, carrying the banner of the New Deal, won a decisive victory over his Democratic opponents, the most important of whom was Rep. J. Mark Wilcox, a frequent opponent of the New Deal at Washington. The nomination of Sen. Pepper was generally expected by the political prognosticators at Washington. It is always difficult to defeat the candidates of the organization in power in a primary. In the Florida case the usual assets of the federal organization were enforced by all the pressure of relief and relief work, and by the prospects of a generous share of the four and a half billion "pump priming" money, which is now "coming up".

The Florida result, however, has a great deal of significance for those so-called Jeffersonian Democrats who have been opposing the New Deal. These old line Democrats have been loath to break with their party, either in joining with the Republicans or forming a new political organization, because they have fondly hoped they might be able to capture control of the Democratic organization in 1940 and nominate candidates of their own choosing. This clear cut New Deal pictory in the Florida primary must show them how difficult any such task will be. It only emphasizes the fact that in gaining and keeping control of the party organization the national administration is always well nigh invincible. If the New Deal lengthens its hold on the Democratic organization in the primaries, as the Florida result indicates it may easily do, then the hope of the old fashioned Democrats for regaining party control will have gone glimmering and the way to a real political realignment made easier.

The Florida result is not without its lesson for the Republicans of the country, too. Many of them, unacquainted with the inside workings of Florida politics, had hoped and believed that the New Deal was due for an intra-party thumping in the Southern commonwealth. They failed to take into consideration the power of the federal machine and the vote getting ability of relief, relief work, and the promise of public "improvements". They must not fail to take into account that these elements have great strength in a November election as well as in a primary. And it will not do to neglect to consider the new "pump priming" billions that are about to be made available for "public use".

Republicans everywhere have shown growing confidence in the future. They have pointed to the depression as a political handicap to the New Deal administration, and have cited polls to show that the administration is slipping in popular favor. There is, of course, something in all of this. But the Republicans must remember that they were confident in the summer of 1934 and in the summer of 1936, too, when the tide seemed to be running against the New Deal, before various forms of relief expenditures started in real earnest.

Therefore, if the Republicans are to get any lesson from the Florida primary it is that something more than mere confidence that "the tide has turned" is in order. They must realize the size of the task before them. If they are to win in November, 1938, and make sizeable gains in congress, It will be necessary that they cease speculating as to who will be the national chairman, and the presidential candidate in 1940, and join hands on the immediate task of electing more congressmen, senators and governors in 1938. This can be done only by selecting good candidates and giving them intelligent and loyal support in the fall campaign. It will not do to rely on the "tide that has turned". The tide usually ebbs and flows.

PUMP PRIMING TO PRIMARY PUMPING

President Roosevelt's ultimate goals seldom miss the approval of the national conscience. With his national social purposes but few will disagree. The disagreement raises over the remedies and policies adopted to attain his objectives. Leaders in his own party, of long experience and recognized as men of judgment, are frequently compelled to lead the opposition to his policies and remedies, on ground that they are unsound and impractical.

Take the policy of spending our way back to prosperity: It violates the inbred common sense and common virtues of the people. But they said the emergency may justify the experiment. Now, after four years of spending in all directions, like drunken sailors, we find ourselves in a situation more menacing than when we started.

Who was right: The president with his theory of spending, or the people with their inbred common sense of saving, frugal living and doing without when they haven't the money to buy?

Most of this propaganda about a new era, a new day, and everything is changing, is for the express purpose of clothing unsound and foolish theories in the habiliments of emergency, and to make the people believe it has become necessary to abandon the sound practices of honest living.

The common virtues never change. "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread", is the immutable economic law of existence. It is the bed rock principle of social living as the Ten Commandments are our moral law, and as the Sermon on the Mount is our soul's salvation.

The spending policy has not only piled up indebtedness that will burden the bent backs of the toilers for the next 50 years, but it has led us away for a time from the great fundamentals, stilled the conscience, atrophied the integrity, the industry, the independence and sapped the moral vitality of the citizen.—Enid (Okla.) News.

While we are priming the pump again, wouldn't it be well this time to see who mislaid the pump handle?—Dallas Journal.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently at the International Association of Young Peoples Fellowship Clubs in the annual convention at the Bob Jones College, Cleveland, Tenn., a resolution was introduced unanimously requesting the international officers to send a special letter from the clubs in the United States to the Young Peoples Clubs in China, Japan, India, Cuba, the British Isles, Palestine, and other parts of the world, to the effect that if war sweeps over the world and nation should rise against nation, the clubs in the United States wish the foreign clubs to understand that they are brothers in Jesus Christ. The resolutions assured the foreign clubs that they would pray earnestly for these young people regardless of what might happen if war came. There are clubs in Japan and there are clubs in China, and yet Japan and China are at war. Christians are in this world, but they are not of it. Their citizenship is in heaven. Of course, Christians have to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's", but they also "render unto God the things that are God's". Nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. So nothing can separate us from each other as Christian people. We have the same life. We are cleansed by the same blood. We are traveling the same road. We are on our way to the same city. Forever and forever under the cloudless sky of that heavenly land, we will live together. "Our conversation is in heaven". The literal meaning of this word "conversation" is citizenship; or, probably, the best rendering is "constitution". In other words, the source of our authority is in heaven. Christ is high over all. All authority is given unto Him in heaven and in earth. Men can reign only as He permits them to reign. He does not always direct men who are in authority. We could have no life, no strength, no power, without His permissive will.

The Bible teaches explicitly that the devil some time will be chained in hell. The devil is not now in hell. The idea of the devil being in hell now is Miltonic—it is not scriptural. He is going to hell, his doom is sealed, but he is not there now. He is called the "god of this world". He is the "prince of the power of the air". There is only one devil, but, according to the Bible, there are many demons. The devil is not omnipresent — only God is omnipresent. However, the devil has so many demons that so far as this world is concerned, he is practically omnipresent. His messengers are everywhere. One time the devil was cast out of heaven into the air. Later he is to be cast out of the air into the earth. Then later he is to be cast out of the earth into hell. "Jesus shall reign wherever the sun doth his successive journeys run". The devil's "I will" was the beginning of sin in this universe. Sin always pulls down. It pulled the devil down out of heaven into the air, out of the air into the earth, out of earth into hell. Righteousness reaches up; sin reaches down. God creates; Satan destroys. God loves; Satan hates. The devil is a usurper. He does not own anything. "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof". The devil is a usurper when he takes over a community or a human life. Any man who accepts what the devil offers receives stolen goods. Everything belongs to Jesus—the flowers, the birds, the trees, the land, the rivers, the mines, the forests, the earth, the stars—all are His. We are His when we are Christians. We are joint heirs with him. We shall share with Him forever all that He has ever created. All things were made by Him and for Him.

Rodeo Prizes Ready

One of the finest collections of fishing tackle, silver cups, and other articles ever assembled is ready for the 10th Annual Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo to be held in lower Mobile Bay August 8, 9 and 10. Thirty leading manufacturers, sporting goods houses, publishers and others have donated an imposing array of prizes. There are 7 complete deep sea fishing outfits, including rods and reels; an outboard motor; nearly 3,000 yards of line; half a dozen silver cups; an assortment of lures; subscriptions to national magazines; and many other items. In the 1937 rodeo, the first prize for the largest tarpon was worth over $100, with other prizes ranging nearly as high. Over 600 deep sea anglers are expected to attend the rodeo this year. The Alabama Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo Association, a non-profit organization, is making plans for the big event.

Fisheries Society To Meet

The American Fisheries Society will hold its annual convention in Asheville, N. C., the week of June 20-25, according to I. T. Quinn, president of the Society, and Alabama Conservation Commissioner. The fisheries group will meet in conjunction with the International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners. Technical papers and discussions of all phases of fish propagation and protection will be on the program, which will be of special interest to the South and Alabama because many problems relating to our Southern warm water fishes will be discussed. Some of these include natural foods for warm water fishes; effect of soil erosion on fish life; and spawning in hydro-electric reservoirs.

Four California duck clubs learned by court order that it is still against the law to shoot ducks over baited grounds. A U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a lower court in denying members and stockholders the right to shoot ducks over baited grounds, even if it did cause loss of investment to said members and stockholders. "An important step in migratory water fowl conservation", said Dr. Ira Gabrielson, chief of the U. S. Biological Survey, in charge of enforcement.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

SPECIALIST STRESSES FRUIT JUICE VALUES

Auburn, May 16. — Prepare to can two quarts of fruit juice for each member of your family, Lavada Curtis, specialist in food preservation of the Alabama Extension Service, advises Alabama farm women.

This is the season for making the juices of fruits such as strawberries, dewberries, and blackberries. Juice of these fruits make delicious desserts which should be used more freely in the home. You will find these home-made fruit juices excellent for use in gelatin desserts, puddings, sauces, ice cream, sherbet, and beverages.

The flavor of these juices will be finer if they are pressed from fruit which has been heated and processed at temperature below the boiling point. The addition of sugar will give a finer flavor, says Miss Curtis.

To preserve the natural flavor and color, use stainless steel and avoid utensils of copper, brass and iron.

Use only fully ripe, firm fruit. Discard any green, moldy, or decayed fruit. Handle the fruit in quantities of 1 to 2 gallons, and avoid delay at any stage of procedure. Crush the fruit and pre-cook at 170 degrees F., or if a thermometer is not available, simmer until softened. Avoid boiling. Strain and add 1 cup of sugar to each gallon of juice. Reheat the juice to 190 degrees F., and pour into sterilized containers. Do not leave head space in glass or tin containers. Process quarts 20 minutes at simmering temperature.

STATE AAA COMMITTEE ELECTS 1938 OFFICERS

Auburn, May 16. — New officers of the State Agricultural Conservation Committee to serve during the coming year were chosen at a meeting in the office of Director of Extension P. O. Davis on May 6.

T. H. Martin, Gordo, was reelected chairman; W. B. Crawley, Banks, was chosen vice chairman; A. W. Jones, recently appointed acting administrator of the AAA to succeed Walter L. Randolph, was named secretary. Under the 1938 farm act, Director Davis is an ex-officio member of the committee.

Members present at the meeting were: Mr. Martin, Mr. Crawley, G. W. Creel of Boaz, L. S. Fluker of Livingston, and Mr. Davis.

COUNTY FARM LOAN NEWS

Checks amounting to $1,740 have been mailed to 38 farmers in Chilton County bf tre Chilton County National Farm Loan Association, acsording to an announcement made by D. W. Waite, secretary-treasurer of the association. These payments represent a refund of capital stock in the association owned by the 38 farmers who are receiving the checks. These farmers are entitled to this capital stock refund because of payment in full of the loans which they obtained from the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans through the local association. These members of the association, like other similar borrowers, at the time they obtained their loans subscribed for capital stock of the association in an amount equal to five per cent of their loans. The association in turn subscribed for the same amount of stock in the Federal Land Bank of this district.

The association endorses and becomes liable for all loans made through it and the borrower's stock is pledged as collateral security for these and other association obligations. The stock to which the association subscribes in the Federal Land Bank is held by the bank as security for the debts owed by the association to it. As long as the association is in a position to meet its oblivations currently, the bank, upon full payment of a loan, refunds the stock taken out when that loan was made. The association can then pay the borrower-member the amount of his stock.

"During the recent depression the Chilton County Farm Loans Association, together with many others, was unable to meet its obligations currently so that it was impossible for stock proceeds to be refunded when a loan was paid in full", according to Mr. Waite. "Repayment of capital stock at this time illustrates the sound and prudent management of the association's board of directors. This association was organized near the beginning of the Farm Loan System in 1917 and since that time has served the farmers of its territory in good as well as bad years.

The management of this association is in the hands of a board of directors elected by its owner-members. The present directors are: J. N. Dennis, J. D. Broadhead, C. C. Cofer, W. J. Easterling, and B. F. Massey.

AAA MAKING FINAL COTTON ALLOTMENTS

Auburn, May 16. — Final apportionment of Alabama's cotton acreage under the 1938 program is expected to be completed within the next two weeks, states Bernard L. Collins, acting administrator of the AAA until the arrival of A. W. Jones on May 15. The state AAA office is working at top speed in making allotments to producers who did not grow cotton in 1935, 1936, or 1937, but who plan to grow a crop this year.

The complete allotted cotton acreage of the state will be announced as soon as these allotments are made, he says, since individual allotments have already been released for those producers who grew cotton in the three previous years and had work sheets on file in the county offices. A state acreage reserve has been held out to take care of the new cotton growers, but this reserve will not be broken down to counties until all work sheets for these farms are in the state office.

RADIO STATIONS PLAN FOR FARM AND HOME PROGRAMS

Auburn, May 16. — Alabama farm men and women can soon tune in their nearest radio stations for the latest information about farm and home making, which will be given in an entertaining and educational program to be broadcast by these stations weekly, announces P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

In addition to Station WAPI, Birmingham, over which a half hour farm family forum is broadcast daily, six other stations have arranged to present weekly farm programs in cooperation with the Alabama Extension Service, Director Davis states. It is hoped that within a short time similar programs will be broadcast over the four remaining stations in the state so that farm people will have an opportunity to get the latest crop and farm information . Harwood Hull, Jr., assistant extension agricultural editor, prepares these programs in cooperation with county agents in each town where stations are located.

Following are the stations which have already started the weekly broadcasts, and their schedule: WHBB, Selma, Wednesday, 12 to 12:30; WJBY, Gadsden, Wednesday, 11:30 to 11:45; WBHP, Huntsville, Friday, 11:30 to 12; WALA, Mobile, Monday, 5 to 5:30; and WSFA, Montgomery, Tuesday, 2 to 2:30. Stations which have not yet scheduled weekly farm broadcasts are those in Tuscaloosa, Dothan, Decatur, and Sheffield.

AUGUST 1-6 DATES FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, May 16. — One of the most outstanding programs from the recreational and educational standpoint ever held is being worked out for hundreds of Alabama farmers and farm women who will gather at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, August 1 to 6, for the 1938 Farmers and Homemakers Week, announces P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

As part of the educational and recreational program, Director Davis says that state and national agricultural leaders will be present to address the farm people. Community singing, so popular in the past, will be continued this year, as will the sections or classes in livestock, landscaping, poultry, forestry, and other phases of agriculture in which the farm people are interested.

The latest facts on farming and homemaking gathered through experiments of the Alabama Experiment Station will be given the farm men and women, the director states. In addition, tours will be conducted so that the group may see what is being done to improve Alabama crops and farm practices.

All persons attendiny Farmers and Homemakers Week will be housed in cottages of the state camp on the campus at Auburn. Assemblies for speakers and singing will be in the assembly hall of the camp.

EROSION CONTROL

Many farmers in the erosion control demonstration area near Clanton, Ala. will reap additional benefits this summer from winter cover crops which protected their soil during the winter and early spring months, according to Mr. James H. Wood.

Nitrogen added to the soil by turning under such crops as crimson clover, vetch, and Austrian winttr peas will increase the yields of cash crops which follow, while the green manure will add humus-forming material to the land, increase the absorption of rain fall, and make the soil easier to work.

The advantage of early planting and proper inoculation could readily be seen during the winter and early spring by the increased growth where these practices were followed in comparison with the growth of the same crops when they fere inoculated poorly or plnated late. More effective cover over a longer period and more green manure to be turned under were obtained by early planting and proper inoculation, Mr. Wood said.

The increased use of leguminous cover crops as a part of the erosion control program on cooperating farms is giving farmers an opportunity to nd out through their own experience the many benefits to be derived from these crops and to learn the methods of planting which give most successful growth. It is also resulting in inoculation of the soil which will make it easier to get a good growth in the future.

Virtually all of the cooperating farmers who are growing these crops are saving seed from at least a portion of their acreage this spring, especially in the case of crimson clover, for increasing their plnatings next fall, and in view of the knowledge they have acquired, they expect to plant early and be sure the land is properly inoculated, he added.

BAKER CLUB

The Baker Home Demonstration Club met at the home of Miss Pauline Sisk on Tuesday, May 12, at 2 o'clock, with several members present. The meeting was called to order by the president, followed by the roll call and reading of the minutes by the secretary. Mrs. J. A. Marcus then gave "Better Schools in Rural America", which is to be the subject of the speaking contest to be held May 26 at the county rally. After the business was disposed of, a most enjoyable social hou was held, during which sandfiches cookies and lemonade were served t the members and Miss Grace. At a late hour the meeting adjourned, to meet next month with Mrs. I. E. Edwards.—Pauline Sisk, Reporter.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Sermon on a Penny.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to God and Country.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obligations of Christian Citizenship.

"For God and Country" is a rallying cry that well summarizes the spirit and duty of the Christian citizen. So clear and inspiring are the teachings of God's Word regarding the relationship of the Christian to his country that one marvels that national leaders who are seeking to stimulate civic loyalty do not promote a revival of the study of the Bible. Dr. Moore is right when he says, "No bad citizen is a good Christian and no good Christian is a bad citizen." The solution of our nation's problems would be a great evangelistic campaign from coast to coast. A man like Moody would then appear in his true position as a great patriot. The soul-winner would be more important than the vote-getter. Why not try it?

Our lesson presents our Lord on Tuesday of His passion week, when He met His adversaries in their cunning efforts to entrap Him in His words so that they might condemn Him. The two incidents before us have broader application than to citizenship alone, but we may well consider them in that light, for they reveal that the citizen who is right with God will be right with the nation and with his own neighbors.

I. The Christian Citizen Loves His Country (vv. 13-17).

The Pharisees, who hated Rome for its domination of Palestine, and the Herodians, who supported Rome in its control of the land, were enemies, but they joined forces to tempt Christ. They knew that if He said "Yes" to their question the Jews would be angry, and if He said "No" He could be condemned as a traitor to Rome.

The trap was set, but it caught only the crafty hunters. Taking their own pocket money he declared that if they used Caesar's money they ought to pay taxes to Caesar. The coin stood for an orderly government, benefits of which they enjoyed and which they ought to support.

II. The Christian Citizen Loves God (vv. 20-30).

Although this point comes second in our lesson it comes first in experience. It is the man who renders unto God the love of the heart, soul, mind, and all of his strength (v. 30) who is ready really to love his country as he should.

The scribes loved to dispute about which was the greatest of the 613 commandments which they recognized. Jesus astonished them by referring to the passage of Scripture most familiar to the Jews (Deut. 6:4, 5), which declares the unity and absolute exclusiveness of the Lord our God. It may be well for us to stress this truth even in our time, for most folk regard the worship and service of God as optional.

III. The Christian Citizen Loves His Neighbor (vv. 31-34).

The scribe did not ask for the second commandment but Jesus presents it as an unavoidable corollary of the first. The man who really loves God will love his neighbor.

Every social injustice would be wiped out and every cause for strife removed if all men loved their fellow-man as they love themselves. Such a condition will never prevail, however, until men love God. It is too much for the flesh to put others before self. Only the grace of God is sufficient for that. Hence the real solution of the problems of capital and labor, the "haves" and the "have nots" is to win the men and women on both sides of the struggle to a true love for God through Jesus Christ our Lord. In other words, we come again to the inevitable conclusion that what our nation needs is a revival.

Social panaceas, revolution either by force or by law, dictatorships, all these are destined to failure. Men must learn to know and love God supremely and thus come to love their neighbors as themselves.

The crossroad Sunday - school teacher, the missionary in the city slums, the preacher of the gospel, whether in the great city or on the the countryside, the faithful Christian living out the love of Christ daily in kindly word and deed—these are the real forces for social as well as spiritual good. Let us do all we can to prosper their ministry!

POSSIBILITIES IN POULTRY

(By E. S. McConnell, Poultry Specialist, Cosby-Hodges Milling Co., Birmingham, Ala.

What is the future of agriculture in Alabama? With crop restrictions being effected on our cotton, the production of which hasn't been very profitable in the past few years, we will be compelled to add other enterprises to our farming operations. We must do this to obtain year round employment and cash income on our farms. We must become more self supporting. Our system of agriculture will have to undergo major changes if the majority of our farming population is to enjoy prosperity.

Eroded fields and dilapidated farm structures are striking indications of our present condition. Diversified farming is the solution to this problem. Our state is well adapted for such a type of agriculture. The people of Alabama must recognize these facts and delay no longer in bringing about such a change. This problem demands the cooperation of all groups of ou rpeople—bankers and other credit agencies as financiers—the Extension Service for guidance and leadership—our business men to furnish assistance in instituting such a system —and the most essential. an aroused farming population that realizes its predicament and is ready to do something about it. The time for talk has passed—now is the time for action.

By diversifying we mean that our farms should produce more feed crops, fruits and vegetables, milk, beef, pork, poultry and eggs.

This article was meant primarily to deal with poultry and the opportunities in this field. There is no fortune to be made with poultry as an enterprise, but if properly handled, a reasonable profit is to be relaized. Before starting a poultry project on a large scale, one should inform himself on the housing, feeding, management, and disease control of his flock. Poultry is well adapted to be one of the major enterprises in the operation of the average Alabama farm. Also, there are opportunities in many localities for specialized poultry farms.

The good producer (that is, the man with good stock and equipment, who manages his farm efficiently, who practices an effective system of disease control, and who sticks with the poultry business) always makes a profit. Of course, the amount he clears will vary from season to season and year to year.

Poultry will benefit this state most if every farm has a flock of 100 or 200 pure bred hens. Such flocks will do much to furnish an income the year round and lift us out of our present depressed condition. Let's have "balanced" farming here in Alabama and a farming population that is satisfied and has a higher standard of living.

John E. Ivey, extension poultry man of the Alabama Extension Service, emphasizes that succulent green feed will increase the rate of growth of baby chicks, lower the feed cost, and help keep the future layers and fryers in good condition.

THORSBY INSTITUTE WOULD HATE TO LOSE MADDOX

It would be a source of much personal regret on the part of Thorsby Institute if Mr. Rascoe Maddox should be elected County Superintendent, for he has proven himself an excellent registrar and teacher.

He is a graduate of Thorsby Institute, with his A. B. from Piedmont College, from which he was graduated summa cum laudi, and his A. M. from the University of North Carolina. He has read widely, his special hobby being "books," of which he owns very many.

While Thorsby Institute does not wish to part from him, yet, we would not stand in the way of his being elected County Superintendent. We believe he will be very fair in his dealings with those associated with him. We know that he is one who thinks of the best interests of all concerned, regardless of his personal convenience. He has the intellect, ability and culture that should make him an excellent County Superintendent of Education.—Helen C. Jenkins, Principal.

REPUBLICANS OPEN BROAD FIGHT ON RECOVERY PLANS

Minority Of The House Appropriations Committee Charges That Program Threatens National Solvency

Washington, May 11. — Republican members of the House appropriations committee charged in a minority report today that President Roosevelt's $4,512,000,000 recovery program is threatening national solvency.

Declaring the program "inadequate to meet the serious condition of the country," the report, filed by Reps. John Taber of New York, Robert L. Bacon of New York, and Richard B. Wigglesworth of Massachusetts, demanded that the administration of relief be returned to the states, and recmend a congressional investigation of the Works Progress Administration.

It charged that the program, which the president said would cost about $4,512,000,000, in reality was "part of a broad program which involves a new draft of $6,000,000,000 upon the treasury of the United States.

"Describing the unanimous verdict of reputable economic opinion, this depression flows directly from the dangerous monetary, fiscal, and administrative policies of the Roosevelt administration."

The minority concluded their report with 12 recommendations, and the warning:

"Words are not sufficient — action is imperative now".

The three Republican members of the committee which drafted legislation for the Administration's lending-spending program recommended:

1. That relief be administered by a bi-partisan board in Washington, with bi-partisan local administration, on the basis of fedefal relief grants limited to 80 per cent of each state's needs.

2. Elimination of Title II of the pending bill which appropriates $965,000,000 for the PWA.

3. An amendment forbidding use of any WPA funds on projects competing with private business or enterprise if recommendations 1 and 2 are not incorporated.

4. Congressional investigation of WPA and expenditure of relief funds —"especially in Pennsylvania and other states where charges o fpolitics and flagrant misuse of funds have been made publicly".

5. Outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax and revision of "antiquated federal tax structure".

6. Elimination of tax exempt securities.

7. Reduction at once of "unnecessary and burdensome" social security taxes.

8. Elimination of "harassing restrictions and administration assaults on business".

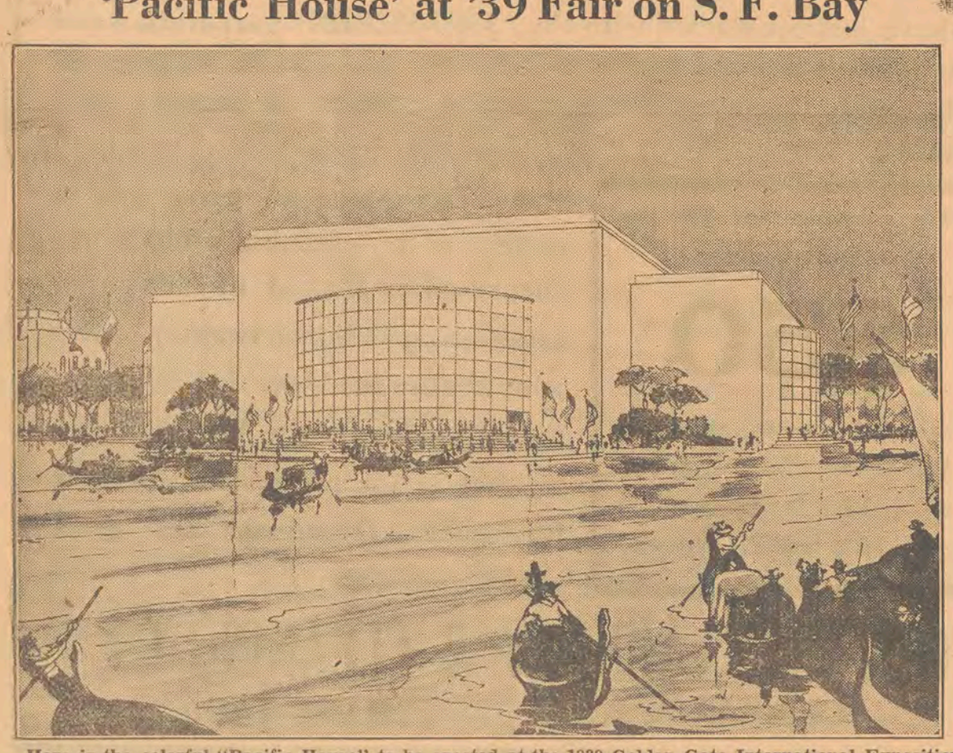
9. Restriction of government competition with private enterprise.

10. Revision of the national labor relations act to promote harmony "and not discord, as at present" between employees and employers.

11. Repeal at once of the Thomas greenback law.

12. Elimination of waste and extravagance throughout the entire federal government to reduce expenditures and bring about a balanced budget.

Although favoring return of the administration of relief to the states, the minority urged that the federal government continue to carry the burden of its costs.



They said that under their plan each state could contribute 25 cents for every dollar the federal government grants them—thus swelling the total available for relief from $1,250,000,000 to $1,562,500,000.

The report was made public as Republicans in the House charged that the recovery bill would enable states and cities to evade their own debt limitation laws.

Clamps Won One, Lost One In First Week

The newly organized "Clamps" baseball team won one and lost one in the first week's play.

Saturday afternoon at Clanton they nosed out the International Harvester team of Birmingham, 7 to 6. A complete account and box score of this game could not be obtained.

Give Away Sunday's Game

Sunday's game at Lay Dam with the Stockham Pipe Works started out like a slugfest, but soon got down to a real tight ball game.

In the visitors' half of the first inning, Cather and Rancount singled, and Giles tripled, two runs coming across. But here Golson tightened, and although Burton went safe on Marcus' bobble, Giles was out at the plate, and no more harm was done.

In their half of the first, the Clamps doubled the score. Marcus went safe on an error, Williamson tripled, Littlejohn grounded to the pitcher, Hayes singled, Jones walked, Tiffin grounded to the pitcher, and Baker and Smith singled, the melee scoring four runs.

It was mostly a 3-up and 3-down game for the next seven frames, but the fireworks broke loose in the visitors' half of the ninth.

With Bailey out on a fly, Ward went in to hit for Pugh, and singled; Cather singled; Rancount lifted weakly to Golson; two were gone. And then it happened. Giles tapped a weak looping pop to Alex Hayes, and "Papa's Boy" let it filter through and drop to the ground, one run scoring. But that was not all. The ball game was still in the bag 4 to 3, but the Clamps just couldn't "clamp". Burton lifted an easy fly to Tiffin in right, and the over-anxious Gabby ran under it, and it went for a double. Three more good healthy singles rattled out before the catastrophe was over, ant when the smoke had cleared the visitors were leading, 7 to 4.

The Clamps didn't threaten much in their half, although Baker did single, but died there, and another good ball game had been presented on a silver platter.

It was a game the unlucky Golson should have won easily, but for the mishaps.

Snyder led the visitors with three hits, while Dock Baker led the locals with three.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

State Chamber of Commerce representatives spent an exceptionally busy week meeting with business leaders in many sections of the state.

Monday, May 9, Secretary John M. Ward addressed a group at Eutaw, at which meeting Greene County completed its quota of the State Chamber budget.

Monday night the secretary, accompanied by G. Arthur Cook, State Chamber treasurer, attended a meeting of the Monroeville Chamber of Commerce. Considerable interest was manifest in the presentation of the Chamber's program. While in Monroeville, the State Chamber officials visited the new plant of hte Vanity Fair Silk Mills.

Tuesday, R. H. Mangum, of the Alabama Power Company, and T. C. Reid, of the State Chamber, appeared before the Rotary Club at Marion, and Tuesday night before, the Exchange Club at Uniontown, in the interest of the Chamber, these meetings resulting in raising the quota for Perry County.

Wednesday, Mr. Ward was accorded a warm reception when he spoke befor the Lions Club at Bay Minette. The meeting was arranged by F. S. Holmes, State Chamber director for Baldwin County, and Jimmy Faulkner, publisher of the Baldwin County Times.

MAKING USE OF OUR OVERRIPE BERRIES

Over Half Of Crop Would Have Gone To Waste But For Bama Company

The day for the strawberry growers of Chilton County has been saved, due to the fact that overripe berries can be saved and utilized, thanks to the Bama Company of Birmingham.

Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local sales manager for Clanton Berry Growers, through the cooperation of the growers and pickers and the Bama Company, has been able to market overripe berries this year and saved to the growers over $10,000, which otherwise would have gone to complete waste. Through the efforts of Mr. Diefenderfer, it was found that pickers could stem the berries as they were picked in the field, and thus avoid them having to be handled after they reached the plant in Birmingham other than to be washed and sugared. This leaves the berries in much better shape for canning and preserving.

The importance of this accomplishment may easily be seen by glancing at the figures this year: The entire crop so far has brought around $17,000 for Clanton Berry Growers. From 10 to 11 thousand dollars of this, or about two-thirds of the entire proceeds, came from the sale and marketing of overripe berries, or berries that could not be shipped to distant cities, but which are really the best berries of our entire crop. And too, local haulers have been made to realize something out of the deal, they having been paid approximately $900 by the association for hauling these berries to Birmingham.

Mr. Diefenderfer pointed out further that during the past four years, by trucking overripe berries to Bama Company, growers here have been paid approxmately $30,000. And when one considers that most of these berries would have been a total loss, it can be realized what it means to the growers for them to be saved and utilized.

And further, Mr. Diefenderfer calls attendtion to a fact which we are pleased to pass on to the trading public of Clanton and territory. All the grocery stores here handle "Bama" brand preserves, jellies, Etc. These people have meant much to our berry growers, and it is nothing but just and right that we remember them when we go into a grocery store to buy such food articles.

THERE IS LAW GOVERNING ABSENTEE VOTING

Some people here of late seem to totally disregard the law as to voting absentee ballots. The Union-Banner wishes to call attention to a few facts: The law strictly forbids and provides a penalty for buying or offering to buy, or selling, a vote.

To vote an absentee ballot, a voter must know that he will be out of the county in the performance of his regular duties or vocation on election day. If he is back in the county on election day, it is his duty according to law to call for his absentee ballot, destroy it and vote in his precinct as if he had never voted absentee.

People should be more careful about this absentee voting, selling and buying, Etc. This law is supposed to be rigidly enforced.

CLANTON SANITARY SURVEY IS FINISHED

A survey of the sanitation in all houses within the corporate limits of Clanton has just been completed by Mr. Fred H. Buckelew, county sanitation officer, it was revealed in a report from the county health department. Tabulation of the results shows that about 30 per cent of the houses have methods of excretia disposal which are insanitary, it was stated by the county health officer. "This includes," said Dr. Sturkie, "95 which have standard privies which are badly in need of repair, and 28 which have water flush toilets but are not using the city water."

Complete findings of the survey were as follows:

Houses with sewer connections — 413.

Houses with septic tanks—33.

Houses with standard pit privies — 290.

Houses with surface privies—81.

Houses with no toilet facilities—56.

Houses with sewerage into dry ditches—4.

A detailed report of the survey with a spot map showing the type of sanitation in each home will be presented to the city council, with recommendation for the adoption of a city ordinance which will approach the problem in each home from both an economic and sanitary standpoint, it was pointed out by Dr. Sturkie. A similar plan was outlined by the realth department to the city council of Thorsby, which adopted the ordinance at its meeting April 7.

REV. J. N. SCOTT TO PREACH AT MT. ZION FIRST SUNDAY IN JUNE

Rev. J. N. Scott will preach at Mt. Zion church the first Sunday in June, the 5th, at 11 a.m., and 7 p.m. Everybody come out and hear him and take part in the services. We hope to see the house filled with people wanting to hear the gospel preached, and wanting to do something themselves that will be for the glory of God. Don't forget the date, June 5.

COOKING SCHOOL A SUCCESS

We want to thank the wholesale and retail merchants of Clanton, and quite a few who donated in cash to making the cooking school a success. Also, the officials of the Alabama Power Company's office of Clanton, for their great assistance in putting it over, and furnishing us with such an able demonstrator to assist in this work.

This work was a real pleasure to the committee, because they had the full cooperation of the citizens of Clanton, together with The Chilton County News and The Union-Banner. —Mrs. M. L. White, Chairman Circle 2 M. E. Church; Mrs. H. T. Pipes, Chairman Circle 4 First Baptist Church.

ABSENTEE BALLOT ABOLITION URGED

Montgomery, May 21. — The Montgomery grand jury recommended Saturday abolition of the absentee ballot and establishment of periodical registration requirements in denouncing abuses of Alabama's current election system.

Although the jury heard reports of irregularities in Beat 9, Hope Hull, during the May 3 Democratic primary, it returned no indictments in connection with the investigation.

"A large part of our time has been spent in the investigation of alleged irregularities in the primary returns made in Beat 9 which has led us to make some recommendations to the incoming governor of Alabama and the next legislature", tht report stated.

Continuing, it said:

"It is our opinion, and we do so recommend, that to avoid frauds in elections, and to purify the ballot, that a general registration should be had of the voters at least once every five years. In that way many who are not legitimate voters will be purged from the list.

"We are also of the opinion that the absentee vote should be abolished. This statement, without more, might be misleading. We realize that many railroad men and traveling men might be deprived of their vote. However, it is our opinion that, while they vote, their vote is killed by a fraudulent vote . . ."

POLITICS PARALYZES BUSINESS

From 1920 to 1930, according to Newsweek, corporations did 88 per cent of all new financing in this country. From 1931 to 1937, corporations did only 15 per cent. The balance of 85 per cent was done by governments—federal, state and local.

One result of that is the immense increases in taxes and public debt that have occurred in recent years. Another is the virtual standstill of industrial expansion and betterment. Any economist can tell you that real recovery is impossible unless expenditure of private capital is markedly increased. Private capital is the sole source of productive jobs and taxes.

Depression was the original dominant factor in the decline in new industrial financing. But there is an additional factor today which has become increasingly dangerous and that is governmental persecution of industries which would normally be among the country's greatest spenders. A case in point is the electric industry. This industry wants to expand its plant facilities and better its service. Yet there have been almost no new capital utility issues in the last few years—because investors, watching the government's anti-utility policy and its subsidized tax-free competition with this industry, are afraid to invest. No less an authority than Col. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Company, has described the utility situation as the key log of the 1938 economic jam.

No one knows how many jobs have been thus lost—but the number runs into the millions. And the amount of new money that the industry would spend, if it were freed from the paralyzing fear of political destruction, is conservatively estimated at several billions. And this would not be taxpayers' money. It would not further inflate taxes and public debt. Instead, it would create new sources of tax revenue, stimulate the national income, and bring recovery measurably nearer.

Writing in the Wall Street Journal, Bernard Kilgore recently said that the government had "licked the power and light utilities to a standstill". And what a price the people have paid for that "licking"—in unemployment, in reduced industrial spending, in shaken confidence, and in more depression.

Birmingham, Ala., May 23.—Dan C. Thompson, president of the Street Railway Employes Union here and active many years in labor and political circles, Saturday had been appointed by Governor Graves as member of the Jefferson County Jury Board to serve the next three years.

Road Supervisor Subordinate To Commissioners Says High Court

Ruling Handed Down Recently Clarifies Road Situation, Regarding Various Duties

The State of Alabama — Judicial Department. The Supreme Court of Alabama, October Term, 1937-38. 5 Div. 269. John T. Thompson v. Chilton County, et als. Appeal from Chilton Circuif Court. Knight, Justice.

This cause is before this Court on appeal from a judgment of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, sustaining demurrers to, and dismissing a petition filed by appellant against the appellees under the "Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act," approved September 7th, 1933, General Acts of 1933, pp. 777, 778.

The demurrers of the appellees to the petition, which were sustained by the lower court, present for our determination three propositions.

First: Has a resident taxpayer such interest in the funds of a county as would authorize him, under the provisions of the Uniform Declaratory Judgment Act, to file a proceeding to prevent the illegal and wrongful expenditure of such funds?

To this question the court answered "yes".

Second: Whether or not the petition, in this case, of the resident taxpayer, for a declaratory judgment, presents a justiciable controversy between the petitioner, and the respondents, Chilton County, and the members of the Court of County Commissioners?

To this question the court answered "yes".

Third: Whether or not the local act of the legislature of 1936, Local Acts 1936, p. 4, providing for the appointment of a road supervisor, and prescribing his powers, duties and authority over the public roads and highways of Chilton County, takes from the Court of County Commissioners of said county its control over, and general superintendence of the public roads and bridges, and deprives said Court of its legislative, executive and judicial powers in respect thereto?

To this question the court answered "no", and after citing a number of similar decisions, commented as follows:

This brings us, therefore, to consideration of the question of whether the Local Act of 1936, above mentioned, was intended to, and did in fact, and as a matter of law, take from the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County all control, supervision, inspection and general superintendence of the public roads and bridges of said county, and deprive said court of its legislative, executive and judicial powers in respect to such roads, highways and bridges.

By Section 1347 of the Code the courts of county commissioners, or other like governing bodies of the several counties of this state have general superintendence of the public roads, bridges and ferries within their respective counties, and may establish new, change and discontinue old roads, bridges and ferries in their counties. To this end they are given legislative, judicial and executive powers, except

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON THE HUMAN BODY

Beginning this week, The Union-Banner is publishing a series of articles on the above subject, taken from an old edition of a public school Physiology and Hygiene. When this subject was taught and stressed in the public schools of Alabama and the nation, we believe it had a most wholesome effect upon the oncoming generation. The neglect of the same for the past few years is also showing its effect upon society and the human race in general.

Turn to the article on another page and read it; and when you have finished, hand it to someone else and have them read it. The article contains facts which ought to be indelibly written upon the minds of all people. Other articles will follow in later issues of this paper.

CHILTON CO. T. B. ASSOCIATION MET

A meeting of the Chilton County Tuberculosis Association was held in the office of the county health department on May 23rd at 2 p. m., according to a news release by a local health official. Officers and Board directors were summoned to join in a discussion of a plan to expend monies which have accrued from recent seal sales, the report indicated. A suggestion by Dr. S. D. Sturkie, county health officer, that a portion of the money be used for the hospitalization of one case suitable for collapse treatment in the Montgomery Sanatorium for a period of one month, and the purchase of a pneumothorax outfit for giving refills of air at the local hospital met with the approval of the association.

"This plan, pointed out Dr. Sturkie, "had already been approved by the local County Medical Society. The outfit which will be assigned to the health department will be at the disposal of any physicians who are interested in administering this type of treatment." "The fact that the association is authorizing the hospitalization of this one case," asserted the health officer, "does not imply that other persons can be sent to the sanatorium from seal sale funds as there is not enough money available for that purpose. This is rather a demonstration case to show the benefits which may be derived from hospitalization and the new surgical method of treatment, he stated. Others however, who can pay the cost of a short sanatorium stay will be able to continue their treatment locally."

Members of the association present were: County Superintendent of Education, Luther E. Little, Mrs. Luther E. Little, Prof. Patterson Hicks, Prof. J. E. Peterson and Mrs. J. C. Jones.

CITIZEN OF COOPER DIED THIS WEEK

Funeral services were held at Chestnut Creek Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. M. Truett, assisted by Elder E. B. Tucker and Rev. W. S. Cox. Martin directed.

Surviving are the wife, two sons and two daughters; four brothers—Tim, Oscar, Sam and Obie D. Smith; four sisters—Mrs. Will Morris, Mrs. Combs, Mrs. Deloney, and Mrs. J. T. Gilliland.

Mr. Smith had been suffering several months with a most peculiar ailment—some kind of a lung disease which was a more or less baffle to the attending physicians.

Mr. Smith had been an active business man for the past thirty years, during which time he was a merchant at Coopers, a lumber man, and an automobile distributor. He was well and favorably known by a large number of people, and his business ability was recognized by all.

VACATION SCHOOL IS GRAND SUCCESS

Teachers And Pupils Highly Pleased With Outlook For New Undertaking

The children are charmed with the vacation school held in the basement of the Methodist church. It really is interesting to watch them as they come. Some come alone, some with their mothers, and others trudge along together, or are brought in cars. One mother who brought her little girl to school, in watching another car that stopped, said: "I know there were about 30 in that one." They come from all over Clanton. Mr. Roberts, superintendent of the cotton mill, transports with a car daily to and from the mill village.

There isn't a dull moment in the 2½-hour program. The worship service is held in the Edgar class room. There are songs, memory verses from the Bible, and a talk each morning by a doctor on health, a patrolman or some person distinguished in his line of work in Clanton.

On the opening day there was an enrollment of 84, and an enrollment of more than 100 on the second day. The teachers and children enjoy the program so much that the teachers even wish they could go. The time for each part of the work passes so quickly that they say time isn't half long enough. The girls came with their needles, scissors, etc., and asked for knitting, so it was necessary to add another teacher. The boys are so heels-over-head at work in the manual training that they don't know when the recreation period comes. The little tots are like the tap, tap of the army in their rythm band. Upstairs, downstairs, everywhere you go, there is something doing.

After the play period some of the children had to be told to go home, as the school was over for the day. The children will come and show you the things Mrs. Powers has had them do. The toy chairs, boats, windmills, doll houses, pitchers, and ash trays of clay make you look forward to the exhibit to be given Friday, June 3, at the close of school. Everyone is happy and busy all the time. The teachers are getting so much out of seeing such a large group of children learning how to make a better world. There is a move on foot to make a picture of all the children, the instructors, Sunday school superintendent, and pastor, on this Friday.

FLYING INSTRUCTOR TO BE NEXT HERE FRIDAY, MAY 27

Mr. Fred M. Leslie, flying instructor of Birmingham, will be here next Friday, May 27, relative to making contact with local people who might want to take flying lessons.

Mr. Leslie has been a licensed pilot for eight years, and is well known in the Birmingham district. After taking a look at the Clanton airport, he stated that he believed there should be several prospective students for flying lessons here. He is equipped with a Taylor Cub plane, and states that his charges will be reasonable.

If you think you would like to talk over the matter with Mr. Leslie, meet him at the Clanton airport Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, and he will be glad to give you full particulars.

If enough enroll for a course, it is his plan to come to Clanton every Friday to give lessons.

CLAMPS SWAMPED BY FAIRFIELD LAST SUNDAY 13 TO 0

The Fairfield Steel Works swamped the Clamps last Sunday by a most decisive count, 13 to 0.

Golson was on the mound for the locals, but was both wild and ineffective. Fairfield collected 11 hits off him in the five and one-third innings he worked, and 11 of the 13 runs were charged to him. Golson walked three and hit three. It was the wildest exhibition he has ever staged.

"Sugar Boy" Easterling took up the mound duties in the sixth inning, gave up four hits and a free pass during his stay, and was charged with two runs. Golson struck out one and Easterling one.

Meanwhile, Shorty Marcus gave an exhibition of plain and fancy ivory headwork. The short one was literally walking in his sleep, and was caught napping twice, although no direct errors were charged to him. Tatum and Tiffin chimed in with some fancy throwing to the bases, each uncorking one over basemen's heads. Nearly all the Clamps played a listless game; otherwise it was a jam-up affair.

On the visitors' side, they collected 15 hits, including two triples and a double. Meanwhile, Holland, portly Fairfield hurler, was mowing the locals down regularly. He gave up but six widely scattered hits, walked two, hit one, and struck out four.

The Clamps must surely have gotten all the rotten baseball out of their systems in this one afternoon, and should put up a good game next Sunday. Look for announcement.

One or two bright spots were evident for the Clamps, however. Rutherford, a newcomer, looked good in right field, and was looking them over with a keen eye at the plate. Alex Hayes brought applause from the spectators with a sparkling play in the fourth inning, and Duck Williamson was throwing strikes from left field to keep runners from scoring. He taught the visitors early in the game to respect that rifle arm of his.

RAILROAD MONEY

Railroad employes in the 13 states in which the Old Reliable operates received $700,000,000 in wages last year. Business interests in those same states received over $400,000,000 for railroad purchases in 1937; and in 1936 the taxing authorities there were paid practically $70,000,000 of the railroad's money.

Striking figures, these. It is information that employes should have readily at hand for making talks, answering inquiries and for use in other ways. It shows the economic importance of the railroads to these states. Below is shown the information for the railroads, including the number of railroad employes, and he number of towns in which purchases were made, in Alabama:

Number employes July, 1937—16,572.
Total wages year 1937—$22,743,352.
State and local taxes only, year 1936—$2,498,420.

Purchase of materials, supplies, etc., year 1937—$31,207,957.

Number of towns in which purchases made—342.

These impressive figures emphasize the tremendous purchasing power of the railroads. In a single year all the railroads of the country made purchases amounting to more han $1,200,000,000. This money was spent for over 70,000 different kinds of supplies the railroads use.

The $700,000,000 received in wages by over 450,000 workers in our 13 states is constantly spent among the merchants, professional men, realestate dealers, and other business interests in the communities where they reside. The state, county and city taxes in that territory, aggregating over $69,000,000, help to support the schools, build and mainain the highways, pay the salaries and upkeep of governmental institutions and officials. Many of the educational activities, and perhaps the state and county governments, would be greatly restricted if these railroad taxes were not regularly paid.

The $431,000,000 expended in 5,000 cities and towns in these states provides a livelihood for many thousands more employes who make the many items the railroads use.—L. & N. Employes' Magazine.

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste

Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.

You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won country-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

W. L. SANDERS THANKS VOTERS

To the voters of Chilton County:

I wish to thank all the voters who gave me their support in the primary of May 3. I feel that the votes you cast for me were an endorsement of the principles I advocated. Those principles are just and right, and I shall continue to support them even though I go down in defeat.

My platform in this campaign, in principle was the same as it was four years ago in which I received over 1,200 votes, and from the votes I received in this election, 900 voters turned their backs on the principles they supported four years ago.

I do not feel that my conduct in the past four years has been such as would cause me to lose support as I did. I would not attempt to say the people went wrong in making the nominations they did, but I do say that when a man uses his influence to get someone in the race, he should not turn his back on him and work for someone else.

I hold no ill feeling toward either of my opponents or any voter who voted their conviction. I am the same Republican today that I was before the election, and shall be behind the nominees in November.—W. L. Sanders.

P. M. MARTIN WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

Please spare me a small space in our paper to say a few words.

Our farmers are out of heart. Wallace took the cotton acreage, and the Lord washed the soil away, but we planted any way; some have planted three times, but have no cotton yet. I don't think we will raise too much this year. But there is always something good after all.

On Sunday, May 22, the Robinson reunion was held at our church, and we want to thank all of those good people who contributed and gave their hard earned money for the project. We have under way the building of cement and rock arch, railings and posts to our cemetery. We thank all for the $11.05 we received. We hope they may be spared to meet again at this church and see where their money was spent.

Bro. Cambron, of Bessemer, will preach at Union Grove on Friday night, May 27. All have an invitation to come and be with us.

We are glad to hear that the classes at Oak Grove, Center Hill, and Pleasant Hill have made arrangements to meet at Union Grove on the fifth Sunday afternoon to sing. We are proud of this, and extend an invitation to all singers of the county. Don't forget the date and hour, Sunday, May 29, at 2 o'clock.—P. M. Martin.

MACEDONIA — BEAT 11

The homecoming day at this place will be the second Sunday in July. Everybody take notice and be ready for it.

We have preaching here every fourth Sunday by the pastor, Rev. Earnest Jones. Come out and hear him; you will hear something worth while.

We had good attendance Sunday, but there is still room for more people, so let's everybody come out next fourth Sunday.—V. G. Smith.

IN MEMORY

On Friday night, May 13, the death angel came into the home of Mr. Raymond Johnson and carried to heaven his darling wife. We can't understand why God called Lottie home, we loved her so much, and she made life so happy for her family. Although she was in bad health for several years, she wore a happy smile. We miss her so so much. But though her little family is broken up on this earth, they will meet again to be with the Lord forever. — Her sister, Mrs. Raymond Smith.

ATTENTION!

That famous quartet of singers, the Stamps Southernaires, will be at the Thorsby Junior High School Thursday, June 2, at 8 o'clock p.m., with a full evening of fine entertainment for grandfather, grandmother, father, mother, brother, sister, and the hired man. Children 15c, adults 25c. This program is sponsored by the Thorsby Senior B. Y. P. U.

ICE CREAM SUPPER

There will be an ice cream supper at Cedar Grove church Saturday, May 28. Nice cakes will be given the most attractive girl, and the ugliest man. Everybody come and bring a nickel or two. Proceeds will go for benefit of the church.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

The many friends of Mr. Lewis Wright gathered at his home Sunday, May 22, to enjoy his 55th birthday. All children and grand children were present. There were 63 in all present, and everybody seemed to enjoy the morning with music.

At noon a bountiful dinner was spread which everybody enjoyed. Also, Rev. A. J. Davis delivered a wonderful sermon. In the late afternoon everyone departed wishing him many more happy birthdays.

I wish to express my heartfel thanks for the kindness of my neighbors and friends shown me during my illness and operation. And especially do I thank Dr. Taylor and his nurses of Prattville hospital for their good attention and kind words. I am at home at present doing fine.—Sam B Williams.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our heartfelt thanks for the many kindnesses shown us in the illness and death of our wife and daughter, Mrs. Lottie Scarbough Johnson Especially do we thank Rev. J. S. Hol and for his kind, comforting words and Mr. Martin for his efficient service.

We deeply appreciate the beautiful floral offering. May God bless each and every one of you most abundantly from His bountiful store of blessings.—Raymond Johnson and W J. Scarbough.

PATES CHAPEL

There will be an ice cream supper at the home of Mr. Harvy Davenport next Saturday night, May 28, beginning at 7 o'clock. All B. Y. P. U. members will eat free, and outsiders will pay; everybody come and let's have a good time.

Last Saturday night and Sunday were our regular preaching days. The crowd Sunday was rather small on account of the singing at Mars Hill.

We were glad to have several visitors at Pates Chapel Saturday night and Sunday night. We invite all visitors to Pates Chapel.

Our pastor and wife and daughter spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rhodes.

Pates Chapel has postponed going to Mars Hill next Sunday night on account of measles. Will come some other time.

W. D. NELSON

W. D. Nelson, age 78 years, died Sunday afternoon at the home two miles east of Coopers. Burial was Monday afternoon at Chestnut Creek, services conducted by Rev. J. W. Enfinger.

Surviving are the wife and a number of sons and daughters.

The following ad appeared recently among the personals in an eastern newspaper:

"If Wilbur Blank, who deserted his wife and babe 20 years ago, will return, said babe will knock his block off!"

"My wife told me to take the old cat off somewhere and lose it. So I put him in a basket and tramped out into the country about 8 miles".

"Well, did you lose the cat?"

"Lose it? If I hadn't followed it I'd never have gotten back home."

The "machine" had made a clean sweep of the election. "I'd almost be willing to bet that we beat them two to one", said one of the politicians.

"Yes", said another; "I wish now that we had counted the votes and seen".

The fuel bill of the railroads in 1937 was more than $294,000,000.

Lesson for May 29

MAINTAINING PERSONAL EFFICIENCY

LESSON TEXT—Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20; I Cor. 9:24-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. I Cor. 9:25.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Daniel Pleased God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Ten Times Strong.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—In Training for the Game of Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Liquor's Effect Upon Working Efficiency.

Personal efficiency is a subject which is receiving much attention in our day. There has never been so much accurate and usable information as we now have regarding diet, exercise, and medical care. The mind as well as the body has come in for attention and scores of books are available on the development and full use of the powers of personality. Some of these are trash, but others are helpful. Business is co-operating with the school and the home in giving boys and girls the opportunity to grow up to be useful and happy members of society. The church adds its important contribution, although we must confess that it is far from what it might be by the grace and power of God.

I. A Sound Mind in a Sound Body (Dan. 1:8-16, 19, 20).

Daniel and his three Hebrew companions had been brought to Babylon as captives, and were there chosen to enter the royal school for future service at the court. Every provision was made for the students chosen for that school. Their diet, however, included not only meat which was unclean to the Jew but wine, which Daniel knew to be undesirable. It took holy boldness to ask to be excused from that which the king had prescribed, but Daniel was blessed not only with courage, but with tact and courtesy. A ten-day test of a simple diet and water proved so successful that the plan was continued. At the end of the three-year course the Hebrews were not only physically stronger but mentally and spiritually superior.

The experience of Daniel and his brethren is not just an incident eagerly grasped at by "blue-nosed reformers" to prevent their neighbors from "enjoying" intoxicating liquor. The testimony of science, of business, of experience in all ages, proves that the use of even an amount of alcohol so small that the user does not feel its presence materially "reduces endurance, accuracy, and rapidity of muscular action of all kinds" (Emerson). It so cuts down the ability to think clearly and to react promptly to danger that it is absolutely taboo with such responsible workers as railroad engineers. It is not a stimulant, but a narcotic, which dulls the nerve centers. Dr. Edward Rosenow says, "The use of alcohol as a beverage is never justified. There is no such thing as the right use of beverage alcohol."

Such information as the above is available in publications of temperance organizations, books by various writers, and even in publications by state liquor commissions. It is published in newspapers and magazines and circulated by safety organizations and insurance companies. Yet, unbelievable as it may seem, the use of liquor is on the increase.

II. Success in Life Calls for Self-Control (I Cor. 9:24-27).

Paul delighted in illustrations taken from the athletic field. He talked of running a race, of fighting a good fight. He knew the athlete's need of keeping his body under.

The one who serves his school or athletic association in physical competition gladly surrenders his personal liberty to the guidance of the coach. He eats carefully, sleeps full nights, exercises consistently, and above all does not use alcohol in any form. Listen to the words of great athletic coaches—Yost: "I would not waste my time trying to train or develop one who uses alcohol." Stagg: "Coaches and trainers are dead against the use of alcoholic liquors, even beer."

Paul rightly points out that all these sacrifices are made by men for what is but a transient earthly crown. How much more should we do for the sake of our souls. Temperance instruction may well stress the physical and mental degradation that follows the use of alcohol, but above all let us teach boys and girls that its use has sent countless souls to eternal punishment and separation from God. We should be deeply moved by the loss of personal efficiency, but what shall we say about the loss of a soul?

Reason is a faculty of the mind by which it distinguishes truth from falsehood, and good from evil, and which enables the possessor to deduce inferences from facts, or from propositions.—Locke.

SOCIETY

MUSIC APPRECIATION CLUB

Mrs. John Powers, Jr., was hostess to the Music Appreciation Club last Tuesday afternoon. This was a business meeting, and the last meeting on the club's program until next September.

Some suggestions for changes in the Constitution and By-Laws were made. Mrs. Polk appointed the following as a committee to work on a revision of the present Constitution: Mrs. John Powers, Jr., chairman, Mrs. J. B. Varnell, and Mrs. Henry Stanley. A specialmeet ing will be called for the members to vote on the proposed revisions, so that the revised Constitution can be printed in our next year book.

Mrs. Billy Smith, chairman of next year's program committee, gave a brief outline of the activities planned. Her report showed that she can greet the coming year with anticipation.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Polk graciously thanked the members for their cooperation during the past year.

During the serving of the refreshments, we were entertained by more echoes from the convention at Huntsville, by our representative, Mrs. Shepherd.—Mrs. John Powers, Jr., reporter.

STATE EDUCATION CONFERENCE

University, Ala., May 23. — Dr. Geo. S. Counts, professor of education in Teachers College, Columbia University, has been selected as the chief speaker for the 10th Annual State Education Conference to be held at the University of Alabama June 13-17.

The program for the conference is to be merged with a conference of the

DR. GEORGE S. COUNTS

Educational Policies Commission of the National Education Association. Representing the commission will be Dr. Counts, and Dr. William A. Sutton, superintendent of school at Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Counts' lectures will be on the following subjects:

Monday, June 13, "The Nature of Industrial Civilization"; "The Crisis in American Democracy".

Tuesday, "A Program for American Democracy"; "The Resources of American Democracy".

Wednesday, "Education for Democratic Citizenship, Today".

Thursday, "The Echool, the State, and the Teacher".

The Columbia professor, in addition to being a leader in the field of education, is one of the most productive authors in his field. His writings have been principally on the subjects of education and Russia, one of his books being "A Ford Crosses Soviet Russia".

His latest book, "The Prospects of American Democracy", is soon to come from the presses.

Dr. Counts, before going to Columbia, taught at the University of Chicago, Yale University, the University of Washington, and Harris Teachers College, St. Louis, Mo.

He has served as a member of the Phillipine Educational Survey Commission, as a special investigator of secondary education for Commonwealth Fund, as editor of Social Frontier, and as director of research for the Commission on Teaching of History and Other Social Studies in the Schools.

Old lady in telephone booth: "Operator, I want you to give me the number I asked you for last Wednesday. I can't think what it is just now, but you'll remember that it had a 9 in it."

Doctor: "You are suffering from indigestion. Drink a cupful of hot water every morning."

Patient: "I've been doing that for some time, doctor, only my landlady calls it coffee."

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON THE HUMAN BODY

It is impossible to stop the consumption of alcoholic liquors in this or any other country. We have experimented with everyhing—limitation of saloons, local option, prohibition, and special sumptuary taxation. Nothing has stopped drinking, or even materially reduced it, and kept it that way.

Prohibition was certainly a noble experiment with the highest of moral and religious intention, but it was a complete flop. The only thing left is to educate people along the lines of the bad effects of excessive drinking. Drunkenness should be suppressed by law for the protection of people against recklessness and bodily harm. Drinking should be kept to a minimum for the welfare of the human race, both moral and physical. Without education along these lines, the race will deteriorate under the strain of alcohol and drunkenness.

It is with the hope of rendering some assistance in this direction that The Union-Banner is this week beginning a series of articles dealing with the physical effects of alcohol on the human body. It used to be taught in our public schools, and was very effective.

Full credit is given the following article, and those which will be printed in later issues of The Union-Banner, to William O. Krohn, M. D., Ph. D., Yale University, in his "Graded Lessons In Physiology And Hygiene", published in 1908 and used in the public schools of Alabama for several years succeeding that year:

TEMPERANCE

There are certain unmistakable laws of right living clearly impressed upon the constitution of man. If he should live according to these laws he would always be strong and healthy. By this time you have learned that the vigor and health of many persons are seriously impaired by neglect. Failure to eat nourishing food, to breathe pure air, to keep the body clean, and to exercise, are frequent causes of physical weakness and disease. There are people whose lives are really shortened because they have failed to spend a few minutes a day in regular judicious exercise. Lack of anything the body needs for healthy growth always works injuriously.

While there are many persons whose health has been seriously impaired because of the lack of those things so essential to bodily vigor, there are many more who have brought lasting injury upon themselves by excesses in one or more directions.

TEMPERANCE. — Improper eating and improper drinking produce more sickness than all other causes. It seems strange that man, of all animals, should be the one to indulge in excesses of appetite, when he possesses the most knowledge concerning the ill effects of such indulgences. Man is surrounded by an abundance of wholesome food, yet he often makes himself sick by excesses in eating and drinking, acting as if he would never again have an opportunity to take food and drink. Such men live to eat, rather than eat to live.

A horse never drinks merely for the sake of sociability, and a squirrel with a house made of acorns eats just enough for his needs, but some men eat all kinds of food and take various drinks merely for the pleasure of eating and drinking. Temperance is the exercise of moderation in regard to all our appetites. Intemperance is the gratification of any appetite or inclination which does not fulfill bodily need.

INTEMPERANCE IN EATING. — This is one of the most common forms of intemperance. Eating injudiciously never fails to cause bodily derangement of some sort. The injuries of over-eating are shared by all parts of the body—brain, nerve, bone, muscle, stomach, liver—none are exempt from the harmful effects. A child who habitually makes a meal consisting of sweet cake, is intemperate, and he afterwards pays dearly for such indulgence. Not only will he suffer pain, but his organs of digestion become deranged and incapable of doing their best work, and he suffers because of his folly. Sometimes when a man has had sufficient plain food at a meal to satisfy the appetite, he will eat some rich dessert, highly spiced and sweetened, which he eats, merely for the pleasant taste, not because it contains necessary food elements. A perverted appetite frequently leads us to eat cake, candy and fruits between meals, thus overworking the stomach by giving it no opportunity to rest. If we are hungry enough to eat bread or meat between meals, then the appetite should be satisfied, for this is a call from the cells of the body for food, rather than from the palate for agreeable taste sensations.

THE ALCOHOL HABIT. — The use of drinks that contain alcohol is the worst kind of intemperance. This form of intemperance is a terrible curse in America. It tends to destroy the work that the school strives to build up. The American school has for its object such education of children as will lead them to become good citizens.

Because alcohol enters the body by means of the digestive tube, in the same way in which food does, rather than because it is of itself a food, it is here treated as naturally following the discussion of proper food and drink for the human body. If we eat a sufficient amount of wholesome food today, we do not care for a larger amount of the same food tomorrow. Not so with alcohol; the appetite for it grows with using.

FROM J. E. EASTERLING

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me to express my thanks to the voters of the county for their fine support in the recent Republican primary. I appreciate all the support accorded me in any way. I wish to say now, since our selections have been made, that I am wholeheartedly behind the Republican ticket. Mr. Taylor won over me for tax collector, and I am now behind him to the utmost of my ability, the same as all of the Republican ticket.

Let me urge all to let's work together for the entire ticket in November. We need a change in our county's business, and these Republican nominees are the kind of men to bring about this change. Sincerely,—J. E. Easterling.

Game & Fish News

Texans To Visit Here

Alabama's fishing possibilities are known in many other states, and certainly in Texas. Warner Hayhurst, superintendent of public schools at Plains, Texas, writes the Conservation Department that in June 26 juniors and seniors of the Plains High School are going to make a pleasure and educational trip through Alabama, and requests information about the state's fishing regulations.

Federal Aid To Wild Life

Barring unforeseen complications, Alabama on July 1 this year will begin to share in the approximately one million dollars set aside by the federal government for wild life restoration and development in the states. The Pittman-Roberson Act recently passed by congress provides that the excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition be prorated among the states for this purpose, to be divided on the basis of hunting and fishing licenses sold and the ability of individual states o comply with stated requirements. The sum of $1,000,000 has been definitely included in the agricultural appropriation bill, and is practically assured of passage.

Trained Bream

J. H. Jobson, of Mentone, Ala., has a pond inhabited by a school of blue gill bream trained to eat out of Jobson's hand. He is very fond of the project, and has made a regular hobby out of it. People in that community and visitors go to Jobson's place to see the bream come up and receive their rations of stale bread and other foods.

NEW CEDRON CLUB NEWS

The New Cedron club met for their regular meeting, at which time 12 members and 2 visitors were present, the latter being Mary Esther Foshee and Nell Thrash.

The following gave parts on the program: Alton Lowrence, Earl Moates, Thomas Williams, Ruth Lawrence, Virginia Thrash, Payron Powell, and Talmadge Williams.

After the regular business was cared for, Mr. Ivey talked to us about our projects, how to feed, and guild hog houses for brood sows.—Payron Powell.

VERBENA CLUB NEWS

The Verbena 4-H Club met May 9 at the Verbena High School. From there we went to Mr. Robinson's chicken farm. Mr. Robinson explained how he fed and cared for little chickens until they became laying hens. Then we discussed and selected a boy to go to Auburn. After that we discussed plans for another private camp for the Verbena 4-H Club, and the county-wide joint camp. The Verbena club decided to keep having its meeting after school is out.—James Messer.

WOMEN EARN $50,000 THROUGH HANDICRAFT

Auburn. May 23. — During the past five years Alabama home demonstration club women have received more than $50,000 in cash for handicraft articles which they have made in their spare time, says Miss Dorothy Dean, clothing an dhandicraft specialist in the Alabama Extension Service.

Miss Dean states that the Alabama women have attained a high standard of workmanship in their handicraft, and as a result have been invited to send an exhibit of these articles to London next year for the Triennial Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World. During their spare time these women make exquisite leather fans, baskets, quilts, bedspreads leather goods, handkerchiefs, luncheon sets, corn shuck dolls, and many other articles.

Capital expenditures by the Class I railroads for equipment and other improvements to railway property were $509,793,000 in 1937 compared with $872,608,000 in 1930.

SPECIALIST GIVES WORK STOCK RATION

Auburn, May 23. — A good livestock feeding rule for Alabama farmers is to feed more roughage and less grain to idle animals and more grain and less roughage to animals at hard work, says R. S. Sugg, livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Service.

Another good rule for the farmer to follow is to give heavy working horses and mules about 1½ pounds of grain and 1 pound of roughage for each 100 pounds live weight. Roughage should be fed at night and grain fed in either two or three feeds, says Dr. Sugg.

He lists the following rations for best results for heavy work (1,000-pound animal): No. 1 — 7 pounds of corn, 7 pounds of oats, and 10 pounds of hay; No. 2 — 12 pounds corn, 2 pounds cottonseed meal, and 10 pounds hay; No. 3 — 15 pounds of ground ear corn, 2 pounds cottonseed meal, and 10 pounds hay.

For light work a 1,000-pound animal should get one of the following rations: No. 1 — 4 pounds corn, 4 pounds oats, 12 pounds hay; No. 2 — 6 pounds corn, 1 pound cottonseed meal, 12 pounds hay; No. 3 — 10 pounds ear corn (ground), 1 pound cottonseed meal, and 12 pounds hay.

When work animals are idle they should be allowed to run in a good pasture or be fed 15 to 20 pounds of hay and about 5 pounds of grain mixture, according to Dr. Sugg. In feeding cottonseed meal, farmers should be free it is free of lumps and molds. The meal should be started by feeding about one-fourth pound per day and increasing it up to two pounds gradually.

RUFFIN RECOMMENDS CUTWORM POISONING

Auburn, May 23. — Cutworms, which have been noted recently in large numbers al lover Alabama doing serious damage to hay and young cotton, can be controlled with poisoned bran mash says W. A. Ruffin, entomologist and horticulturist of the Alabama Extension Service.

Mr. Ruffin says the worms have been doing considerable damage to alfalfa and to the stands of young cotton. They feed at night, and in the day time can be found buried in the soil or under leaves, hay, or other litter on the ground. They are now going into the pupal stage and the first generation will probably cease feeding soon. Damage of the second generation cannot be estimated at the present time, he states.

The poisoned mash can be made by mixing thoroughly two pounds of arsenate of lead with 20 pounds of wheat bran and moistening the mixture with sweetened water. Two quarts of sirup and 3½ gallons of water will be sufficient for the above mixture.

The poisoned bait should be broadcast over the infested area late in the afternoon, at the rate of 10-20 pounds per acre to be effective. Where the stand of cotton has been seriously damaged it will pay the farmer to replant, Mr. Ruffin believes.

Further information can be obtained from the county agent.

ABOUT SHILOH HOMECOMING

Editor Union-Banner:

Allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to the homecoming at Shilch next Sunday, May 29.

We hope to make it a great meeting for all who will attend. We have some good speakers on the program for the morning service, whom you will be glad to hear. Come and be with us, and let's make it a great day of rejoicing and praising the Lord, and giving honor to the soldiers of the cross of Christ who have made it possible for us to have such a meeting.

The entire afternoon is set aside for singing. We have the promise of some good quartets, and offer all singers a special invitation, with a cordial invitation to everybody to come; bring a well filled basket, as that will be one of the most interesting hours of the day—the lunch hour.—Mason Deason.

Teacher tourist: "This seems to be a very dangerous precipice. It's a wonder they don't put up a warning sign."

Native: "Yes, it is dangerous, but they kept a warning sign up for two years and no one fell over, so it was taken down."

County Farm Agent's Notes

ATTENTION CLUB MEMBERS AND FARMERS

The assistant county agents of Elmore, Montgomery, and Lowndes Counties informed me that they were going to hold a joint sale of pure bred Duroc pigs in Montgomery on Wednesday, June 15.

They have a surplus of these pigs and they will be offered for sale at a very reasonable price.

If you have some pigs ready for market you might carry them to the stock yards and sell them and buy better breeding stock. Several could do this in a community cooperatively and save some money on hauling. For further information contact me at the county agent's office.—B. N. Ivey, assistant county agent.

ALABAMA FARMERS ARE ADVISED TO LOOK FOR APHIDS

Auburn, May 23. — When the leaves of melons, radishes, cabbage, turnips, or other vegetables begin to bend down or become wilted, one should look for aphids, or leaf sucking insects, says J. M. Robinson, head of the entomology department, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. Robinson says it is a good idea to look under the leaves, because one will usually find there the insects that are sucking the sap from the leaves, weakening the plant, and reducing both yield and quality of the fruit or vegetable.

"Control of these pests", he believes, "may be brought about rather easily by spraying thoroughly with a nicotine soap solution or by dusting with nicotine dust".

The spray is made of nicotine sulphate (Black Leaf 40), soap and water.

The mixture of these ingredients is one tablespoon of nicotine sulphate and one-fourth cake of soap mixed with one gallon of water.

"The plants must be thoroughly drenched with this spray solution, both on the upper and under sides of the leaves", he says. "It most come in contact with the insects to kill them.".

A good nicotine dust may be made by mixing one pound of the nicotine sulphate with 19 pounds of hydrated lime.

Perfectly dry plants should be dusted when there is little or no wind and the temperature is above 70 degrees F. The materials are mixed by putting the lime in a churn or keg, pouring in the nicotine sulphate, adding a few stones, and rolling the container for 10 minutes.

FIRES AND FLOODS CLOSELY RELATED

Auburn, May 23. — Woods fires and floods are closely related, believes Lyle Brown, forester of the Alabama Extension Service at Auburn.

He believes that solution of the flood danger on two-thirds of the land area could be made relatively simple if land owners will realize htat leaving natural cover on the forest floor will prevent the rapid run off of water and hold it to be gradually released in springs and branches. Too many farmers allow woods fires to burn all leaves, grass, and close growing plants off the ground.

Experimen' station records show that land that is burned over by woods fires loses 15 to 20 times as much water as unburned land, he says.

HOMECOMING AT SHILOH

There will be a homecoming at this place next Sunday, May 29. All members of this church, and all members who have moved away are invited to bring their lunch and spend the day.

There will be singing in the afternoon in the new books. All singers and lovers of good singing are urged to be present. We hope to have a real homecoming, so everyone be sure to attend.

Everyone interested in the cemetery come and bring sufficient tools to work with Friday, May 27.—L. C. Keen.

"I AM talking now about my Company's rural electric service engineers. For years they have been going about from farm to farm, showing how I—Reddy Kilowatt— am the cheapest hired hand a farmer could have, and how with me around to do much of the heavy work in the barn and kitchen, life becomes a whole lot more pleasant for the farmer and his wife.

"These rural service engineers are new dealers from way back. For years they have had visions of the fuller life which present day new dealers are talking about.

"For years they have been working with the Agricultural Department of your State and its fine colleges to bring this fuller life to Alabama farms. They are men of practical experience who KNOW. You can depend on what they tell you about rural electrification."

High Producing Cows Require Good Care and Complete Feed

To balance the scale requires one of two things.. Either the cow must sacrifice herself to keep up milk production, or a good milking concentrate must be provided to give her what she needs.

"That a good cow is her own worst enemy is repeatedly proved by the great number of 'breakdowns' among high producers," according to D. H. Van Pelt, prominent dairy authority with Purina Mills. "Because the making of a large volume of milk does require such an enormous amount of nutrients on the cow's part, many high producing animals sacrifice themselves to the job," says Van Pelt. "Poor cows take good care of themselves by never borrowing from their own bodies to make milk. Consequently mastitis, breeding and udder troubles, and general teardown play greatest havoc among high producers.

Good Cows Easy Victims

"In a recent test for Bangs Abortus of a Cow Testing Association herd near Washington, D. C., thirteen out of 60 cows reacted positively. Production which had been 11,950 pounds dropped to 9,876, a difference in average production of 2,074 pounds per cow of those still in production. The test had picked out the high producers—the hard workers. Tests of this nature show the serious loss in profits that may result. Operating expenses must at all times be extended to cover total production, but when the total figure is cut, the initial cost of every 100 pounds of milk is proportionately increased," Van Pelt says.

Cows Are Like Factories

"Many comparisons have been made between a cow and a factory. Both are operated for the specific purpose of turning out a profitable product. Neither can produce successfully and profitably unless attention is given to upkeep and repair of machinery. But the comparison is not complete. A properly fed cow goes further than any man-made factory in always turning out a completed product—whether she is given the materials she needs or not. A man-made factory shuts down when raw materials are scarce. A good cow furnishes the missing materials from her own body. A factory can close down—a cow can't. As a result, 'inside teardown' begins, and another good cow begins her journey to the slaughter house.

"Every economically sound and farseeing manufacturer knows that profits depend on the way his machinery operates. Efficiency increases profits, breakdowns and inefficiency cut down the margin of profit, and cause loss below the line. So the wise business man keeps his machinery well-oiled, repaired, and smooth running. Not so with many dairymen.

Cyclic Needs Differ

"The cyclic requirements of a high-producing cow vary in their nature," according to Van Pelt. "During each period she must be supplied with the materials she needs for doing the best job, not only during the period she is then in, but in following periods as well. As a cow freshens so does she milk. By avoiding calving difficulties, retained placenta (afterbirth), and congested and feverish udders following parturition, a cow has a better chance of maintaining high production. Intelligent herd management, and providing feeds that do the job best, prevent expensive breakdown and inside teardown.

"Following calving, milk production becomes an exaggerated maternal function. The urge to supply food becomes predominant. This is a perfectly normal urge, stimulated by nature. The stimulation to produce, however, may become so great that the cow needs protection against excessive production at the start. Lowered body weight and excessive demands on body vitality at this time, are particularly harmful and carry in their wake potential cow losses later on.

Milk Flow Must Be Curbed

Following freshening, body building rather than milk materials should be supplied in feed, and stimulation of milk flow should be held down as much as possible. Checking excessive milk flow and building up body weight, strength, vigor and vitality during this period pays dividends in the form of money-making cows later on.

"During the milk-making months cows must still be watched carefully to prevent body sacrifices, for supplying deficiencies in feed. To insure an easy and money-making performance, a completely balanced ration should be supplied. Only a ration that gives a cow everything she needs for making milk will protect her against 'putting herself in the pail.'

"Supplying efficient and completely balanced feeds in every cycle of the cow's development insures a longer, more profitable life to every herd member, reduces turnover, and steps up milk production."

THE REBUILT BLUE EAGLE

REV. M. LOCKHART TO WRITE SERIES OF ARTICLES SOON

Editor Union-Banner:

I sincerely appreciate your kindness in offering me space in the columns of your paper for the purpose of giving to the public a few articles from week to week concerning one of the most damnable practices ever devised by man or devil.

The things that we will have to say in regard to this subject (Temperance) will be based upon experience, observation, facts and figures. I will endeavor to make these articles brief and to the point. To say nothing of the lives that the liquor traffic is costing, together with thousands who are crippled for life, the cost in dollars furnishes some staggering figures.

Based upon statistics, more than four billions of dollars are spent annually for liquor in the United States. This would buy two loaves of bread and a quart of milk for every family in the United States every day.

God help us, as ministers of the gospel, together with all thy believing children, to stand firmly against this awful evil in this land.—M. Lockhart.

OFFERS THANKS

An open letter to:
Judge L. H. Reynolds, and Hons. Grady and Omar Reynolds,
Clanton, Ala.

Since I am the recipient of one of the awards you so generously offered to senior high school graduates of 1938, Chilton County High School, I want to take this means to publicly express my sincere appreciation.

Your thoughtfulness and generosity in making this award available to the graduating class of this year is a gesture of your noble citizenship that so effectively instills in the minds of we future men and women. That leadership so characteristic of your examples in life as a citizen of this community has been left on the minds of those who preceded us.

I want to assure you that this award will live with me forever, not just alone for its intrinsic value, but those things for which it stood.

Again let me thank you sincerely for the gift. Sincerely yours,—Geraldine Hollis.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our friends who helped us in so many kind ways during the illness and departure of our loving father, George W. Mullins.

Especially do we thank the doctors, nurses, Martin & Sons, and for the words of comfort spoken by Rev. W. P. Lowery. May God's richest blessings rest on each and every one of you, is our prayer.—The family.

CENTER HILL

This community was saddened last week by the death of Leo Collum. He was only 19 years of age, and had the best years of his life before him, but an all-wise God knows best. He joined Center Hill church several years ago, but later moved his letter to Jemison Baptist church, where he belonged at the time of his death. He was Doorkeeper of the Chilton County Farmers Union, and a member of the Jemison Chapter of F. F. A., with a state degree. The many floral offerings were a token of the love and esteem in which he was held, and his going leaves a vacancy in our community which no one else can fill.

Mr. J. G. Stewart, state secretary of the Farmers Union and Mrs. Stewart, of Parrish, Ala., were here to attend the funeral of Bro. Leo Collum.

The condition of Mrs. Euell Durbin is much improved since last week.

The Center Hill baseball team went to Ashby Saturday afternoon, winning by a score of 31 to 1.

Mr. Harvey Gentry of Birmingham spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Gentry.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb and Mrs. Rufus Childress all went to Montgomery last week to see Mrs. J. T. Cobb, who has been critically ill in a hospital there. The last report was that she was better.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Lesley spent Sunday in Clanton with their daughter, Mrs. J. C. Seay, and family.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our deepest appreciation to our many friends for their display of kindness and sympathy, and the many favors shown us during the illness and death of our son and brother, Leo Collum.

Also, we extend our thanks for the beautiful floral offerings, and to Dr. Franklin for his kind and untiring services.—Mr. and Mrs. John W. Collum and children.

Maynard's Chapel

Our Sunday school is off some for the past Sunday or two. Let's all come back and go to work for our Lord.

We will have Bro. Maurice Hodgens to preach for us next Saturday night, and Bro. Carroll on Sunday. We hope to have large crowds at both services.

Remember the homecoming on Sunday, June 5. Everybody come and bring a basket. We are planning on a good program, and invite all good singers to come and be with us.—Mrs. W. G. Maynard.

WILLIAM LEO COLLUM

On May 18 God saw fit to take away Leo Collum, age 19 years. He had been sick for about two weeks with what was at first believed to be typhoid fever, but later developed into spinal meningitis, infantile paralysi and sleeping sickness. He was carried to a Birmingham hospital Tuesday morning, and died there Wednesday night.

Burial was in Center Hill cemetery Friday afternoon, Rev. Maurice Hodgens conducting the funeral services; Martin in charge.

Pallbearers were Messrs. J. O. Cobb, Vee Miller, Ted Cobb, Frank Lesley, Eric Smith, Bernice Lowery, Alton Cobb, and Louis Webb. Flower girls were Misses Berney Dean Cobb, Jo Lane Cleckler, Mabel Cobb, Irene Lesley, Mrs. Lloyd Cobb, and Mrs. V. Miller.

He leaves to mourn his loss: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Collum; two brothers—J. W., and Fred Collum; three sisters—Mrs. Fred Price, Sarah Mae and Dorothy Lee Collum; three grandparents, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

SIX YEARS IN THE RED

On the assumption that congress will give its approval to the president's new spending program, the Budget Bureau estimates that next year's deficit will be in excess of three billion dollars. That will be the sixth consecutive deficit for the Roosevelt administration. It will establish a new precedent. For on no other occasion in the whole history of the United States has a president remained in office for six years without once bringing the national budget into balance.

The willingness of the Roosevelt administration to pile deficit on deficit is the reflection of a political philosophy which is of comparatively recent origin. There was a time when Mr. Roosevelt regarded even three consecutive deficits as a cause for national concern. "For three long years", he said to congress in one of his first messages after he took office, "the treasury has been operating in the red", and "for three long years the federal government has been on the road toward bankruptcy". An aggregate deficit of four billion dollars had been incurred during Mr. Hoover's last three years in office. (This compares with an aggregate deficit now estimated at 20 billion dollars for Mr. Roosevelt's next six years in office). And in his message to congress, Mr. Roosevelt declared that he must point out "with the utmost seriousness the profound effect of this fact upon our national economy". The government's failure to put its financial affairs in order had "accentuated the stagnation of the economic life of our people".—New York Times.

GOVERNMENT THREATS

Jesse E. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, is reputed to be one of the few spokesmen of business in the Roosevelt administration. On Wednesday he spoke at a round table conference of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which was attended by 200 bankers, manufacturers, and others.

In the course of his remarks he complained that, though credit is abundant, it is not being employed. He added that there is a bill pending in congress under which government could take over the reserve banks. He added: "If banking is to remain in private hands, it must meet the credit needs of the country".

A little while before, Edward E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, had complained that "the heavy hand of government regulation has hampered the free flow of credit by unnecessary interferences with bank management".

Proposals disturbing to business pile up the faster, and more overtures looking to reconciliation and peace are made.

When the president's message relating to action against big business is taken into consideration, together with Mr. Jones' implication that national ownership of credit may not be distant, it is easy to see what difficulties are in the way of business as usual.

More and more, things have the appearance of an attempt to revolutionize the economic system. Less and less measures proposed appear to have the purpose of mending the economic system.—Danbury News-Times.

There's some talk of the government widening the Panama Canal. If it does, while it has its hand in, we wish it would widen the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. — Washington Post.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Nearly everybody is wondering whether, and many people are hopeful that the pump priming program, announced the middle of April by the New Deal administration, will pull us out of the slump. But a considerable number who have studied the depression since 1929, assuming that we are still in the same one, and suffering principally from a recession, are of the opinion that this second pump priming attempt to restore prosperity will not be successful. They point to the fact that the first priming effort has failed and that we are right back where we started except that our national debt has doubled.

Advocates of the pump priming theory, and they include many so-called "liberals" who seem to have the ear of the president, say that the first pump priming experiment did work and that the slump came when President Roosevelt turned off the spigot and started trying to balance the budget. The answer to this obviously is that the government cannot go on a lavish spending program forever without destroying the economic fabric of the nation even if the pump priming is a temporary relief. Many of the critics of the spending policy aver, however, that pump priming wasn't the chief cause of such recovery as we had in 1935 and 1936. To sustain their contentions they point out that recovery set in at the mid-point of the Roosevelt administration in Europe and South America just as in the United States. And since most other countries adopted the budget program it is apparent that pump priming was not the chief cause of recovery "over there". Therefore, these critics of lavish expenditure say, it was not the chief cause of improvement in the United States, and only caught on to a world-wide upward spiral movement.

In making the assertion that pump priming will not restore prosperity these critics point out that there is no longer a world-wide recovery movement. A slump of more or less serious proportion is evident in Europe, too, although it is neither as far advanced nor as acute as in the United States. Therefore, these reasoners say, pump priming in America now will not have the advantage of a natural world-wide upward movement and will fail because it is going up against the tide this time instead of riding on it. In any event, they add, a pump priming is similar to a "shot in the arm" for an individual, and each relapse by the patient has to be followed by a bigger and better stimulant to get results.

To say that pump priming will not restore business, however, does not mean that it will have no political effects. Government money this fall will be used in bigger measure than ever, with relief checks, work relief checks, and other kinds of federal aid to the individual. And Santa Claus is just as popular as ever, despite the recession. Yet it cannot be questioned that more and more thinking people are coming to view with alarm the mounting public debt and the increasingly unbalanced budget. This will have its political effect, too. More and more is Santa Claus coming up against the fellow who has to pay for the Christmas candles.

Eighteen utility companies have filed a suit in the Supreme Court declaring it is unconstitutional for the TVA to destroy them. How old fashioned!

A "QUICK CHANGE"

Several months ago Treasury Secretary Morgenthau made an address on economic conditions that was regarded as reassuring to business. He made the point that the way to get out of the recession was to help private capital to go into lucrative channels where it could create new business. In part he said:

"The basic need today is to foster the full application of the driving force of private capital. We want to see capital go into the productive channels of private industry. We want to see private business expand. We believe that much of the remaining unemployment will disappear as private capital funds are increasingly employed in productive enterprises. We believe that one of the most important ways of achieving these ends at this time is to continue progress toward a balance of the federal budget."

Secretary Morgenthau at that time was not in favor of a tremendous spending campaign of government money, taking from the taxpayers, to "prime the pump". He declared that conditions were different than they were in 1932 and the same kind of treatment was not necessary. He favored a balanced budget, as a sure way to re-establish confidence and to encourage private business. That was several months ago. For certain mysterious reasons, things now seem to be different again. The old doctrine of trying to balance the budget has gone by the boards. We are going in for bigger and better deficits, more spending and more pump priming, priming that will go into every state and congressional district in the country.

If conditions last November were different, so far as the business slump was concerned, than they were in 1932, then why the change back to pre-New Deal conditions now? Why isn't budget balancing as important now as it was a few months ago? Can it be possible that the time element is the one which enters into the picture—that the reason pump priming is needed now is that the congressional elections are drawing near and something is needed to heal the breach in the lines of the majority party? Wouldn't you like to know?

A BETTER IDEA

Sen. Minton has introduced a bill in Washington to make it a criminal offense for any newspaper moving in interstate commerce to publish, as a fact, anything it knows to be false.

As a companion piece, Sen. Minton should introduce a resolution to amend the Constitution so as to make it possible to hold senators and congressmen accountable for the accuracy of statements which they make in the Congressional Record, which moves in interstate commerce free of postage.

While newspapers are humanly imperfect and fallible, a reputable newspaper has too much at stake to publish as true what it knows to be false.

The considerations of self interest and public duty, which operate to make newspapers as accuate as possible, apparently are impotent to protect citizens from character assasination in congress, whose members can hide behind a congressional provision that makes them unaccountable in any other place—the courts, for example—for what they utter on the senate or house floors. — Detroit Free Press.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Recently the writer had the pleasure of conducting a tabernacle evangelistic campaign in Portland, Oregon. The first person he met as he entered the tabernacle was a lady whom he had the joy of leading to Christ in a town in Louisiana more than 30 years ago. This lady is the wife of a prominent physician. She is a zealous Christian. During that same short revival in Louisiana there was another young lady who found Jesus Christ as her personal Savior. She is a leading Christian woman in the South today. Yet, some people say revivals do not abide. I began my evangelistic career at the early age of 15. I have lived to learn that most of the real Christian leaders of our country came to the Lord in some type of revival campaign. The enemies of revivals, whether they realize it or not, are opposed to the thing which this nation needs most. Of course, the modernistic leaders of America are against revivals. They have good reasons for opposing them. They know that revivals are antidotes to their modernistic philosophy. Genuinely born again Christian men and women have an immunity against the satanic philosophy which is generally known as "modernism" in religion. As I go from place to place I constantly meet men and women whom I have had the joy of leading to the Lord years ago. I find converts of Moody, of Billy Sunday, of Sam Jones, and of other evangelists who went up and down this country preaching the Gospel while a certain superficial type of ministers and worldly church members criticized them and denounced their work. There are signs of a revival in America now. The true Christians are beginning to realize that we are "in a bad fix" spiritually and that a revival of the "old time religion" is the only solution for the problem.

During the Portland, Oregon, campaign, I had the pleasure of meeting an old man who surveyed and built the beautiful Columbia River Highway, which is undoubtedly one of the most beautiful roads in all the world. The road wraps itself around mountains from which there flows many a glorious waterfall. My old engineer and road-building friend is an artist. He loves flowers and nature. He is a true Christian. He loves Jesus Christ, Who made all things and for Whom all things were made. But get this. My friend told me the story of his early life. His mother was a widow. He was working hard as a young man to support her. He was stricken with infantile paralysis. He was paralyzed and helpless for months. He learned to write and draw by putting a pencil between his teeth. He wrote his sweetheart love letters with that pencil clinched between his teeth. By the way, that sweetheart is his wife. They have been married more than 50 years. Under his instruction his brother, who is now the president of a great railroad, constructed crutches and braces so he could learn to walk, and little by little he fought his way back to activity. For more than 50 years my old friend has struggled on. He is still a little shaky when he walks, but he keeps fighting, and his health is good. "If I could, I would not take that infantile paralysis out of my life. I thank God for all that happened to me. Every struggle was a blessing. God has followed me all the years of my life. Living and trusting Him has been a great experience. It has been wonderful to be alive and to be able to work. God is so good! He has heard my prayers many times. I am glad I am saved." That is the way the old man talked to me as he was placing with his delicate hands a cluster of beautiful roses in a vase on the dresser in my room. He is a well balanced man. He can survey roads through mountains and he can sleep out at night. He can fight with courageous faith his way out of a bed to crutches, and then from crutches he can walk up mountain sides. Yet, he can write and paint with the hand of an artist, and no woman could ever trim with more delicate hands a bouquet of roses and then place them more artistically in a vase. Thank God for the joy of meeting occasionally one of God's noblemen!

CANE CREEK

Last Sunday was our preachng day, and we had a nice attendance for both Sunday school and preaching. Our pastor, Rev. Norris, preached a good sermon, which was enjoyed by all. Bro. Norris has been sick, but we were very glad he was able to come back and hope he will soon be well again.

B. T. U. was held at 7:30 p. m. We have 41 enrolled, which is excellent for this small community. We have three unions. The B. A. U. and Intermediate unions coming out ahead of the Seniors—"Wake Up Seniors and go to Work."

The W. M. S. will meet next Friday afternoon at 2:30 p. m.

Our annual singing will be an all ay affair, to be held the fourth Sunday in June. We invite all singers and lovers of good music will come and spend the day with us singing. Bring your lunch and new song books.

Our revival will begin the fifth Sunday in July, with Rev. Ben Dykes doing the preaching. He is a fine preacher, and we are glad to be able to get Bro. Dykes to preach for us. Don't forget the above dates and attend them all. We are expecting big crowds to be there.

REFUGE

There was a good number out to Sunday school Sunday.

Rev. Malcolm Lockhart filled his regular appointment at New Cedron Sunday and Sunday night. There were 27 people from here who attended the services at New Cedron Sunday night. Rev. Lockhart was somewhat surprised to see the large delegation from his home church arrive about the preaching hour.

This was indeed a great service. There was an invalid sister who joined for baptism. When the pastor gave an invitation she came forward to the pulpit in a rolling chair, and made an inspiring statement.

Rev. M. Lockhart has received a specal invitation to come and preach at the Missionary Baptist church at Odena, near Sylacuga, next Sunday at 11 a.m. He will leave with his family next Saturday afternoon and visit his wife's people while there. He will return home Sunday afternoon and preach at his home church Sunday night. Bear this in mind, and hear him. He is preaching a series of messages on temperance. You will probably see some of his articles in The Union-Banner in the near future, maybe beginning this week.—Reporter.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Meeting Francesco Malipiero at a party in the Royal Danielli in Venice, soon after the World war, I thought he was one of the most charming and brilliant, and, at the same time, most cryptic men I had ever seen. There was in the company another Italian musician, a famous conductor, who was the lion of the evening. I have forgotten his appearance and his name, but everything about Signor Malipiero is vividly remembered.

Malipiero Was Person to Remember

On the way home in a gondola, I asked the conductor for an appraisal of Signor Malipiero as a musician. There was considerable condescension in the reply.

Malipiero was gifted but erratic, it was even hinted that he was "unsound," in some deeply subversive sense. But my Virgil eagerly agreed that the signor was a most extraordinary human personality.

As recently as four years ago, a Malipiero opera threw the Royal opera house of Rome into a tumult of howling and cat-calls. Mussolini banned it as "inimical to the faith and sound teachings of the new Italy." But, by this time, Malipiero had become a world-famous musician, and he was soon restored to favor.

"Outlaw" of Music Now Is Lionized

This status is unquestioned as his symphony, "Elegiaca," was given its first performance in New York, with John Barbirolli conducting. For many years, critical opinion discounted him as somewhat of an outlaw and disturber. Now it has caught up with him, as it did with Stravinsky and Richard Strauss. Both the "Fire Bird" and "Salome" were met with cat-calls when they were first produced.

Critics note some mysterious "enervating influence" in Malipiero's new symphony. It may be an afterthought, but the explanation seems clear as I recall my conversation with him. His face saddened and he seemed ten years older when I mentioned the war.

For his ballet, "Pantea," he had written of "the struggle of a soul hurling itself into the struggle for liberty, only to find oblivion and death." The war had been to him a tragic and devastating experience. He said it had profoundly shaken both his art and his life.

Never again would the suave fluencies or banalities of music have meaning for him. He was impelled to a deeper search.

Suspected of Sabotage in New Opera

This disillusionment was sublimated in irony. He was suspected of slyly sabotaging the grandiose new Italian state. It was in March, 1934, that his opera, "The Fable of the Exchanged Sons," with the text by Luigi Pirandello, all but caused a riot in the Royal opera house.

So far as I could learn at the time, there was no brash heresy in the work, but, as elaborated by the text, a subtle hint that ultimate truth is forever elusive and supreme power dead sea fruit. That, of course, is dangerous doctrine in a totalitarian state, and it was quickly and savagely resented. The next day, Il Duce forbade another presentation.

Malipiero is a poet and a mystic. Of dominant presence, with sharply cut Roman features and hair brushed back in a thick pompadour, he is at the same time extraordinarily gracious, friendly and unassuming.

He lives in a quaint stone villa, forty or fifty miles from Venice, centuries old, rambling and tumbledown. Cut in the stone door lintel there is a Latin text, "To the obscene, all things are obscene." That was his answer to the critics of one of his operas.

Has Gift for Friendship With Animals

The art of living engrosses him as much as the art of music and he studiously maintains a relationship of courtesy, dignity and friendly intimacy with the creatures in his retreat—he has a gift for friendship with animals and thinks that much of the trouble of mankind is due to its insensitiveness to the subhuman and superhuman. His music is apt to range into those zones.

He was born in Venice in 1882, beginning his violin studies in his sixth year. His father was a political exile and the family was in Germany for many years. Wagner was a crashing strain of modernity which profoundly affected his work.

Work is constantly progressing on the site for Mr. T. J. Arledge's new home on Second Street E., and Third Avenue N. Rock retainer walls are being built, and these together with the rock columns present a very beautiful appearence.

Rumor has it that a negotiation is under way involving sale of the Mrs. Daily Miller property across Second Avenue from T. E. Wyatt's home. This property may be used for a residence or a business or probably both since the size of it would justify that.

A parrot was sitting in the salon of a luxurious liner, watching a magician do tricks. The magician served notice that he was now going to do a trick never before accomplished. He pulled up his sleeves and proceeded to make a few fancy gestures. Just at that moment, the ship's boilers blew up. Five minutes later, as the parrot came to, floating on a piece of driftwood, he muttered: "Damn clever, damn clever".

Ferdy: "Is he?"

Edith: "Oh, very—the last of my lovers he tried to lick was a football player."

AUGUST 1-6 DATES FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, May 16. — One of the most outstanding programs from the recreational and educational standpoint ever held is being worked out for hundreds of Alabama farmers and farm women who will gather at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, August 1 to 6, for the 1938 Farmers and Homemakers Week, announces P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

As part of the educational and recreational program, Director Davis says that state and national agricultural leaders will be present to address the farm people. Community singing, so popular in the past, will be continued this year, as will the sections or classes in livestock, landscaping, poultry, forestry, and other phases of agriculture in which the farm people are interested.

The latest facts on farming and homemaking gathered through experiments of the Alabama Experiment Station will be given the farm men and women, the director states. In addition, tours will be conducted so that the group may see what is being done to improve Alabama crops and farm practices.

All persons attendiny Farmers and Homemakers Week will be housed in cottages of the state camp on the campus at Auburn. Assemblies for speakers and singing will be in the assembly hall of the camp.

"You see, sonny, I always believe in fighing the enemy with his own weapons," said the uncle.

"Really?" gasped Tommy. "How long does it take you to sting a wasp?"

The aviation instructor, having delivered a lecture on parachute work, concluded:

"And if it doesn't open—well, gentlemen, that's what is known as 'jumping to a conclusion'."

Sonny sat on the lower steps, his face resting in his two chubby hands.

"What's the matter, Sonny?"

"Nothin'—just thinkin'."

"What about?"

"Thinkin' how dumb trees are to take off their clothes in winter and put 'em on in summer."

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.

Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

as limited in and by the statute. These courts are courts of unlimited jurisdiction and powers as to the construction, maintenance and improvement of the public roads, bridges and ferries, except as their jurisdiction may be limited by the local or special statutes of the states. They are given by law the authority and power to establish, promulgate and enforce rules and regulations, make and enter into such contracts as may be necessary, or as may be deemed necessary and advisable; to build, construct and maintain a good system of public roads and bridges, and regulate the use thereof.

But it is insisted by appellant that this general superintendence, and other powers and duties with respect to the public roads of Chilton County, conferred by the general law (Code, Section 1347) upon the court of county commissioners of said county, were taken from the said court by the local act of 1936.

It has been repeatedly held by this Court that, in performance of their duties with reference to the location, erection, repair or removal, "or in the furnishing of the county's buildings, bridges and roads", the court of county commissioners exercise a function that is quasi legislative.—Ensley Motor Car Co. v. O'Rear, Treas., 196 Ala. 481, 71 So. 704; Matkins v. Marengo County, 137 Ala. 155, 34 So. 171; Talley v. Jackson County, 175 Ala. 644, 39 So. 167; Eutaw v. Coleman, 189 Ala. 164, 66 So. 464; Commissioners Court v. Hearne, 59 Ala. 371; Askew v. Hale County, 54 Ala. 639, 25 Am. Rep. 730.

By the Local Act of 1936, the Legislature created in and for Chilton County the office of Road Supervisor, with power in the Governor to appoint the supervisor to serve until the first Monday in February, 1939, and thereafter the Court of County Commissioners are required to appoint the supervisor.

By Section 5 of the Act the duty im-Supervisor may be removed by the Commissioners Court of Chilton County, for neglect of duty, or for any other cause which would furnish grounds for impeachment of public officers.

By Section 5 o fthe Act the duty imposed upon, and authority vested in the Road Supervisor, as to building or repairing the public roads and bridges in Chilton County, are expressly declared to be subject to the control of the Commissioners Court, as set forth in the Act.

To be sure the Road Supervisor is charged with the duty of supervising the construction, maintenance and repairing the public roads in said county, but this does not mean that he displaces, in this respect, the court of county commissioners, and that this court is stripped of its statutory powers conferred upon it by Section 1347 of the Code. This supervisor is required to be a civil engineer, and his duties and authority in no wise conflict with the general powers of the court. He is in immediate charge of the construction, maintenance and repair of the roads, but his duties are purely ministerial, and subordinate to the Court of County Commissioners.—Court of County Commissioners v. Johnson, 229 Ala. 417, 157 So. 481; Arledge v. J. D. Pittman Tractor Co., Inc., (MS.)

A consideration of the Act of 1936, supra, convince us that there was no legislative purpose to transfer the powers vested in the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County from that court and vest the same in the road supervisor. If such had been the legislative mind, different language and different terms would have been employed. Repeal of statutes by implication is not favored, and in this local act we find nothing which would give rise to an inference that it was the legislative purpose to deprive the Court of County Commissioners of its legislative, executive and judicial functions with respect to the public roads, bridges and ferries in said county. The said local act in no wise conflicts with Section 1347 of the Code, nor does it deprive the Court of County Commissioners of any power or authority conferred upon it by said Section 1347 of the Code.

The only basis for the contention of appellant that the expenditures complained of were illegal is rested upon the erroneous assumption that the Local Act of 1936 took from the Court of County Commissioners all duties imposed by statute upon said Court, and, as we have reached the conclusion that the local act in no wise conflicted with the provisions of Section 1347, it necessarily follows that the Circuit Court properly sustained the demurrers to the respondents taking this point, and petitioner having declined to plead further, the court also properly dismissed the petition.

It results, therefore, that the judgment of the circuit court must be affirmed.

Affirmed.

Ford Exhibit At New York World's Fair

THE theme of the Ford Motor Company's exhibit building at the New York World's Fair in 1939 will be prophetic of the advances America may expect in transportation in coming decades, according to an announcement by Edsel Ford, president of the company.

Based upon an exposition of the institutional character of the Ford company and the fundamental policies which have directed its growth during the past 35 years, the fair exhibit will reach its climax in "The Road of Tomorrow," an elevated highway more than half a mile long, rising upon a series of spiral ramps, traversing the borders of a patio and finally circling the main building on a deep setback at the top of the walls.

The exhibit, in four rather distinct parts, will include an entrance rotunda facing the main west gate, a spacious Manufacturing Hall, a patio, with pools, playing fountains and large rest areas, and the elevated road. From the west side of the patio, steps will rise to a broad mezzanine. There Ford V-8 and Lincoln-Zephyr cars will load passengers for the ride over "The Road of Tomorrow."

From the loading platform the cars will pass to the south, enter the spiral ramps, climbing to the upper level and following the elevated highway as it passes over the mezzanine, west along the south wall of Manufacturing Hall, through a tunnel lined with photomurals; thence circling the top of the building, through a glass tunnel high in the Rotunda; down the ramp to the second level, around the patio and back to the starting point.

At night flood lighting will fall upon the cars as they circle the highway high on the walls of Manufacturing Hall, playing moving shadows on the building walls, in full sight of the whole fair grounds. The building will occupy the highest location on the grounds. It will be decorated in white, red and blue and will be floodlighted at night.

CLAMPS WON 7-3 FROM B'HAM CLUB

"Buddy" Teague Struck Out 14 In Debut Sunday; Baker Smashes Home Run

The Clamps made up for all lost time Sunday by getting a good game out of their system to trip the Fairview (Birmingham) club 7 to 3 behind the effective 5-hit pitching performance of "Buddy" Teague. "Buddy was a bit wild, walking eight and hitting one batter, but used a smoking fast ball to send 14 Fairview batters back to the mourners' bench by the strike-out route; he gathered in one of the Clamps' 11 hits, and was robbed of another.

Teague hails from the University of Alabama, and was one of this year's Tide Southeastern championship team. His start Sunday was impressive, as the first five men to face him were strike-out victims. The new Clamp was "clamping" in great style.

But he was not the only one. After a drouth of base hits, they broke out in a rash in the 5th inning. "Papa's Boy" Hayes opened with a three-ply smash to right, far down among the nettles and bitter weeds. Tiffin followed with another triple over the dump in left field. Baker doubled. After Jones and Teague went out, Golson, batting for Rutherford, singled, and Baker came in with the third run.

It all broke out anew in the 7th, four runs counting when hits were registered by Williamson, Littlejohn, Hayes, Baker, and Teague. The Clamps gathered a total of 11 hits off Riggins and Riddle, over half of them for extra bases.

The visitors scored first in the 4th, when Teague gave up a single, then went wild and walked three; here he tightened and struck out three. They scored again in the 7th on a hit batter and a double. The last one came in the 8th on two hits and two errors.

The Clamps all played a jam-up game Sunday to keep pace with the superb hurling of Teague. The fans like this newcomer. He has the stuff, and it looks as though he may be in for a good year with our local club.

Alex Hayes led the locals Sunday with three hits, while Littlejohn and Baker got two each; Williamson, Golson, Tiffin and Teague accounted for the other four.

For the visitors, Hays and Bell had a pair each, and Rigdon brought the total to five, with his single.

WATTS HAT SHOPPE IS NOW IN NEW LOCATION

The Watts Hat Shoppe is now moved into their new place of business across the highway from Wadesonian Theatre. The place is very pretty, and the arrangement is up to snuff. There is not a nicer looking place of business in Clanton, or even in this part of the state, than that of Miss Callie Watts.

CHAPMAN-GILES

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Chapman of Clanton announce the marriage of their daughter, Caudell, to Kermit O. Giles of Birmingham. The bride and groom will make their home in Birmingham.

ALABAMA EDITORS WILL HOLD CONVENTION IN HAVANA, CUBA

Summer Convention Trip Begins On Sunday, July 17; Washington-New York Trip In 1939

Due to the fact that the World's Fair is to be held in New York in 1939 a large number of newspaper publishers desired to hold their 1938 convention in Havana and postpone until next year holding the press convention in New York, C. L. Walton, president of the Alabama Press Association, said this week.

The postponement of the Washington-New York trip this summer and the holding of the summer convention in Cuba was made necessary by the unusual demand of publishers and their friends to again visit the island of Cuba. Dr. Luis Machado, President of the Cuban Tourist Commission, last week extended a most cordial invitation for the Alabama Press Association to hold this year's convention in Cuba as guests of the Cuban government, Mr. Walton stated.

"The members of the Alabama Press Association and their friends are near and dear to the hearts of all Cubans, and I beg you to do us the honor of accepting this invitation", Dr. Machado said.

The Roy Brown Tours have been asked to handle the details of the convention trip to Cuba during the week beginning July 17, and all presons interested in a delightful vacation trip should communicate with the editor of this newspaper; C. L. Walton, President of the Alabama Press Association, LaFayette, Ala.,; or Roy Brown Tours, Melton Hotel, Birmingham, Ala.

PETROLEUM INDUSTRIES COMM. PUT ON BARBECUE AT RIVER

The Petroleum Industries Committee of Chilton County was recipient of much generosity and hospitality from the State Committee at a barbecue at Gulledge Camp on Blue Creek last Friday night, May 27th.

The event was given in recognition of the fact that the Chilton County committee won out in a drive for membership last year over all other counties of Alabama.

After a most sumptuous plate was served to about sixty guests, Mr. Fred M. Hearne, president of the State Committee, gave a brief lecture and presented moving pictures of the parade held at the meeting of the State committee in Montgomery late in March.

It was a distinct honor to the Chilton County committee, of which Mr. W. E. (Dub) Huddleston is chairman, to receive this gratuity from the state committee, it having done the best work in enlisting eligibles to membership of all counties. This county was run a close second by Bibb County, Mr. Hearne stated.

The state and county committees are putting on an intensive drive against high taxation of their products and against diverting proceeds from such taxation to other things than road and bridge work.

Alabama is said to have the highest taxation on gasoline and motor oils of any state in the Union.

RED CROSS QUOTA FOR CHINESE AID SET FOR CHILTON COUNTY

Mr. J. Mell Martin, disaster chairman for the Red Cross, reports that Chilton County's quota for Chinese Aid has been set and the local chapter notified of the amount.

Mr. Martin is working on plans for the raising of Chilton County's part, and you will likely hear of it soon. In the meantime, if anyone wishes to make a donation, same can be done directly to Mr. Martin or to your local roll call chairman.

Chinese relief is a worthy undertaking of the Red Cross, and is deserving of the support of the people of our county who are able to pay into it.

RECEPTION GIVEN FOR NEW PASTOR

Rev. and Mrs. Oscar A. Davis Given Warm Reception Here Night Of 25th

An informal reception was held at Clanton Baptist church last Wednesday night honoring the church's new pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Oscar A. Davis.

The function was held in the basement of the church, and at the door stood Mrs. Luther E. Little, Mrs. E. E. Upchurch, and Mrs. J. E. Gowan. The receiving line consisted of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Truett, Rev. and Mrs. Davis, Mrs. J. P. Hayes, Mr. J. Watts Moore, Mr. O. M. Webb, and Prof. Luther E. Little.

One hundred sixteen guests registered, who were served punch, cookies and mints by a bevy of pretty girls, members of Mrs. Ruth Kate Shepherd's Sunday school class.

Assisting in entertaining the guests were Mrs. Frank Scott, Mrs. Grady Heflin, Mrs. Ruth Kate Shepherd, Mrs. Kathleen Deramus, Mrs. J. Watts Moore, and Mrs. John T. Ellis. Mrs. H. T. Pipes and Mrs. Jesse C. Jones presided at the registration book.

Entertainment numbers rendered during the hour consisted of several male quartets, vocal solos by Miss Kathryn Foss, piano solos by Mrs. Percy Pitts, and violin solos by Mrs. Jatie Longshore.

The reception proved a most successful and entertaining function, everything being designed and carried out to extend a most cordial welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Davis into the church and into the city.

ABSENTEE BALLOT RACKET MUST SURELY BE BAD THING

Well, it is unanimous that the absentee ballot racket is a bad thing—at least it is unanimous with the two newspapers of Clanton. And when the Chilton County News and The Union-Banner both come out against something, you can bet your bottom dollar that such a thing should be let alone, and most especially when the matter in question relates to politics.

The News said last week: "We have always abhorred the practice of buying votes . . . . It is rumored here some absentee votes were purchased . . . . which practice may some day wind up in litigation in the courts."

In its issue of May 26th, The Union-Banner said: "The Union-Banner wishes to call attention to a few facts: The law strictly forbids and provides a penalty for buying or offering to buy, or selling, a vote . . . . People should be more careful about this absentee voting, selling and buying, Etc."

The Union-Banner wishes to commend our esteemed neighbor for his brave stand on this absentee vote buying and selling racket. It is something that demands the open and fearless resentment of the good citizens of our county; it is a dangerous thing to perpetuate and inflict upon the future citizenship of our county and state. It is sincerely hoped that the next legislature will knock the thing into a cocked hat. It belongs in the trash heap if anything ever did.

W. A. CROWSON TO HAVE OPENING THIS WEEK END

East Clanton is assuming its rightful place in the annals of the city's existence again — we are speaking about that part of the city across Goose Pond Creek, or Reynolds Addition.

Mr. W. A. Crowson has taken in charge the grocery store next to his feed mill over there, and will have his formal opening the last two days of this week. The business is now known as W. A. Crowson Grocery, and Mr. Crowson promises to give the trade some real values in his line.

Turn to his opening adv. on another page of The Union-Banner, and just gaze at the amazing values he is offering; and most of all, drop by and buy something from him. That will make "Little Willie" smile and feel better too.

YELLOW LEAF MILL IS NOW OPERATED BY J. W. THOMPSON

The old Mahan mill on Yellow Leaf Creek is now in operation and is under the personal supervision of Mr. J. W. Thompson, one of the most experienced millers and machinists of the county. Mr. Thompson does feed grinding, corn shucking and shelling, and corn grinding. In connection with milling, Mr. Thompson does all kinds of machine and blacksmith work.

Read Mr. Thompson's adv. elsewhere in this paper.

FATHERS WILL GET "BREAK" ON JUNE 19

"Give the old man a break", Gov. Bibb Graves said, in effect, Thursday as he proclaimed June 19 at "Father's Day" in Alabama. His proclamation:

"Whereas, the sponsors of National Father's Day have designated the third Sunday in June as 'Father's Day'; and

"Whereas, the third Sunday in June falls on June 19; and

"Whereas, it is very essential that the fathers, as well as the mothers, of this land be given the honor, respect and devotion that should characterize the attitude of children toward their parents;

"Now, therefor, I, Bibb Graves, do hereby proclaim Sunday, June 19, 1938, as 'Father's Day' within the confines of Alabama, and request that appropriate ceremonies be arranged, calling attention to the importance of children having that regard and respect for fathers as well as mothers that has been the cornerstone of the civilization of America."

CHILTON GIRL HONORED THIS YEAR AT AUBURN

A recipient of special honors in her school work at Auburn this past year was Miss Jane Billingsley, daughter of Mrs. Claud Billingsley. In consideration of the fact, Miss Billingsley's picture and a nice write-up of her record was carried in last Sunday's Birmingham News.

NEW DEALERS ON THE RUN

The New Dealers are on the run from Pennsylvania to the Pacific. Recent election returns from coast to coast show that the unholy alliance of radicals, rascals and renegades is at last being appraised at its true worth. The recent primary elections are heartening to Republicans, and lovers of our American institutions everywhere.

In Pennsylvania, one of the great industrial states of the East, stronghold of John L. Lewis and the CIO, controlled by a powerful left wing Democratic machine built up on patronage and plunder, the Republicans polled over 200,000 more votes than the Democrats did in their respective party primaries. Even the Democrats turned thumbs down on Boss Farley to the extent of defeating the radical candidate for governor who ran with Farley's blessing—though they did nominate an unsavory ringster in his place. Every indication points to Pennsylvania's return to its traditional place in the Republican fold—and Pennsylvania, be it remembered, carries a block of electoral votes second only to New York. And Pennsylvania, with its huge industrial population concentrated in dense centers, was supposed to be the Happy Hunting Ground of the rabble rousers, the demagogues, and the CIO.

In South Dakota, a supposedly radical midwestern farming state, the Republicans polled over 15,000 more votes in their primary than the Democrats.

In Oregon, far western state formerly dominated by Harry Bridges, communistic alien president of the Maritime Workers Union, a 100 per cent FDR clique, the Republican vote ran 15,000 ahead of the Democrats.

In each of these states, the Democratic primary overshadowed the Republican primary in newspaper headlines and popular interest in other parts of the nation. The New Deal was apparently so firmly entrenched that chief interest centered in what the Democrats would do in their primaries, as though the fate of the campaigns would in reality be decided there. Instead, the voters rudely jolted the hopes of the Roosevelt radicals by registering a Republican vote in excess of that of the Democrats.

These results were achieved despite the fact that in each of the states the Democrats were in control of patronage; in spite of the "pump priming" billions that have been more aptly described as "election priming" slush money; in spite

JOE EARL GOWAN GRADUATED IN DENTISTRY WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1

Dr. J. E. Gowan reports that his son, Joe Earl, is graduating in dentistry at Atlanta Southern Dental College Wednesday night of this week. Dr. Gowan, Mrs. Gowan and daughter, Ruth, left Clanton Tuesday and were to attend the graduation exercises Wednesday night.

This is the second son of Dr. and Mrs. Gowan to follow the footsteps of their father by becoming a dentist, Dr. Jesse Sam having graduated some four years ago.

Joe Earl has not definitely determined yet as to where he will practice; it may be that he will follow the old family tradition and join in with his dad and big bud in the office here.

In any case, The Union-Banner extends congratulations to the younger Gowan in his attainments so far in the profession.

MAN FOUND SHOT SATURDAY NIGHT

Roy Evans, Columbus, Ga., Man Attempted Suicide; Is Recovering At Hospital

Last Saturday night just before midnight a white man suffering from wounds was found on the porch of the home of Mary Dudley, a negro woman living on North Fifth Street. Officers were notified, and when the man was found he was lying near the home of Mr. Hugh Jones; the officers determined that the man was Roy Evans, about 25 years old, from Columbus, Ga., and was suffering from a bullet wound in the chest just above the heart. The man would not tell the officers anything at first as to what had happened to him. Spigener's ambulance was called, and the wounded man was carried to Central Alabama Hospital.

Evans's first report was that he had been held up and robbed by men in a car on the highway. Later he stated that a woman had shot him. His last report, however, is that he shot himself in an attempt to take his own life.

The latter story of the man is corroborated with clues found by the officers. A blood trail was tracked to a grove above the home of Frank Callen, off a short distance from the street. A .32 automatic was found on the ground at this point, being fully loaded with the exception of one empty chamber.

Hospital attaches say that the man is doing well and will likely recover from the wound.

PIGGLY WIGGLY TO OPEN THIS WEEK

Clanton Cash Store No. 2 Goes Under New System; Paul Locklear Is Manager

For several weeks there has been under way a thorough changing up of things at Clanton Cash Store No. 2, and this week it becomes a reality. The store is now a business that is completely new to Clanton and this part of the state, a help-yourself store, properly known as Piggly Wiggly.

Only groceries will be carried as heretofore, but the customer will get a basket as he or she enters, go around to the various shelves and counters, gather up the articles wanted, and then pass out by the cashier, who will add up the bill and receive the cash from the customer. This kind of store is not new to cities, but it is the first ever to come to Clanton.

This Piggly Wiggly store will be owned by Messrs. Tom Taylor and O. D. Deloach, but will be licensed by the Piggly Wiggly corporation and operated under the Piggly Wiggly system.

Managing the new store will be a man who is not old in age but is rather old in the grocery business in Clanton—Mr. Paul Locklear, until recently connected with another grocery store here. He has made for himself a host of friends during his stay in Clanton, and has well established the fact that he knows the grocery business for a city the size of Clanton. His many friends here as well as the many admirers and customers of Messrs. Deloach and Taylor and the former customers and friends of Clanton Cash Store No. 2 will be pleased to learn of Mr. Locklear's connection with the new store as its manager. The other personnel of the Piggly Wiggly store will be announced in due course of time.

Elsewhere in this issue of The Union-Banner appears a large adv. of Piggly Wiggly, together with some congratulatory advertising from various business concerns and interests. See what the opening attractions and specials are for this week end, June 2nd, 3rd and 4th. And watch this paper continuously for future announcements and special sale advantages.

Connors, another young white man who is in jail charged with breaking into a filling station. Conners has been charged with breaking in places of business twice. The drawing up of the hack-saw blades was being attempted about 10 o'clock on Monday morning of last week.

A state-wide mattress making campaign will be conducted by home demonstration club women in every county of Alabama from August 1 to January 1, announces Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent. The training schools for all home demonstration agents are to be held as follows: Gadsden, June 21-22; Florence, June 24-25; Troy, June 6-8; Alexander City, June 16-18; Mobile, June 9-11; Selma, June 13-15.

In spite of the heavy rain and frost damage during the first half of April, crop prospects for Alabama are generally to be considered above the average, announces the Alabama Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. Since the middle of April conditions have been almost ideal and tremendous progress has been made both in farm work and crop development.

COWS AND GOVERNMENT

What do sows have to do with government? Just this:

A peasant had six cows, and the government took all of them away from him. That's Communism.

A peasant had six cows, and the government took three of them. That's Socialism.

A peasant had six cows, and the government let him keep all six of them and let him feed and otherwise care for them, but took all of the milk and all of the calves. That's Fascism.

A peasant had six cows, and the government let him keep all six of them, but made him pay the personal property tax, sales tax, poll tax, ad valorem tax, excess profits tax, old age pension tax, social security tax, federal tax, state tax, county tax, excise tax, city tax, school tax, luxury tax, income tax, outgo tax, war tax, peace tax, auto license tax, gasoline tax, inheritance tax, carpet tax, dog tax, syntax, and various other taxes until the peasant wondered whether or not he would be better off without the cows. That's Democracy.

My nose is red only when I blow it; then it's blew.

INTEREST IN TAXATION PRODUCT OF DEPRESSION

Growing public interest in taxation and especially in the cost of taxes to the individual, is one of the few beneficial effects of recent depressions, in the opinion of L. H. Anderson, executive of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Committee. Mr. Anderson last week expressed the hope that both the growing public interest in taxation, and the continuing cost of taxes, soon would lead to a revision of the nation's complicated and hopelessly costly tax system.

"The old saying that 'it's an ill wind which blows nobody good' properly can be applied to recent depressions," Mr. Anderson explained, "which appear to be having a beneficial effect in arousing growing public interest in taxation, and especially in the cost of taxes to the individual. Folks whose incomes seriously have been curtailed and who find it increasingly difficult to make both ends meet, are paying more attention to the high cost of taxes.

"Items in the press indicate that all over the country people are becoming aware of the fact that taxes are costing too much, and that something must be done in the way of revision of the nation's complicated and hopelessly costly tax system. The motorist taxpayer, protesting his own high and duplicated taxes, has been joined by thousands of others who also have discovered that the policy of shifting taxes to somebody else cannot be substituted for reduced tax costs as a solution of the tax problem.

"Among the more promising efforts are studies of the costs of government, and of taxes, now being made in several states in the hope that some way can be found to achieve economies in government operation and thereby permanently reduce tax costs. Our organization is ready and willing to cooperate in these efforts."

"Don't talk to me about lawyers, my dear, I've had so much trouble over the property that I sometimes wish my husband hadn't died".

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy has been an effective social and political ally of both her father, former mayor of Boston, and her husband, ambassador to the Court of St. James. But the news that, in accordance with her husband's decision, she presented only seven American women at court is one of her rare appearances in the headlines.

Mrs. Kennedy Aids Father and Husband

The 11 engaging Kennedys have been viewed more or less en bloc in the news and Mrs. Kennedy has never been in a very sharp lens focus.

She was one of the prettiest of Boston debutantes, 30 years ago, a rollicking girl with black hair and eyes of Irish blue. Back home from her convent training, she taught her father "Sweet Adeline."

He was John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, and in his campaigns he sang his way to memorable political fame—riding like a surfboard the long, lingering "swipes" of the song taught him by his daughter—"the flower of his heart."

Joseph P. Kennedy, her childhood playmate, was twenty-five years old when they were married in 1914. He borrowed $2,000 for a down payment on a $6,500 house. Their fortunes grew as their family, with Mr. Kennedy president of a bank, in a year or two after their marriage.

Fortune and Family Grew Up Together

Mrs. Kennedy once told a Boston drygoods clerk that she bought 200 suits and dresses a year. It takes a heap of shopping to make a home, like the Kennedys', and she became known among her friends as a paragon of household efficiency comparable to the one in Solomon's offhand apostrophe to such skills and virtues.

Now she is mistress of the "castle" which was once J. Pierpont Morgan's home; also of a beautiful mansion in Bronxville, N. Y., a huge summer estate at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, and a villa at Palm Beach, built by one of the Wanamakers.

She is slender and girlish, comely and vivacious, weighs 115 pounds and takes size 14 in dresses. Vionnet makes her gowns and she is envied by other women for her magnificent jewels—notable among them being a ruby and diamond bracelet which, it is said, is matched only by the one the Aga Khan gave his princess.

Has Diamond a Potentate Might Envy

But she never lets the children run to unseemly display, holding them to restraint in regime and dress. Even without all these adventitious fixings, say her friends, she would be an admirable ambassador's wife, with her own quite adequate equipment of tact, charm and intelligence.

* * *

MAN and boy, this journeyman has helped process a lot of explorers' and adventurers' copy through the news mill. If it was ghost-written, it had only slick and synthetic excitement, like Ersatz pastry, and if it wasn't it was usually dull. Happily in contrast are the doubtlessly authentic and personally written yarns of W. H. Tilman, leader of the British Mount Everest expedition, now getting under way.

These stories from the Tibetan base camp have a professional ease and fluency, along with a ring of integrity which gives assurance that Mr. Tilman is really writing them. There is no ghost on the job here.

Yarns From Mt. Everest Ring True

Mr. Tilman is thirty-nine years old, a keen-faced, hard-muscled Britisher of medium stature, who has been exploring ever since he left college.

He has climbed mountains in the Alps and in Africa, including Mounts Kenya, Kilimanjaro and Ruvenzori. This is his fifth expedition to the Himalayas. The entrants in this high hurdle event are not youngsters. N. E. Odell is forty-seven, F. S. Smythre is thirty-seven and the others are all over thirty.

Bull Terrier, White Dog

When bull baiting was abolished by law in England, sporting men developed the bull terrier for dog fighting and badger baiting. About 1875, dalmatian and pointer blood were introduced in the strain, making them look less like bulldogs. The bull terrier is always white, has a long tapering head, wide, deep chest, stiff, glossy hair and tapering tail. He is gentle and good natured, but fears nothing and is a good watch dog.

THE EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL ON THE HUMAN BODY

Herewith The Union-Banner is publishing the second installment of its article relating to the effects of alcohol on the human body. As stated last week, these paragraphs are taken from "Graded Lessons in Physiology and Hygiene" by Wm. O. Krohn, M. D., Ph. D., (Yale), published in 1908.

In connection with this week's installment, we wish to call attention to statistics released just last week by the Alabama Department of Health. "There were four deaths in Chilton County during the month of March attributed to heart disease. During the month 446 died in Alabama from the same cause". Heart disease took more than twice as many as any other one ailment, according to the department, the next highest being cerebral hemorrhage. Tuberculosis took only 135 during the month of March.

Deaths from heart trouble are constantly increasing, and it is universally conceded by the medical profession that alcohol has a tremendously bad effect upon the heart—more than upon any other organ of the human body. A later installment in this series of articles will deal with the effects of alcohol upon the heart.

You are invited to read what Dr. Krohn says this week, then pass it on to your friends to read it:

IS ALCOHOL A FOOD? — You recall that food is any substance which, when taken into our bodies, will produce heat, weight, or strength. Has alcohol any of these qualities which must be possessed in order to class a substance as food? Are its effects neither beneficial nor harmful, or is it injurious to the body?

DOES ALCOHOL PRODUCE BODILY HEAT? — It is often claimed for alcoholic drinks that they possess a special advantage in the readiness with which they are able to produce bodily heat. This is an error. In the ordinary forms in which it is taken alcohol lowers the temperature of the body, as the clinical thermometer of the physician plainly reveals. It is true that a drink of wine or whiskey sends the blood to the skin. This is seen in the flushed face. The sending the blood to the skin gives a sensation of heat. We feel warmer. We are deceived, for we are actually cooler. The more blood there is at the surface of the body, the more quickly is its temperature lowered. Alcohol does not create bodily heat.

DOES ALCOHOL CREATE TISSUE? — Alcohol unites so readily with water that it tends to extract the fluids of the body from the healthy tissues, and in this way it attacks and destroys them. Scientists seem to agree that alcohol is a tissue destroyer and not a tissue builder.

DOES ALCOHOL CREATE ENERGY? — This is a question that has provoked much discussion. Renowned physicians tell us there are some diseases in which the temporary use of alcohol is of service in the effort to prolong the life of the patient. Thus it would seem to indicate that in certain limited quantities it is a force producer. But so is strychnine. Probably no drug is more favorably regarded by the modern physician as an efficient heart tonic than strychnine in very small doses. The situation is practically the same with respect to alcohol. In certain very small quantities, and under definite conditions of experiment, it will act for a limited time as a force producer. Whether this is sufficient to class alcohol as a food is a question that can be best answered when we consider the harmful effects of alcohol, which more than offset the one reason for regarding it as a food. Alcohol is not economic food, not necessary food, not tissue forming food; but on the other hand, seems on being decomposed within the body to yield up some energy. But, if in yielding up this energy certain processes are set in motion that cause a cheapening of the individual physically, mentally, or morally, they should be called unhealthful foods rather than healthful foods, if the word "food" is to be used at all. Even those who apply to alcohol the term "food", in the strict sense that it is a force producer, do not advise its use. Professor Atwater, who has recently demonstrated anew this force producing quality of alcohol, says: "I myself believe that the more advisable course is habitual abstinence".

ALCOHOL IS POISONOUS. — Alcohol tends to destroy tissue, derange bodily functions, and cause the brain to act dishonestly. While technically it may be called a food, practically it is a poison, and there is always danger in its use. Being a dangerous drug, it should be used only when prescribed by a physician. More hard work can be done without alcohol than with it.

ALCOHOL AND PHYSICAL TRAINING. — That alcohol is harmful and not beneficial is shown in the very strict rules laid down by athletic trainers. No person, in training for athletic events under the direction of a competent instructor, is permitted to take any alcoholic beverage. The trained athlete requires nutritious foods, and experience in physical training has shown that alcohol retards rather than assists his muscular development, and interferes with quick and reliable action of the nerves, fibers, and cells.

PHYSICAL EFFECTS OF ALCOHOL. — The precise effects of alcohol upon the body have not been fully determined, but enough is known to justify the statement that its effects on the whole are bad. There are certain diseases directly traceable to the use of alcohol. If the individual does not drink alcohol he escapes these diseases. They include a fatal form of disease of the liver and kidneys, as well as chronic indigestion, disease of the eyes and arteries. The best authorities say that there is not a single kind of nervous disease known that cannot be caused by alcoholic excesses.

Wine Engenders Foolishness

The one who partakes of the wine cup is like a person that "lieth down in the midst of the sea, or as he that lieth upon the top of a mast" — Prov. 23:34.

No one but a fool would seek to sleep under water. No one but a fool would lie down in the midst of the sea. No one but a fool would attempt to sleep upon the top of a mast.

The most foolish, asinine, conceited, and humiliating things a man may do are done under the influence of drink. He will curse his Maker. He will abuse his mother. He will browbeat his wife. He will humiliate his children. He will squander his wages, neglect his work, intimidate his friends and embarrass everybody. He babbles and talks crazily, looks crazy, thinks crazy thoughts, acts crazy, and is crazy. No one but a crazy fool would do the things drunken people do. Noah became drunk on wine and lay uncovered and naked before his family in a disgraceful state that no sane father, no man in his right mind, would do.

Wine engenders habit. "They have stricken me and I was not sick; they have beaten me and I felt it not. When shall I awake? I will seek it yet again"—Prov. 23:35.

How any man can become so addicted to drink that, after going through the humiliation, shame, suffering and woe of one spree, he can be fool enough to take to the cup again, is beyond me! But many do. They go right back for more. Like a hog that is washed turns to wallowing in the mire, and like a dog returning to his vomit, a drunkard turns to his cup again. It looks like one spree would be enough for any man, but it isn't. It looks like after one horrible nightmare of it he would let it alone, but he doesn't. Why? Because it is a narcotic; it is a habit forming drug; it forges chains of habit about its victim; like the devil-fish, it has feelers and arms that embrace and hold it. It is bad enough to be a slave in body; it is worse to be a slave in mind; but the worst of all slavery is that of the soul. Drink chains a man in soul, mind and body.

Confirmed drunkards all started as moderate drinkers — the habit grew. The only safe plan is to "look not upon the wine when it is red" Shun it as you would a contagious disease; avoid it as you would a poisonous reptile. It entwines you with its slimy coils, and poisons you with its murderous fangs. "It biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." — M. Lockhart.

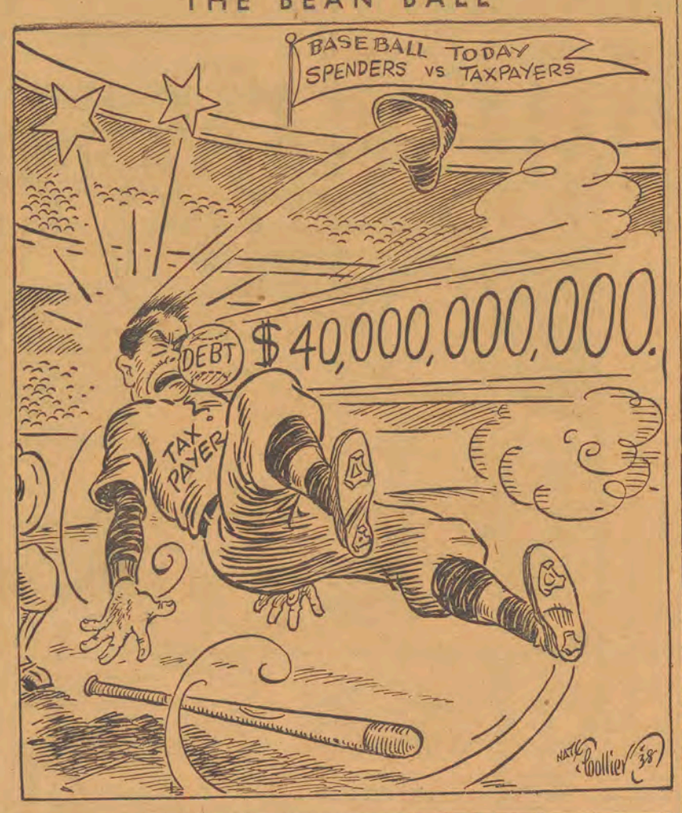
He's a Doctor
(He Prescribes Oil Sometimes, But Never Pills)

"HE isn't a medical doctor, but an electrical appliance doctor. Electrical appliances, of course, seldom get out of order but occasionally they get minor 'aches and pains.' Maybe a little 'skin' gets loose from a wire, maybe a joint becomes disconnected or a fuse burns out. Perhaps a motor may need a little oil, or a plug on a lamp cord may need repairing.

"My Company's appliance service men are general practitioners, and you can count on them to do a good job when you call them.

"Of course, they are not the only dependable 'electric doctors' in most towns. Many dealers who do electrical repair work are just as good.



"If your electrical appliances get out of order, call an electrical appliance 'doctor', or if you can, bring the 'patient' to the store. 'Office calls' come a little cheaper."

Science Beats the Sun

INDUSTRIAL engineers have now developed the device shown above, Consumers Information reports, to test color-fastness of fabrics, so that manufacturers can make sure in advance that their materials won't fade in the sun. Women never used to be sure that their dresses and draperies would retain their original brilliance until they had actually been exposed to sunlight. But through the use of this machine, developed by industrial research experts, it is now possible to tell whether dyed fabrics will hold their color. This is just one more of the many examples of how industry helps the consumer.

HOMECOMING AT SHILOH WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The homecoming day at Shiloh was enjoyed by a large crowd. People shook hands with friends whom they had not seen for several years.

The morning program was followed as scheduled, with several good talks, and a wonderful sermon by Rev. Paul Oden. Rain began to fall about the noon hour, and lunch was not spread until it ceased. This hour was enjoyed to the utmost; there was plenty of food, and everyone was ready for it.

The afternoon was spent in singing. There was a large class of good singers, and some fine quartets. Directors for the afternoon were: C. M. Billingsley, O. L. Devaughn, L. T. Grant, Orbie Devaughn, Lewis Kilpatrick, Archie Devaughn, J. W. Devaughn, W. L. Jones, J. E. Varner, L. D. Hughes, Marshall Burkhalter, Clem Kilpatrick, Philip Headley, O. C. Billingsley, Paul Hughes, S. A. Henley, J. J. Burkhalter, Clark Burkhalter, and Mr. Jones. The quartets present were: Alabama Four from Clanton, Tabernacle Quartet from Prattville, quartets from Coopers, Liberty Hill, and the Burkhalter Quartet. F. I. Popwell sang a solo.

Everyone who attended knows more than ever before what "the great homecoming day" will be like.

The Union-Banner, One Year, $1.00

Malipiero is a poet and a mystic. Of dominant presence, with sharply cut Roman features and hair brushed back in a thick pompadour, he is at the same time extraordinarily gracious, friendly and unassuming.

He lives in a quaint stone villa, forty or fifty miles from Venice, centuries old, rambling and tumbledown. Cut in the stone door lintel there is a Latin text, "To the obscene, all things are obscene." That was his answer to the critics of one of his operas.

The art of living engrosses him as much as the art of music and he studiously maintains a relationship of courtesy, dignity and friendly intimacy with the creatures in his retreat—he has a gift for friendship with animals and thinks that much of the trouble of mankind is due to its insensitiveness to the subhuman and superhuman. His music is apt to range into those zones.

Has Gift for Friendship With Animals

He was born in Venice in 1882, beginning his violin studies in his sixth year. His father was a political exile and the family was in Germany for many years. Wagner was a crashing strain of modernity which profoundly affected his work.

To The Dog Owners Of Clanton

Many interesting articles have been written on the subject of dogs, telling of their devotion to man, their protection to children, their aid to the blind, and of their general benefit to all the world. Some of these articles are so extravagantly written expressing the value of dogs one would be persuaded to believe were it not for dogs, the people could scarcely exist, business would slow down and the world fail to function in its usual way.

In addressing this letter to you, I do so with the full knowledge of your appreciation of your dog; that you would perhaps go to the extreme in giving your dog protection. This attitude is prompted first by the fact the dog is yous, and you object to anything of your own being damaged or mistreated. We all have this feeling for our possessions. In the second place I believe we have been influenced by the press of the country to place too great a value on dogs and our interest and appreciation are somewhat unreasonable. We are kind of impressed that it is unpopular not to love a dog, and it is almost unpardonable to attempt to reduce their number in the community, or to restrict their liberty. A nice sweet girl or lady believes she is attracting favorable comment and notice to herself when she appears on the street with a dog in her arms. It is my opinion of a secret vote were taken, disapproval would be expressed, but when she meets her associates along the way, a little policy and desire on their part to please her at once prompts them to begin to "rave" about how cute the dog is.

I have no personal dislike for a dog. When I was a boy living in the country I had a yard full of them. Recently I made friends with a handsome black dog of fine blood, and it followed me home. I refused it admission to my home at the front door, and it went immediately to the back door, and was so appealing in its manner and expression that I opened the door, and the dog inspected my home as if to determine whether to remain with me permanently or not. The half fed and sick dogs have my sympathy, and I am never unkind to a dog. They should not be mistreated, but I think our attitude toward dogs should be changed. I believe we should place a commercial value on them, and the possession of one should be determined entirely on its being able to render a useful and needed service to the home and should not be kept as a pet. If the dog cannot earn its feed and keep by giving service, then do not have the dog. This policy would reduce the number in the community and eliminate the worthless breed known as the cur or mongrel.

Why not place the dog in the same class with the horse, or beast of burden? Would you feed a horse if you did not need its labor? Then just why have the expense of a dog, the mess and odor it creates about the home?

People in the country have use for dogs, but we, who live in towns and cities do not, as a rule, need one at all. My friend, Bud Jones, the cattle man, has a dog I think is a help to him in handling cattle and he is justified in keeping the dog in Clanton.

About ninety per cent of the dogs in Clanton are a real nuisance and should be disposed of. They ruin the flowers and shrubs in the yards of your neighbors. They sleep on the porches and in porch chairs. Mats, rugs or cushions left on porches over night are often ruined. They turn the garbage cans over and scatter the contents about the premises. If the street men fail to take additional time to gather it all up, this brings a complaint from the housewife against the men and the dogs also. They dig great holes in the yards of your neighbors and otherwise mess the yard so much it is unsafe to walk through the yard and return into the house without first careful examination of one's shoes. They bark at each other most of the night across town, and several times during the week they have get-together meetings and parties, and prizes are awarded to the one that barks the loudest and the longest. Usually there is not much regulation, or strict rule, so it seems they all bark at the same time, and the party is concluded with a free-for-all fight over the prizes. Your neighbors do not sleep well while all this noise is being made.

Such complaints as I have mentioned are made frequently to me and to the Council, and earnest request made of the Council to pass a law requiring you to keep your dogs on your own premises. Citizens have appeared before the Council at our meetings and almost demanded that they take some action to give them protection against your dogs. The demand that a "dog law" be passed is growing stronger each day. Therefore I am writing you this letter to kindly say to you if you do not prevent your dogs from disturbing your neighbors, you will hasten the time when the City Council will be compelled by the demand of a large citizenship, to forbid the running at large of your dogs.

It is your privilege to own a dog, or as many as you wish, but you do not have the right to allow them to disturb your neighbor, or to damage his property. Our homes in town being so close to each other, it is almost impossible for one to own a dog without it annoying, to an extent, your neighbor. Its bark and its activities is not half so provoking to you as it is to your neighbor. Your neighbor, as a rule, will not complain to you. He wants your good feeling and friendship, but he brings his troubles to your Mayor and Council, and often requests that we do not mention his or her name.

My second reason for this letter is to ask you most kindly to consider the matter in a broadminded and reasonable way. Ask yourself the question if you really need a dog; if you do not, then help your officers by destroying it, to have a cleaner city. Your neighbor deserves consideration. Be a good neighbor by according to him all due respect and protection that he deserves. I am informed by Dr. Parrish that there are about 750 dogs in Clanton. We do not need them. The food they eat would feed many people. Let us cooperate to the end that our dog population is reduced to a very few well bred dogs, or better still, not to have any at all. It would be a wonderful advertisement for Clanton to be able to say no dogs were owned, not that we dislike dogs, but we appreciate our neighbors and a clean city more than we do dogs. Respectfully, — C. Fenn Jones, Mayor.

IN MEMORY

Friday morning, May 27, at his home near Pletcher, Mr. T. C. Abbott left this world for a home in the great beyond. Being a firm believer in his Master, we know he has gone to rest.

He was a member of Pilgrims Rest Baptist church, and always held out for his belief and faith—always for the right. He left a vacancy at home which no one can fill.

To us, grandfather is not dead, but sleeping. He has gone on to await the coming of his loved ones ot the land of peaceful rest.

He was 84 years of age, and leaves to mourn his going: our step-grandmother; three sons—J. L. and J. T. Abbott of Pletcher, and C. D. Abbott of Autaugaville; three daughters — Mrs. G. B. Williams of Pletcher, Mrs. Gertrude Poole of Montgomery, and Mrs. L. B. Edwards of Irondale; 24 grandchildren, and 28 great-grandchildren.

Remains were laid to rest at Pilgrims Rest Saturday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. Hughes of Coopers officiating. — A granddaughter, Mrs. Gladys Ousley.

ANNUAL HOME DEMONSTRATION CLUB RALLY

The Annual Home Demonstration Club rally was held Thursday, May 26, at the Chilton High School, at Clanton.

The morning session was opened by singing "Alabama", and the Convocation by the new Baptist minister, Rev. Oscar A. Davis.

Mayor C. F. Jones gave the welcome address, and the response was given by our faithful Commissioner, Mr. H. R. Oden.

Mrs. H. F. Virgin, County Scholarship Chairman, gave a report of the work done by the Scholarship Committee this year. She introduced the scholarship winner, Martha Kennedy, who gave a few words of thanks to the Council and the Club members for the wonderful orportunity given to her and in turn to other girls in the County.

Next came a report from the Citizenship Chairman, Mrs. Stanley Kennedy, who reported that programs on Citizenship were given in each club in the County. Thorsby club reported the best program, and Minooka and Verbena followed close seconds.

Mrs. J. D. Williams, Chairman of the Kitchen Improvement Contest, reported splendid results from the contest. 100 club women have entered, and others are thinking of entering as the closing date has been extended until August 1. She reports a beautiful collection of prizes, which the various merchants of Clanton constributed.

One of the most enjoyable parts on the program were the lovely danze numbers by little Sue Ann Powers.

Our most charming council presicent Mrs. H. K. Christianson, introduced our beloved Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Meta E. Grace. She in turn introduced Mr. John Hollis, superintendent of the Alabama Power Company at Mitchell Dam; Mrs. John Hollis; Mrs. Davis, wife of the new minister; Miss Nolan Maroney, County Welfare Supervisor; Miss Dobine, district supervisor of Home Demonstration Agents; The members of the Clanton Choral Study Club, who gave two lovely song numbers; and last but by no means least, Mr. P. O. Davis, of Auburn, who gave a most interesting and educational address.

The meeting was then adjourned for lunch, which was served Cafeteria style in the Home Economice building. And a most delicious lunch it was. Drinks, sandwiches and ice cream were donated by various companies in Clanton.

The afternoon session was opened by singing, "Song of the Open Country".

The public Speaking contest, which was on "Better Schools for Rural America", was opened with the following as contestants: Miss Annie Louise Spencer, Mrs W. A. Wilkins, Mrs. O. L. Howard. Miss Pauline Ousley, and Mrs. J. A. Marcus. While the judges were making their decision, Mrs. H. K. Christianson gave a most interesting talk which she had prepared on the same subject. The judges returned and reported Miss Pauline Ousley, winner; Miss Annie Louise Spencer, second; Mrs. O. L. Howard, third. Prizes were given to all who entered the contest.

Hr. John Hollis favored the meeting with a most interesting discussion on the possibility of starting a strawberry jam industry in Clanton, and the hopes of having a Strawberry Carnival at Clanton next year in strawberry season.

Miss Dobine gave and interesting report on some of her work, and expressed her desire to see the jam industry begin in Chilton County. She also stated that she would like to see a mattress campaign started in this county and have every farm woman make at least one cotton mattress. This is one of the best and most useful ways of keeping cotton off the market.

Prehaps the most looked forward to event of the day was the awarding of the certificates to the leaders who were present and also to the club presidents.

Mrs. Virgin presented a gift from Minooka club to the Scholarship girl, for which she wishes to publicy express her deepest appreciation to each members of the Minooka club.

With a few words from Miss Grace and Mrs. Christianson the 1938 rally brought to a close with the hopes for a bigger and even better rally next year.

Lesson for June 5

SERVING BY PERSONAL DEVOTION TO CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:3-11, 27-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—She hath done what she could. Mark 14:8.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Mary's Present to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Mary's Love Gift.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Our Love to Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Heart of Christian Service.

"The love of Christ constraineth us" (II Cor. 5:14) was the all-sufficient moving force back of the greatest life of service rendered by any man. It is this personal devotion to the One whom we love "because he first loved us" (I John 4:19), which makes Christianity "different from all other religions. Christianity alone acts through this natural and deep hunger of mankind with a personalized religion which can be a satisfying joy and pleasure. Yet at this point Christians fail the most and make difficult the work of serving Jesus. They see religion as a job to be done, a form to be observed, a duty to be fulfilled" (W. R. King).

We need to renew that devotion to Christ which expresses itself in true worship. Prayer is too often asking for things; praise, thanking for things (unless we become so engrossed with them that we forget to return thanks); and worship, which is a coming to God in adoration and thanksgiving for what He is rather than what He can give, is forgotten. Our Heavenly father wants us to show love toward Him. The act of Mary was pure personal devotion and worship, and its fragrance lives to this day.

I. Wasted—But Eternally Saved (vv. 3-9).

The dark hours of betrayal and death were before our Lord. All around Him was hostility. Even in the inner circle of the disciples there was misunderstanding and bickering. Mary (to be distinguished from the sinful woman of Luke 7) with the quick intuition of an understanding woman's heart knew what He was passing through, and with a magnificent act of love stood by Him in the fellowship of His sufferings. Dr. Morgan points out that it was "an impulsive act . . . born of the prodigality of love daring not to calculate." In the words of verse 9, Jesus declared that the gospel and that which this woman had done were to "stand side by side with each other forever. That keen intuition of love, that uncalculating outpouring of love, was Godlike, and an act in fellowship with the act of God by which a world is redeemed."

Judas, who was a thief, said she had wasted money that should be used for the poor (John 12:6). The other disciples thought well of his argument and murmured against her. But Jesus commended her. To be thrifty and frugal is commendable, but there are times when the heart should speak without being silenced by the drawing of purse strings.

II. Saved — But Eternally Lost (vv. 10, 11).

Judas betrayed Jesus for thirty pieces of silver. He "made" some money. The fact that he did it by betraying the Son of God may be worse in degree but is not worse in kind than the betrayal of the youth of our land by those who make merchandise of their eternal souls. A recent news item from England declared that church organizations were making money out of properties publicly known as centers of prostitution. The leaders deplored the situation, but said they could not prevent it without losing the income of the property. Why not lose every cent rather than be party to the betrayal of any man or woman?

III. Bold Words—But Weak Actions (vv. 27-31).

Verses 12-26 tell of the gathering of the Lord and His disciples for their last passover and for the establishment of the Lord's supper. As they left the sacred meeting and went out into the Mount of Olives Jesus foretold His betrayal and His coming denial by the disciples.

Peter, quick with his tongue, and bold in spirit, spake swelling words of devotion and assurance. Sadly the Lord foretold his threefold denial of that very night. Again Peter and all the disciples declared their willingness to die with Him. They undoubtedly meant what they said, but reckoning without the weakness of the flesh they failed Him.

The lesson that is written large in this story for you and for me is, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall" (I Cor. 10:12).

Complaining

We have no more right to put our discordant states of mind into the lives of those around us and rob them of their sunshine and brightness than we have to enter their houses and steal their silverware.—Julia Seton.

Fortitude and Duty

True fortitude I take to be the quiet possession of a man's self, and an undisturbed doing his duty, whatever evil besets or danger lies in his way.—Locke.

Did he kiss you goodnight when he left?

No; it was too late.

TYPHOID CLINICS TO BEGIN

Announcement of the beginning of summer typhoid clinics to be held by the local health department was made this week by Dr. S. D. Sturkie, county health officer. A total of 12 clinics are being arranged for the month of June, five to be conducted by the health officer, and seven by the health nurse. The program for the summer to continue through July will include all of the larger community centers, the local health official said.

The schedule for June was announced as follows:

Clinics by health officer:
June 7, Stanton school, 9 to 11 a.m.
June 7, Maplesville school, 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.
June 9, Alabama Mills school, 8:30 to 10 a.m.
June 9, Jemison school, 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.
June 10, Verbena school, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Clinics by health nurse:
June 7, Isabella school, 9 to 11 a.m.
June 7, Vermont school, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.
June 9, Collins Chapel school, 9 to 10:30 a.m.
June 9, Thorsby school, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.
June 10, Fairview school, 9 to 10 a.m.
June 10, Shiloh school, 10 to 11:30 a.m.
June 10, Popwell school, 12 to 1:30 p.m.

In commenting on the summer immunization program, Dr. Sturkie remarked:

"Four visits will be made to each of the above places and the health officer or nurse will arrive as promptly as possible unless unavoidably detained by car trouble, etc. In view of the fact tha it has now been three years since there has been any large scale 'giving of shots' by the health department in Chilton County, a large number of persons should receive the immunization this summer. It should be remembered that immunity conferred by typhoid vaccine lasts from two to three years and should be repeated at least every three years. If we are to hold our typhoid incidence down, there must be a response such as there was in 1935 when 5,756 persons were vaccinated against typhoid fever. Since that year there has been a gradual decline in the number of cases of syphoid in the county, 15 being recorded in 1935, eight in 1936, two in 1937, and only two so far in 1938.

"It will be the policy of the health department to hold all clinics at the schools unless it is not convenient to do so. It is quite impossible for either the health officer or nurse to stop at individual homes to immunize persons, as too much time is consumed. In addition to the typhoid vaccination, diphtheria toxoid will be offered to all unprotected children under the age of eight. It is especially urged tha infants above the age of six months be immunized agains diphtheria. Besides the clinics to be held in the county a weekly session will be held each Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m, at the health office in Clanton".

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to our many friends, neighbors, and relatives for their help and their many deeds of kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our dear father, T. C. Abbott. Especially do we thank Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Edwards. May the Lord's richest blessings rest on each and every one of you, is our prayer.—The children.

IN MEMORY

On May 18 the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cox and took away the spirit of their loving baby, Mable Gene. All was done that loving hands could do, but of no avail. To know her was to love her, for she always had a smile for everyone. We should not weep, but rejoice, and be prepared to meet her in heaven, for we know that she is at rest. She leaves to mourn her loss, her mother and father, and a host of relatives and friends.—One who loved her, Mrs. Arthur Gore.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our deepest appreciation for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our darling baby. Especially are we most thankful to those who helped in any way. May the Lord bless each and every one of you, is our prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Cox.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS

To the Stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital, Inc.:

You will take notice and you are hereby notified that the annual meeting of the stockholders of Central Alabama Hospital, Inc., will be held at the hospital building in Clanton, Ala., on Monday, the 6th day of June, 1938, at 10 o'clock a. m., as required by law and the by-laws of the corporation, at which meeting officers and directors for the ensuing year will be elected, and such other business will be transacted as may come before said meeting. — V. AUGUST 1-6 DATES FOR FARMERS' WEEK

Auburn, May 16. — One of the most outstanding programs from the recreational and educational standpoint ever held is being worked out for hundreds of Alabama farmers and farm women who will gather at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, August 1 to 6, for the 1938 Farmers and Homemakers Week, announces P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service.

As part of the educational and recreational program, Director Davis says that state and national agricultural leaders will be present to address the farm people. Community singing, so popular in the past, will be continued this year, as will the sections or classes in livestock, landscaping, poultry, forestry, and other phases of agriculture in which the farm people are interested.

The latest facts on farming and homemaking gathered through experiments of the Alabama Experiment Station will be given the farm men and women, the director states. In addition, tours will be conducted so that the group may see what is being done to improve Alabama crops and farm practices.

All persons attendiny Farmers and Homemakers Week will be housed in cottages of the state camp on the campus at Auburn. Assemblies for speakers and singing will be in the assembly hall of the camp.

Stop and let the train go by,
It hardly takes a minute;
Your car then starts again intact—
And, what is more, you're in it!

Home of "GAY NINETIES" Seen ANTIQUATED Today

Nation-wide Movement for Improved Housing reveals Notable Advances in Beauty, Comfort, and Economy.

WOMEN'S clothes, dance steps and ideas about "correct deportment" are not, despite the funny papers, the only things that are greatly changed since the "Gay Nineties."

The current nation-wide interest in improved housing has called attention to changes quite as revolutionary in the American home. In fact, according to a recent study by The Ruberoid Co., manufacturers of building products for more than half a century, the typical home of today is no more like that of forty years ago than a modern automobile is like the chugging "horseless carriage" of 1898.

In beauty alone, there have been notable advances since Victorian days. Gone are the meaningless towers, balconies and dirt-catching scrollwork—gone the iron deer on the lawn, the plush sofa in the parlor. "Gingerbread architecture" and over-decorated furnishings have given way to an attractive simplicity of design and arrangement.

Much has been said about automobile improvements since 1900—the self-starter, demountable rims, more efficient motors, safer brakes, steel bodies. These, according to the Ruberoid study, are more than matched by advances in comfort, safety and convenience in the home.

Electricity is banishing drudgery for the housewife. Insulation, little understood forty years ago, is giving added protection against summer heat and winter cold, with reduced fuel bills. And to this can now be added air-conditioning.

Protection against fire has been further assured by the development of attractive new building products, such as shingles and sidings of asbestos-cement. Oil and gas heaters are eliminating dirt and the burdensome chore of "tending the furnace."

Most notable of all have been advances made in reducing the cost of home construction and modernization—plus the easy credit terms available today under the new program of the Federal Housing Administration. The result has been to make available to an American family of modest income a home with comforts and conveniences undreamed of in the "Gay Nineties."

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

Roy Burton Knew How to Fan Up Story

NEW YORK.—Two or three years ago, I was one of a group of newspaper men arguing about who was the best reporter who ever worked around here. One old-timer was holding out for Roy Burton, whom he had known on the Brooklyn Eagle in the nineties. Burton, he said, was the best leg-man and digger, the most fearless, and the most gifted in fanning up a story out of nothing at all. He knew make-up, too, said the oldster.

The diligent reporter has been duly rewarded. He is the Sir Pomeroy Burton whose magnificent French chateau the duke and duchess of Windsor were looking over recently.

With the Northcliffe papers in London, he became a multi-millionaire, as he transformed British journalism with daring American techniques. He became a British citizen in 1914 and was knighted in 1923. In addition to his vast newspaper interests, he is a magnate of electric power and utilities.

He was a printer's devil on his father's newspaper in Youngstown, Ohio, and, at the age of twelve, was knocking about country printshops in Ohio on the same job. He became a compositor on the Brooklyn Eagle. Hearing of a vacancy on the news staff, he persuaded the city editor to give him a try at reporting.

Boss Liked Youth in Hired Tails

He hired evening clothes to cover a society function. There, Colonel Hester, owner of the Eagle, was tremendously impressed with the personable young man with whom he was talking, and thought he had met him somewhere. Young Burton did not remind the colonel that he had seen the young man in a printer's apron a few days before.

He became city editor and managing editor of the Eagle, held important executive positions with the World and the New York Journal and was taken to England by Lord Northcliffe in 1904. Ten years later, he owned all but a few of the Daily Mail shares not owned by Lord Northcliffe.

In the World war, he virtually headed the organization of British propaganda, and many of the most damaging anti-German stories were attributed to him. His enemies charged that he had "debauched British journalism with degrading American sensationalism."

Sir Pomeroy Visits U. S. With Valets

His friends insisted he had enlivened and regenerated it. He makes an occasional trip to America with a staff of valets and secretaries, suave, dressy and still fit and impressive at seventy-two, with more than a touch of British accent.

Over here, he always hated the name Pomeroy and shortened it to Roy, but picked it up again in England. He had been named for "Brick" Pomeroy, the cyclonic journalistic disturber of the latter half of the last century, and he held Mr. Pomeroy in low esteem. Pomeroy was almost, but not quite, a winner.

From a Wisconsin crossroads, he rammed around the country in newspaper and financial brawls, and, in his old age, just through sheer animal spirits, started plugging a tunnel through the Rocky mountains, at Georgetown, Colo.

He was flattened by the '93 depression and died soon after, with nothing to show for his life's work but a hole in the ground. Then it was discovered that the tunnel had gouged into fabulous mineral wealth in Kelso mountain. Eight years ago, the tunnel went on through the mountain, as the Moffatt tunnel.

Mr. Bigelow Has a Yen for Fuehrers

REPORTING the return of Poultney Bigelow from a visit to his friend, the former kaiser, and his fervent approval of dictators, has become a matter of annual routine. It is an old story, but the freshness and vehemence of Mr. Bigelow's disgust with democracy and enthusiasm for fuehrers always makes it interesting.

He is the patriarch of Malden-on-the-Hudson, with relatives and descendants, down to great-grandchildren, all up and down the river. He will be eighty-three years old on September 10. His father, John Bigelow, was American minister to France under Abraham Lincoln.

He hunted birds eggs with the kaiser, forming a lifetime friendship, broken only by the war, which he charged the kaiser with having started. He recanted afterward and the two old men meet annually to salute "Der Tag" when only the all-wise and all-just shall rule again.

"The depression exists only in the minds of the people"—Jesse Jones. Don't you believe it. The minds of the people aren't anything like that deep.—Washington Post.

NOTHING LEFT FOR PENSIONS

If the United States goes into another war it will not "finance those who go into it" thereafter. The wherewith will be lacking. In time of peace we have spent and are spending our substance—in the last five years we have borrowed and spent enough to finance a war of respectable size. We would not enter another war strong and virtually free of debt as in 1917; it would be necessary to commandeer the labor and wealth with which to carry it on (there would be no voluntary buying of "Liberty loans"), and after peace came the dictatorship would still be necessary in order to take the substance as well as the liberty of the people. — Charleston News and Courier.

AMERICA IS THE GOAT

In case of a major war in Europe or Asia, there is ground for believing that Mr. Roosevelt will speedily get the United States into the fray. That he could carry the country with lofty sentiments is highly probable. We Americans are the prize sentamentalists of the universe.

And with what outcome? That Americans will be euchred at the peace conference, whether they lose or win the war, is fairly certain.—Dr. Charles A. Beard in "Events".

THE PARTY TO DO IT

It may be well to repeat here what we have often said before: Those persons who believe that the New Deal is a menace to the survival of American institutions must realize that if the New Deal is to be banished, it will have to be banished by the Republican party.

The Sentinels of the Republic can't banish it. The Liberty League can't banish it. The Defenders of the Constitution can't banish it. The Amalgamated Haters of Roosevelt and all the rest of the fancy named organizations conceived and carried on by smart press agents as a means to lush and easy living, can't banish it. The one existing agency which can banish the New Deal is the Republican party.

Thus it behooves all those who want to see the New Deal banished, and who are willing to contribute money to that end, to give that money to the Republican party, when it is asked for. The press agent organizations with the fancy names may help in the banishment, although that is doubtful. The actual work of banishment, however, must be done by the Republican party. That's the realism of it.—Worcester Telegram.

According to an American historian, the chief factor in the peaceful relations of Canada and the United States has been "common sense". But that is the kind of sense most difficult for nations as well as individuals.—Kansas City Star.

Now that Mexico has gone into the oil business, all it needs is customers, a foreign distributing set-up, and a radio comic with an accordion.—Detroit News.

The toy railroads in this section have new streamlined rolling stock, block signals, electric eyes and everything, in fact, but the holding company and a receiver.—Dtroit News.

A fellow says walking is a lost art in this country. Is that so? How does he think most of us get from where we park to where we are going?—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

All sorts of prophecies and conclusions have been drawn from the Pennsylvania primaries which have assumed a national importance. Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats are naturally cheering the voting which put what was left of the Guffey machine out of power and clipped the wings of the CIO leader, John L. Lewis. The Republicans, too, are getting a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction out of the fact that they cast more votes in the primary than did the Democrats, although the races in the latter camp were much hotter and more exciting.

Perhaps the most significant fact to be gleaned from a study of the primary results is that John L. Lewis, founder and head of the CIO labor organization, will not be permitted to dominate the Democratic party, even in Pennsylvania, where the new labor organization is particularly strong because of the support of Mr. Lewis' own union, the United Mine Workers. The CIO suffered a serious defeat in the Democratic contest. It lost by an overwhelming count its candidate for the United States Senate, Mayor Wilson of Philadelphia. This was to be expected. Mayor Wilson is politically about as changeable as a weather vane. He has been Republican, Democrat, New Dealer, and Independent. His defeat was generally expected.

But in the gubernatorial vote, it was different. Here Sen. Guffey and Mr. Lewis were backing a regular CIO candidate who is already lieutenant governor, and has had powerful backing from CIO labor leaders. Moreover, Mr. Kennedy was endorsed at the last hour by no less a figure than Mr. James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Yet he lost, not to a whirlwind campaigner of magnetic personality, but to the regular Democratic machine candidate, who had been referred to on more than one occasion as the "Casper Milquetoast" of the campaign.

One of the happiest men over the Pennsylvania results is William E. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who hails the verdict as a complete political repudiation of his rival, John L. Lewis. The AFL had considerable to do with defeating the CIO gubernatorial candidate. Labor was split in the Pennsylvania primary. In the Republican race, Judge James overwhelmingly defeated former Gov. Pinchot. And the latter has on some occasions been charged with being too friendly with Mr. Lewis. Altogether it was a particularly bad day for the CIO.

It is too early to make long range prophecies of what will happen in Pennsylvania in November. The Republicans are naturally pleased and encouraged and the New Dealers are disappointed although they hope to cement their lines in Pennsylvania this fall by tremendous expenditures for various forms of pump priming and relief. Politically, however, the Pennsylvania primary had one result. It counteracted the happy effect which the Florida primary had for the New Dealers. It indictaes that while the New Deal leaders may be able to control primaries in the South they perhaps will not do so good in great, populous states like Pennsylvania. There have been indications of this before. In the South Dakota primary the favorite New Deal candidate ran a bad third in the senatorial race, and the Republicans cast 30,000 more votes than the Democrats. These facts were lost sight of in the general hullabaloo of Sen. Pepper's victory in Florida. But coupled with the Pennsylvania results they are apt to have a more or less blighting effect on New Deal influence in the rapidly waning congress.

"WHAT IS NEWS?"

What is news? May it be something said by one of the people's legally elected representatives in congress, even though what that representative says is exaggerated or perhaps untrue, or is it what some politicians on the other side of the political fence want to say it is? If Sen. Sherman Minton, the chairman of that great American institution, the special senate committee to investigate lobbying activities, had his way about it, it would be a highly dangerous business for any newspaper to publish what the representative in question said in congress unless the paper was prepared to prove that the legislator was telling the exact truth.

Sen. Minton, in other words, is off on another tack with a proposed measure to "regulate" newspapers and "compel" them to print "the truth". The senator specializes in snooping into all sorts of unlikely places for "evidence" against anyone (anyone, that is, who is opposing the administration) who is trying to influence legislation in Washington. He succeeded Sen. Hugo L. Black as head of the lobby investigation committee. Sen. Black snooped so successfully through thousands of private telegrams in Washington, in a fishing expedition for sensational bits of evidence in one lobby frenzy, that the courts sharply called him to account, pointing out that the Constitution is just non-cooperative enough with the New Deal to guarantee the people immunity from illegal search and seizure of their private papers. Sen. Minton bids fair to attain the same remarkable place in history that Sen. Black earned with that foray.—The New London Day.

This happened once at The Atchison Globe's want ad counter: A man handed in an advertisement offering $100 reward for the return of his wife's cat. "Isn't that a high reward?" asked the clerk. "Not in this case", said the man. "I drowned the cat."—Greenleaf (Kan.) Sentinel.

Stockton's old grouch says if the city administration has a clean up week and hauls off the trash there will be hardly anybody left in town.—Rooks County (Kan.) Record.

Another thing that would help the country would be for a lot of people to trade their wrist watches for alarm clocks. — Kingman (Kan) Journal.

Just in order to reassure the country, President Roosevelt might give each of us that old advice, "stop and consider whether you are better off than you were a year ago".

If the Wisconsin Progressives get too dangerous maybe the New Dealers can get Henry Wallace to issue an order to plow under every third political party.

When the New Dealers contemplate that new LaFollette party they can recall the old Mexican military strategy, "If you can't lick 'em, join 'em".

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The writer has just returned home from Portland, Ore., where he conducted a 15-day evangelistic campaign in a large tabrenacle under the auspices of a young people's group from 70 of the Portland churches. It was a great revival. The modernistic religious leaders are saying that the young people are not interested in the "old time religion". These modernistic leaders are wrong. The writer has had quite a wide experience. I have dealt with young people in an evangelistic way in many parts of the world. The young people of this generation are just as responsive to the old time Gospel as the young people of any past generation. Young people are not responsible for the demoralized condition of the religious and educational life in our modern world. This demoralized condition is the result of the educational philosophy which has dominated the thinking of many of our leaders. Young people are the victims of a behavioristic educational philosophy. I challenge any university in America to give me an opportunity to preach the old time Gospel unhampered and unrestrained to the young people in the institution. Let's make a demonstration. My knowledge of the human heart convinces me beyond the question of a doubt that a great revival would break out in the colleges and universities of this nation if the preachers of the old time Gospel could get a chance at the young people. It isn't that these young people do not want the Gospel. The modernistic educational leaders don't want the young people to have the Gospel. There is a conspiracy to sell a Satanic philosophy to American youth which means "do as you please". Don't blame the boys and girls for their unsettled faith. Blame the men who unsettled their faith. May God open doors so the young people can get the Gospel in an unadulterated form and then there will come a great revival to the youth of our land.

Yesterday on the train I had a very interesting visit with a prominent busisness man from Oregon. Here is the story the man told me: "Recently there was a great deal of criticism in my state about the distribution of governmental relief. The governor of the state, who is a Democrat, asked me, a Republican, to serve on a committee to investigate the reports concerning waste and other matters". We made a careful investigation. As far as we were able to discover, there was no waste and no crookedness. However, all the members of the committee, after finishing the investigation, were convinced that the relief work has done something which has degraded the character of our people. Men and women who hesitated to go on relief because they had always been self-supporting and had always retained their self respect, after a few months came to feel that it was the government's business to take care of them, that they owed the government nothing but the government owed them everything." The experience of this gentleman has been my experience as I have gone up and down America. People are developing a "leaning complex". They have come to think of their relation to the government and all their relations not in the sense of "What can I do?"—but "What can I get?" It is not the purpose of this writer to criticize the men who are in authority. They have their burdens and their many problems. However, something must be done or the old time American decency and self respect and initiative will be destroyed. There seems to be a world-wide bankruptcy of character. The old time Gospel, the old time authoritative pulpit, the old time educational philosophy of self denial and self control could bring back to our nation the thing that seems to be lost. We always wind up by saying "Back to God and the old message". Men talk about evolution. There are more signs in America of "devilution". Man does not seem to be climbing. He seems to be going down grade, and the moral brakes are not working.

Game & Fish News

Raising Pheasants

Inquiries about the raising of game birds by individuals are frequently addressed to the State Conservation Department. Last week a Jefferson County man asked if it was legal to raise ringneck pheasants for breeding, table use, and to be turned loose as game birds. Pheasants are classed as game birds by the laws of Alabama, and before anyone can possess them for propagation purposes he or she must procure a permit from the Department as provided by law. This permit does not authorize a person to possess the birds for table consumption, but for propagation purposes. To hold these birds in captivity for any other purpose than propagation would be a violation of the law.

White Lake Bass Transplanted

White lake bass, brought to the Tennessee River in north Alabama 12 years ago by the Conservation Department, have been placed in the Warrior River, where it is hoped they will thrive as successfully as they did in the Tennessee. The first transplanting of this new game fish was effected the third week in May by the Conservation Department, under direction of Commissioner I. T. Quinn, Field Assistant J. M. White, and Chief Game Warden W. G. Wharton, assisted by Birmingham sportsmen. Two truck loads of adult fish were removed from Wilson Lake and placed in the Warrior near Jefferson, Walker and Tuscaloosa Counties. The white lake bass was introduced to the Tennessee in 1926 when Commissioner Quinn obtained consignments of the fish from overflow areas of the Mississippi River. Later this fall efforts will be made to plant the fish in other bodies of water which remain cool and clear yearly.

Addresses Officers

Approximately 100 conservation officers of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Department heard Commissioner I. T. Quinn, of Alabama, speak at Gainesville, Fla., on Monday, May 30. The occasion was a two-day short course of instruction for conservation officers of that state, under the direction of I. N. Kennedy, executive secretary of the Florida division. Commissioner Quinn spoke on the general subject of conservation, stressing the training of conservation officers.

Thorsby Institute Held Commencement

Thorsby Institute closed for the summer Monday, May 30. It had one of the best commencements that it has ever had. One reason for this was the splendid speaker, Rev. James Clinton, D. D., of Philadelphia. He was born in Northern Ireland but came to this country about fifteen years ago and served for several years as pastor of the Central Congregational Church in Philadelphia. He gave splendid messages Sunday and Monday at the Baccalaureate and at the Graduating Exercises and Sunday night gave a Dramatic Recital of "His Mother's Sermon" by Ian Maclaren. This was interspersed with songs which he sang in the most appealing manner. He was accompanied by Miss Kathryn Foss. There was special music at both exercises. At Baccalaureate the choir sang an anthem, "In Heavenly Love Abiding", by Mendelssohn, and Mrs. H. R. Maddox and Mrs. V. H. Sutlive, teachers at Thorsby Institute, sang a duet "Come Unto Me and Rest". On Monday Miss Thelma White, a senior, played a panio solo, "First Arabesque" by Debussy. She showed a great deal of feeling in the rendering of the solo. The Girls' Chorus, under the direction of Miss Foss, sang "Lady June", by Baines. An offering was taken at the Baccalaureate service for Studenst Aid. A number of prizes were awarded at the Graduating Exercises. For excellence in English $5.00 was given to Frances Conway and $5.00 for excellence in mathematics; $5.00 was given to Fred Blankenship, a sophomore. The undergraduate scholarship for the coming year was awarded to Frances Conway. This pays the tuition for a semester. This is the third time she has received this scholarship. The Helen Drummond Sewall Scholarship, which goes to a boarding student, was awarded to Ouida Wright, of Opp, Ala. The attendance prize of $1.00 each went to Wayne Adams, Leonard Bosworth, Frances Conway, Edwina Helton, Maurice Higgins, all of Thorsby, William Callen of Clanton, Inez Duke, Randolph and Howard Minor of Sylacauga. The Piedmont College scholarships were awarded to Mary Christ of Hayneville, and Martha Green of Leesburg, seniors. A prize fo $2.50 each was given to Mary Christ and Oleita Nowell for the best kept rooms during the year. A letter "T" was awarded to Hazel Burnham of Italy, Texas, for excellence in physical education. For the first time, scholarship pins were awarded. They were given to the two who stood highest in the Junior class, and to the two who ranked highest in the Sophomore class. The Juniors were Frances Conway of Thorsby, and Mae Anniece Polk of Clanton; the Sophomores were Fred Blankenship and Orville Driver of Thorsby. The Reader's Digest prize of a subscription for a year beginning July 1 was awarded to the Senior who was valedictorian, and was given to Mary Christ. After the exercises on Monday a bountiful community dinner was served on the school grounds. The Sophomores sold ice cream and cold drinks.

The Senior play, "Katy Did", on last Friday night was very much enjoyed. Proceeds from this play went in the class gift. The class gifts which were presented Monday included a cement Thorsby Institute sign placed on the campus. This was made by one of the Seniors, Richard Peterson. Money was given to paint one of the recitation rooms, to purchase new shades for one of the recitation rooms, put a light in the property closet, and the rest of the money to the Library Enlarging Fund. The school always appreciates very much these gifts that come from the Senior class.

The Senior music recital which was given by the pupils of Miss Kathryn Foss on last Saturday afternoon was enjoyed by all present.

The alumni of Thorsby Institute entertained the Seniors and Miss Helen Jenkins at a party last Saturday night, given at the home of H. L. Collins. One part of the entertainment which was especially enjoyed by all present was the marionette show put on by Miss Gale Gletty of Thorsby. After the party a short business meeting was held by the alumni who were present. The following officers were elected for next year: Kathryn Foss, President; Christina Bosworth, Vice President; Mary Sue Porter, Secretary; and Phares Raybon, Treasurer.

The following students were exempted in the subjects listed for the second semester: Fred Blankenship, algebra, biology; William Callen, business training, civics; Mary Christ, Bible, English, economics, Spanish; Frances Conway, American history, Bible, English, geometry; Orville Driver, biology, world history; Martha Green, English, economics, Latin; Gladys Hicks, bookkeeping; Oleita Nowell, bookkeeping; Mae Anniece Polk, American history; Mae Pearl Sorrell, Spanish; Mary Williams, bookkeeping; Nelle Williams, bookkeeping; Frances Wood, business training.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles Luther and Miss Charlotte Luther left early Tuesday morning for St. Petersburg, Fla. They expect to be there a while and then go to California, where Miss Luther will study.

Miss Lois Townsley left Monday afternoon for her home in Modesto, Cal. She expects to attend commencement at Scarritt College in Nashville, Tenn., to which she expects to return for her last year's work in her preparation for being a foreign missionary.

The Thorsby Institute library will be open two days each week during the summer months. It will be on Tuesday and Friday from 8 to 11 in the orning and from 2:30 to 5:30 in the afternoon.

MACEDONIA — BEAT 11

We met at this place last Sunday afternoon and organized a Sunday school. However, we will not meet again until the fourth Sunday morning; we will have the literature by then.

Some new people have moved into our community. They are good church workers and good singers. We plan to have a class for everyone, including one for young men and women, and invite everyone to the church; we want you to feel at home. — V. G. Smith.

MRS. W. C. DUKE IMPROVING

Mrs. W. C. Duke is at home doing nicely, after undergoing an operation in a Birmingham hospital.

She wishes to offer her sincere thanks to her friends and neighbors who were so kind to help. Especially does she thank Dr. Lawrence and his nurse.

Little bee upon the vine,
I thought you were a berry;
But when I tried to pick you off
I found you quite contrary.

A wide open Invitation

Come in! It's a wide-open invitation. There are no conditions, no ifs. We offer you a great many absolutely free—and extremely valuable—services.

Batteries are usually "out of sight" in the average car. But don't neglect yours. Months of extra service may result from regular attention—which we gladly give free.

Tires are often worn out long before they should be. Under-inflation takes the life out of them—and make them easier to puncture. Once each week, or oftener if you like, let us check them for you. It takes only a minute or two.

A weak fan-belt may cause a lot of trouble at the most inconvenient time and place. While we fill your radiator, we look at your fan belt . . . Many other services are free to you.

How can we make our offer more clear? We give you this wide-open invitation. These services are free. Come in today.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy has been an effective social and political ally of both her father, former mayor of Boston, and her husband, ambassador to the Court of St. James. But the news that, in accordance with her husband's decision, she presented only seven American women at court is one of her rare appearances in the headlines.

Mrs. Kennedy Aids Father and Husband

The 11 engaging Kennedys have been viewed more or less en bloc in the news and Mrs. Kennedy has never been in a very sharp lens focus.

She was one of the prettiest of Boston debutantes, 30 years ago, a rollicking girl with black hair and eyes of Irish blue. Back home from her convent training, she taught her father "Sweet Adeline."

He was John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, and in his campaigns he sang his way to memorable political fame—riding like a surfboard the long, lingering "swipes" of the song taught him by his daughter—"the flower of his heart."

Joseph P. Kennedy, her childhood playmate, was twenty-five years old when they were married in 1914. He borrowed $2,000 for a down payment on a $6,500 house. Their fortunes grew as their family, with Mr. Kennedy president of a bank, in a year or two after their marriage.

Fortune and Family Grew Up Together

Mrs. Kennedy once told a Boston drygoods clerk that she bought 200 suits and dresses a year. It takes a heap of shopping to make a home, like the Kennedys', and she became known among her friends as a paragon of household efficiency comparable to the one in Solomon's offhand apostrophe to such skills and virtues.

Now she is mistress of the "castle" which was once J. Pierpont Morgan's home; also of a beautiful mansion in Bronxville, N. Y., a huge summer estate at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, and a villa at Palm Beach, built by one of the Wanamakers.

She is slender and girlish, comely and vivacious, weighs 115 pounds and takes size 14 in dresses. Vionnet makes her gowns and she is envied by other women for her magnificent jewels—notable among them being a ruby and diamond bracelet which, it is said, is matched only by the one the Aga Khan gave his princess.

Has Diamond a Potentate Might Envy

But she never lets the children run to unseemly display, holding them to restraint in regime and dress. Even without all these adventitious fixings, say her friends, she would be an admirable ambassador's wife, with her own quite adequate equipment of tact, charm and intelligence.

* * *

MAN and boy, this journeyman has helped process a lot of explorers' and adventurers' copy through the news mill. If it was ghost-written, it had only slick and synthetic excitement, like Ersatz pastry, and if it wasn't it was usually dull. Happily in contrast are the doubtlessly authentic and personally written yarns of W. H. Tilman, leader of the British Mount Everest expedition, now getting under way.

These stories from the Tibetan base camp have a professional ease and fluency, along with a ring of integrity which gives assurance that Mr. Tilman is really writing them. There is no ghost on the job here.

Yarns From Mt. Everest Ring True

Mr. Tilman is thirty-nine years old, a keen-faced, hard-muscled Britisher of medium stature, who has been exploring ever since he left college.

He has climbed mountains in the Alps and in Africa, including Mounts Kenya, Kilimanjaro and Ruvenzori. This is his fifth expedition to the Himalayas. The entrants in this high hurdle event are not youngsters. N. E. Odell is forty-seven, F. S. Smythre is thirty-seven and the others are all over thirty.

Bull Terrier, White Dog

When bull baiting was abolished by law in England, sporting men developed the bull terrier for dog fighting and badger baiting. About 1875, dalmatian and pointer blood were introduced in the strain, making them look less like bulldogs The bull terrier is always white, has a long tapering head, wide, deep chest, stiff, glossy hair and tapering tail. He is gentle and good natured, but fears nothing and is a good watch dog.

Typographical Error (?): "After luncheon, the ladies 'catted' with one another".

IN MEMORY OF G. W. MULLINS

On Saturday afternoon, May 21, the pearly gates were opened, a gentle voice said come, and with sad farewells, unspoken, our father entered his heavenly home. He was a kind and loving father, always welcomed us with a smile, always advised us to do right. He suffered so long that, though we are sad and lonely here, we are glad he is at rest with Jesus and his loved ones so dear. Although unable to speak and tell us goodbye, we know his thoughts were with us.

Weep not, dear ones. Earth's loss is heaven's gain. We miss him here in this world below, but we can prepare to meet him again. He accepted Christ as his savior 27 years ago, but was deprived of the pleasure of attending church for several years.

He was 70 years of age. He was married to Miss Emma Wyatt in 1888. and to this union were born four sons and two daughters; this wife passed away 22 years ago. Later he was married to Miss Dover Culp, who died three years ago.

Surviving are E. G., J. D., and J. F. Mullins of Clanton, and O. C. Mullins of Elmore; Mrs. G. W. Hayes and Mrs. W. L. Coggins, both of Clanton; 42 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Dear children, God help you all to live and love God, so you can be as he was, able to sing "Oh, how I love Jesus, because He first loved me".

Mr. Mullins was laid to rest in Shiloh cemetery Sunday, May 22, Rev. W. P. Lowery conducting the funeral services; Martin in charge. Pallbearers were six grandsons — Cary, Toy, G. T., Cornelius and James Mullins, and Julian Coggins. — His daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. D. Mullins.

A drunk was leaning against a building. A cop groaned: "Move on: c'mon, c'mon! What do you think ye're doin', holdin' up the building?"

So the drunk staggered away, and the building fell on the cop.

NEW CEDRON AND POPWELL 4-H CLUBS MET THURSDAY

The New Cedron and Popwell 4-H Clubs met jointly last Thursday at New Cedron. There were 18 members and three visitors present, the latter being Beth Williams, Sara Ellen Moates, and Nell Thrash.

The entire group visited Mr. Foshee's farm, at which time a registered Jersey calf was tattooed. We returned by an experiment cotton patch where a variable depth cotton plant was used, and observed the results.

During the meeting a discussion was held on record books, as the county council made this one of the requirements before we will be allowed to attend camp.

After the meeting some games were enjoyed by all of us.

Mr. Ivey visited some of our projects on his way back to Clanton. — Payron Popwell, reporter.

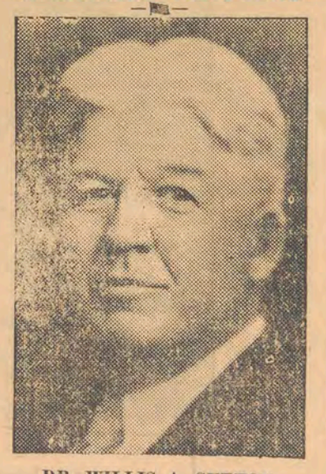
Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.



When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

DR. WILLIS A. SUTTON SPEAKER AT EDUCATION CONFERENCE

DR. WILLIS A. SUTTON

Dr. Willis A. Sutton, former president of the National Education Association, and now superintendent of the public schools of Atlanta, Ga., will represent the Educational Policies Commission of the N. E. A. at the education conference at The University of Alabama in June.

Dr. Sutton is scheduled to speak on June 15 and 16. His lecture topics are: "How shall we plan for the future in education?", "Twenty-four hours a day education for the child", and "Breaking the shackles of education".

Though a native of Georgia, the Atlanta educator served many years in Alabama. He was principal of the Fredonia High School and of the Clay County High School, president of the Northeast Alabama Agricultural College, and pastor of the Methodist church at Ashland.

Dr. Sutton rose to his present post through the principalship of Tech High School, Atlanta, in which he previously taught English and headed the English department.

SOME JACKRABBIT!

Jackrabbits grow big in Texas. This one got into Farmer Brown's barn by mistake. Before daylight and while half asleep, Brown harnessed up what he thought was his mule to a plow. It was the fastest and jumpingest "mule" Brown had ever followed. As the rabbit sailed over a mesquite tree, the plow share dug deep into the tree trunk, stopping he animal and leaving him ensnared in harness and mesquite branches. The next step was rabbit steaks.

Fire and poison, plus a net work of trenches and dust hills, will be the major weapons of the federal and state governments in their fight on the white fringed or Argentine weevil within a few days when the larvae of the weevils begin to emerge from the ground, says George Harris, entomologist of the State Department of Agriculture.

SAVE VITAMINS, SAYS SPECIALIST

Auburn, May 30. — The method of canning affects the vitamin content of the product to a great extent, says Miss Lavada Curtis, food preservation specialist of the Alabama Extension Service, in advising Alabama womes to do everything possible in their canning to insure maximum food values.

With the exception of vitamin C, there should be no serious loss during the canning process. In order to preserve all vitamins possible, the food should be canned soon after it is gathered, and all preserving steps carried through rapidly. Pre-cooking foods for a short time, packing them hot, and processing them in containers help to preserve the vitamin content. To preserve minerals, fill the containers with liquid in which the product was pre-cooked, she says.

POTATO STORAGE SUGGESTIONS GIVEN

Auburn, May 30. — With a spring and fall crop of Irish potatoes and with proper storage of these potatoes the farm family may have home grown potatoes all through the year, states L. M. Ware, head of the horticultural department of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. Ware says there are several inexpensive ways of storing Irish potatoes through the summer. A cool, darkened cellar makes an ideal place of storage. It is well to leave the potatoes in some kind of container holding about one or two bushels and be sure that the contained is not resting directly on the ground or on the concrete.

Another very simple and fairly satisfactory way of storing potatoes during summer, which is available to any farmer, consists of storing in the shade of a rather dense tree. A layer of straw is placed on the ground, a small pile of potatoes—four or five bushels—placed on the straw, and then the pile is covered with more straw. Straw must not be used to cover piles as with winter storage of sweet potatoes. A trench dug around the area and a little tin or composition roofing to shed the water complete the job. Potatoes kept in this way may be used for the fall crop of seed potatoes if the Triumph variety is being grown, according to the horticulturist.

STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

With 48 members in attendance from every section of the state, the Farm Products Marketing Committet of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce headed by J. C. Hodges, chairman, and Luther Fuller, co-chairman, held an enthusiastic meeting at State Chamber headquarters, Montgomery, May 24th.

Meeting with the committee by invitation were R. J. Goode, State Commissioner of Agriculture; Haygood Paterson, Commissioner - designate; Karl Landgrebe, Vice President of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, and others.

Chairman Hodges opened the meeting with an expression of appreciation for the full representation, and outlined briefly the general purpose of the meeting and tre program of work of the State Chamber.

Roland Adams, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the State Bankers Association, which is keenly interested in increasing the cash income of the Alabama farmer, commended the work being done by the State Chamber in effecting this.

P. O. Davis, Director of the Alabama Extension Service, and Dean M. J. Funchess, Director of the Agricultural Experiment Station, offered full support of their facilities to the Committee.

LATE COTTON NEEDS NITRATE APPLICATION

Auburn, May 30. — With most of the cotton of Alabama two weeks late and a great deal of it later than that, it is very important that farmers do everything in their power to give this crop an extra "push" in growth, emphasizes J. C. Lowery, agronomist of the Alabama Extension Service.

Mr. Lowery says that with both cotton an dcorn later than usual it would be a good investment for the farmers to apply generous applications of nitrate to these plants so that this extra push in growth will make up the delay to a great extent.

"The heavy rains in April put both these crops behind last year's crops from 10 days to two weeks, and some farmers have had to replant because the cotton did not come up to a good stand or because cutworms or something else ruined the stand after it did come up", he says. "These crops will be more than two weeks late".

The side dressing of nitrate of soda will increase the growth of both cotton and corn. Experiments show that the best results are obtained when the nitrate is applied about 40 days after planting. In cotton this will be after chopping and before blooms begin to be general over the field. Corn will be about knee high at this time. If cotton and corn follow a winter legume it is not necessary to side dress with nitrate. From 100 to 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, depending upon the amount of other commercial fertilizer used, should be applied.

Dry weather and boll weevils and wet weather and boll weevils can do a lot of damage to late cotton, Mr. Lowery states.

All of the department's Legion great have been invited to attend. Among the more prominent are: Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War; Associate Justice Hugo Black of the U. S. HOGS SERVE DOUBLE PURPOSE ON FARMS

Auburn, May 30. — Hogs can serve two purposes on Alabama farms—supply home meat needs and supply a cash crop, emphasizes F. W. Burns, livestock specialist, Alabama Extension Specialist.

There are 20 per cent of the state's farms which do not produce pork, even for home consumption, he says, adding that enough farmers all over Alabama are producing hogs for market to prove that they can be made a profitable cash crop if efficiently handled.

A farmer can start now, Mr. Burns says, by buying a bred sow or gilt, preferably of a good type that is prolific, early maturing, and is able to convert feed into pork economically. The sow should be treated for cholera and should receive green feed, or pasture, plenty of water and shade, enough corn to keep her thrifty, and half a pound daily of equal parts of tankage and cotton seed meal. He says it will be better assurance of a thrifty litter of pigs if a mineral mixture of equal parts of charcoal, slaked lime and salt is kept before the sow.

Since 75 per cent of the cost of pork production is feed, it is essential that an adequate supply of home grown feed be produced to feed the pigs. Experiments have shown that it requires 250 ot 300 pounds of peanuts in the field or six bushels of corn and 50 pounds of protein supplement to produce 100 pounds of pork.

For additional information, Mr. Burns advises farmers to contact their county agents for a bulletin giving the details of hog production on the farm.

CURIOUS GEOLOGICAL FIND

Mr. W. M. Lovelady of Plantersville Route 1, in the extreme southwestern corner of this county, brought to The Union-Banner office last week a curious rock formation which he discovered near his home. It is a black substance, almost like coal, and can be broken or chipped with a knife. The blocks of this black stuff are covered in places with clusters of shiny-looking crystals resembling gold or some other minerals.

The blocks were found in the bottom of one of those deep ravines that are common in that part of the county and in Perry and Dallas counties. Mr. Lovelady reported there was lots of the stuff where that came from. It was buried in sulphur rock and soapstone.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Circuit Court In Equity. May 10, 1938. Oscar Pate, Complainant, vs. Myrtle Pate, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of Oscar Pate that the Defendant is a non-resident, and that her place of residence and post-office address is unknown, and that such address cannot be ascertained after reasonable effort; and, further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is of the age of twenty-one years:

It is, therefore, ordered by the Register that publication be made in The Union-Banner, a newspaper published in the County of Chilton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Myrtle Pate, to plead, answer, or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 13th day of June, 1938, or, in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against her.

Done at office in Clanton, Ala., this 10th day of May, 1938.

SALLY JOHNSON ROBERTS, Register.

TO CORRESPONDENTS:

We like to get the letters from the different neighborhoods, and people like to read them. We wish, however, to make a few suggestions to writers:

See that your letters get to this office by Tuesday.

Do not write about visits made by nearby neighbors. When anyone comes from a distance or goes off on a visit, that's news.

Do not write about the little love affairs of the boys and girls.

Never write anything that will hurt or annoy anyone.

Pay especial attention to school and church matters.

Don't write about the weather—it's practically the same all over the county.

If the general health of your community is good, knock on wood, but don't send a report of it in to be published; if someone is seriously ill, that makes news.

Write your copy plainly, especially proper names. Write on only one side of your paper. If you use a typewriter, double space between the lines.

Always sign your articles. If you want name omitted, say so, but we must have name of writer.

Please take notice, and be governed accordingly, or you may be disappointed when your article appears in print.

NEW DEALERS ON THE RUN

of pressure from Washington in lining up those on the dole; in spite of radical labor union leaders browbeating their followers to force them into line; and in spite of the hitherto magical blessings of Mr. Roosevelt, himself, bestowed freely on radical candidates.

Even in Florida, the much-heralded victory of Senator Pepper has been vastly overestimated. Complete returns show that he received only some 57 per cent of the total vote. Even in this state of the Deep South, the Roosevelt rubber stamp registered less than three votes out of five in a party primary.

There is plenty of work to be done yet before the era of plunder and pay-off inaugurated by the New Deal is completely ended. In the Roosevelt regime we witness something never before seen in this country on a national scale—a gigantic plunderbund, looting the public and the treasury of billions where the local politicians have looted thousands—and distributing the spoils as reward to the faithful. Anyone who has had experience with a county machine, or a city machine, entrenched behind patronage paid for with public funds, knows how hard it is to break such an organized and legalized form of banditry. The New Deal has permeated with its patronage power into every nook and corner of the land, and for the first time in history has sunk this whole great nation to the level of a rotten municipal ward, where votes are bought and paid for by political favors, and cash dispensed through political channels. Such a set-up is hard to beat, and it is small wonder that for a time the horde of New Deal parasites, the job-holders and the patronage beneficiaries, seemed to have the inarticulate masses of the people crushed and under their heel.

The recent party primaries from coast to coast show, however, that the United States cannot be run like the borough of Manhattan, that it is too big to be carried around in any politician's vest pocket. Millions of deluded citizens, some of whom honestly believed in the New Deal pledge of happiness to all and hard work for none, have come to their senses.

Substantial Republican gains are now generally expected, and in fact conceded, in the coming November election. When 1940 rolls around, we will be in a position to put the finishing touches to the monstrous machine that started out to save us and wound up by trying to enslave us. We will be sadder, but a lot wiser, for the experience, and ready to turn to those fundamental principles from which we have strayed in these years of delusion and mass hysteria.

Future of Dairy Herd Depends on How Calves Are Handled

"The future of any milking herd often depends on how calves are handled," says W. R. Arends, dairy authority of the Purina Mills. "This puts a definite responsibility on the shoulders of the man who cares for the calves from the time they are dropped until they become part of the milking herd. It is not only cheaper to raise heifer calves than to buy cows, but by raising one's own heifers a herd can be built just about the way a dairyman wants it.

Feed Highly Important

"The importance of feed for the calf cannot be over-emphasized," Arend says. "Feed must provide the things from which bones, sinews, muscles, and blood are made. A well developed frame, and depth in the middle are determined by what the calf gets to eat. First food for the calf should be the mother's colostrum milk. This milk is laxative and performs the job of setting the digestive system in motion. If it is necessary to take the calf from the cow, the calf may be fed from a pail. But nature has taught the calf to look up for its milk so it should be made to stretch its neck out to drink from a pail. As in nursing, the neck should be outstretched so that the opening into the rumen or first stomach is naturally closed, preventing milk from entering. The first stomach in a small calf is dormant. Whenever milk enters, it lies there and ferments. This causes scours.

Need More Than Skim Milk

"Milk alone will not provide all the things calves need for profitable growth," Arend points out. "Milk is about 87 percent water, which means that a gallon of milk is really about seven pounds water and one pound solids. As the calf grows and develops its requirements for solid matter increase beyond what milk alone can supply for maximum growth. In a properly balanced dry feed calves are supplied with the nutrients they need.

"After years of research work the Purina Research Staff has discovered how to fill calf's needs through a complete feed known as calf startena. By feeding a little milk at the start, then feeding calf startena with hay, the calf gets exactly what it needs.

Begin Feeding Fourth Day

"The new calf feed is given baby calves when four days old. It's kept before them at all times, but it is never advisable to place in the troughs more than a day's feed at a time, subjecting it to possibilities of becoming damp.

"The feeding schedule for calves worked out by Purina scientists calls for mother's milk the first three days, after which start with two quarts of milk per day working up to four quarts daily at beginning of second week. At end of second week, the calf should be getting five quarts daily, which should be continued through the third week. At beginning of fourth week, cut milk back to three quarts a day, at end of fourth week, cut out milk entirely. Along with this limited milk feeding program, keep calf startena, hay, and water before the calf. These directions are for Holstein and Ayrshire calves. For Guernsey and Jersey calves, the amount of milk is slightly reduced.

"By the end of the fourth week, the calf is used to dry feed so its weaned. No more milk is needed because the calf's complete needs are taken care of in calf startena, hay, and water. With this kind of feeding it isn't long before the calf is well on its way to becoming a profitable money-making first-calf heifer."

ALABAMA JOURNAL AND ABSENTEE BALLOT LAW

The Alabama Journal, Montgomery, is to be commended for the attitude it is taking and has taken in regard to the corruptness of the absentee voting law in Alabama. The Journal through its editorials has attacked the law a number of times in recent years, and it has had much to say about same since the last primaries on May 3rd.

The Union-Banner cannot agree with The Journal on lots of its political views, but we believe it does contend for fairness in elections, and that it stands ready to defend the rights of the untrammelled electorate and to condemn any practice that smacks of fraud and that deprives honest voters of their just rights.

We believe that a paper like The Journal can make itself heard among our lawmakers, and that probably through its efforts this damnable piece of legislation may eventually be stricken from our statute books. We say, Hurrah for The Journal, and hope that other daily papers of the state may be brave enough and unselfish enough to come out openly against this the most corrupt piece of political plunder that we have to contend with.

THE NEW DEAL CAPITALIZES ON HUMAN MISERY

New Deal tactics of capitalizing on human misery for partisan political gain, diverting funds for relief of the unemployed to relief of Democrat politicians who find themselves in danger of becoming unemployed, came in for a savage lambasting in the Senate of the United States on a recent sultry Saturday. It is significant that the lambasting came not from Republicans, or independents, but from disgusted Democrats who are too honest to sit silently by while the public weal is prostituted to the exigencies of a bunch of political shysters.

There was really nothing new in what the Senators had to say. Everyone knows by now that the accepted standard of New Deal morality is founded upon the play upon the needs and fears of an impoverished and disillusioned people, with a view to extracting more and still more appropriations, to be spent where they will do the Democrats the most good. There is nothing new in the charge that the New Deal machine is mixing in local politics, championing the election of its rubber stamps, and demanding the defeat of every candidate who has refused to mortgage his self-respect and freedom of action. The fact that such charges were made on the floor of the United States Senate, however, makes them doubly interesting and significant.

One of the speakers was Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana. Senator Wheeler, known and respected throughout the nation, incurred the vindictive hatred of the man in the White House and his coterie of boot lickers, by daring to oppose the court packing bill. Senator Wheeler boldly charged that a handful of men, comprising Ickes, Hopkins, the Corcoran boys, Joseph B. Keenan, and "Son James" Roosevelt, are running the government, marking for defeat all those Democrats who have ventured to oppose the schemes of this inside clique.

A similar vigorous assault on the New Deal machine, involving the president, himself, was made by Senator Bailey, Democrat, from North Carolina. Joining Wheeler in denouncing Washington jobholders who have intervened in party primaries, Bailey shouted that "The federal government has nothing whatever to do with the election of United States senators and governors, and that goes for the President of the United States". Bailey accused New Dealer Hopkins of double dealing, with the charge that Hopkins had announced

REGISTRARS MEET ON MONDAY, JULY 4

Body Must Convene On Legal Holiday, Says Ruling Of Attorney General

Answering an inquiry from Secretary of State Howell Turner, the office of Attorney General Albert A. Carmichael held last week that county boards of registrars must, under general statute, meet each year on the first Monday in July and remain in session for five days, regardless of the fact that the first Monday in July of any particular year may be a legal holiday, as it is this year, falling on July 4, "Independence Day".

It has heretofore been ruled, it is cited, that it is optional with officials as to whether or not they observe legal holidays, other than Sunday, which they must observe, and that, therefore, a legal act can be performed on a legal holiday.

Meetings of Boards of Registrars, it is stated in the opinion rendered the Secretary of State, should be held each year, for five days, beginning on the first Monday in July, "notwithstanding the fact that the first Monday of July of a particular year may come on the Fourth of July, which is a legal holiday".

KIWANIS CLUB TO HOLD SPECIAL MEETING JUNE 9

A special program will be put on by Clanton Kiwanis Club Thursday night of this week, June 9th. In charge will be Mr. H. F. This special program is in recognition of the fact that Southern Bell is making extensive improvements on this system in Clanton. The new building is practically completed, and crews of men are working on changing the lines and making other alterations preparatory to moving the office on schedule time about August 26th.

Our old magneto system will be changed to what they call the battery system, the main difference being that in order to get central one only has to lift the receiver.

NEW DEALERS FLAYED IN ELECTIONS IN IOWA

Republicans Poll Many More Votes In Primary Than Democrats

Senator Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, seemed to have buried in a deluge of Democratic votes Monday some nationally known New Dealers. At the same time, the total number of votes cast in the Democratic primary were outnumbered by those cast in the Republican primary by over 96,000. The count Tuesday night gave the following votes cast: Democratic, 154,797; Republican, 251,656; plurality of Republicans over Democrats, 96,768. These returns were from all but 11 of the state's Democratic boxes, while Republicans had 16 to hear from.

This is the fourth state to cast overwhelming majorities of Republican votes recently, they being South Dakota, Pennsylvania, Oregon and Iowa.

NOTICE TO REPUBLICANS OF CHILTON COUNTY

All Republicans who are going to attend the State Republican Convention in Birmingham on June 22 are asked to notify T. E. Wyatt at once, and especially those who will attend the banquet at the Tutwiler Hotel on Tuesday night, June 21st, at 7 o'clock.

Young Wilson was brought to Central Alabama Hospital where medical aid was furnished him. He is said by hospital attaches to stand a chance of recovery.

DR. EZELL LECTURED AT BAPTIST CHURCH HERE

The church hour last Sunday night at Clanton Baptist church was turned over to the former pastor, Dr. S. J. Ezell, who used the time in telling of his recent trip with his family up through Virginia and into the Northeast. The doctor's discourse was most interesting while he related some of the most interesting things he saw of colonial settlements, relics, battle grounds, Etc. around Jamestown, Williamsburg, Yorktown, Newport News, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Valley Forge, the Hudson River, Washington, New York City, and other interesting points.

The service was a most interesting one, being both inspiring as to patriotism and religious fervor. The members of the church were very glad to have Dr. Ezell come back and fill the pulpit which he so ably filled for nearly sixteen years.

Very Old Shoe Found

The Union-Banner is in possession of a very old shoe—supposedly one worn by a Confederate soldier during the 60's. It was brought in to our office last Saturday by Mr. Ottis E. Bice of Sunshine community, and was found by Mr. Bice under his home, the old Bennett Easterling house. The old house has been there for close on to a century, and it is supposed that the shoe was worn by Mr. Easterling or some of his friends during the war between the States.

The shoe is about a No. 7, and the sole is solid steel from heel to toe. The steel is turned up for about an inch all around, and the upper was fastened to this flange.

The shoe is on display at The Banner office, and may be seen by anyone desiring to call by our office.

MAYOR JONES AND THE CITY'S DOGS

Dog Owners Of Clanton Should Exercise Respect For The Rights Of Neighbors

In last week's papers Mayor C. Fenn Jones had a lengthy and interesting letter relative to Clanton's over-supply of worthless and mischievous dogs. In this letter our mayor introduced a subject that is well worth the consideration of the citizens of the city.

The question of dogs or no dogs is usually passed up as a joke or trivial matter, or something that is just a person's right if he wants a yard full of dogs or if he wants one pet dog or if he prefers none. Well, such is more or less the case. A person has a right to a dog if he wants the company and companionship one furnishes; but as Mayor Jones very feelingly points out in his letter, where people live close together as we do in Clanton, it is altogether possible for your dog to prove a nuisance to your neighbor and even damage his home or property. No one wants to hurt a neighbor's feeling about his dog or dogs; but a dog owner should always consider his neighbor's attitude toward his dog, and no doubt will if his attention is paid to it. That is just what Mayor Jones is doing in his letter. He is calling the attention of the citizens of the city that their dogs are possibly annoying their neighbors, and such neighbors want to maintain peace too badly on their street to complain.

People who own dogs usually see nothing in them except playfulness and friendliness; but owners are not with their dogs all the time and do not know what they are into all hours of the night and lots of the day time. Dogs are mostly all bad prowlers and do not care whose lawn or whose flowers they muss up and wallow all over; and when a large bunch of them get together, they can make considerable sign in a short time.

The Union-Banner wishes to commend Mayor Jones for the time and effort he has spent in bringing this matter of too many dogs to the attention of the citizens of Clanton. As he makes plain, dogs in the country and dogs in a city are two different things, and they should be considered differently. Lots of our people in Clanton came from the rural districts and naturally brought here with us our love for owning dogs and the feeling that we have the right to own as many as we choose and any kind we choose. Well, there are other things to consider — our neighbors, their feelings, their desires to be unmolested at night, and such like.

Mayor Jones is absolutely right in his contention about the dogs of the city and the necessity of the stock being considerably reduced. We have entirely too many worthless pooches, mongrels and curs; and when fifteen or twenty of them get together in one of those get-togethers about two o'clock in the morning, it is not a hard matter to decide then what ought to be done with them.

It is hoped that our citizens will take heed and do something with their worthless dogs before our city officials are forced, against their will, to pass ordinances to control them. Such would be disagreeable and expensive, but it will have to be done unless the citizens take the matter seriously and do something about it themselves. Mayor Jones is not speaking just his own mind in this matter — he is speaking the minds and attempting to carry out the wishes of hundreds of property-owners and citizens of Clanton. It is hoped that we will heed their warning.

McBride of the Alabama Education Association this week named eight Alabama teachers as delegates to represent his organization at the annual meeting of the National Education Association, which convenes in New York June 26. Included in the group were: J. D. Williams, Birmingham; Lorine Barnes, Birmingham; May Landers Adams, Fayette; George Yarbrough, Wedowee; W. T. Jordan, Decatur; C. M. Brewster, Sheffield; John W. Abercrombie, Montgomery. Alternate delegates included: Foster Ansley, Birmingham; Elizabeth Lewis, Montgomery; Rosa McLendon, Cottonton; W. A. Lovvorn, Wedowee; H. E. Williams, Florence; Luna Nichols, Guntersville; Mildred Nungester, Decatur; Frank L. Grove, Montgomery. These appointments were made by President McBride following a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association, held in Birmingham Monday evening, May 30.

At this meeting Frank L. Grove, executive secretary of the A. E. A. since 1928, was elected to an additional 3-year term.

Attending the Committee meeting, in addition to President McBride, were First Vice President George W. Hulme, Ft. Payne; Executive Committeeman James S. Brown, Carbon Hill; S. M. Tharp, Bay Minette; and B. B. Baker, Fairfield.

Brief Farm Notes

NON-DEPLETING LEGUMES ARE BETTER THAN DEPLETING CROPS

Auburn, June 6. — Under the 1938 AAA program Alabama farmers may not only produce food and feed on the soil-depleting acreage allotment of their farms, but they also have the opportunity to increase the supply of food and feed for home use by growing a number of non-depleting food and feed crops on their diverted acres, says A. W. Jones, administrative officer in charge of AAA activities in Alabama.

Mr. Jones says many producers in the state find they get more feed out of leguminous crops, such as soy beans and cowpeas for hay, and peanuts for hogging, than they get out of soil-depleting crops of the same acreage. A primary aim of the program is soil building, and some of the diverted acres must be in non-depleting crops. The legumes will meet that requirement and at the same time be supplying good feed.

FEED HENS PROPERLY FOR EGG PRODUCTION

Auburn, June 6. — Feed your hens properly if you are to get the best and most economical results, advises John E. Ivey, poultry specialist of the Alabama Extension Service, in calling attention to the need for more feed by the hens if they are to lay eggs through the late spring and summer.

During the summer when the price of eggs is low poultrymen very often make the mistake of becoming discouraged and not feeding the hens enough. It requires 64 pounds of feed to maintain the life of a hen for one year. An 80-egg hen eats 71 pounds and a 200-egg hen approximately 80 pounds of feed. The more feed a hen gets above 64 pounds the less feed it will require to produce a dozen eggs, according to Mr. Ivey.

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, June 6. — Alabama is tied with North Carolina for fourth place among the states of the Union o nthe basis of the ratio of accidental deaths to total population, as shown on a safety map prepared by the National Safety Council, in Chicago, a copy of which has been received by the State Department of Health. This map, based on accident mortality reports obtained from state health departments, shows Alabama's and North Carolina's accident death rate as 65 per 100,000 population. The three states represented as having lower rates are Arkansas, with a rate of 56.3, Rhode Island, with a rate of 59.3, and Maine, with a rate of 62.3.

This state is one of 19 represented in white on the map, indicating that the accident death rate for each of these is less than 80 per 100,000 population; 13 states, shown in green on the map, are declared to have accident death rates between 80 and 99.9; while the other 16 states, shown in black, are represented as having rates of 100 or more.

The Farm Products Marketing Committee of the Alabama State Chamber of Commerce got off to a good start recently with 48 members present at the first meeting in Montgomery. The committee, headed by J. C. Hodges and Luther Fuller, Birmingham, hopes to provide good year-around cash markets for Alabama-grown farm, orchard and garden products, and thereby bring up the income and buying power of agriculture.

The third convention tour to Havant, Cuba, by Alabama editors and their friends is proving very popular, according to a statement given The Union-Banner this week by C. L. Walton, president of the Alabama Press Association. More than 100 requests for information and descriptive folders of the trip to Cuba have already reached the office of the Alabama Press Association, he added.

Travel, hotel and other costs have mounted since 1936, and we are fortunate to get an all-expense trip at the low cost of $85.70, especially since several popular entertainment features have been added in addition to the wonderful program in 1936, he said.

Friends of Alabama publishers who desire the ideal vacation trip should make their plans immediately for the convention tour to Havana during the week of July 17th to 24th. Details and descriptive literature may be secured fro mthe office of The Union-Banner, or from C. L. Walton, President, Alabama Press Association, La-Fayette, Ala.

BOB GOODE URGES LOOKOUT FOR WHITE FRINGED BEETLE

Commissioner of Agriculture R. J. Goode this week issued the following warning to the people of Alabama:

"Please watch out for the appearance of the white fringed beetle, sometimes called the Argentine weevil, and report all suspicious looking beetles to your county agent or the state department of agriculture. This insect has completely destroyed crops in the heavily infested areas where it now exists. Due to the great damage which it does to all field crops, we are most anxious to know immediately of its existence in any other areas in order that protective measures may be taken".

Notice Given To Food Dispensers

HEALTH DEPT. REPEATS WARNING TO FOOD ESTABLISHMENTS

Proprietors of eating establishments were soundly warned this week by the County Health Officer that compliance with the new regulations of the State Health Department affecting the preparation of foods, beverages, etc., would be strictly enforced in Chilton County.

"According to Section 1146 of the Code of Alabama, 1923, as amended September 13, 1935", stated Dr. S. D. Sturkie, "it is provided that whenever the State Health Officer officially advises a judge of probate and/or a municipal corporation that he is in position to enforce the regulations authorized in this section in any county and municipality, it shall be unlawful hereafter for the judge of probate or the city clerk of the said municipality to issue a privilege license for the operation of any establishment in which any food or beverage is made, prepared, processed, displayed for sale, or served, unless the applicant for the said license presents a permit for its operation from the county health officer.

"In order to be eligible for such a permit both the equipment and the method of operation of any food establishment must conform to standards set up by the State Health Department", the local health officer asserted. "It is expected", he added, "that this regulation will take effect locally just prior to the issuance of new privilege licenses in October, 1938. To date, all cafes, restaurants, lunch stands, etc., in the county have been inspected by Mr. Fred H. Buckelew, county sanitation officed, and the proprietors have been duly notified of the corrections which are to be made in order to bring their equipment up to the standard specified in the law. Their response so far has been most disappointing, there being little or no effort made by operators to cooperate with the health department". Postponement by proprietors in bringing their establishments up to the requirements will result in a delay in obtaining their privilege licenses, Dr. Sturkie warned.

Some of the new regulations which, according to the local health officer, will vastly improve the sanitary conditions in cafes, etc., are:

1. Hot water under pressure in establishments where water under pressure is available.
2. Provision of adequate number of wash sinks or compartments for washing equipment.
3. Hand wash facilities required.
4. Locker space for clothes of employees.
5. Sanitary toilet on premises for use of employees.

Of the $538,307 released by Comptroller Lee on May 14, $450,000 was derived from the sales tax, the gross receipts tax, and the tobacco tax. The remainder was from the 3-mill ad valorem tax. At the same time, $75,000 derived from the sales tax was sent to the counties to be used for public welfare, public health, farm and home extension work.

Alabama's 79 cotton mills consume practically two-thirds of the cotton produced in the state. In 1936 they employed 39,000 people and paid these employees more than 28 million dollars. The capital invested in these mills is placed at $195,000,000.

HOPE HULL CITIZENS TO PROBE VOTE FRAUD TO BITTER END

Good Government Committee To Seek Indictments From Grand Jury

Montgomery, June 4. — Hope Hull citizens will continue efforts to secure indictments for alleged irregularities in the recent primary of May 3, according to a statement made by the good government committee, of which J. A. Campbell is chairman. They propose to go before the next grand jury, or to use whatever court action is necessary.

They charge not only that 18 votes were not counted as cast in the May 3 primary, but that 20 out of 24 absentee ballots put in the box were forged and illegal. They charge that one absentee ballot bore the name of a man who had been voting in Lowndes County for four years and another of a man who had been dead for 12 years.

"We wish to say," declares the statement issued Saturday, "the absentee voting system as at present administered is a cesspool of iniquity, and in comparison, an ordinary septic tank is a virtuous institution."

The statement further stated:

"In our effort to ferret out suspected fraud at Beat 9, we have official evidence of guilt, but in our effort to bring the guilty to justice we have failed. We know not why. Is it because of widespread corruption in elections we have become callous and unresponsive to justice?

"Is not the same guilt attached to taking 18 of your neighbors' votes in Beat 9 as there would be taking 1,800 at a more populous precinct?

"Does withholding an indictment against a guilty party because of reflection and disgrace to your county compensate in any degree those cheated of their right of suffrage? Does whitewashing a crime in the jury room lessen guilt, relieve the injured or produce better morals, or does it make the criminal more bold and insolent in planning his next coup?

"As vicious as was procedure at our precinct box, even more brazen and shameless was the absentee balloting imposed on us. Of the 24 votes cast, four were found regular and the other 20 were spurious and illegal.

"We submit, all thinking persons must see in such designedly abuse of our franchise a grave peril. The future looks dark and gloomy indeed, if we are to be ruled by domineering politicians.

"To us it seems an opportune time for the electorate to wake up to their danger before they are completely engulfed by the present system in force.

"The absentee ballot and the numbered ticket are powerful and mortal enemies of 'good government' and should be relegated to the oblivion of the scrap heap, else our democratic form of government is in danger of slipping into the discard".

Alabama is sending many thousands of dollars out of the state for dairy products that can be produced in Alabama, believes F. W. Burns, livestock specialist of the Alabama Extension Service. Sweet cream for ice cream making, cream for butter making, milk for cheese and condensing purposes are examples of markets available in many Alabama counties.

Alabama's corn crop last year was the largest produced since 1921, but the average yield was only 14½ bushels per acre.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

SPECIALIST URGES FARMERS TO GROW MORE SWEET POTATOES

Auburn, June 6. — Alabama farms could grow a great many more sweet potatoes profitably than are now being grown, believes W. A. Ruffin, entomology and horticulture specialist of the Alabama Extension Service, in advising farmers that June is not too late to set out vine cuttings or slips of this crop for feed and feed during the fall and winter.

Sweet potatoes have the advantage over certain other crops, since they are excellent food for the family dining table, can be sold to city and town people who have no place to grow potatoes, and are also excellent feed for livestock, according to Mr. Ruffin.

Hogs and cattle, if fed intelligently, will utilize to an advantage large amounts of potatoes during the winter.

In the June issue of the Alabama 4-H Club News, P. O. Davis, director of the Alabama Extension Service, called on 4-H club members of the state to aid their families in producing the necessary food by setting out a plot of sweet potatoes and by planting beans and peas. These foods, supplemented with a fall crop of Irish potatoes and a fall garden, milk, butter, meat and eggs, will greatly reduce the food cost of the farm family, he pointed out.

Lack of sufficient moisture has retarded the setting out of sweet potatoes in many sections, but Mr. Ruffin says that showers up through June can be followed by setting out sweet potatoes —vines or slips. Farmers can probably obtain enough vine cuttings from a neighbor to set out a small patch and these usually grow faster than the slips pulled from the seed bed.

HOME DEMONSTRATION WOMEN PLAN BIG MATTRESS CAMPAIGN

Auburn, June 6. — Alabama home demonstration club women and their home agents have set 10,000 mattresses as the goal to be attained in their mattress making campaign from August 1 tot January 1, announces Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent. At the same time, Miss Johnston gives the dates for district training schools to be held in Alabama under the supervision of Misses Ruth Dobyne, May Cureton, and Elizabeth Forney, district supervisors, and Miss Nell Pickens, home management specialist of the Alabama Extension Service.

The training schools are scheduled as follows: District I — Gadsden, June 21-22; Florence, June 24-25. District II — Troy, June 6-8; Alexander City, June 16-18. District III — Mobile, June 9-11; Selma, June 13-15.

"Records show that women owning their coton can make an excellent mattress for a cash outlay of about $2 for ticking, thread, and buttons", says Miss Pickens. "It takes between 40 and 50 pounds of cotton to make a mattress. Figuring this at 9 cents per pound, the cotton would be worth about $4 and the entire cost of the mattress would be approximately $6. It would be worth several times that when completed."

A great deal of interest in the making of mattresses has been shown by the home demonstration club members and many of them have already begun to make mattresses which they say "are just like bought ones".

FARMERS ARE WARNED ABOUT HOG DISEASE

Auburn, June 6. — This year's heavy rainfall, followed by warm weather, has created a serious threat of infectious enteritis, or "necro", outbreaks in hogs, and farmers are being warned to take precautions against the disease, state livestock heauth authorities have announced.

"Hogs should be moved out of old, muddy lots and placed on clean pasture", advises Dr. I. S. McAdory, state veterinarian. "The organisms which cause enteritis multiply rapidly in damp, warm weather, and an entire herd of hogs may become infected with the disease in a short time. The death rate may be very high, and pigs which do recover may remain unthrifty the rest of their lives".

Owners are also warned against peddlers of so-called "cures" for necro, or necrotic enteritis. "The best steps against the disease are to get hogs on clean ground as quickly as possible and rely on the advice of a veterinarian as to what further measures may be taken".

Precautions in istroducing feeder hogs into a herd are also suggested, as they may be the carriers of necro, cholera, or other diseases.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

Farming practices that control erosion also help farmers to get the maximum benefit from rainfall during periods when they need it most, according to Mr. James H. Wood, Superintendent of the Soil Conservation Service area near Clanton.

Since run off water is the principal agent of erosion in this section, any practice that controls erosion must control run off. This is exactly what practices that farmers are demonstrating in the Clanton area are designed to do, Mr. Wood said.

Properly constructed terraces, contour cultivation, and contour pasture furrows provide mechanical barriers which increase absorption. Good rotations which make the soil more porous, the use of strips of close growing crops in cultivated fields, permanent hay crops, good pasture sod, and unburned woodland all increase the moisture content of the soil by holding back run off water.

With abundant annual rainfall in this section, the problem is not one of getting enough rain, but rather of getting it at the proper time. Moisture stored in the ground by these conservation farming practices tend to alleviate the damage to crops during periods of extended drought, he pointed out.

This is particularly evident, Mr. Wood said, on contour furrows in pastures where a denser growth of grass can generally be observed and where the grass remains green longer during periods of extended drought.

SIGN APPLICATIONS NOW!

Farmers of Chilton County who qualified for the 1937 benefit payment checks will be interested to learn that the county office has completed all applications that have been signed and sent them to the state office. The state office is going at top speed to complete these payments, announces J. W. Fant, county agent. In the state office day and night forces are working and are turning out approximately 2,500 applications for payment per day.

Mr. Fant said it was not necessary for farmers to contact his office, since he will see that all checks are delivered as soon as they are received from the disbursing office. It is difficult, he said, for those not familiar with the AAA work this year to understand the delay in payments. However, an explanation has just been received from A. W. Jones, administrative officer at Auburn, which Mr. Fant believes will be interesting to farmers in this county. Mr. Jones' statement is as follows:

"On January 1, 1938, immediately after the close of measuring acreage for 1937, all county agents, committeemen and others were busily engaged in the work necessary for getting out the payments. However, with the passage of the Agricultural Adjustment Act for 1938 all work then in progress had to be stopped so that acreage allotments for planting in 1938 could be completed before spring planting time which was rapidly approaching.

"Upon the recent completion of acreage allotments to the state's approximately 300,000 farmers, the county and state office forces have again turned their attention to 1937 payments and this wor kis now being pushed to full capacity in order to get payments to farmers and to clear the decks for the other tasks for 1938".

Mr. Fant emphasized the importance of farmers who have not signed applications do so at an early date. There are approximately 150 applications in the county office that have not been signed, he stated.
